SOPHS WIN PENNANT FOR SECOND TIME

Juniors Were Defeated in a Game Made Famous by Many Errors.

The final baseball game between the Juniors and Sophmores took place yesterday afternoon and resulted in a victory for the class of 1907 by a score of 13 to 10. By virtue of their victory the Sophmores have secured the baseball pennant for the second time. The game was especially interesting from the standpoint of a spectator, and the result was in doubt until the third man had been put out in the ninth inning. A larger crowd than usually attends class games was on hand to cheer their respective favorites, and their interest in the contest was always at a high pitch.

The Sophs started out with a rush in the first inning, and managed to secure a slight lead over their adversaries. The Juniors by good playing evened the score in the sixth inning, and from that point it became apparent that the final game would be close and interesting. The last three innings did not show a great change in the score, and, when the Juniors went to bat in the ninth inning, the Sophmores were three in the lead. All the spectators were in an anxious mood, and desired to know whether the Juniors could run in sufficient tallies to change the result. The hopes of their sympathizers, however, were dashed to the ground, for the upper classmen went out in regular order, leaving the final score unchanged.

The chief feature of the game was the numerous errors made by the players on the different sides, although they did not detract from the general interest in any way. Robert Sawyer made a triple play in the latter part of the game which brought forth peals of applause from the spectators. "Dad" Skinner caught a difficult fly in left field, and the grand stand was in an uproar. Several minutes passed before the tumult had subsided and quiet was again restored.

Gus Hoffman pitched an excellent game for the Juniors, and was well supported. "Jap" Hart played his usual good game, and Johnnie

Spencer showed up to good advantage. It was currently reported that the Juniors would be badly defeated, and their good playing was the chief surprise of the day.]

The following was the lineup:

Juniors		Sophmores

HOLIDAY WAS DULY OBSERVED

The exercises held in the Gym in memory of George Washington, were of a very high class. John W. Wright was chairman for the day. The first speaker Dr. Stubbs, read a letter from C. W. Brunnett, British Consulate General of San Francisco. Captain C. T. Boyd gave a short but effective discussion of the meaning of "true patriotism". Midshipman Herbert B. Maxon, late of Annapolis, amused the assemblage with reminiscences of his career in the Naval Academy. From the students, Mr. Charnock delivered a stirring address on the feelings of brotherhood between England and America. Miss Morse read selections from the farewell address of Washington. Miss Aileen Gulling sang the Star Spangled Banner. The girls' Glee Club of the University sang two selections. Miss Gulling and the Glee Club both deserve great praise for the superiority of their renderings.

The bill providing for the purchase of a chemical engine at the University passed the assembly last week by a large majority and it will come up for consideration in the Senate within a few days. The facilities for fire protection on the campus are very scanty, and the benefits to be derived from this measure are many, and can only be realized when one has an opportunity of enjoying its benefits.

T. H. P. O. FRATERNITY ENTERTAINS GUESTS

Merrill's Orchestra Dis- penses Sweet Music to Joyous Throng.

The seventh annual ball of the T. H. P. O., in reality a thing of the past, but in the minds of the many, fortunate enough to have been guests is a memory that will linger for many days and months. This event, while always looked forward to with pleasure, it is doubtful if any suspected that his entertainment could be so ardently considered. The members of the fraternity when they realized that it would be impossible to provide any extensive refreshments, set about making the remainder of the evening so delightful, that no thought of satisfying the cravings of the inner man could enter the minds of the assemblage. That they succeeded is hardly worth mentioning.

One feature that assisted materially toward this success, was the decorating. The usual canopy of black and white streamers were strung overhead and served to hide the unsightly rafters. The different corners were so decorated as to represent different phases of social and historical institutions. The northwest corner was in the black and white of the fraternity, while on each side a skull with blazing eyes, complacently viewed the merry throng. The patronesses were here enshrined, as it were, and under these favorable auspices allowed their dignity to pervade the entire gathering. Following around toward the main entrance of the gym we next approach the Washington corner. Here the Stars and Stripes predominated, but beneath its folds couches were arranged whereon the weary might rest themselves, while the stacked arms filled their souls with the valor and patriotism of the father of his country, and the clustered hatchets served to replenish their hearts with that greatest of all virtues truth. Next in order and on each side of the main entrance, couches and pillows were indeed very promiscuous. On the right side, indian curios took a prominent place and, as at all times very tasty, they seemed especially appropriate.

Arriving at the upper end of the gym one's gaze is first met with a miniature palm garden where refreshments in the shape of punch and bon bons were served to all who felt the need of them. A perfect maze of black and white bunting surrounded the music stand, and on a dark background behind the musicians, T. H. P. O. stood forth prominently in large white letters. On each side of the rear entrance the same conditions existed as on the opposite side with respect to the number of couches and pillows, but an addition of two large mirrors seemed to meet with general satisfaction. In the passageway at the foot of the stairs, however, the gruesome spectacle of the patron saint of all college fraternities, met the startled gaze of the incoming crowd as he hung suspended in all his boniness surrounded on all sides by black and white bunting.

The floor was in perfect condition and consequently did not mar the pleasure of the occasion. The excellence of the music is also worthy of mention. It was furnished by Merrill's orchestra of nine pieces. The programs were very artistically designed and in keeping with the affair at hand. Besides setting forth the dances, there were two numbers, at the proper interval when the company instead of dancing remained seated and engaged in conversation, while they listened to selections by the orchestra. Another feature was a number of moonlight dances. All the lights were extinguished with the exception of those over the music stand and the skeleton. A far up toward the roof, a pale yellow moon cast its mellow light upon the whirling crowd.

