

"TIME OF HIS LIFE" SATURDAY NIGHT

Seniors Challenge Faculty Players

There is to be a big baseball game. The seniors have issued a challenge to the team of the faculty for a game to be played and it has been accepted. Prof. Haseman has the faculty team in charge and declares that he will take the seniors into camp with ease. He is in correspondence with Prof. Knight and if things turn out well Prof. Haseman will have Prof. Knight on the faculty line-up the day of the big game.

Professors Scrugham, Boardman, Young, Doten and Frandsen have said that they will enter the game to try to get the scalps of the seniors. This game will be one of the events of class day. The game will be called promptly at half-past three o'clock.

President J. E. Stubbs has agreed to give his services as umpire for the game and he no doubt will be kept busy. The faculty team will appear on the athletic field on Monday afternoon to hold their first and final practice. The seniors are expected to stay away from the vicinity of the field on this occasion.

Plenty to eat and well cooked without Jap help, at the Owl.

Student Officers Are Elected

Last Friday the annual election of the officers of the Associated Students was held in the gym. The ticket was a long one and it was well along in the afternoon when the results were made known by the election board. There were several close and interesting contests. That for the position of president was the most exciting on the list.

Both the candidates are well known and popular. The winning candidate came out with a majority of six votes. The officers of the student body for the next year are:

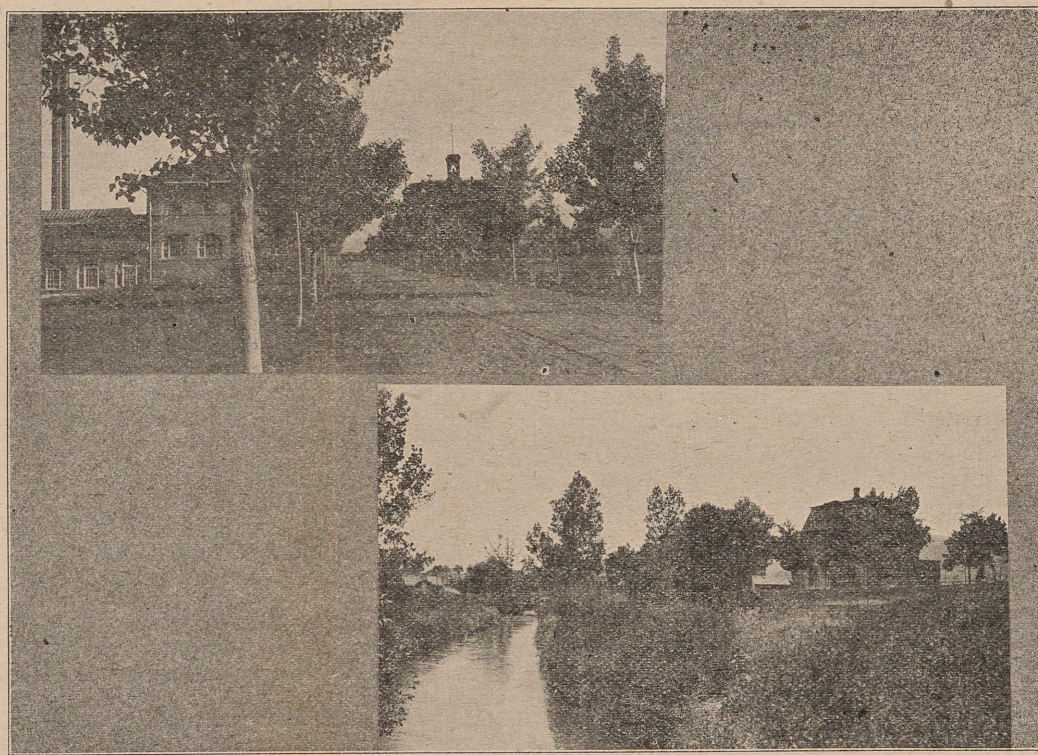

President, William H. Settemeyer; vice president, Harold R. Layman; secretary, Miss Eunice Cagwin; treasurer, Art Wilson; members of the executive committee from the under-classes, Elster Harriman and Joe McDonald.

