Nevada Versus Barbarians

The Third Game of the Season Won by a Hard Fight

In a most spectacular, hard-fought game of Rugby the Barbarians of San Francisco were defeated by the U. of N. boys on Mackay field.

The game was called at 3:10 by Referee F. B. Mayers and Timer P. A. McCarran started the 25-minute half with the following line-up:

University of Nevada—Leavitt and Settlemyer, front rank; Spencer, lock; Mackay and DuBois, side; Layman, Cafferata and Finney, rear; Bennett, wing forward; Menardi and Kennedy, half; Harbaugh, Delahide and Wilson, five-eighths; Fletcher, center 3-4; Randall and McPhail, wing 3-4; Charles, fullback.

Barbarians — Glascock and front rank; McElrath, lock; Sheehan and Duffy, side; Woods and Steffan, rear; Webber, wing forward; Edwards, half; Grundell and Phillips, five-eighths; Johns and Reams, center 3-4; Dunne and Lombard, wing 3-4; Spencer and Edwards, fullback.

The First Half

Nevada won the toss-up and Captain Leavitt selected the north goal. Fletcher kicked off and Mackay received the returned ball from Reams. A 30-yard dribble by Mackay was followed by a scrum, where the Barbs got the ball and Dunne kicked on to Charles, who made a brilliant and spectacular dodge for 40 yards. From a scrum the ball was passed

Johns on a long dribble and kick-for touch.

From lineout Delahide kicked to Spencer, who made another long kick into Nevada territory for the second and last time during the half. Several passing rushes and dribbles took the ball to the 30-yard line, where the Nevada boys began to play hard and dribbled to the Barbarian 20-yard line, where a lineout and a return pass from Bennett, Settlemyer, Bennett, who carried it over near the touch line. Fletcher failed to convert.

Score—U. of N. 3, Barbarians 0.

Spencer of the Barbarians was hurt so that Edwards returned into the game as full. The kick-off returned the ball to the Nevada 30-yard line, where several dribbling rushes took the ball to the visitors' three-yard line. A free kick on Nevada gave the Barbs the pig pelt in touch in mid field.

An overkicked ball gave Settlemyer a mark that gained 25 yards near the Barb goal.

Another free kick on the Barbs gained 20 yards back that Brown and Sheehan dribbled and the ball went into touch on the Barbs' 15-yard line.

Here time was called.

Score—Nevada 3, Barbs 0.

Makes Important Discovery

Professor Doten Finds New Parasite for Cabbage Worm

A discovery of some interest was made this week in the Department of Entomology of the Nevada Experiment station. In the insectary there were under observation a number of chrysalids of the common cabbage butterfly, Pieris rapae. In the work-room adjoining the insectary there were confined in tubes chrysalids of the common apple-worm, Carpocapsa pomonella, together with a number of parasites of this pest. By a fortunate accident one of the tubes was broken, and parasites of the apple-worm escaped into the insectary.

ENGINEERS' CLUB

The Engineers' Club will be addressed by D. W. Hayes, an alumnus, next Wednesday evening at 7:30, in the Mining building. His talk is sure to be interesting and of great benefit to the students. All are invited.

The class of 1913 met Monday, October 17th, in room 6, to discuss matters pertaining to the Sophomore hop, which is the annual dance given by the Sophomore class to the Freshmen. The date was set for Friday, November 18. The class of 1913 gave a very large and enjoyable Freshman glee last April and they intend to make the hop the biggest dance of the year.

A day or two later, Prof. Doten found two species of parasites in mortal combat over the chrysalids of the cabbage butterfly; one of these species was a common parasite of the cabbage worm, the other, the escaped parasites of the apple-worm.

Since then many chrysalids of the cabbage butterfly have been exposed to parasitization by the parasites of the apple-worm; and there seems to be every probability that large numbers of the parasites of the apple-worm will be reared in this way. There is some probability that this discovery may be of use as a means of combatting both pests.

