

James Johnson is new chairman of med school advisory board

Lynne D. Williams, medical school information

May 29, 1990

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

James W. Johnson of Fernley is the new chairman of the University of Nevada School of Medicine's advisory board; he has been a member of the board since 1984.

Johnson is the former president and chief executive officer of Security Bank of Nevada and the retired executive director of the Nevada Banker's Association. He has been affiliated with the Mt. Rose Lion's Club and the Prospectors Club, as well as being an advisory board member of the Salvation Army and past president of the Better Business Bureau of Northern Nevada. Johnson also serves the medical school as chairman of the board of the Northeastern Area Health Education Center.

Johnson and his wife, Mickey, are the parents of Gary E. Johnson, M.D., School of Medicine Class of '82, who is a full-time faculty member in family and community medicine.

-30-

johnson/dw2