

School of Medicine to host professional conference on high-risk pregnancies

Lynette Boggs, medical school information
September 21, 1993

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The University of Nevada School of Medicine is hosting a workshop for primary care physicians and nurses to focus on the issues involved in managing and providing care for high-risk pregnancies. The workshop will take place Saturday, October 2, at the Gold Coast Hotel in Las Vegas from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

School of Medicine faculty presenters include San Sun Ahn, M.D., Jack Lazerson, M.D., Colleen Morris, M.D., Berkley Powell, M.D., and Thomas Scully, M.D., of the Department of Pediatrics, and Rachel McConnell, M.D., and Richard Perkins, M.D., of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Conference participants will have the opportunity to discuss factors involved with in vitro fertilization and its pregnancy outcomes, become familiar with the risk factors of a high-risk pregnancy, identify factors that may lead to birth defects and discuss the ethical issues involved in neonatal and perinatal care.

For workshop registration information, contact Kim Kandt, R.N., at 383-2256 or 222-6373.

###