Medical student works with local doctor

ELY-- A University of Nevada School of Medicine student began working with Dr. G. Norman Christensen this month.

Senior medical student Eric Sohn will begin a four-week stay with Dr. Christensen, a local surgeon, Jan. 15. Sohn, along with all fourth-year students, is required to complete a month-long stay with a family practice physician in rural Nevada. He will work side-by-side with Dr. Sohn through Feb. 9 to learn more about the practice of rural medicine.

The students' rural rotation is coordinated by the School of Medicine's Nevada Area Health Education Center program.
