Medical student works with local doctor

ELKO-- A University of Nevada School of Medicine student will begin working with Dr. Cal Lewis this month.

Senior medical student Jane Hadley will begin a four-week stay with Dr. Lewis, a long-time local family practice physician, this month.

Hadley, along with all fourth-year students, is required to complete a month-long stay with a family practice physician in rural Nevada. She will work side-by-side with Dr. Lewis beginning Feb. 15 to learn more about the practice of rural medicine.

The students' rural rotation is coordinated by the School of Medicine's Nevada Area Health Education Center program.
