Medical student works with local doctor

INCLINE VILLAGE-- A University of Nevada School of Medicine student began working with Dr. Elliot Schmerler recently.

Senior medical student Paul Smith began a four-week stay with Dr. Schmerler, a local family practice physician, Nov. 21.

Smith, along with all fourth-year students, is required to complete a month-long stay with a family practice physician in rural Nevada. He will work side-by-side with Dr. Schmerler to learn more about the practice of rural medicine through Dec. 16.

The students' rural rotation is coordinated by the School of Medicine's Nevada Area Health Education Center program.
