Who Won the Hayride Is Doubtful Question

Both Classes Claim Victory, So Each Is Given a Hearing In Order That Fair Judgment May Be Meted Out By Non-Prejudiced Students

25's STORY

As a pink tea party or old ladies sewing bee, the frosh hayride was an overwhelming success; but as the traditional Nevada Hayride, the affair was a miserable failure. The sophomores, due to the manner in which the yearlings staged the ride, won the event, even though they did not break up the party.

The freshmen had seven trucks and a dozen or more motor cars in their fleet. All of these were lost within a short time. Two of the trucks were earrying Upperclassmen, who were the guests of the Babes, and who were "ditched" by their hosts. Corduroy feelings were badly hurt. Word of where the party was to take place was kept strictly secret, only two of the frosh committee having any knowledge of where the affair was to be staged. As a result, none of the frosh knew where they were going-and they went there by the simple means of getting

For a week before the hayride took place, the word went around that Verdi was to be the scene of the party and dance, which the sophs had to break up. Everyone was positive of this fact with the exception of the freshmen themselves. Upperclassmen even went to Verdi by train, so sure were they that the stunt was to be pulled in that town. No frosh turned up, however, despite the fact that the sophs had a welcoming party there. Verdi is now what may be called a deserted vilalge. Rotten eggs, profuse dopings of ammonium vaeriate and other vile and unpleasant mixtures from the chem. lab. having done their part in spreading the gospel of "college education". Verdi is now waiting for the return of "them there college fellers".

The sophomores in three trucks and about fifteen automobiles, left Manzanita as soon as the word was sent up to the effect that the freshmen had left for Verdi. At Lawton's news from surrounding road houses and districts reported no frosh. Later, word was received that the frosh were at Bowers. On the way to Bowers, the trucks were held up and told to proceed to Sparks; then to Huffakers; and Day. even the Black Panther mine was mentioned as a possible rendezvous of the

IS DECIDED FOR ARMISTICE DAY

That Home-Coming Day this year will be a big success is attested by the fact that the Student and Alumni committees have already met in joint session and outlined tentative plans for the Big

At this meeting Mr. Gerry Eden placed before the gathering plans previously discussed between the undergraduate committee which is composed of Mrs. Eden, Miss Marcelline Kenny and Alex Cotter; the Alumni committee consisting of Professor Palmer, Mrs. R. L. Lewers and Mrs. Cahlan. The plans of the students were agreed to unanimously and the members of the joint committee were split into special executive committees who will appoint sub-organizations to carry on the work.

Four committees were chosen so that the division of the programme will fall equally upon the members who will be responsible for the success of the day.

Professor Palmer and Mrs. Cahlan will act on the reception committee assisted by Miss Kenny. It is proposed to handle the reception of Alumni in a

With recent scores in mind the first game of the season is expected to be a hard fought one. The Agnetians have had the advantage of playing together through a few tangles already this season and Nevada will have to rely on individual stars to put one over on the San Francisco

On September 9 the Agnetians played Santa Clara University and were beaten 14 to 0. On September 23 Santa Clara met the San Pedro Submarine Base eleven on the field at Santa Clara and defeated the navy men 74 to 0. This either proves that the Agnetians were very strong or that the Sailors were completely outclassed. The latter broke through the Mission line for gains but were always stopped when the prune pickers felt their goal in danger. The navy men have always been noted as a hardy crew and it is quite possible that Santa Clara has improved greatly since her game with the Clubmen.

Foretelling games by comparative scores is a risky plan and the information given above does not imply what the outcome of Saturday's struggle will be. After the Nevada-Agnetian fracas is over a fair idea of how Nevada stands in relation to the coast teams will be obtained and the game will be watched with intense interest by those who enjoy figuring form charts.

There will be a regular meeting of the A. S. N. U. in the Auditorium of the Educational Building next Friday morning at 11:20. President Sanders will make the session as short as possible, but because of the importance of the business to be transacted, urges everyone to be present.