Robert P. Ferrar will be the editor of the Sagebrush. L. B. Patrick was re-elected to fill the position of business manager of the paper.

The names of the student officers for the ensuing year will appear in the register that is being gotten out this spring.

The list was sent to the state printing office the day of the election and (Continued on page four.)

ACADEMIC FIELD MEET SATURDAY

SCENES ON THE CAMPUS

All arrangements for the annual Nevada academic meet are complete. Accommodations for all the visiting high school people have been made at the dormitories and at the hotels in town.

The officials for the meet are members of the Big N society, which is an assurance that things will go off in the smoothest manner possible.

The people from the high schools of the state will start arriving Thursday evening. The reception committee will meet every train to see that all the visitors are looked after in the proper manner.

The main events will come off in the afternoon. In the morning there will be the try-outs in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and in the broad jump. There are so many entries in the events that the morning tryouts are necessary.

Students Declame Friday Night

Friday the annual declamation contest of the high schools of the state will be held in the gym. The contest is under the supervision of the Nevada academic league.

Superintendent D. B. Billingshurst of the Reno public schools has charge of the contest and is being assisted by Professor Thompson and Prof. Ferguson.

The entries for the contest are all in though some of the titles of the subjects are not in at the present. There are ten high schools who have sent in declaimers. In all there are eighteen young people entered in the contest. The contest for the boys will be held in the afternoon while that for the girls will take place in the evening.

The following is the list of the contestants who are to take part in the contest:

- Paul Hornaday ..... Carson City "The Unknown Speaker"
- Dean Bryant ..... Reno "Spartacus to the Gladiators"
- Bessie Dixon ..... Reno "College Oil Cans"
- Isabel Rising ..... University "The Pilot's Story"
- Jack Wright ..... Sparks "The Black Horse and His Rider"
- Zelma Francis ..... Sparks "Daniel Periton's Ride"
- Robert Tremain ..... Lassen County "College Oil Cans"
- Florence Boggs ..... Lassen County "The Theatre Party"
- Leslie Edwards ..... Goldfield "Spartacus to the Gladiators"
- Helen Heffernan ..... Goldfield "The Boy Orator of Zapata City"
- Thomas Dugan ..... Tonopah "A Tampa Romance"
- Ana Critchfield ..... Tonopah "Why the Panama Canal Should be Fortified"
- Isidore Richmond, White Pine County
- Minnie Curtis ..... White Pine County "The Soul of the Violin"
- George Settemeyer ..... Douglas County "The Trial of Ben Thomas"
- Frances Jones ..... Douglas County "A Tampa Romance"
- Mason Johnston ..... Lyon County "The Fiddle Told"
- Laurene Edway ..... Lyon County "The Fall of Pemberton Mills"

TIME CHECKS WILL BE OUT WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

The comptroller desires that the students call on their instructors and get their breakage tickets signed and present them at the office of the comptroller not later than Saturday afternoon for their rebates.

All students employed on the grounds are requested to call on the head of the department for which they are working and secure a statement of their time. This time slip should be presented to the comptroller not later than Saturday afternoon. The checks for the work on the campus by students will be issued between 2 and 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Call and get them.

FORMER VARSITY MAN WINS DISTINCTION

Wallace R. Finney, ex-'12, is now installed as president of the Encina club of Stanford University. The Encina club is the student government club of the large dormitory at the University. When at the U. of N. Mr. Finney won a host of friends and left here with a great many regrets and with the best wishes of this university. He is in better condition than ever before, so that no excuses will be attributable to it if a number of records do not go to pieces.

A WORD OF WELCOME

STUDENTS OF THE NEVADA HIGH SCHOOLS:—We are glad to see you, we want you to feel that the University of Nevada is your University and that you may do as you wish while you are here. The student body, faculty, friends and the Sagebrush join in wishing you the very best success that can be expected by anyone in this meet.

