Medical student works with local doctor

WINNEMUCCA--A University of Nevada School of Medicine student began working with Dr. Richard Ingle this month.

Senior medical student Leslie Greenberg began a four-week stay with Dr. Ingle, a local family practice physician, Oct. 24.

Greenberg, along with all fourth-year students, is required to complete a month-long stay with a family practice physician in rural Nevada. She will work side-by-side with Dr. Ingle through Nov. 18 to learn more about the practice of rural medicine.

The students' rural rotation is coordinated by the School of Medicine's Nevada Area Health Education Center program.