Nominations will be in order for two A. S. N. U. offices now vacant. Last year no nominations were forthcoming for the post of business manager of the Artemisia, and this office must now be filled. Scrimmages Prove That Splendid Material Is on Hand to Pick Team From. New Men Show Form When Varsity and Yearlings Mix

Who will fill Bradshaw's shoes at the University of Nevada? That is the question that puzzles the minds of Nevada supporters. Many followers of the game believe that Hug of Tonopah, a sophomore, who showed more than ordinary ability on the freshman squad last fall, will be the man. Hug, like Bradshaw, is very fast, a sure tackler and has demonstrated his ability to steer his course through a broken field. Others believe that "Hump" Church, sub-quarter on the varsity and threeyear letter man is the logical successor

He is a shifty runner and a deadly tackler when on defense. With three such men in the backfield, Nevada should turn out a man that will replace the nimble "Jimmy".

Best Squad in History

Besides having the largest turnout, Nevada has new material of exceptional quality. The incoming class furnishes football men for the making and although they are not the experienced men that are attracted to the larger universities, great possibilities are expected of them not only this year but in the three years to come.

Practically none of the beginners have had high school experience but the varsity of '23 should be the heaviest in the history of the Sagebrush State and the fastest pack of Wolves that ever hunted together. The coaching staff is building for the future with these prospects in mind.

WELL, WHO DID WIN THE HAYRIDE, FROSH OR SOPHS?

yearlings. The freshmen had the rival class so baffled that it was feared the hayride had been lost.

Arriving in town, however, the outlook was brighter, the sophs receiving news from all quarters that the Frosh had broken up. One truck was reported broken down a mile from town; another truck full of upperclassmen, lost and knowing further search was useless, joined the sophs; a truck was reported in Sparks.

Reno now became the center of a raging battle. Last May's eggs began to fly at various objects and to hit other various obstacles. Pedestrians and motorists suffered alike. Two frosh, walking into town from the broken truck, mistook the soph truck for a party of their own class. Their gleeful little shouts were short-lived. Eggs flew from forty different directions, and one thing was proved certain: the sophomores knew how to throw eggs and hit what they wanted.

Two sophomore trucks met one frosh party in Sparks and gave chase back into town. The yearlings were found buying eggs at a grocery, and the sophomores immediately began to hand over a few gratis. By passing the frosh truck several times and giving a heavy barrage at each passage, the sophomores managed to get rid of forty-dozen lovely, ripe and terribly rich eggs. After the supply was exhausted, very old watermelons, delapidated cantaloupes and other fruit not of the hen variety was used. The one truck of frosh was sadly in need of first aid after the firing had ceased, but no one could be persuaded to come within a hundred yards of them. A general melee was to have followed, but the frosh took to their

The sophomores and upperclass guests danced until midnight.

But to follow up the frosh, who all this time have been away roasting weinies in the hills! The original destination of the yearling class was the Wedekind mine, outside of Sparks. On arrival there, the babes were met by three husky miners, each seated on the steps of the bunk-house with a Winchester cocked over his knee and a wicked glisten in each eye. The frosh met '26 on the way in. Now, that's the decided that they would not hold the festivities at the chosen spot.

the old traditional hayride. The upperclassmen agree with both side—now, ALUNN REUNON who really won?

'26's VERSION

The traditional hayride was carried to a successful conclusion last Thursday night by the freshman class. Due to fine generalship, the class of '25 baffled the sophs and had their dance and feed without being swamped with a deluge of last year's egg crop.

For several days prior to the hayride the freshmen led everyone to believe that the festivity would be held at Verdi, which was simply a part of the plan to get '25 out of the way. To impress it upon the minds of the sophomores that the infants were actually going to Verdi, the five trucks of the yearlings went out Riverside Drive and along the south road toward the village. But, to the utter disgust of the sophs who at that time didn't see thru the trick, '26 turned onto the Alum Creek road and manouvred back to the Virginia Street Highway, while the sophs journeyed on to Verdi to render the air in the dance halls there unfit for breathing by the use of several obnoxious and pungent odors from chemicals obtained at the laboratory and hen fruit a few years of age.

One of the frosh trucks broke down near the aviation field and the occupants were forced to walk into town. while another became lost in the maze of country byways as the only lights it had were two sooty lanterns. The remaining parts of the freshman class, and by far the greater part of the upperclassmen, reached the final destination, which was a small building less than a mile east of the Wedekind mine. A few yearlings were sent out to the location with the "grub" and drinks -soda water-that afternoon. They had a cheery campfire going to warm the mother's darlings when they arrived after an hour and a half ride.