The students are glad to have you here and they are going to entertain you. All that you have to do is to ask questions and to there will be someone only too glad to give you a great big reply and that gladly.

When you go back home tell the people there what a University this is. If you are not treated well tell them so. If you think this is a fine place tell them so. But above all tell them something and preferably something good.

On behalf of the Reno High School we are now going to wish you welcome and ask you to visit their fine new high school. They will be only too glad to tell you anything about this town and they can let you see for yourself that Reno has the very finest educational system of any city its size in the United States. There are no exceptions to this and we will take the liberty of asking you to mention to any student or at the office of the President the names of any students who have not been able to come with you this time and who would like to attend the BIGGEST Little University in the West. WE THANK YOU.

THE SAGEBRUSH

Senior Play Saturday Night

If you want to have "the time of your life," come to the Majestic theatre Saturday night, May 11th, and see the Mackay Pioneers in the cleverest Senior farce ever given by the University of Nevada.

The majority of the members of the cast have been in plays before—some, as will be remembered, taking leading parts in "Hibgee of Harvard," the Junior play given by the Mackay Pioneers last year. This experience, combined with the excellent training afforded by Miss Howe's able direction, has turned out a cast of unusual ability.

The play itself is rather unusual for a college play as the story has nothing to do with a campus, unless the mischief loving spirits of Tom and Miss Dorothy may awaken memories of college pranks.

The class was fortunate in securing Morris Anderson for the part of the negro servant whose worship of "Marse Tom" and whose laughter at that young man's mischief making is infectious.

Carl Tibbals in the difficult role of two distinct persons promises to keep things lively.

Matilda Jepson, as leading lady, carries out a complicated part with ease and charm.

Helen Hobbins, the peace making aunt, and Ethel Thompson as her fun-loving niece, keep things moving whenever they appear.

"Society Red" as the hypochondriac will keep the audience in gales of laughter with his hunts for "symptoms" and his recital of his sufferings past and present.

Tickets will be 75c, 50c and 25c. The 75 cent and 50 cent tickets are on sale now, but no 25 cent ones will be sold until Friday, at 10 a. m., when the box office opens.

Prof. Brown to Take Vacation

When next fall comes the many friends and in fact all the students and faculty of this university will be sorry to find that Prof. Brown will not be present.

Prof. is going to take a vacation—a real vacation—and he is going to be gone a whole year—think of it!

Prof. has been a constant worker on and about the campus of the University of Nevada for twenty-one years, and he has earned a little vacation.

Dr. Stubbs announced at drill last Thursday that he had granted Prof. Brown a year's leave of absence, to be effective on the first day of June, 1912.

Who is to take Prof.'s place is the all important question now, and we are not going to attempt to answer it just at present, but the president has promised that there will be some one who will do it. He added, and we agree, that it will be several years' search to find any one to do the work and to earn as many friends as Prof. Brown now has.

The boys at Lincoln hall are at sea to think who will become their guardian, and who will sign their checks before they take them to the local banks. This sort of work and a million other little kindnesses is the way that every one on the hill has gotten the habit of looking to Brown for everything that goes on or that they want to start.

Prof. Brown's word is final and it is always good. That is a good deal in these days, we think.

The Sagebrush joins the entire university, from the faculty to the janitors, in wishing Prof. Brown a very enjoyable vacation.

Track Officials Are N. Men

The officials who will act at the academic field meet to be held on the Mackay athletic field next Saturday are members of the Block N society, and as they have all acted very satisfactorily in three meets that have been held during the past few weeks, there should be no hitches and no cause for complaint. Every one of these men is a tried performer, as is shown by the N that he will and is entitled to wear, and naturally is the fit and proper person to hold the position awarded him.

