

NEVADA 17

CALIFORNIA 21

Univ. of California Wins

Last Saturday night saw one of the fastest and hard fought basketball games the U. of N. girls' team ever played. The Nevada team was on the job all the time and not a single goal being thrown without a contest. The California team, although a trifle taller and larger than our Blue and White middle girls, were not stronger than our co-eds. We are proud of them, one and all. They play ball and play hard. The game was full of star plays. May Porter threw several spectacular goals that made the rooting section go wild. The rooting, under "Bub Hix" Holmes was the best heard on the hill since the Nevada Stanford football game. Miss Martha Noble, '14 class, forward, was certainly there. Her long field goal that turned the tables will not be forgotten.

California deserves a great deal of credit for the game they play. Clean hard ball what we hear about but so seldom see was played. California has thus far won the coast championship in basketball, but they will not forget for some time the game Nevada played on March 11, 1911. The lineup of the teams follow:

Nevada—Forwards, May Porter, capt.; Martha Noble, Frances Smith; centers, Dora Nelson, Elda Orr, Lydia Colyer; guards, Leila White, Grace Mahan; subs, Matilda Jepsen, Effie Mack, Alice Young.

California—Forwards, Katherine Ascher, capt.; Daisy Hunt, Martha Humes, Leila Truwick, sub; center, Frances Jackling, Lorenna Buck, Florence Cassidy; guards, Edith Frisbee, Doris Spencer, Madge Spencer, May Chrystal, sub.

Stanford 5; Nevada 0

From telegrams received from San Francisco Saturday the Stanford team defeated our Blue and White boys by the small score of 5-0. This we consider a very good score when one thinks that for four weeks the U. N. team has played together just once. Owing to excessive rain the Stanford ball field was too wet to play on Thursday and on Friday their field was very slow.

Grayson pitched a very fast, accurate game and showed very good form. No doubt Grayson will captain the Nevada team in 1912 as he shows as much ability as any man out on the field.

California 3; Nevada 2

They are there some. Those gray shirts with N-E-V-A-D-A on their chests meant business and the score is the result. This is the closest contest seen among the coast teams this season. With this sort of a record the California teams will not be so backward in offering the Nevada boys a chance to play. The team under Coach Knight and "Kid" Bennett play baseball for the love of clean sportsmanship and that is what the coast papers give us credit for. Harry Grayson as a twirler is some "air splitter." He has in two games for Nevada made a record well worth watching and we sincerely hope his playing will continue the rest of the season.

Although we are lacking in particulars, the fact that the score was tied for several innings would indicate that Nevada can "fan" as well as U. C. A slow and wet field made base stealing nearly impossible, but "Kid" Bennett and Al Myers borrowed a few for luck but to no use because of California's clever field playing.

Governor Folk Lectures

Hon. Joseph W. Folk is a good speaker, in fact the best speaker heard in the gym for many years. He has a forceful address and speaks clearly and to the point. His address last Wednesday was on the topic "Soldiers of Peace." He said in part:

"America is today in a great wave of reform. Reform in every department and branch of the nation.

"The nation needs 'Soldiers of Peace,' who will live for their country. Men are needed more in the civil forms of government than to bear their breasts to the bullets of an enemy.

"All people may be divided into two classes. Not good and bad but the lifters and the learners. Which class do you belong to. Where there is one lifter there are twenty learners.

"The cry that you are slandering a city or state in revealing evil or corruption reminds me of the old woman. She would never sweep out her house for fear the neighbors would find that it needed to be swept.

"Grafters always regard an assault on them as a slander of the city or state. The cry 'you are slandering the city' and 'you are hurting business' is the cry of the grafter.

"The discredit is in the toleration of evils, not the exposure and correction of them.

"Make the public conscience clean and the public life will be clean.

"The light should be turned on so that the American people may find who all of the rascals are."

"There is a difference between earning money and collecting money. Some people are so busy earning money they have no time to collect, and some are so busy collecting they have no time to earn.

"Historians estimate that just prior to the fall of Rome all the wealth of the empire was concentrated in the hands of not more than 1500 wealthy men. In America today 80 per cent of the wealth is in the hands of less than fifty men.

"The government has no more right to add indirectly to the wealth of the few than to add directly to the wealth of the few.