The main attacks were made with the use of flying soda pop CO-EDS FIRST RIFLE and volitant bottles, but it lacked the real pep because it was only between freshmen. Why the sophomores didn't help them is one thing '26 can't figure out. Dame Rumor has it that '25 learned that the yearlings were at Wedekind rather late in the evening, but didn't come out. They could have at least question, were they afraid of the three trucks of '26 or did they care more for A deserted cabin a short distance having a little skid at Huffakers than of constructive work in all state prisons. The product, preferably that needed in the state's industry, would be sold on the market at the regular price. Such work would make no difference in the wholesale price of the product.

Gompers, and other union leaders, have expressed themselves as being in favor of such a plan, since it would eliminate prison contract and its complement of unfair competition.

Booth urged the students and professors to work for a legislative enactment providing means of employment for penitentiary inmates, so that they might learn how to make an honest living, might repay some of their debt to society, and might contribute something to the support of their families. He stated that a campaign would be started later, and asked for support to these measures.

An idea of how the varsity may be sent into action against the Agnetians may be gained from a glance over the initial eleven that took the field last Saturday for a tussle with Eddie Reed's youngsters.

The Associated Engineers held their first meeting Wednesday with Jimmie Shaver presiding. President Clark made the opening speech welcoming the new members to the organization and brought out the new phases of the engineering game that are of interest to every man pursuing an engineering

He called attention to the fact that Class of '97: while heretofore engineers have been restricted to a rather narrow field the growing importance of public service Class of '98: work has opened up unlimited possibilities to the man who enters this branch of the engineering profession.

A short business meeting followed President Clark's address. Murray Johnson was elected secretary-treasurer by a special election. Johnson then proceeded to fulfill the duties of his office by reading the constitution of the organization.

Dean Sibley then addressed the engineers. He stated that there was a Crucible Club for miners, an Electrical Club for electrical engineers, besides an engineers club embracing all departments. He recommended the organization of a mechanical club and a civil engineering club.

The question of Engineer's Day was brought up by President Shaver. Prof. Jones outlined the purposes of Engineer's Day bringing out the fact that it advertised the school and united the plans for this day would be started shortly in an attempt to make it more successful than the preceeding one.

The last speech was made by Col. Scrugham who emphasized the opportunities for engineers in this state because of the undeveloped resources.

THE OUTGROWN HAYRIDE

Again the annual hayride culminated in its usual farcial manner. The freshmen claim they outwitted their enemies while the sophomores are hurling barrages of abuse into the ranks of the firstyear men.

The aftermath of every hayride in past years has been a battle of words in which much more spirit was shown than in the actual ride itself. The mudslinging that follows this event has become familiar to the older men and women on the campus, and is tolerated but not approved. It reminds one of the family squabbles over the back fence and has about the same amount of elevating influence attached to it.

Recent years and this one in particular, have shown that the hayride has outgrown its usefulness. It no longer has a place in the traditions for the original motive that prompted the hayride has long been forgotten and it is now merely an opportunity for the lower classes to bombard each other as well as the townspeople with eggs that have long outgrown their usefulness.

In days long since departed the ride celebrated the official ending of hostilities. To witness this the upperclassmen were invited and furnished transportation by the lower classes. In the early part of the evening the two classes tangled for the last time. After an hour or so the upperclassmen would stop the fight, every one would shake hands and the dance began. From this time on peace and quiet reigned in the ranks of the two classes.

Each freshman class, with the exception of '26 which held its dance on a sidehill east of Sparks, has emerged from the struggle with nothing to show but bills amounting to several hundred dollars besides winning the everlasting emnity of the people from whom they rented their hall.

Many of the townspeople do not differentiate between lowerclassmen and college men and women. The sins that these youngsters commit are as a result credited to the entire student body, even unto the juniors and seniors. Each college man is pictured as a modern Brom Bones who spends the nights dashing madly thru the Truckee Meadows laden with eggs and cabbages which he generously bestows on passersby and the honest folk as they repair homeward.

Imagine, if you can, the down-town man long since done with college pranks. His shoulders droop with the worries of the world and to sooth harassed nerves he drives his new car over the peaceful roads of the Meadow. Forgotten for the time are his cares and as he drives he grows peaceful.