The following members of the Block N society will officiate:

- Referee, Dave W. Hays; starter, E. R. Mackay; track judges, W. M. Kearney, V. M. Henderson and Geo. Powers; field judges, Cassius C. Smith, L. J. Harriman and Harvey McPhail; time keepers, Silar Ross, Pat McCarran, Miles B. Kennedy and W. H. Settemeyer; clerks of course, M. Jepson and W. Pennell; assistants, Claude Teel, Harold Manion and Charles Seltz; scorer, Robert Bringham; assistant scorer, J. W. Wilson; announcer, John Kniffen; assistant announcer, J. J. Delahide; marshal, Jas. Curtin; assistant marshal, Richard Sheehy; inspectors, August Holmes, Harold Lyman and Carey Perkins.

At a meeting of the Block N society to be held at 4:30 p. m. today the men will be appointed who are to receive commissions from Chief of Police Hillhouse, who in deputizing them will give the fullest instructions as to what he will require of them.

The meet promises to be the best in years, and interest in it is at fever heat this early. Altogether ninety-eight entries have been received, which number is far in excess of that of any previous year, and the track

EDITORIAL

Now that there has been doomed to destruction so many lives of brave men and women from the roster of the Giant Titanic, there is need to say something on behalf of the hundreds of women that are today without funds and even qualifications to earn a livelihood for themselves and their orphan children. To these hundreds the value of a college education would now, at this station of life, be the greatest Godsend that could be granted them. We all hate to accept charity for a livelihood yet that it a time, and it has certainly come to hundreds, when they must either accept charity or starve.

A college education is an asset that any person, man or woman, can not lose in a ship wreck, nor can they lose it in floods of tornadoes. It is an intangible asset that is to have and to hold. To the woman that is set out on her own resources with no capital and only a meager secondary school education the prospects are not very bright unless the first maid class is the ideal. That is not the ideal of the American woman. She wants to go higher and to seek the intellectual level of all other nations. The first step to this end is a college education. There is no part of a college education that has ever been shown to harm the broad minded American woman. The hardest part that the woman of moderate circumstances has to contend with is the fact that she must spend at least two years to gain the training that will place her among the wage earners and in independent circumstances.

For the woman who has a college education there is little need to worry; she can make good wherever she may be placed. The American college women of today are the greatest resource that the nation possesses.

THETA EPSILON ENTERTAINS

Friday, April 26th, the Theta Epsilon sorority entertained at their annual dancing party at the Century club house.

The society had as their special guests the brothers and sisters of their members.

The decorations carried out the idea of spring. The dining room was a mass of fruit blossoms and flitting about everywhere among the blossoms were butterflies of all colors. Fifteen small tables were set, all lighted with yellow lights. At each place was a place card on which butterflies were painted. The dance hall was personified with its blossoms and butterflies. Behind a rustic fence, covered with clinging flowers, Ostroff's orchestra gave forth splendid music for the dancers.

At nine o'clock as the orchestra started up, the grand march was formed, led by Miss Hazel Ohmert and Mr. Leonard Gilcrease. Dancing continued until a late hour when all sat down to the banquet table.

The attractions of the evening were Mrs. Sam Wheeler, Mrs. W. Adamson and Mrs. A. E. Kaye.

The members of Theta Epsilon who made the evening a success, were: Misses Elizabeth Evans, Katherine Hand, Lola Stoddard, Eva Campbell, Clara Smith, Hazel Ohmert, Lillian Davey, Florence Reed, Lena Hauss, Alice Brennen, Martha Noble, Alice Van Leer, Lois McNeilly, Beatrice Rudawsky, Dorothy Bird, Maud Price, Juanita Jones, Leila White and Mesdames Senseny, Sadler, Scroggum and Dawson.

CONTINUATION SCHOOL THIS SUMMER

Short summer courses are always popular, and those who expect to return to the university or high school next year, cannot do better than spend ten weeks in the Nevada Commercial College.

Their efficient permanent teachers have arranged special courses which will give you a knowledge of the theory and practice in bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting or any group of subjects you may decide upon.

