FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

This year, there were 24 Reno residents in the 52-member graduating class of 1995 at the University of Nevada School of Medicine. During the Hooding Ceremony in May, the new physicians received their academic hoods and took the Hippocratic Oath, which is their formal acceptance into the medical profession.

Students are accepted into Nevada's medical school from throughout the state, and several places are set aside each year for students from western states that have no medical school. Those states are Alaska, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Reno residents in the Class of 1995 are:
