

Anchorage residents are new physicians

Lynne Williams, medical school information
June 13, 1995

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Anchorage residents Eric J. Miknich, M.D., and John D. Swanson, IV, M.D., were among the 52 members of the graduating Class of 1995 at the University of Nevada School of Medicine. During the Hooding Ceremony, Dr. Miknich received his academic hood from his father, Charles M. Miknich, of Anchorage; and Dr. Swanson was hooded by Dr. Byron McGregor of Reno.

Dr. Miknich earned his undergraduate degree in English at Washington State University, and will do a family practice residency at the University of Nevada School of Medicine.

Dr. Swanson earned his undergraduate degree in premedicine at the University of Nevada, Reno, and will do a surgery residency at the University of Cincinnati Hospital.

During his medical school career, Dr. Miknich was a member of the American Medical Association and American Medical Student Association.

While in medical school, Dr. Swanson was a member of the International Society for Mountain Medicine, the American Medical Student Association, and American Medical Association.

Dr. Miknich is the son of Charles and Elizabeth Miknich.

Dr. Swanson is the son of John and Nancy Swanson.