May 15th to August 15th, the sessions will be from 8:30 to 1:00, thus students will have only the cool part of the day in which to study.

This institution has passed the experimental stage, having enrolled over 115 pupils during the past year. All of those who graduated are in good positions, while many others have accepted positions and are finishing their courses in the evening school. A number of their pupils have tried the civil service examinations and received excellent appointments.

A handsome book of views and explanations just published gives the names and addresses of their past pupils as well as complete information relative to the college. Copy will be gladly mailed on request. Their courses of study are complete (as found on another page of this paper), equipment is modern in every respect and the location is central.

Their rates of tuition are as low as can be given, and still maintain a high grade school. All text books are free as usual, and their slogan has always been, efficient work and the same reasonable prices to all.

Do not wait until you are compelled to refuse a good position through lack of preparation, but get the training now and prepare yourself for opportunities which are sure to come.

MEN COOKS TO COMPETE

When the annual bread making contest takes place on May 11 there are very apt to be some surprised ladies. The cause is the fact that there are nearly twenty men taking cooking and they are to enter their loaves of bread for the inspection and the recommendation of the judges. Miss Bardenwerper reports there are some very fine examples of fine textured and light bread among the men's classes, as well as those that the women are preparing for the annual contest.

There is to be a prize of ten whole dollars for the best loaf and other prizes for second and third places.

You may eat at the Owl any time you please.

Life Is Dull in the Far West

oil man, you know, to go to see "The Deep Purple." I dressed early, and in spite of the fact that my time was short I set out for a little stroll. Ever since I have been living at the Fairmont, most of my walks have been down hill, to Chinatown, where I have never failed to find something new and amusing. Last night I was uncommonly fascinated, because it was the big night of the Chinese new year celebration, and because the trouble between the tongs was getting so serious that the lid could only be kept on with difficulty. The women and children were out, dressed in their most gorgeous garments, and hurrying about in an excited frenzy of joy.

Thousands of crackers were popping in the doorways to "frighten out the devils," and the usual heavy oriental smell of crowded streets was almost drowned by the dense blue powder smoke. Flage were flapping from every window, and the little red paper grayers lay thick as leaves upon the pavement. It was wonderfully quaint and inspiring.

Thatcher grunted, "Doubtless it was pretty; but I have lived here so long that I despise the heathens' goings-on."

"After a little," Frenell went on placidly, "I began to want my dinner, and to realize that I could not possibly get any, and be on time to meet Miss Palmer."

"Then the advantage of my situation occurred to me, as if fate had been guiding my thoughts, was a great red brick building with narrow, barred windows, and over the basement entrance was a modern electric sign that said, "Sing Yuen—Chop Suey." The restaurant was a quiet little hole, lighted very dimly with much shaded lights, furnished with little black tables and stools. The feature of the place was a huge ornate altar, before which a great bundle of punks was sending up a stifling, sweet-smelling cloud of smoke. The proprietor, little wizened Sing Yuen, the head of the blood-thirsty Sing Yuen tong, was sitting on a high stool behind his desk, adding with his abacus as if he was the mildest of men an dhad never heard of a tong war.

"When I entered a couple of chatting tourists and several silent Chinese were scattered about. I enjoyed my chop-suey and the other queer nameless messes, eating them with a spoon, after the fashion of tourists and outsiders because the skillful manipulation of chop-sticks requires much practice, I lingered over my meal because I had still twenty-five minutes to spare, and only four blocks to walk back to the hotel, and and by one the other diners paid and departed, until I was left alone. When I had swallowed my last rumb, I went to pay and just to start a conversation, I asked Sing Yuen to read one of the prayer slips to me. He was very friendly, and spoke the most curiously perfect, and un-American English that I have ever heard. We discussed the weather, the restaurant business, and finally came back to the new year celebration. He was giving me a lengthy and, to me, amusing dissertation upon the hospitable spirit of his people, when suddenly four Chinese, barefooted, wild-looking, hatless, armed with long knives and revolvers, sprang into the room and banged the heavy door behind them."

