

School of Medicine recruits new advisory board members

Lynne D. Williams, medical school information
July 26, 1990

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

The University of Nevada School of Medicine has recruited four new members to its advisory board. The new members are: David W. Clark, chairman of Clark & Sullivan Constructors; Ernest Martinelli, vice chairman of the board, Valley Bank of Nevada; H. Gregory Nasky, Managing Partner, Vargas & Bartlett; and Wayne Williams, retired senior vice president and trust executive, First Interstate Bank of Nevada.

Clark, who has lived in Nevada for 13 years, also is chairman of Sierra Nevada Bank of Nevada and is a member of the National Association of General Contractors.

Native Nevadan Martinelli is active in the William F. Harrah National Automobile Foundation, United Way of Northern Nevada, EDAWN, the University of Nevada, Reno Foundation, Saint Mary's Foundation and Sparks High School Advisory Board.

Nasky, who is an 18-year resident of the state, is interested in corporate and real estate financing and gaming law, and he is a member of the American Bar Association and the Nevada Bar Association.

-MORE-

Williams, who has spent more than 29 years in Nevada, recently retired from FIB. His business interestes include real estate investments and financial counseling.