"Privilege, swollen wealth, vice, decay—this is the history of older republics that have flourished and fallen.

"Fear the time when the rich become miserable because they have no want wealth cannot gratify and the poor are miserable because they can gratify no want they have.

"There are no politics in graft. A grafter is not a democrat—he is not a republican. He is a criminal and ought to be prosecuted as such.

"The conflict is between the two great parties. The party of common good and the party of private greed; between men and dollars, morals and money, progress and decay, equal rights and privilege.

"Public sentiment is a difficult thing to ascertain. Law-abiding people are quiet while the lawless are so vociferous as to deceive by their clamor the facts as to their number. The only correct way to determine public sentiment is to be guided by the expression of the people's will through the law-making body. When a law is passed it must be assured it is what the people want and it should be enforced until the people demand and secure its repeal. What may seem to be public sentiment is often the claim of the lawless who have a selfish interest in violating the law.

Civic evils cannot exist where the public conscience is aroused. Nearly all public wrongs grow out of the indifference of the people. The exposures recently brought about in different places would have come years ago if the people had been aroused to a true understanding of the situation. Had the people been alert, and had they taken as much interest in municipal affairs as they would have taken in a corporation in which they were stockholders, the disgraceful conditions would never have existed.

Much has been done for good government during the past few years. But we should not be content with what has been accomplished in the fight against public evils. There is plenty of work yet to be done. States, like men, should never be satisfied, but should ever strive for higher development. The man who is so self-satisfied as to pronounce himself undesirous of further improvement is likely to be most in need of advancement.

"The future of our government rests upon the integrity of the citizen and upon his activity in public affairs. Good government must begin at home in cities and towns, and proceed from there to state and nation. This government rests not on the wealth of a few, but upon the character and integrity of the average individual."

The arrival of Governor Folk was delayed nearly an hour by a delayed train and an invalid auto that would not dig up mud. During the interval college yells, class yells, and High School yells, together with the "Cadie" band amused the very large attendance in the gymnasium.

Miss Edith Howe entertained the assembly with two choice selections that were well applauded. Miss Howe is taking a leading part in "The Russian Honey-moon" to be staged next Friday night by the U. N. Dramatic Club.

Her imitation of "Mrs. Casey at Euchre" was wellrendered. The attendance at this assembly was the best in years.

Mine Rescue Car in Reno

BUREAU OF MINES
CAR VISITS RENO
Very Instructive Work Carried on by Department

The mining students with many others visited the mine rescue car Saturday morning. The car is, an altered Pullman with the seal of the Department of the Interior and Mine Rescue Car on its sides.

The interior of the car is divided near the middle into the lecture and demonstration room and the living quarters of the crew. In the demonstration room the lower berths have been removed leaving an open space large enough for forty or fifty people to be seated. In it are kept the eight oxygen helmets that form the principle part of the rescue equipment. Several of the students were instructed in the use of the helmets and those that tried them stated that aside from the heat there was little difference to be noticed in the air they breathed.

In the helmets the face masks were fitted closely over the head, completely cutting off the outside atmosphere. From then on the only air breathed was that in the man's lungs and the apparatus. This air as breathed was passed through caustic potash which removed the carbon dioxide and excess moisture. Then enough oxygen was added automatically to restore the air to its normal composition. Thus the few cubic feet of air confined in the helmet were breathed over and over again. This complete independence of the surrounding atmosphere enables the wearer to work without hindrance in poisonous gases of a burning mine. The whole apparatus weighs about forty pounds and is good for two hours without removing.

In one end of the lecture room were the oxygen tanks and pumps used in recharging the apparatus. By using three tanks of different pressures it is possible to fill the helmet containers to a process of one hundred and twenty pounds without having at any time during the process a difference of more than forty pounds between the tanks and container. This made the pumping easy and kept the oxygen cool.

The portable electric lamps used in rescue work were also on exhibition. These consist of a small storage battery having two four volt lamps in a bulls eye on the front. The lamps give a light equal to three or four candles and will burn for 12 hours without recharging. In addition stretchers and first aid kits were provided and the upper berths were adjusted so that they would serve as an emergency hospital. Forty foldings chairs, a table and trunks for apparatus completed the furnishings of the lecture room. On the wall were pictures and diagrams illustrating the first aid plans. Back of the lecture room was a combined library and office of Professor Smith, who is in charge of the car. At the extreme end of the car was the kitchen and dining room.