But this is not long to last. There is a wild cry. A horde of men run toward the car. An egg smashes on his new hat, another trickles down his vest. A dozen more break on the windshield while a tomato careens into the back seat and explodes with a soft thud, Yells of 'kill him; take his shoes off and turn him loose, twenty-five, twenty-five greet the stopping of the car. Aghast he listens to the fiendish cries and before he has recovered from his surprise a young man peers into the car, grins. says "Oh, pardon us we thought you were a frosh" and with that he disappears into the darkness with the motly crew.

After surveying the damages of the attack the citizen is again under way. No longer is his mind in a state of tranquility. Martial thoughts march in companies thru his mind. As he drives on the wind blows the aromatic perfume of the sophomores' missiles far behind. The bespattered windshield obscures the road ahead so he leans out to set his course. As he does this there comes to his ears another medly of yells—another softshelled projectile makes a direct hit on the other side of his hat.

He cries out in wrath but a green apple hurled by a malicious hand turns it into a cry of pain. As before a swarm of men appear out the darkness and surround the car. Again he hears: "He's a pardon us we thought you were a soph." Mysteriously as they had appeared, this second mob melts into the night leaving the citizen to continue his

These musings we will leave you to imagine. It is just such incidents as this that arouses and keeps alive the anti-college spirit among so many people. We at the University of Nevada cannot afford to have this feeling exist. When we depend on their help to make our athletics and college activities a success we must have their friendship, not their enmity.

This is another reason why the havride should be erased from the list of traditions. But to condemn without offering something to take its place would not accomplish any good.

Why not make the hayride a "peace dance" given by both lower classes to celebrate the ending of hostilities. The dance could be still held out of town and the ride out and back could still be a feature of the night. Instead of wrecking dance halls and starting the unending discussion of who won the hayride it would be the means of cementing the interests of the lower classes and at the same time it would give the upperclassmen the first real opportunity of becoming acquainted with the incoming class.

-U. of N.-WHITEWASH THE N

One of the steps marking the advance of freshmen into the life of the university is that of whitewashing the N on the base of Peavine. The keeping of Nevada's giant emblem white and unsullied is the sacred duty of the incoming class.

It has become the custom to give the letter its painting before the first football game of the season. This game will be played on Saturday and still the N wears a tarnished coat of neglect. The Class of '26 should not forget its obligation to the Letter on the Hill.

-U. of N.-OUR WOMEN!

Idly turning over back numbers of the Sagebrush, we chanced upon an issue of ten years ago, the front page of which bore the words "Underclass Women' in screamer headlines. Our indolent eyes wandered down the page, and we noticed that eight rules ha dbeen set forth, followed by the signatures of the Upperclass Women's Committee by way of emphasis. Then the caption: "These regulations must be obeyed" completely destroyed our casual air. Ironclad rule followed ironclad rule, in no uncertain terms.

"No red tams or red headgear of any description may be worn by any underclass girls on the campus or bleachers at any time; no underclass girl may at any time wear anything corduroy or imitation corduroy; absolutely no high school or other preparatory insignia may be worn; positively no queening will be allowed on the campus or bleachers; only upperclass women will be permitted to walk, run, or SIT upon the grass or under the trees; all underclass girls are positively required to be on the bleachers by 4:30 every Thursday at football practice—such are some of the rules set forth in that remarkable document. We blinked our eyes, awed beyond words. To think that women capable of making, obeying and enforcing such rules had ever attended this University! Amazing how women can change in ten years!

Today women pay no heed to one of their number cutting campus than they would to seeing a girl walk by with bobbed hair. This law is the last of the old regulations applicable to women as well as men which has survived. The flagrant disobedience of it is so common that it is not even a joke any more. The practice can be stopped, but it must be left to the women to stop it. Men are powerless to do anything, except stand back and gnash their teeth at the violators.

Rules tenfold more stringent were enforced ten years ago, therefore this one certainly can be now. "A severe and embarrassing penalty will be imposed upon any violator of one or more of these rules" can be signed above the names of the Upperclass Women's Committee once more, and the only remaining women's rule enforced.

Mackay Field, that so long has been associated with Nevada's football fame, will again be the scene of the Varsity's fight for football supremacy.

DO UNTO OTHERS

On these occasions there will be in evidence the spirit that is making the U of N the Centre College of the West. While the spirit of the players will insure victory it will be the support of the townspeople who will make the 1922 football season a financial success. The Nevada Varsity became famous not only thru the ability of the present and past coaches but by the neverfailing backing of the townspeople. Not only do they make our athletics possible but they make possible the college publications by advertising in them. We can repay them, in part, by turning out fighting teams and giving the town organizations and business men our support.

