WORLD FACING TERRIBLE CRISIS ACCORDING TO J. STITT WILSON

Speaker Startles Audience
With Declarations of World Conditions

FLAYS STUDENTS FOR LACK OF KNOWLEDGE

"Great Issues Are Breaking the World's Heart and Must Be Faced"

"Tonight Europe is in a terrible situation. Nothing like it has ever occurred, even in the Dark Ages when it was overrun by hordes of barbarians. This is the same Europe which produced the Reformation and the Renaissance, and which has been 1700 years in evolving the civilization for which it is noted today. Tonight life there hangs in the balance." Such was the forceful statement which J. Stitt Wilson drove home to the students in the first of his series of three lectures, begun last Thursday night.

In his opening statement he voiced what he termed the "consensus of opinion of all great leaders and thinkers" when he said that the world is passing through a critical and crucial stage.

"Educators, statesmen, journalists, and in fact hundreds of noted people facing the question from hundreds of different angles have tried to analyze it understandingly so that they could prescribe something for the world's healing, and all have failed. They could not meet squarely the problems that are breaking the heart of the world tonight."

"The world is becoming terribly complex."

Thomas Edison, the "Wizard of Orange," who rarely consents to an interview, recently made the remarkable statement: "The world is becoming terribly complex, and if this complexity continues for another half century, no man can predict what will happen to mankind."

"Civilization is tumbling down."—Wells.

RONNOW REPORTED IN IMPROVED CONDITION

Lynne Ronnow, University of Nevada senior, who was operated on two weeks ago for an acute mastoid, is reported to be slightly improved. Although the wound is still in a septic condition, the attending physicians feel that he is steadily gaining.

His condition is still serious, and no definite statement can be made on it for several days yet, but his relatives are confident of his recovery.

TEACHERS ENROLLED IN DOZEN COURSES

Twenty-three teachers of Reno and Sparks, according to figures just given out by Miss Sissa, have to date registered in the special University courses for teachers offered by the Educational Department. This is the third year these courses have been offered. The enrollment this semester is an increase over last semester's total of seventeen.

The courses are under the supervision of Dean Hall and Mr. B. D. Billingshurst and the hours have been so arranged that teachers in service will find it convenient to attend.

The courses in this special offer to teachers are as follows:

Education 78: Teaching Problems in Modern Elementary Chemistry. Assistant Professor Hicks.

School Supervision: Dean Hall and Miss Detraz.

Elementary Geology: Professor Jones. The Renaissance and Modern Art: Professor Church.

The Twentieth Century: The Rivalry of the Nations. Assistant Professor Feemster.

Horticulture: Associate Professor Lehenbauer.

Music Methods: Mr. Rowe. Chorus Singing: Mr. Rowe.

Appreciation of Music: Mr. Rowe. Psychology of Adolescence: Professor Young.

Comparative Psychology: Professor Young.

Evolution: Professor Frandsen.

Kentucky Wesleyan University and the University of Cincinnati will compete in the first night football game in this country on September 29, 1923. This is an innovation in gridiron competition and will be watched very closely by the nation's experts. Cincinnati is reputed to have the best electric lighting apparatus for night practice in the country.

Raging Blizzard Sweeps Berkeley

Here's more evidence to substantiate the oft-repeated phrase that truth is stranger than fiction and, we add, funnier.

Listen to this, from a recent issue of the Daily Californian:

"Once again mother nature has shown her feminine contrariness by treating Berkeley to a real old-fashioned snow storm. . . . On the hills and along the Skyline boulevard a white blanket remained on the ground all afternoon. In some spots the snow was an INCH AND A HALF DEEP." (The capitals are ours.)
Ye gods! What would those people say if it really SNOWED?

STUDENTS TO PUBLISH NEVADA STATE JOURNAL

Class in Journalism Will Make Its Debut Late
This Semester

The journalism class is to put out an edition of the Nevada State Journal early in April.

Homer Mooney, editor of The Journal, has already given his enthusiastic consent to the plan and has promised that he and his repertorial staff will "move out" for a day whenever the class is prepared to publish its edition of the paper.

Some day in April, then, a swarm of students will march upon the Journal offices and take possession of the plant. From early afternoon until late at night the building will echo with the noise of a dozen typewriters and the scuffle of two dozen feet. Embryo Horace Greeley's will shout commands at future Irvin Cobb's and the collegiate blue pencil will mercilessly delete ungrammatical phrases from Associated Press stories.

What if the "city editor" does flirt with the "copy girl"? Or the "telegaph editor" vainly searches for a "type stretcher"? There will be news.

SHOULD THE UNIVERSITY ADOPT SOME TYPE OF HONOR SYSTEM?

WHISKERINO HEAD TELLS OF PLANS

"All the arrangements are complete for the Whiskerino and from indications it will be a successful affair," said Walter Cox, chairman of the committee in charge of the dance.

"Immediately after the basketball game the hall will be put in readiness for the dance," Cox continued, "and old time bars, roulette wheels, chuck-a-luck games and other devices will vie with each other to provide the excitement, as well as the jitney dances that will start early and continue until a late hour.

"Your money will be inflated," he went on, "and one dollar will be transformed into five dollars of Whiskerino coin. If our patrons have any of this script left after the dance they can cash it in for good hard cash of the realm.