The headquarters of the car is at Alma, Wyo. The car is generally on the road in Utah and Wyoming. Instruction in the use of the oxygen, helmet and first aid are given to miners in that area and are given to miners in that area.

This is the first time this car has been called upon for aid in an accident in a metalliferous mine as its work heretofore has been confined to coal producing districts. From Reno the car goes to Carson and Virginia.

Much has been learned by the students during its short visit in Reno and it is to be hoped that the next serious mine accident will be easily met.

RED SOX TO PLAY ON MACKAY FIELD

Manager Kennedy has arranged for a game of basketball with the Boston Red Sox team on their cross country trip. The U. of N. nine will meet them on the Mackay Field at 3 p. m., Monday, March 27th. With Knight twirling, Fletcher catching and Bennett on first the chances for the "bean eaters" are terribly slim. However, we need a crowd and we need rooting. We want a half holiday. We only hope the Reno merchants will agree to enjoy one good fast ball game with a world famous team and the boys of Blue and White.

PROF. ADAMS TAKES A TRIP

Last week Dr. Adams of the chemistry department attended the charter day exercises at the Chico Normal School. This was the 24th anniversary of the founding of the normal school in 1887. Professor Adams brings words of welcome to the students of U. of N. from their friends there who hope to see the U. of N. basketball team this spring.

EVOLUTION COURSE

Program for this week: On Tuesday, March 14, the lecture will deal with "Miscellaneous Evolution Factors." "The Schools of Evolution—Neo-Darwinian, Neo-Lamarckian, Mutation and Others," will be discussed on Thursday, March 16.

Russian Honeymoon

Are You Getting Ready for the Russian Honeymoon?

The students of the University with the aid of Miss Howe, the well-known elocutionist of Nevada will appear before the public in the popular play "The Russian Honeymoon."

This play is an accumulation of dramatic incidents in which the central figure, Miss Howe, as Poleska, will not only move the audience to admiration, but to strong appreciation for her acting is both striking and sincere.

Gustave, Count Woroffski finding that his wife Poleska is possessed with an ungovernable temper, decides to subdue her in his own way. He enters the service of Ivan, the shoemaker, under whose roof his wife finds him as Alexis. He tells her that he is a serf, and that she as his wife is a serf also. He puts her through a forced ordeal of sewing and spinning. Poleska secretly sends word to the Count's sister for protection which results in the arrest of Alexis. Poleska obtains an order of separation, but finds that at the critical moment her husband is very dear to her. He then appears in his true character and welcomes her gladly to his home. Throughout the play about thirty of the students will support the able actors in presenting to the people this pretty comedy.

This will be the initial performance of Harold Hale in college dramatic circles. He has won for himself extensive popularity as a versatile comedian in several plays staged in Reno, Virginia City and Carson during the last four years. He won the first prize as the best High School orator in the State of Nevada in three consecutive years. His interpretation of the part of the old peasant Ivan in this play is perfect. One can scarcely see him in the rehearsals without being carried away first with sympathy for the trying life of Russian peasants today, and again in convulsions of laughter at the humorous and droll way he masters the situation in which he abruptly finds himself. Helen Hobbins as the maiden peasant Micheline is a favorite. First we see her attracted by Olexis the serf, who afterwards she learns is Gustave, the count. She makes love with her fiancé, Osip, serves Poleska as a maid, pleads with her for her father's freedom, and administers punishment to Koulikoff the indendant of the estate with all the richness of her versatile nature.

Helen Pickett as a typical cultivated society lady of the French court is particularly attractive. She puzzles the peasants, administers justice to the supposed criminals and proves her love for her brother, the Count, whom she finds in peasant garb with the same light and carefree manner. Gilbert Tyler as Osip, Darcy Cashin as the indendant, and "Duby" Du Bois as Count Woroffski present a formidable trio.

The Russian scenery will be a revelation for our home people. The management has secured two ancient spinning wheels, which were used centuries ago in Siberia. The costumes are elaborate in the extreme.

Tickets are now on sale by Messrs. Seaton, Chapman, Tyler, Du Bois and Cashin. Box office open on Thursday morning.