PROF. JONES ENTERTAINS

All the boys who were down on the Goldfield trip this summer spent a most enjoyable evening at the home of Prof. and Mrs. Jones, on Tenth street. The evening began with a lively time and this was kept up throughout the sojourn of the guests. The evening was made the more pleasant by the presence of Prof. Jones' sister. All came away contented, and wishing to go again.

BASKET BALL

Basket ball practice starts Monday night at 4:30. About 40 girls intend to be present. Of course it is useless to say that the girls intend to put out a winning team.

Student Body Meeting

General Assembly and Student Body Meeting Last Friday

The Student Body meeting was another brilliant affair, in which a great deal was said, and little ground covered. Mr. Layman reported on the proposed song book and said that it would cost from $75 to $100, which we were not prepared to pay out at present. This brought up much discussion, and ended in the appointing of a committee to get every student and professor to pledge himself individually for 50 cents to cover costs.

Next came a great deal of rabid talk as to how money should be raised to support football this year, as, due to extra expenses, the treasury is running low. It was at last decided to declare a half holiday that afternoon and everybody get out and sell tickets. This was done with good result.

GALLAGHER CORRESPONDS

Mr. H. J. "Boo" Gallagher still remembers the university, as is evidenced by some of the following extracts from his letter to the Mechanical Department, from the General Electric Co.:

"I left the testing department today, and have gone into the office. Next Monday I leave for Pittsfield, and expect to be there about a month; from there I go to Lynn, and from there to Harrison, N. J., and then back again for a short time. The company has promised then to send me out west to one of their district of-

For 15 minutes last Friday morning President Stubbs made announcements to the students and faculty, and then surrendered the meeting to the students. The most important of his announcements was on the newspaper reports as to Mr. Clarence Mackay's intentions of taking the team below. He stated that there was nothing in Mr. Mackay's telegram that would indicate that he had such intentions, and also Dr. Stubbs said he had received a letter from Mr. Mackay saying that it was doubtful whether he could come west to see the team play this year, but that several prominent New York men would be here around the 29th of this month to inspect the grounds and he was very anxious that they should see the team play.

I took an examination and got through, and am now taking a course in preparation for the work.

"Mack and Bird are both getting along fine on the test and both seem to like the work. They were pretty lucky in getting out of the shops so quickly, as the test is crowded now, there being something like 200 men in the shops waiting their turn. Business is still good here; the testing department have been working day and night every day in the week, trying to keep up with the production department."

STANFORD vs. NEVADA NEXT SATURDAY

to McPhail, who carried to the Barbarian's five-yard line. A scrum gave Harbaugh the ball, which he carried to within two yards of the Barbarian goal.

The Barbarians dribbled for 35 yards to the center of the field.

From a line-out Fletcher passed to Delahide, who got in a long kick for touch.

Charles received a ball from the Barbarian back field and dodged most all the visitors and was held by Reams, who carried the ball out. From the lineout Mackay and Cafferata dribbled for several yards, when Johns, the crack soccer player, started for a long 50-yard dribble to touch. From an overkick Charles received Fletcher's pass.

A passing rush of Webber, Phillips and Lombard was intercepted on Nevada's 25-yard line and a free on the visitors gained 40 yards for Nevada.

The ball was dribbled back to the center, where time was called.

Score—Nevada 0, Barbarians 0.

The Second Half

Wilson, Finney and Kennedy were entered instead of Harbaugh, Cafferata and Menardi. This half of 30 minutes was opened by the visitors' kickoff to Randall, who ran 35 yards to be tackled. Captain Leavitt dribbled for several yards until Lombard passed to Dunne, who overkicked to Spencer to start an open game again.

From a scrum Kennedy passed to Wilson, to Delahide, who made a long kick for touch on the Barbarian 25-yard line. From a line-out DuBois gained several yards until an intercepted pass started

THAT PAJAMARUSKIE

Last Friday evening the men students of the U. of N. held a pajamaruskie. At 7:20 the grotesque procession, headed by the Cadet Band, under Luther DuBois, as drum major, marched to Manzanita hall, where they cheered the co-eds. "Bub Hix" led some rousing yells for the girls and then the procession started down Sierra street with the band playing and torches burning.

