Medical student works with local doctor

PAHRUMP--University of Nevada School of Medicine senior medical student Barry Noorda began a four-week stay with Dr. Dennis Campton, a local family practice physician, this month.

Noorda, along with all fourth-year students, is required to complete a month-long stay with a family practice physician in rural Nevada. He will work side-by-side with Dr. Bezard to learn more about the practice of rural medicine.

The student's rural rotation is coordinated by the School of Medicine's Nevada Area Health Education Center program.
