FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Watercolors and oils will be artist Anne Rieder's medium when her exhibit opens August 4 at the University of Nevada School of Medicine's Manville Gallery. Included in the pieces to be shown is a watercolor entitled, "He Was Thinking About Three Clams."

According to the artist, "The works are about the essential and timeless themes of life, our need to know ourselves and to connect with others, and to live in the world and to experience life to the fullest in the short time before our deaths."

Although she was born at the Johnson Air Force Base in Japan, Rieder is a resident of Reno and earned her bachelor's degree in painting from the University of Nevada-Reno in 1985.

In addition to the Manville Gallery show, the artist has exhibited at the UNR's Getchell Library and in UNR undergraduate shows.