The procession halted first in front of the McKissick hotel, where red fire and music brought forth a large crowd of spectators. After a big skyrocket for the Barbarians the ghosts serpentine down Virginia street to Second, where firecrackers, bombs and music filled out the spectacle. When the "Ruskis" yelled the college yells and started for the Riverside hotel, where great applause and encouragement awaited the Sagebrush boys.

A countermarch brought the procession to the Grand theatre, where the house was opened and during a selection by the band the boys paraded through the theatre.

The serpentine finished in front of the Wigwam theatre, where music by the band was appreciated by all the audience.

The rally as a whole was a success although there were a great many students who did not enter into it with true blue and white spirit. This it is hoped will be shown on Friday, October 21st, when the students hope to replete the A. A. fund by ticket sales to the U. of N. vs. Stanford game.

Y. W. C. A.

Miss Helen Salisbury, the Y. W. C. A. secretary who has been with us for about ten days, left for Los Angeles Saturday evening of last week. While here, she formed many friendships with the girls and all hope that she might soon return to renew them. She was very favorably impressed with our university and the girls who are earnestly taking hold of the work in which she is so interested.

On Saturday afternoon, since it was too stormy to have the picnic as planned for Miss Salisbury, the girls took their lunch to her rooms and there spent the afternoon feasting and talking over the plans for the association work this year.

Monday from 3 to 5 Mrs. Romanzo Adams gave a reception at her home in honor of Miss Salisbury. The time was pleasantly spent playing games and listening to music rendered by Misses Grace and Elaine Harris, Miss Higgins and Mr. Otis.

Last Tuesday the Y. W. C. A. meeting was led by Rev. Brewster Adams of the Baptist church.

FACULTY SCIENCE ASSOCIATION

There will be a meeting of the Faculty Science Association on Monday, October 17th, at 4:40 p. m. in the lecture-room on the first floor of the Mackay Mining building. The following address will be presented: "Steam Turbines."

"PAT."

Hurrah for Pat! Pat is the most generous, open-hearted and sympathetic and appreciative student on our campus. He has eaten at our dining hall both at the training table and at the scrub table, and this brought the idea that the football men would scrap harder, last longer and look healthier if they had some of the old stick-to-your-rib kind of meals. So he invited them all out to breakfast last week. The men did not hesitate in accepting, or walk in going. No, they shouted yes, and on the morning of October 11th and 12th, ran all the way to the Patrick ranch, known as the Arlington place. Here they had cream (real cream), coffee, biscuit, honey, etc.; everything that goes for a good old-fashioned country breakfast.

OUTLOOK CLUB

The Woman's Outlook Club met last Wednesday in the Domestic Science Department with about 50 members present. All pronounced the microscopic "hot" rolls and "tea" the greatest ever. After the refreshments all had the traditional feeling of emptiness, and longing for more, but, alas, there was no more! This being the case, they rendered their program on Florence Nightingale. Those delivering papers were: Misses Florence Reed, Florence White, and Mrs. Church.

GIRLS' BASKET-BALL ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Girls' Basketball Association was called last Tuesday afternoon by Miss Porter. The meeting was called for several reasons, but the only action taken was the getting of all the girls to sign up for their teams. So all girls kindly have your pencils ready, and sign your appellations to the "payroll." In regard to a basket-ball schedule, Miss Mieghan stated that although there were no arrangements made as yet, that there was still plenty of time to arrange one.

Basket-ball practice started last Monday with a large attendance of High School girls, only three of the University ladies showing up, however. There is to be a large tournament the last part of January, in which the class teams are to compete.

The dominant feature of this year's basket-ball schedule is the separation of the High School from the University teams.

SONG PRACTICE

Song practice held last Tuesday night was spirited and fairly well attended, those present being from the dormitories. As yet the students residing in town have not attended, but it is hoped that they will show up better at the next meeting. The next practice will be in Room 6, Morrill hall, at 7:15 in the evening.

