Medical student works with local doctor

A University of Nevada School of Medicine student will begin working with Dr. Robin Titus this month in Wellington.

Senior medical student William Ketcham will begin a four-week stay with Dr. Titus, a local family practice physician, Feb. 12.

Ketcham, along with all fourth-year students, is required to complete a month-long stay with a family practice physician in rural Nevada. He will work side-by-side with Dr. Titus through March 8 to learn more about the practice of rural medicine.

The students' rural rotation is coordinated by the School of Medicine's Nevada Area Health Education Center program.