Editorial

The Student Body last Friday was very interesting and shows a marked increase in student affairs over the last few years. This spirit ought to be fostered and increased whenever possible. When anyone says that Student Body meetings are not alive, that party is plainly hurting himself and admits that he was not present.

What Kind of Athletics Are We Going to Support

The amendment to the constitution of the association proposed by the committee appointed by President Jepson is one that requires a great deal of thought. Every student of the U. of N. should read it carefully and think of what it will mean to U. of N.

The Student Body at present has no means of preventing a player without college status from playing on any team. The Faculty have a ruling that "any student who represents the University shall be a student in good standing and carry fifteen hours of work. Are we going to allow the Faculty to control student activities? Are we helpless? We cannot prevent them unless we adopt a constitutional amendment which will require every member of any athletic team to be a bona fide student.

The University of Nevada is entering into a new era of athletics. We are going to win and above all to win fairly and with a bona fide student team.

ESTIMATING THE VALUE OF MINING PROPERTY

Abstract of address before Nevada Society, February 15th, by F. N. Fletcher.

After discussing the importance of the subject and the wide diversity of opinions concerning the values of mining property Mr. Fletcher said:

Notwithstanding the fact, however, that as compared with other classes of property mine values are far less clearly defined, and despite the great variety of opinion concerning such values, still it must be true that it is possible to find a reasonable method of properly, if only approximately, arriving at the value of mining property, or else the business of buying or selling such property is the wildest sort of frenzied finance.

Let us consider then briefly the task of the man to whom is entrusted the duty of estimating value of a mining property. If all mines were as simple as some mines are his task would not be so difficult, but the wide complexity of conditions under which no two mines are ever quite alike, calls into serious use all his mental equipment of training, experience and judgment.

In an abstract sense it is clear that the exact value of a mine is the sum total of all its mineral contents that can be extracted at a profit, less the cost of extraction and conversion into money. Fortunately nothing like this degree of exactness is expected or required of the mining expert. In the great majority of cases the question he has to answer is this: Is the property worth the price demanded under the terms proposed? And this question often resolves itself into the further query: is the property worthy the expenditure of such money in prospecting and developing as will determine whether or not it is worth the price asked? For out of the great uncertainty as to the values of undeveloped or partially developed mining property there has been developed a reasonable method of procedure under which owner and purchaser may come to agreement. This is known as the bond and lease contract, under whose terms the owner may with some show of reason fix his price at what he hopes the mine may be worth even though such price is far beyond the value of the ore in sight; while the purchaser may be justified in expend-ing even a considerable sum of money in the development of another man's mine, on the expectation that such development will prove the owner's hopes somewhere near the reality.

The expert starting out in his task of valuing a mining property will consciously or unconsciously begin to segregate the data on which his opinion and advice will be based into three essentials if not clearly defined classifications which may be designated as (1) values actually in sight, (2) values partially in sight, and (3) values reasonably to be expected from development work; or more briefly stated, values actual, probable, and prospective. On his ability to clearly distinguish between these classes of values and to wisely judge their relative and actual worth will depend the validity of his final judgment and his real success as an expert.

First then the values actually in sight; these will consist of all property on the surface or below that can be viewed and measured and their values appraised. But since all other classes of property on a mine depend for their value on the value of the mine itself it is evident that the prime matter for the expert's consideration is the ore body.

Ore actually in sight is a term universally employed among mining men, but a term that never has been and never should be very closely defined; for the just estimate of ore in sight depends on the character of the mine, the character of the ore, and the character of the expert.

Ore in the sense here employed means those portions of the vein, ledge, or deposit, having a commercial value. Those portions whose metallic content is below the cost of extraction must of course be kept out of the estimates of ore reserves.

Ore blocked out on all four sides in a well defined ledge and in not too extensive blocks, may fairly be considered as ore in sight; and in addition to this, ore exposed on three sides may generally be safely placed in the same class unless there are good reasons in a particular case for not so including it.

In estimating the value of a mining property the expert will at the outset provide himself with all the information possible which will assist him in his work. This will include a map of the underground workings if it exists and the making of one if it does not. He will then make a careful preliminary examination of the entire property, sizing up the general situation as well as the special conditions. This done he proceeds to the determination of ore bodies and to sampling the ore. (To be continued next week.)