At this point Frenell became so noisy, dramatic and excited that Thatcher began to catch the force of the story, and the people at the nearby table stopped to listen.

"Imagine my consternation! Little Sing Yuen gave a squeak of dismay, like a trapped rat, and reached for his weapons under the counter, but it was no use; the four had surrounded him. The biggest of the invaders put his revolver in his belt and took his knife in his teeth, so that he might use both hands. He held the squirming Sing Yuen firmly and twisted his long queue, his one time pride, around his neck. Almost before I could think the little man was strangled, gone to his fathers. The sight of his bulging eyes and lolling tongue aroused my ire,—I struck at the nearest hatchet-man, skinning my knuckles on his jaw, and brought about my own downfall. The four fell upon me. I struggled, but it was no use, because I am not very big and no fighter and they were remarkable men in their way. Before I could acquire enough breath to begin to swear anew, I found my mouth stuffed with a napkin and my feet and hands securely tied. I remember how thankful I was at that moment that I did not possess a queue for them to strangle me with. From this point, ladies and gentlemen, my story is well-nigh incredible."

Frenell addressed the absorbed and horrified company in general. He was enjoying his notoriety to the fullest, and the sight of Thatcher's tense, interested face, pleased him beyond measure.

"To continue," he ran his fingers through his sandy hair, "those four heathens picked me up like a dead fowl, carried me out of a back door, along black corridors, down steps, up steps, around corners, past lights, again into darkness, past noises and into silence, until I was entirely bewildered. At last, after a breathless climb up, a door was opened, and they stood me on my feet against the wall of an empty room. One of the men lighted a dark-lantern, and they set about their devilish preparations. The little one who appeared to be the flunkey, produced a rope which he made into a noose and ran through a ring in the ceiling directly over a little box. "Ah!" I thought, I am to be hanged.

"But no! They put the noose about my neck and stood me on the box. They adjusted the whole so that if I stooped down or fell off I should be strangled, but if I stood still I should be safe. Then they went out, and I was alone in the dark, wondering what next. Outside, in the street, I could hear a squeaky Chinese fiddle, high-pitched happy voices and the eternal pop of firecrackers. I was facing the door, so could see nothing. At first the situation was bearable, but soon my legs became very tired and my head swam with the effort of standing still. I stamped a little and wondered what Miss Palmer must be thinking of me. I stood there hours that seemed to be years, and finally I became quite delirious, with only the fact that I must keep upright, before me. Finally I decided that I must have been here some years; so was probably dead already, and that I might as well lie down and ease my aching legs.

"Then into my dream came the soft sluff-sluff of feet in the corridor without, and the door opened. A little trousered figure, oh, very little, no more than up to my shoulder, stood for a second against the dim light of the corridor; then the door closed softly, the key turned again, and the sluff of the padded shoes was on my side of the barrier.

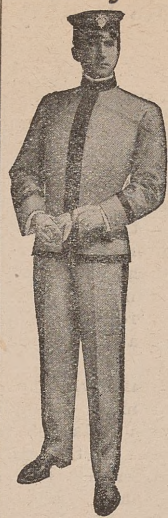

"A Match scratched, a candle flared, and I saw the most charming feminine person that ever stepped out of a picture. She was the merest doll, a little Chinese girl no more than sixteen years old, dressed in her gala blue satin and all her ornaments. Her face was rouged pink and white, and her painted eyes were opened to their fullest extent with her terror at finding me, where she had evidently expected no one. When she saw that I was tied and could not move, she began to walk around me and to eye me from every angle. Her terror gradually left her and she regarded me pityingly. She removed the noose, drew a knife as big as the men's from the front of her blouse, and hacked at my bonds.

