

New members are inducted into Alpha Omega Alpha

Lynne D. Williams, medical school information
June 22, 1989

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Seven new members have been inducted into the Nevada chapter of Alpha Omega Alpha, the national honorary medical society. The new members, from the University of Nevada School of Medicine are: Gary M. Flangas, Kamran Sahrakar, Kris A. Smith and Gregory A. Tichenor of the Class of 1989; Mark A. Barnard and Mark D. Mifflin of the Class of 1990; and Lawrence J. Kelly, M.D., associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology in Las Vegas.

To be eligible for membership, students must have outstanding academic credentials, demonstrate leadership qualities, and be involved in community activities.

The national society was established to recognize and perpetuate excellence in the medical profession. The Nevada chapter received its charter on April 23, 1985.