CITY OF RENO

Reno, the commercial, mining and livestock metropolis of Nevada, is located in the extreme western part of the state, in the county of Washoe, one of the great divisions that contributes largely to the mineral, agricultural and livestock production of the state. It is the largest city, in point of population in the entire state, is the seat of the University of Nevada, and is headquarters for hundreds of the mining companies whose production of precious metals will soon place Nevada in first place in the list of states.

For the past five years the city has had an astonishing and yet sound growth. In 1900 it contained 4,500 inhabitants. This was doubled in three years and in 1906 it had reached 12,000. In 1907, according to conservative estimates made from school and directory enumerations it had climbed to 17,000. In spite of adverse market conditions and financial stress in the East, building has gone forward without interruption, save that caused by a scarcity of artisans, and more substantial and costly public buildings are now in contemplation and under way than at any time in its history.

The day of wooden and light brick structures has passed. In their place are arising four- and five-story brick, steel and stone buildings, erected with a view to meeting the increasing demands of a permanent community. The city has a large paved street area, which is being extended annually, sanitary sewers are replacing storm drainage, cement sidewalks are laid in the older parts and are rapidly being placed in its new additions. On every hand there is evidence of prosperity and an intelligent direction of effort.

From the Truckee river, rising in the Sierra Nevadas, at the base of which the city lies, comes unlimited electrical energy for light and power. The same stream supplies the vast agricultural area of the Truckee Meadows, in which Reno is situated, with water for irrigation purposes, its surplus waters being diverted far below the city into the Carson sink where it is reclaiming two and one-half million acres of lands that are being allotted to settlers by the United States government.

West of Reno are located immense timber tracts from which Nevada, and much of California, derive their supply of lumber. In every direction there are great ranges for sheep and cattle, rich mining districts, salt deposits, and agricultural lands, all of which are tributary to it.

Taking advantage of its splendid railroad facilities and its geographical location, the merchants, manufacturers and financial interests of Reno have met and encouraged every demand upon them for accommodations. Large department stores, with complete stocks, machine shops, packing houses, stock yards, wholesale houses, lumber yards, modern hotels, finely equipped newspapers, interurban and street railways, brokerage and purchasing agencies, and all the other requisites of a wholesale center have been built and maintained.

Especial attention is given to business interests by the financial institutions. Loans on sound enterprises are made at liberal rates and on account of their financial strength the banking houses are able and willing at all times to protect and foster new ventures, regardless of depressions in the greater financial centers. This alone has been a potent factor in the progress of Reno.

The climate of Reno is mild, the summers not excessively hot and the winters short. Although the snowfall is heavy in the mountains it is light in the valley city. Continual breezes blowing from the Sierra temper the heat of summer.

The altitude of Reno is 4,500 feet above sea-level. It is sought by many as a health resort.

Extensive arrangements are being made for municipal and county improvements. A local Chamber of Commerce is at the service of newcomers, ready at all times to serve their best interests. Abundant capital encourages legitimate enterprises. There are thoroughly equipped schools, many churches, clubs, pleasure resorts, technical training institutions and unlimited opportunities for health, comfort and investment.

STREET GUIDE

AND

Key to numbering as adopted by the Council of the City of Reno.
A complete Directory of all the Streets in the City and how to find them.

The dividing line for streets running North and South is the Truckee river. Where streets extend across the river, that part lying South of the river is indicated by S, and that lying north is indicated by N, viz.: S. Virginia St. means Virginia St. south of the river, and N. Virginia St. means Virginia St. north of the river. The dividing line for streets running East and West is Virginia St. Where streets extend across Virginia St. that part lying East of Virginia St. is indicated by E, and that part lying West is indicated as W, viz.: E. 4th St. means 4th St. east of Virginia St. and W. 4th St. means 4th St. west of Virginia St. 100 numbers or such part of 100 as is necessary are used for each block. Consequently 700 S. Virginia indicates that the house is 7 blocks south of the Truckee river on Virginia St., and

COOK WITH GAS

700 N. Virginia indicates that the house is 7 blocks north of the river on Virginia St. Where streets do not extend across the river nor across Virginia St., N, S, E, or W is not indicated, as in the case of Sierra St.; there being no S. Sierra it is not necessary to use N. Sierra St.

"Protection is the First Law of Property"

A TITLE to real property may be WORTHLESS OR DEFECTIVE for any of the following reasons:

1. A deed on which the title depends may have been made by an insane person.
2. Another may have been made by an attorney in-fact, whose power was fabricated.
3. Another may have been made by an attorney-in-fact after the death of the principal, which renders it void.
4. A deed may have been made by an attorney-in-fact whose power is not recorded.
5. In the case of a grantor, unable to write his name, his signature "by mark" to the transfer, may not have been witnessed as required by law.
6. Perhaps a married woman did not join in the deed or properly acknowledge the transfer of homestead property as required by the laws of this state.
7. In case of foreclosure proceedings and forced sale, all parties required by law may not have been made parties defendant to the action by proper service of summons, and the title under sale may be subsequently defeated by some interested party.
8. An estate may have been improperly probated.
9. The description in a prior deed may not properly describe the land, making a deed of correction necessary.
10. Some instrument essential to the chain of title may not be on record, but may have been lost or destroyed. A prolific source of trouble.
11. Many other reasons.

MR. INVESTOR IN REAL ESTATE, you who have been content, before closing a deal in real estate, to merely ascertain whether or not there were any unreleased mortgages on the property—ask yourself whether you have been fully protected or not, and in the future