"When I had restored my numbed circulation I tried to thank her, but she could not understand; she was too Chinese. She again became possessed of an agony of fear and haste, and began to uncoil a rope from under her blouse. She made signs to me to put it through the ring in the ceiling, and I accomplished the feat with difficulty because the ceiling was too high for me. When the rope was finally made fast, she ran it out the windows, and was gone out after it as quick as a flash. I thought that she would be dashed to pieces on the pavement below, and looked out shuddering only to see her going gaily down the rope, hand over hand.

When she reached the ground she set off as fast as she could run, not very fast by the way, up the hill toward the white quarter, the Mecca of my hopes, that I could see outlined against the fast brightening sky. The prospect of descending the three stories on a quaking rope terrified me, but freedom beckoned, and so I climbed as fast as I could, and set out as a fast pace after the fugitive. I pursued her hotly, and had almost captured her when she ducked into the Chinese Rescue Mission. Her identity was solved! She was a runaway slave! I leaned against the wall and mopped my brow. Suddenly a hard-faced Puritanical woman appeared and drove me away. I remonstrated, she accused me of perusing a helpless slave-girl, and tried to push me.

Her hand encountered my eye, notice the result!—Frenell indicated his purple orb.

One of the women in the group interposed breathlessly, "Wonderful! You ure a hero! I wonder why the story wasn't in the morning papers?" Frenell quite bubbled over at this. "Principally because I just made it up to prove that, though life is dull, it does not take much to liven it up."

Thatcher laughed in spite of himself. "Life isn't dull, I admit," he said, amiably.

FRIEND OF U. OF N. DEAD

The many friends of Miss Jeanne Turck were shocked at the news of her sad death in Elum, Washington, Saturday of last week.

The manner of her death was particularly shocking. She was with her father trying out a new machine on the roads beyond the little town. The machine turned turtle over the edge of an embankment, and Miss Turck and the chauffeur, who were in front, were killed instantly. Miss Turck resided in Reno during the past year, and has a number of friends among the university people. In spite of the fact that she was but eighteen when she met her untimely end, she has won considerable recognition among are circles on the Pacific coast by her clever figurines modelled in clay. She was at one time a pupil of Rodin and he predicted a great future for her if she would but persevere in her chosen line of work.

Track Men Elect Captain

One of the most enthusiastic gatherings of students this semester took place at St. Ross' ranch near Sparks.

Mr. Ross, who has labored untiringly to bring into form a track team for the University of Nevada, again showed his deep concern for his college, by giving to the men who trained under him a most sumptuous banquet that they might be all together once again before the close of the semester, and could to better advantage talk of the future of track for the university.

At the close of the dinner there was a unanimous appeal for a speech from their coach, Mr. Ross.

Mr. Ross spoke a few words on the future of our college athletics. He laid emphasis upon the fact that it was in his mind far greater honor for the Nevada athletes to remain in their own small university and help to build it up athletically than to go to some large college or university that has a reputation already in that line.

Following Mr. Ross' talk it was thought advisable, since all were together, to select a track captain for next year. The 1912 captain acted as chairman and called for nomination for a captain for 1913.

Mr. Bob Bringham was nominated and immediately after his nomination it was moved that the nominations be closed.

Mr. Trabert deposited a ballot and Bob was duly elected captain for the coming year.

Following the election each member present was called upon to say a few words. Each man expressed his intention of boosting Nevada this coming vacation and endeavoring to bring to our university as large an enrollment next fall as possible.

STUDENT OFFICERS ELECTED

are now set up, in type. This is the first time that the list of the officers of the Associated Students of the university has appeared in the bulletin.

The bulletins will be ready for distribution about the latter part of this month. This one will be much larger and more complete than any of the former issues.

GIVE DANCING PARTY

Thursday of last week, at the Century club, T. H. P. O. enjoyed its annual party. The little hall was tastefully draped in the black and white symbols of the order and pennants of numerous colleges and frats adorned the walls.

President Made Announcements Friday

Last Friday President J. E. Stubbs met with the assembled students in the gym to make the final announcements for the year. The attendance at this meeting was the best of any of the assembly-meetings this semester.

