FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The University of Nevada School of Medicine would like to offer some instruction in "matters of the heart." This year's Mini-Medical School, is made possible through a grant from the American Bank of Commerce, American Federal Savings Bank, and the Harris Family Trust. The sessions will offer instruction to the general public about our most vital organ, the heart, how it works, what happens when disease invades, what medicines are used to combat disease and how they work. The free four-session course will be offered in both Reno and Las Vegas on successive Wednesdays. The Reno sessions will be held in the Manville Auditorium in the Manville Building at the University of Nevada School of Medicine on March 30, April 6, April 13 and April 20, from 7 - 9 p.m.

The March 30 session is "Let the Beat Go On: The Anatomy and Physiology of the Heart and Blood Vessels."

The April 6 session is "Your 'Achy, Breaky Heart': The Diagnosis and Treatment of Chest Pain and Heart Disease."

The April 13 session asks "If One Pill is Good, Are Two Better? How Heart Disease Medicines Work."

The final session, on April 20, is "Heart Broken: The Role Emotions Play in Heart Disease." To sign up, call Karin at 784-6003.