I'd rather be a "cop" on the Mackay Athletic Field than be a member of Spud Hansen's U. of N. Socialist Club.
Signed: L. B. PATRICK.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE AT QUINCY, CAL.

The annual meeting of the Plumas County Teachers' Institute is to be held at Quincy Cal., from October 18th to 22d. This institute is usually very well attended and proves profitable to the teachers of that county.

Dr. and Mrs. Ordahl and President Stubbs will be among the lecturers this year. The following are the topics on which they will deliver addresses:

Dr. Ordahl will speak on "Memory and Affective Process," "The Psychology of Suggestion and Questioning," "Nature and Morality," "Moral Education in Current Magazines," "Psychology of the Thought Process," "How to Direct the Child's Thinking Process."

Mrs. Ordahl, who was a student at Clark University and is noted as a lecturer, will speak on "Nature and Function of Play," "Play as an Art," "The Place of Play in the Course of Study."

Dr. Stubbs will speak on "The Boy of 12-16 Years," "The School Girl," "Should the Public School Teacher Make Use of Biblical Literature?" "Advantages to Literature of Bible Study."

Editorial

The attendance at all the student affairs for the past week has been exceedingly poor. The cause for this is not understood, owing to its complexity, but there are several very apparent facts; that is, that the spirit of the students is asleep, and that it is almost impossible to arouse them on any subject of college interest.

The cause of this lethargy is problematical, but it is the direct result of the existing conditions on the hill, and the inability of the students to forget one thing when another is brought up. No matter what is going on among the students or the university, all should enter into the spirit of the game with enthusiasm. This enthusiasm is decidedly lacking when there are numbers of the student body not in the rooting section. This year the spirit of coercion in attendance to games, rallies, etc., has been removed, appealing to the students themselves; but, thus far, they have shown themselves unworthy of such confidence. This "bucking" spirit is as prominent among the members of the upper-classes as among the lower, and as a matter of fact there is more real school spirit among our preps and the town high school than exists among the boys of this university.

There is a spirit in this school of looking down on a prep, but it would be better if they looked up to our preps for an example of people having a better school spirit than exists in the larger school.

There are too many people laying down on any proposition that comes along; too many that like to do things different from the way that the person in charge is doing; and also many who never do anything but like to stand on the side lines and watch the others perform, and when the thing is over to come and tell how it ought to be done. These latter should be given an emersion in the slimy ditch. All these things are entirely too conspicuous for a good spirit to be developed.

By this, it is not meant to criticize, but to show some of the most salient features of our present lethargy. There will be no such thing as coercion, but the students will have to work out their own salvation, whether they are to do something or not.

The Song of the Many

We broke the yoke of the Aryan kings,
And we burst our bonds in Cathay;
We waged good war on the Mid-sea shore,
And the towers of Tyre prevail no more;
Babylon's walls to the ground we threw,
And the millions of Timur, the Tartar, we slew;
Istar and Isis we hurled to doom,
And we shrouded foul Nineveh's halls in gloom;
Rome broke her pact and we crumbled her fanes,
Forum and Parthenon rust in the rains;
Attila's curs to their kennels we drove,
And the skull of the ravaging we clove;
Down through the ages, from Egypt to Spain—
Pharaoh, the Slaver, and Louis, the Vain;
Lust-mad Belshazzar, and Caesar, who dared—
None who laid hands on our birth-right we spared
Man-god and beast-god and image of stone,
Idol of metal, of hot flesh and bone,
Menacing altar and menacing creed,
Hark to our purpose, and harking, take heed;
None shall be proud with the pride of the wrong;
No head shall lift with a crown in the throng;
None shall be lordly and thrive in his boast,
No king shall be, save the King Uttermost.
Brothers, eternal and well is our might,
Ours is the justice and strong is our right;
Wrought in the fire of souls is our steel,
Tempered in bloodshed and bled for the Weal;
They who make shackles, make labor in vain;
We are the Many and wear not the Chain.