The first subject that the president spoke on was the abolition of the Preparatory department of the university. This, he said, was done in the following out of a policy of retrenchment that had been inaugurated by the regents this year.

The president said that while he did not like to see the many friends of the university in this department leaving he thought that in the end it would be for the betterment of the university. The state had outgrown the need of a state high school.

The arrangement for the sub-Freshman year for those who come to college with some credits lacking was announced to the students. By this arrangement a person will be allowed to enter college if they have two credits lacking.

classes, Lester Harriman and Joe Mc-year credits, and not semester credits as they are listed in the college courses.

The commercial department of the high school will be transferred to the College of Agriculture. The appropriation for the agricultural school provides for a course in commerce.

The announcement that the regents had decided to let the collection of the athletic fee be placed in the hands of the students was a surprise.

It was expected that the fee would be made compulsory and be collected in the office. This means that the treasurer will have all the fees to collect and in all probability it will be quite a job.

If this arrangement does not work out well it may be that the system that was selected by the president and submitted to the student committee will be put into force. This action of the regents means that the treasurer will have to collect all the fees and, as the president stated, the getting of all the money will be dependent upon the loyalty that the students have for the college athletics.

Dr. Stubbs turned the meeting over to the Associated Students after making the announcement that Professor Pammel of the Iowa State College would deliver a lecture in the Mining Building on the subject, "Botany as Related to Agriculture."

Big N. Society Holds Meeting

The last meeting of the Block N society for this semester was held in the training quarters yesterday afternoon, and was the best attended this year.

Letters were read from C. A. (Dick) Bennett, E. R. (Kid) Bennett, Louis Leavitt, Art Keddle, Lorin Kemp and Dud Homer, all enclosing checks for various amounts towards the purchase of the photographs of the old football teams, and each letter had praise for the N society, and offered a suggestion or two, which will be acted upon.

Silas Ross was appointed to go ahead and have all work done in connection with the printing of the photos and the framing of them, and the reading room of the Mackay training quarters will be a more home-like place when school begins again in the fall.

The final arrangements in connection with the academic field meet were completed, and Messrs. Dick Sheehy, James Curtin, Harry Grayson, William Settemeyer, John Kniffen and John J. Delahide were appointed as deputies to Chief of Police Hillhouse.

Diplomas were ordered granted to the following N men:

L. S. Leavitt, C. A. Bennett, L. V. Kemp, Art Keddle and Dudley Homer.

The official photographers for the meet are Frank L. Peterson, Woolridge and William Cann, and apart from these men, no one, unless wearing an N sweater, and being a member of the N society, shall be allowed on the field at any time during the contests.

Various committees were appointed to entertain the visiting students and no stone will be left unturned in the matter of making their sojourn the pleasantest possible.

During the next few days the reading room of the training quarters will be decorated with Nevada pennants, and it will be up to the men around the quarters to see that these pennants are not interfered with, as they will all be the property of private parties, for which the Block N society will be responsible.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Walter Jepson, who had so kindly put his services at the disposal of the society, in the matter of penmanship in connection with the lettering of the diplomas.

A JOLLY PARTY

Mrs. E. L. Williams and her daughter, Josephine, were the charming hostesses at a party given to the senior class Wednesday evening.

The evening was spent in playing games and enjoying the music, which was furnished by two of the class members.

A delicious supper was served at a late hour. The two large tables were tastefully decorated with yellow flag lilies and ferns, and hand painted yellow rose place cards marked each place.

After the supper an announcement of considerable interest to seniors only was made. Following this came a class prophecy as original as it was unpremeditated, and the fates of each gave rise to much laughter and applause.

The seniors who enjoyed the party were Elda Barber, Floss Reed, Matilda Jepsen, Helen Hobbins, Hazel Ohmert, Rowena Glass, Morris Anderson, Don Cameron, Dan Bruce, Edgar Pearson, Raymond Spencer, Paul Schrapps and Chester Ogden.