-U. of N.-THE RIGHT SPIRIT

While the football men are dominating Mackay Field there is yet another band of athletes at work. In numbers they are not strong but for spirit they can not be equalled.

Every afternoon, without praise or encouragement, a few track men appear, don their suits and grind around the cinder oval. LINCOLN HALL MEN TO STAGE STUNTS IN NEAR FUTURE

Plans are being made for "stunt night" by the Lincoln Hall Association. A committee composed of Lutz, chairman, Matheson and Steele has been appointed to make all necessary arrangements.

As has been the custom, all nonfraternity men residing in Lincoln Hall are extended an invitation to join the Hall Association. A firm order of men whose motto is "Nevada first" has been built up and it is the purpose of the association men to make this year one of scholastic accomplishment. At present the exact date for "stunt is at present working on the Nevada night" still hangs fire.

Little Chance For Trojans

That the University of Southern California has no chance against Andy Smith's hosts is the opinion of one of the foremost critics on the Pacific coast. The prophecy is based on the fact that the Trojans have lost their only man who could kick, that they have no reserve strength and the scarcity of ends is apparent having lost all of last years men and only have four green players to develop for this important position.

While the critic is undoubtedly correct in what he states some general facts may have been overlooked in regard to the general situation. The Golden Bear may swat Gloomy Henderson's men for a knockout but one game does not mean the entire season.

Up and down the length of footballdom a strange thing has taken place. All of the colleges are confronted by problems that are their own, that require special efforts to overcome. One team is weak in the backfield, another in the line, while another lacks ends. Still another eleven has no punter and the rest may be out of luck when it comes to reserve strength. Studying the problem carefully the fan will come to the conclusion that the break is fifty-fity among the smaller colleges

Those who have been forecasting a light line for the Saints this season have only to take one look at the huskies that Coach Madigan has out for practise and they will quickly change their minds. From end to end the line bulks up as heavy as any on the coast, and in some cases will outweigh a good many of the other college teams.

The only thing that is standing most of the veterans in good stead is their experience for many of the new men are showing lots of class. Night signal practise is now the vogue and the coach is taking advantage of the long days to give his men three good hours of work at each practise.

During the next two weeks the practise will be more strenuous than usual Running the gauntlet is the latest as the Saints take on Nevada October stunt tried out to break the pigskin 7 and accordingly they have little time to lose.

Some good material has turned out for the band practice. The new organization has been making headway in organizing itself for public appearance, and will play at the Agnetian club game this Saturday. Uniforms will be worn on the occasion provided that the men can be fitted out in the short length of time allowed to collect the finery.

Fifteen musicians appeared at the first turnout, all of them artists in their particular line. Professor Preston is beaming as he waves his baton and contemplates a successful year for his organization. The meeting on Tuesday brought forth new material in an additional drummer, baritone-saxaphone and two alto players. At present the band is composed of two trombonists, three cornetists, three clarinetists, four saxaphonists, two alto players and several drummers.

For many years it has been an unquestioned custom that all Block N men be allowed to enter free to all university functions besides being given two complimentary tickets to use as they saw fit.

Now, a certain faction on the Hill is agitating against this custom and it appears that they have adopted as their slogan "athletics at Nevada must be commercialized."

Forgetting that the primary motive of athletics is to increase the spirit of the school, they seem to think that spirit is of secondary importance and is only to be used to support the team.

Reviewing the findings of the Pacific Coast Conference one finds that the of Martha Ryan of Mr. Doten's office bed heavy and theirs the honored privischool and school spirit is placed first staff. and commercialism last. Certainly the small sum of money realized from these people will not swell the treasury to any appreciable extent. The abolishment of this custom will do more than anything else to make our athletes feel that their efforts were not appreciated. It seems that the Student Body could well afford to lose these few dollars by giving Block N men two complimentaries. If we made this an amendment to the A. ALL CLASSES SHOW A GAIN IN NUMBERS

The last day of registration was Wednesday, 27, and up to that time there had been seven hundred and ten cards turned in. The classes line up in the customary way with the freshmen far in lead with 290 members.

Runinng a close second come the sophomores with 163. This is a considerable drop from the number that registered when they were freshmen but, even with 163, they are far in advance of the average second year class.

