

Dr. Jay Johnson

Lynne D. Williams, medical school information

Feb. 23, 1990

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Dr. Jay Johnson has joined the faculty of the University of Nevada School of Medicine as director of the adolescent medicine program in the department of pediatrics in Las Vegas.

Johnson is developing a teaching and research program and also providing a clinical consultation service for adolescent problems at the University Medical Center of Southern Nevada.

Johnson graduated from Oklahoma College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery. He trained in pediatrics at Brooke Army Medical Center in Fort Sam Houston, TX, and had a fellowship in adolescent medicine at Fitzsimmons Army Medical Center in Denver.

Johnson is board certified by the American Board of Pediatrics and the American Osteopathic Board of Pediatrics.

-30-

Written by Jeanne Lauf