Medical student works with local doctor

TRUCKEE-- A University of Nevada School of Medicine student will begin working with Dr. Jim Englesby this month

Senior medical student Chuck Petrunin begins a four-week stay with Dr. Englesby April 8.

Petrunin, along with all fourth-year students, is required to complete a month-long stay with a family practice physician in a rural community in the Sierras. He will work side-by-side with Dr. Englesby through May 3 to learn more about the practice of rural medicine.

The students' rural rotation is coordinated by the School of Medicine's Nevada Area Health Education Center program.