Some Kisses from Sarah

Sam Davis, the Nevada journalist, brother of Bob Davis, the inventor of wooden bait for bass and also editor of a flock of Mr. Munsey's magazines, is a great friend of Sarah Bernhardt.

One time when the immortal Sarah was in Nevada, where Sam lives and edits the Carson Appeal, she stopped over to see Sam. As she was leaving she threw her arms around Sam's neck and kissed him.

"That," said the divine Sarah, "is for the Carson Appeal."

She kissed him again.

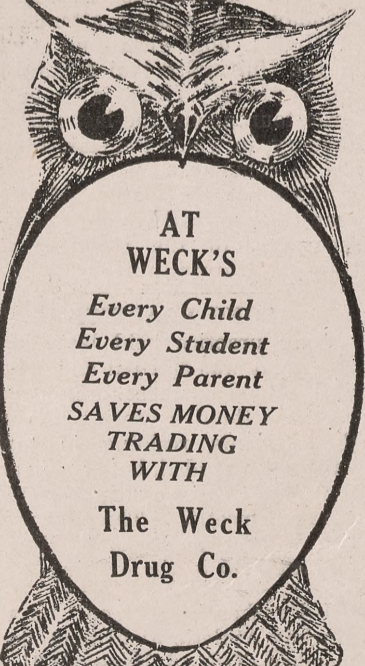

"That is for the San Francisco Examiner."

She kissed him a third time.

"That is for yourself."

"There's a lot of small papers through the State I represent as well as the Examiner," said Sam, "and I am sure they would all like to hear from you."—Saturday Evening Post.

An increasing number of women are finding employment as mother's helpers, chaperones, as private secretaries. I need hardly mention here the vast army of typewriters and stenographers, saleswomen and bookkeepers; nor does the government exclude women from positions it can give. We find them matrons in public asylums, and even in civil service some branches are open to them, such as clerking in postoffices or serving as postmistresses. They are engaged in sorting, packing and labeling bundles of seeds for the Bureau of Agriculture.

Speaking of agriculture makes us remember that some of the first to take up and cultivate lands thrown open to the public by our government have been women. Among them are some of our most successful farmers. The raising of flowers for market has proved a very lucrative work for women. I know of two sisters left with the care of an invalid mother. They owned a tiny house in the suburbs with three acres of land about it, fortunately free from all indebtedness. They had to find some way of earning the daily bread, and on account of their mother's infirmity, they wanted to do so in their own little home. There were a few choice rose bushes already growing near the house. These were the inspiration for more. When last I saw their place in addition to the rose growing in the open air, they had five large glass hot houses, kept a man employed in the gardening, and a boy, who carried the roses to the city every day to a florist's shop and, by the way, this shop was managed by two young girls, who earned their independence as professional decorators of dinner tables and ball rooms, and as makers of bridal and other bouquets. One of these young women invented the so-called "shower bouquet."

As raisers of chickens and other poultry, women are unexcelled. Homes and sanitariums for dogs, cats and birds are often conducted by women. Have I left out anything? If so, you must fill the blanks for yourselves, for I would not weary you with any more extended enumeration. I cannot touch upon the subject of wage earning for women, however, without presenting to you for your consideration an ethical question, which to my mind has a great bearing upon the matter, namely, are wealthy girls, girls who do not really need the money that their labor brings in, justified in taking places that poor girls might otherwise occupy, and which they sorely need? I will leave this question with you then. How for does a mere spirit of independence orderize for more money than her parents will give her, justify a girl in entering the lists of wage earners.

The ferries ply like shuttles in a loom,
And many barques come in across the bay,
To lights and bells that signal through the gloom
Of twilight gray.

And like the blown soft flutter of the snow
The wide-winged sea-birds droop from closing skies,
And hover near the water—circling low,
As the day dies.

The city like a shadowed castle stands—
Its turrets indistinctly touching night;
Like earth-born stars, far-fetched from fairy lands,
Its lamps are bright.

