

Development Officer Named for Nevada Stress Center

Lynne D. Williams, medical school information
September 11, 1987

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Stacy Kay Endres has been named development officer in the Public Relations and Development Office at the University of Nevada School of Medicine for the school's newly established Nevada Stress Center. She is completing her M.A. degree in speech communication and received her B.A. degree in journalism, both from UNR. She is a former publications coordinator for Washoe Medical Center, reporter for the Reno Gazette-Journal and publicist at the University of Nevada Las Vegas.

The Nevada Stress Center, affiliated with the School of Medicine's Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences, is devoted to medical research on severe stress.