Lack of space prevents a detailed list of the assembled guests, but among those present were a number T. H. P. O. Alumni and many other University graduates.

Editor Today John S. Case

The patriotic fervor in evidence, at the celebration of Washington's Birthday in the Gymnasium yesterday is worthy of commendation. It was an example of the strong national spirit which has for many years, been a characteristic of the University of Nevada. Besides regularly observing the Birth days of Patriots, Nevada has shown by other demonstrations, its loyalty to, and love for the nation. At the time of the blowing up of the Mine, over enthusiastic students assisted at the burning in effigy of Spain's Prime Minister. At that time the colors of the University which were the same as the national colors of Spain were changed to the Silver and Blue. And at the outbreak of the war with Spain, several University Students enlisted. The close attention given to the military drill and the deep interest taken in it are examples of the spirit, which pervades the institution.

Nevada although small and lacking in many things, yet she is possessed to a large extent, of one of the greatest of virtues, national spirit.

The varsity basket ball team will play a match game with the Reno High School Friday afternoon at 4.30 P. M. An admission price of fifteen cents will be charged to all who are not members of the University of Nevada Athletic Association.

WILL ADVOCATE AFFIRMATIVE

A letter has been received from Howard M. Lewis, President University Debating club of Stanford, informing Nevada that they had chosen the affirmative of the question submitted several days ago as the side they will advocate in the coming intercollegiate contest. The question is as follows. "Resolved that laws relating to marriage and divorce should be uniform throughout the United States, and that for that purpose Congress should by constitutional amendment be given
 power to pass such laws."

Owing to the apparent evenness
 of the question, it was only after considerable thought and worry
 that Stanford was ready to state
 which side they would advocate.
 The question of the uniformity of divorce laws is of particular interest to the West, and the side of the question advocated by Stanford is somewhat similar to the views of the state of California on the marriage and divorce question. Reno has long been known as the Gretna Green of the big coast state, and at the present time the courts of California are testing the validity
 of what is known as the Reno marriage.

From a list of seven names submitted by Nevada as suitable judges for the debate Stanford selected W. A. Massey, ex-chief Justice of the Supreme Court, A. E.
 Cheney, a prominent attorney of Reno, and Sardis Summerfield, present United States District Attorney for the state of Nevada.

'WHO IS WHO' IN THE N.S.U.

Excellence Of B. A. Degree As Determined By Successful Graduates

By far the larger number of the graduates in Liberal Arts in the University of Nevada is women. This fact is paralleled probably by no other university in the country. But the reasons for this anomalous fact are not far to seek; the importance attached in this state to mining and to engineering explains why so many men take the technical or applied science course. There are, however, in almost every class men taking the course leading to the A. B. degree; but, strange to relate, mention is seldom made of these graduates, whereas the mining graduates and their successes in life are the frequent subject of eulogy. This discrimination, it seems to us, is hardly fair to what is really a very important department in the University; it is a mistake however, that will not likely be perpetuated. Thanks to the recently issued "List of Graduates of the Collegiate Departments of the University" edited by Dr. Church, we are now enabled to know better than heretofore, just "who is who" in the N. S. U.

From the above mentioned list of graduates we gather some highly interesting statistics. Of the men who graduated in Liberal Arts, some are in the professions of law and medicine, some are in business and some are teaching. In business are Henry Cutting '91, J. Clemmons '96, A. W. Ward '96, F. E. Walts '96, John Sunderland '98, H. H. Dexter '99, C. P. Keyser '99, Alfred Doten '99, F. A. Bonham '01, D. S. Ward '01, J. W. Hall '01. In law are F. A. Norcross '91, now Supreme Judge of this state, Otto Williams '96, D. M. Duffy '98, G. W. Springmeyer '02. In medicine are J. J. Sullivan '93, L. J. Ede '98, J. B. Jones, '00. In the teaching profession are C. R. Lewers, '97, professor in Stanford University, Peter Frandsen, '95, Professor in the University of Nevada, E. E. Cainc, '93, Principle of the Elko High School and lately elected Principle of the University High School, S. B. Doten, '98, Professor in the University of Nevada, I. W. Ayers, '01, Librarian and Instructor in the University of Nevada. Besides these who have become university professors there are 14 others of our Liberal Arts graduates teaching in this and other states, mostly as principles of high and grammar schools. These are of the men who were trained in the Liberal Arts course in our University.

In the discussion of the value of a thing the best test that can be applied is the test of results. Judged by this test the Liberal Arts course appears in a very favorable light. It should be observed that the Liberal Arts course certainly leads to positions of responsibility, profit, and honor; that the graduates of the Liberal Arts course have been and are successful in life; that, as a rule, they are men of considerable importance in the community; and that, for the most part, they are engaged in some sort of public service. The occupations in which these men are engaged are various and diversified. The Liberal Arts course furnishes, in fact, an all round, rather than a special or technical, training in language, history, mathematics, and science; it fits men for all of the varied walks of life and furnishes that training which peculiarly fits men for leadership. It would therefore seem that the Liberal Arts course should be particularly attractive to young men of ability