This is my hour when wonder spring anew
To see the towers ascending pale and high,
And the long seaward distances of blue,
And the dim sky.

THE MAN IN THE DESERT

The day was fast drawing to a close. As the sun was sinking behind the mountains in the west its fading light tinted a few soft clouds with pink and gold, and its last rays disclosed on all sides stretches of barren sands—a desert. Nothing relieved the eye. Here and there, through long intervals, grew a few scanty clumps of sage brush. What a picture of desolation!

Hardly did it seem possible that a human being could subsist in such a region, and yet on the edge of the desert appeared a camp. Beside the camp-fire, within the narrow circle of its warmth stood a woman, her hair emblazoned by the sun, her coarse garments torn and patched, and her hand shading her eyes from the sun. Looking toward the west as if behind those hills lay the goal toward which she was striving, she stood out in bold relief against the background of the desert. Her companion, a gaunt fellow, with a long lank figure and shaggy head of hair, was bending over the fire, which had almost ceased to snap and crackle. Beyond the fire loomed a huge white-topped wagon, or prairie schooner, as it is called. Two horses, tied to the rear of the wagon, crunched the barley which had been given to them. A huge dog, lying beneath it, ears erect, was listening to catch the slightest sound.

One hour later a desert stillness reigned over the camp. The horses had ceased grinding their food, and dozed; the campfire blazed cheerfully, revealing the forms of two blanketed sleepers. The heavy breathing of the man, the rattle of a rope, or the flapping of the canvas were the only sounds. Suddenly another sound broke the stillness—a low whinny of a horse and a dull noise as of something approaching with great difficulty. The sounds grew nearer. The dog, awakening, barked furiously and the horses, tugging at their ropes, snorted and plunged to and fro.

Nearer and nearer drew the approaching object. Then out of the darkness there emerged a horse.

At the first bark of the dog, the man, sleeping by the fire, had sprung to his feet, his hand on his revolver, and the woman, aroused from her slumbers, her hair in wild disorder, her eyes filled with terror, took her place beside him. Together they waited, peering into the darkness for the unknown to happen. Now the man strode forward, shielding her behind him, as she clung timidly to his coat. What they saw before them was a sturdy little pack horse, its head lowered, its eyes half closed, as if in sleep, its tail and main filled with burs, and shifting, from time to time, the weight of two canvas bags, which were thrown across its back. But lying beside the horse, almost beneath its feet, appeared a black bulk. Lighting a lantern, they gazed down into the face of a man. His eyes were swollen and red, his nose torn, his lips cracked, and his tongue hanging. With a great effort, he staggered to his feet, gripping the bridle of his horse in a frantic clutch, and half walking, half hobbling, he endeavored to proceed. His legs shook beneath the weight of his body, and he fell headlong to the ground once more. Trembling, the woman bent above him and heard the faint whisper, "water"—a word which his tortured lips and tongue could scarcely frame. Womanlike, she gently bathed his face, blackened with dirt, and dropped a few drops of clear water on the tongue of the sufferer.

All night long, they sat beside the stranger, sleeping at intervals themselves, listening to the heavy breathing of their new companion, as he tossed and babbled in his sleep or groaned with pain. Slowly the dreary night hours dragged away. The stars, one by one, disappeared in the heavens. A faint breeze sprang up in the east.

Daylight came at last! Stiff from their sitting postures the woman and her companion arose and made preparations for the morning meal. The stranger stirred in his sleep, awoke with a start, gazed stupidly around him, and then perceiving his two companions smiled weakly and sank back again.

The silence remained unbroken until the breakfast was eaten. Then the stranger spoke in a low voice, and as if speaking to children he told to these two illiterate people the story of his wanderings. How, lured by the thirst for wealth, he journeyed to the mountains, which even then the morning sun lighted. How he had ridden over the desert, lost his way, and arrived at their camp, half frenzied by thirst.