Juniors have dropped to 97, a much larger figure than previous classes, however. Bringing up the rear end of the registration procession are the seniors with half a hundred.

For the first time in the university history, the upper classes, that is the sophomores, juniors and seniors, equal the number of the incoming freshmen and the Nevada students form about sixty per cent of the total enrollment.

THE WOLF PACK SONG

Thru the lin, 'round the end, When they hit, you may depend That the Wolf Pack keeps rambling along. Foes, look out, not a doubt Of our winning, hear us shout, While the Wolf Pack goes rambling along.

Then it's hi, hi, he,

For our university; Shout out the Wolf cry, loud and strong (eee yah)

For where e'er we go, you will always know That the Wolf Pack is rambling along (eee yah).

Just the same , any game, Adds new lustre to their fame As the Wolf Pack goes rambling along. College ways, later days, Still they're winning greater praise, While the Wolf Pack keeps rambling along. For we'll all be true, To the Silver and the Blue;

Hark to the Wolf cry, loud and strong (ee yah) For where e'er we go, you will always know That the Wolf Pack is rambling along (eee yah).

WOLF PACK SONG TO BE NEVADA VICTORY PAEN

Some time has elapsed since the students of the University of Nevada have been sufficiently aroused to voice their sentiments on paper in the form of a new college song. Yells have their place in the winning or losing of a game, but a gripping song has the rhythmic power to inspire a player to magnify victory or to lessen defeat.

As a stimulus to this end, there has been produced a song which has all the appearances of being a success. John H. Morse, instructor in business administration, is the author. He has named his prodigy "The Wolf Pack", a title which not only typifies the fighting spirit of those who are "out of the game," but also signifies a unity of strength and of purpose to those who are within.

of the Field Artillery Caisson song, a march composed during the late war by the world famous Sousa. This fact alone should serve to invigorate the energies of the college songsters. Coupled to words which are applicable to our own game, and to our own fight, it forms a formidable combination.

The Wolf Pack will be introduced to the A. S. N. U. in the general assembly at 11:20 on Friday morning. If possible, it will be sung during the clash of the Varsity Team and the Agnetian Club Saturday. We have the words and the music; if we but embody in it the "human touch" of hundreds of voices, it will be invincible.

JUNIORS START WORK ON SEMESTER'S PROM

The first meeting of the junior class was called to order by President Chris Sheerin last Friday at 11:20 in room 201 Morrill Hall.

Plans for the Junior Prom were discussed and the date was set for November 25. Harold Hughes, yell leader, spoke to the class concerning the advisability of having junior assistant yell leaders. He pointed out the fact that last year's assistants were underclassmen and that it would be appropriate to have junior assistants this year. He stated that try-outs would be held soon to select a man. No further business was brought up, so the meeting adjourned.

BRAVE FIGHT WAGED BY DIZZY ENGINEERS WITH BURNING GAS

Fire, especially when surrounding a can of gasoline, is a thing which had better be shunned, at least that was the opinion held by the seniors in the mechanical laboratory last Saturday morning.

While performing an experiment on the balcony of the Electrical building Shaver was slightly burned on the fingers causing him to drop a gasoline blow torch and pressure tank which he was directing on a crucible. The hose connection to the tank broke on hitting the floor, the gasoline flowed out under the pressure and was ignited by the burner flame. With the floor covered by burning gasoline flaming three feet in the air, conditions looked promising for a work-out of the local fire department.

Shaver and Moffit, observing the damage they had done, took to their heels, and it is reported on good authority that each passed the other four times before reaching the door. Hill, caught between the fire and the end of the building, distinguished himself by stepping inside the radio room and locking the door which closed the only

TRYOUTS ARE PATHETIC FIGURES

A very unsuccessful meeting was held last Tuesday in Morrill Hall in an attempt to find material suitable for increasing the staff of yell-leaders.

It was hoped that a large number of able and experienced underclassmen would turn out and contest for the positions. This was not the case. Miller, Malmquist, Cafferata and Simpson were the only men to turn out, and little was accomplished at the meeting. Harold Hughes, the present leader, endeavored to get a little action from the reticent

The men gave an exhibit of their ability in leading the old yells, including the standby, the N-E-V spell, the slow N-e-v, and the varsity yell.

All of the men showed fair form, and will, with practice and instruction, develop into good yell-leaders. The great regret is the lack of spirit shown by the students who have had experience and training, and who did not turn out.