COLLEGE WOMEN'S

OUTLOOK CLUB
 The College Women's Outlook Club held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, March 8. The subject of the day was "Women and Science." Miss Mabel Finney read a very interesting paper on "Miss Marie Mitchell the Astronomer," and Miss Curler gave a very instructive paper on "Madame Curie." Then followed a discussion upon the life and work of Madame Curie. After delightful refreshments were served the club adjourned, to meet again April 10.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT

It is recommended that the following be added as paragraph 10, section 2, article V of the constitution of the Associated Students of the University of Nevada:

"It shall be the duty of the captain of any team, not less than one week before any game, to hand to the executive committee, a list of names of the candidates for such team, and executive committee, on petition of twenty-five members of the associated students, to investigate and take such action as it sees fit concerning the status of any such candidate."

Committee—D. C. Cameron, W. H. Settlemyer, C. A. Melentz

STUDENT BODY MEETING

The student body meeting of last Friday was altogether a successful one. The desired large attendance was forthcoming at this meeting and everyone took a lively interest in the business at hand. President Jepson announced that certain funds donated by Mr. Maekay were to be disposed of entirely out of the hands of the associated students. This money can be spent only under the direction of President Stubbs and Graduate Manager Kennedy.

After resigning the chair to Vice President Layman, President Jepson proposed an amendment to the constitution. This amendment has for its object the requirement of more strict qualifications governing the eligibility of athletes representing Nevada teams in athletic contests of any kind. A committee of three was appointed by the vice president to draft such an amendment for the consideration of the student body at its next meeting. The amendment committee was: D. C. Cameron, W. H. Settlemyer, C. A. Milentz.

CO-EDS VISIT CARSON

Professor Ordahl Instructs Class

Professor Ordahl and Mrs. Ordahl on Thursday of last week took the Normal class and some college girls to Carson. In the morning the party visited the law makers of the Assembly and there learned all the tricks of contending politics. In the afternoon, the girls visited the Orphans' Home and there found the children very happy and perfectly accustomed to visitors. Then the girls visited the Senate and found there serene dignity personified. As the bills discussed were of local importance only, no heated argument ensued. Since Mr. Ordahl would not have the girls go home without seeing the prison, Warden Baker gave him a special permit to show the girls everything. This part of the trip no doubt impressed the party as everyone was ready to leave. After seeing all these different things this class think they have seen Carson. They are so enthusiastic over their trip they would have every student who has not been go over and visit. Those who accompanied Professor Ordahl were Misses Isabel Meriardo, Alpha Rulison, Mollie Curler, Mae Sullivan, Margaret Feiley, Viola Blivens, Edwina O'Brien, Marie De Flon, Dale Cole, Mabel Finney, Alice Van Leer, Emma Reinken and Alice Brennan.

The chemistry class enjoyed another very pleasant and instructive trip last Tuesday afternoon to the gypsum plant east of Reno. The class has been studying calcium and its salts and has taken particular interest in gypsum, the methods of treatment and uses with the result that Mr. Ross arranged the trip which made real the subject in which his class was interested.

At the plant the class was first made familiar with the two products, gypsum and gypsite, which were being treated. The treatment of the gypsum proved the more interesting, in that the process was more complicated than that for gypsite. The various forms of crushers and elevators and the resulting product, the large kettles, and the different varieties of products were all

BASKETBALL RALLY

The basketball rally held in the dining hall Friday night was well attended. Mr. Ross, the first speaker of the evening, took for his subjects "Blockheads, Sapheads, and Gasheads." He evaded, classifying himself, saying that the Preps would draw the accepted conclusions. Laugh. Mr. Ross first confined his talk to the students as rooters. Next he addressed the team and expressed his confidence in their ability to vanquish our friends from over the hill.

Mr. Levy spoke fluently and forcibly upon the spirit of all our Varsity teams. As a downtown business man he expressed the interest which they feel towards our college activities. "Spirit," says he, "is what made the bulldog whip the elephant." His point is that numbers and size of any institution can count but little against a small well organized student body with the "do or die" spirit.

Miss Meighan, Miss White and Miss Porter expressed in a few words the ability and spirit of our Varsity team.

GOVERNOR FOLK LECTURES AT MAJESTIC