As he talked the woman gazed tearfully at the region from whence he had returned, and far away across the desert rose the mountains, in all their glory, which had lured him and were luring them now into the desert.

HE GOT EVEN

Mark Twain tells this story of how he got even with a cannie lassie, who was telegraph operator at the Glasgow end of a London line:

"I had to run up to Glasgow on my way to the Highlands," said Mr. Clemens, "and stepped into a telegraph and postal station to send a dispatch to a friend in London. I asked several questions as to how long it would take, when the message would be delivered, and so forth. The girl at the desk was inclined to be snubbish, and at the third or fourth question she cut me dead.

"But I got even with her. I just sent my friend this message: 'Arrived safely. Girls here ugly and bad tempered.' And she had to send it, too!"

LETTER FROM MR. NADON

Mr. Nadon, '08, "Frenchy," is working with the Westinghouse Electric & Machine Co. at Wilkesburg, Pa. The following letter has been received from him at the Mechanical Department, dated September 10, 1910:

"I have been in the switch-board erecting department for about nine months, four of which I spent on stock order work, with one of the best switch-board engineers that the company has. I can say that I have gotten a good deal of benefit from it, and would advise every graduate to come here and put in some time, for he will not only be benefited along electric lines, but will also be broadened generally. Incidentally, he will receive quite a lesson in 'economy.'

"About one week ago I got a transfer to the dynamo-test department. I chose section A railway motors, for my first month, after which I will ask to be put on the night turn for two months in 'B,' which is the place where all the large stuff is tested. I will stay in the test department about six months, after which I will go on big winding in 'D,' for three or four months. Then I will be nearly ready to leave.

"I have been very lucky, in that I have received a good recommendation from every department in which I have worked. I, also, have received everything for which I have asked in the way of transfers, and at times when I wanted them. That is more than the majority of the apprentices can say. Quite a number of the apprentices who did not get what they asked for left. A great number of them have received jobs from other companies. For my part, I prefer to stay the two years.

Bill Doherty landed here about two weeks ago. He is in E., the winding department.

"The Westinghouse Club, formerly the Electric Club, has moved into a new building, occupying two floors; the lower of which is used as a gymnasium, the upper has a lounging room, a billiard room, a reading room, a large lecture room and three smaller section rooms. The whole is fitted up very nice and is a boon to the apprentices. The club has a membership of 450, not all of which are apprentices.

"Four of the California boys have left; two of them received positions, one quit, and one went home sick. About 15 came from California this year.

"If there is anything you want along the blue print line, just let me know. If you have any Westinghouse apparatus for which you desire drawings, be sure to send the style number and serial number, so that I can locate the drawings."

FAREWELL PARTY

Last Saturday night a farewell party was given in Manzanita to Miss Alma Wilson, who is to leave the hall soon. This little gathering was gotten up by Misses Beatrice Langwith, Gladys Blake and Helene Reed. The guests were members of the first and second year High School, and certainly enjoyed themselves. Light refreshments were served and various forms of amusement indulged in until a late hour.

THE LIBRARY

The following new books have arrived at the library:

Peele's Compressed Air Plant for Mines," also four volumes of Harvard Classics, containing Pascal's Thoughts and minor works, Beowulf, Song of Roland, Destruction of Da Derga's Hostel, Story of the Volsungs and Niblungs, Songs from the Elder Edda, and Sacred writings; Confucian, Christian, Hebrew, Buddhist, Hindu and Mohammedan.

Miss Evelyn Campbell of St. Louis is spending several days with Prof. and Mrs. C. S. Knight at their home on North Sierra street.

High School

Cupid Thaw has invested in a new suit with long trousers. Get wise.

Expert instruction given in chewing gum during class hours.—G. W. R. S. Cottrell, Specialist.

We are surprised to find many greedy Preps., especially those that have a feed about 10 P. M., but, who let that unmerciful yell out and queered them?

The meeting of the Adelphi Literary Society was postponed from Friday, the regular time of meeting, until Tuesday, in order that the members might attend the rally.

