FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The most exciting - and nerve-wracking - day in the life of a medical student is only a week away. On Wednesday, March 18, medical students at the University of Nevada School of Medicine, and across the country, find out where they will do their residency training. This moment will occur at 9 a.m. in Nevada; in Reno festivities will be held in the Manville Gallery and, in Las Vegas, they will take place in Suite 503 in the 2040 building on West Charleston.

During the final year in medical school, all seniors visit residency programs throughout the United States offering the specialty they have chosen. Each program rates the students they have interviewed; the students, in turn, rate the program; and then students and programs are computer matched.

Each year, Nevada students have become more successful in their matches, the majority getting their first or second choice. Much of the credit for this success can be given to their predecessors, who have established themselves in residency programs throughout the country as able, well-trained and caring physicians.