Our track team trainer, Mr. Ross, need not be alarmed for material in the coming Academic meet, as there are two Freshmen Preps, running on the track at 6 A. M., making a mile in 15 minutes.

The H. H. Howe Society will meet Friday, the 21st.

The following program has been arranged for that night:

Violin solo, Grace Harris; declamation, Claude Wheeler; paper, Richard Sheehy and Dixie Randall; declamation, Audrey Atcheson and Mr. Dondero; essay, Earl Swain; reading, Hattie Brown; solo, Nettie Harris.

The regular meeting of the Adelphi Literary Society of the U. H. S. was held last Friday evening in Room 6, Morrill hall. An excellent program, consisting of recitations and extemporaneous speeches, was rendered. Shutter Cottrell, captain of the High School track team, gave an impressive and spirited talk on the "prospects of a successful track team." He urged support by the Prep. girls and effort on the part of the boys. Marie Griffin gave her view on "High School spirit for girls." She argued that unity on the part of the student body and earnest work in class room and in athletics would do wonders toward the upbuilding of our High School. Miss Irene Baker delivered a selection from "Julius Caesar," and Lawrence Thaw told an original story.

THE BARBARIAN TRIP

All are interested to know the status of the Barbarian trip below. In spite of all that the town papers have said, the trip is as yet undecided and indefinite. By the letters read at the General Assembly last Friday, it could be seen that Mr. Mackay would in all probability not be on the coast in time for such a game. Mr. Mackay requested that there be a game scheduled between the 25th and 30th of this month, as there would be a party of his friends here at that time to inspect the university. On that day school will close, and everyone is to have a good time, visitors—both the Barbs and Mr. Mackay's friends, students and all connected with the institution.

The State Experimental Station has been doing a great work since the pure food law was drawn up, as is evidenced by the results. Up to date over 1350 samples have been taken of various foodstuffs, and examined. The attitude taken by the dealers in general is fine; many are glad to have their stock inspected; but there are some who have had to be coerced into doing as the law requires. The next series of tests is to be on the syrups sold throughout the state; these tests are to begin the first of this week.

VIRGINIA HARNED
Will Open in Her New at the Majestic Theatre Wednesday

No English speaking actress of today compares with Virginia Harned as an emotional actress according to the opinion of the New York critics, and in "The Woman He Married," which Miss Harned will offer at the Majestic theatre Wednesday night, she has splendid opportunities to demonstrate her true worth. "The Woman He Married" is by Herbert Bashford, and describes a phase of New York life new to the dramatic stage.

Miss Harned declares that the drama is the greatest vehicle she has had since her starring tours with E. H. Sothorn, and her appearances both in the United States and London in "Iris," "Spiritsome" and other prominent successes have failed to afford her the opportunity to display her natural talent as does the play in which she will open in this city Wednesday night of this week.

LOOK! LISTEN!

THREE DOLLARS for the best yell, and TWO DOLLARS for the second best yell, submitted. All yells should be handed to one of the following: Morris Anderson, R. M. Seaton and W. Settemeyer. Everyone in on the LARGE REWARD for suitable selections.

MILITARY ORDERS

The following schedule of drills is announced for the week beginning October 17th:

Monday—Company A will clear rifles and equipment.

Monday—Company B will have drill and sitting-up exercises.

Tuesday—Battalion drill.

Wednesday—Battalion parade. Blue uniform.

Thursday—Battalion drill.

All sergeants should study carefully the general rules for successive forestions in battalion drill each day on which battalion drill is held. All sergeants will act as judges some time during the drill each day.

All commissioned officers will also be prepared to act as company and battalion commanders.

By order of the Commandant.

PHYSICAL CULTURE

Miss Helen Meighan has decided to divide her class of women into two divisions in order that the more advanced class may have a chance to practice on all kinds of modern gymnasium apparatus. All Sophomores and second-year Normals are members of this class. The first-year students are drilled in rudimentary work that bears upon "The Preservation of Youth and Beauty."