"Our junior women have promised to come dressed in the costumes of long ago," Cox said with a smile, "and we expect to see them in the garments of bar maids, dance hall girls and other dresses that will astonish the crowd. We will not tolerate men with white collars. All shirts must be worn open at the neck and the rougher the men come the better they will be appreciated.

"Atmosphere is what we want," he declared, "Atmosphere and plenty of it. We are going to provide some, but the students must do their share to make the evening one great big success."

The United States Naval Academy will not enter a crew in the 1923 Poughkeepsie Regatta, it has been announced. The Annapolis boats won the last two regattas, but are prevented from entering this year by the lateness of the races. Annapolis has also lost the majority of men from the 1922 boat.

Question Is One of Vital Importance to Faculty and Student Body

NEVADA MUST FACE
TRUE CONDITIONS

"A House Divided Against Itself Cannot Stand"—
Think It Over!

By James W. Byrkit

The question of putting an honor system of some sort on a working basis at the University of Nevada has been discussed from time to time during the past several years.

At present, the only progress toward establishing such a system has been conducted on the part of a few instructors within their own departments. These attempts have been more or less experimental in their nature, and the extent of their success has been purely a matter of cooperation between the students and the instructors in the departments affected.

Class Room Honor

There has been no definite system laid down and no formal rules made. Each instructor has felt at liberty, insofar as the honesty of the student was concerned, to conduct his department as he saw fit, with the tacit understanding that the student should instinctively appreciate and respect the confidence which was imposed upon him. In a very few instances, it is said, these efforts at placing the student upon his honor in the class room have been a source of disappointment to the instructor, but on the whole they have been very satisfactory.

Nevada Should Act

The time is not far off, however, when the student body must settle definitely the question as to whether or not an honor system is to be adopted that will govern the conduct of all students in all classes. So much has been said in favor of adopting such a system, and so many other colleges throughout the country have taken the lead in the matter, that many people deeply interested in the welfare of the University of Nevada feel that the school is somewhat behind the times.

In fact the sentiment in favor of adopting some kind of an honor system has developed to such a point that it seems that further side stepping the issue is undesirable. At a meeting of the Associated Engineers recently it was pointed out that as yet the student body is not ready for an honor system.

The Big Question

It would seem, however, that the main question is: Does the University of Nevada WANT an honor system?

It is plainly evident that for any honor system to accomplish its purpose, it must be believed in by every student with his whole heart. He must be willing to abide by its terms unhesitatingly and without reservation. He must recognize in it certain ideals and live up to them religiously. Under the provisions of most codes of honor adopted in colleges, every student must make it his business to see that his neighbor adheres to the terms of the system, and be responsible for bringing any violator to trial.

The honor system as carried out in other schools has not met in all cases, with unqualified success. There are a number of reasons to which a partial failure of any system might be attributed. Naturally there is, in any

JONES TO REPRESENT NEVADA AT NEW YORK

Prof. J. C. Jones of the Geology department, will leave on the fifteenth for New York City, where he will attend the 127th annual meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. He will represent the Nevada section in the conference. Professor Jones intends visiting Chicago and Washington on business affairs before returning to the University to resume his lectures on the morning of February 27.

Willie Cocoa Makes Annual Bow To Long-Suffering Student Body

By WILLIE COCOA

It was just 8:45 when Santa Clara trotted out on the floor, followed a moment later by the Silver and Blue of Nevada. Quite a clash in colors indeed. The brilliant Red and White of the visitors and the Silver and Blue.

The snakes came in for their usual amount of applause as they dumbly wriggled across the floor to their perch. Did you ever notice the agonizing expression that comes across their blushing, but noble, brow as they glide along on the fair lady's arm? A study, indeed!

And those cords that Hughes carries around with him! Judge your man by the color of his cords. Hughes is some boy, then. It is rather queer the way the women fall for this noise creating machine. "There's Hughes now." "That's Hughes." "There goes Harold Hughes." He must be one of these pussy-footing gents.

The referee was none other than Elfrink, of the soulful eyes. He was coach of the California Aggies last year and also officiated in a game or two here. If appearances count for much he will get far, for with those eyes and his taste for dress he's there a million.

"Mud" Clay seemed to be having difficulty with his long shots. One of these nights Fate is going to hang the old horseshoe around Clay's neck and he will be rewarded for his efforts. You used to do it, Mud, and you'll do it again.

In the crowd there was one man, of days just past, who was alone and gloomy. A man who is not used to tagging, but has always enjoyed the presence of the softer voice. This was none other than Eddie Reed himself: Old Reliable Eddie.

Elfrink called the clashing colors together at 8:50. A few moments later Fredericks rings two fouls, followed by a long shot and the Wolves had the jump!

This fellow Elfrink persisted in calling, "Reno here," whenever the ball was out, much to the disgust of the rooters. Nevada here, not Reno.

The half found the Wolves trailing, 12-8. Not a bit bad, could be 12-0.

The old cronies, Phil Frank and Earl Wooster, were very much in evidence and they were alone, too. If memory serves me right they were humdingers with the women before going out to show the world a trick or two. It may be that they have learned the folly of courting, since leaving the realm of eight o'clocks and midnight oil.

Four walls of roaring applause was shattered by the inevitable revolver shot and Nevada's Wolf Pack bowed in defeat. But even though they lost the game, the moral victory was theirs for the score was only 18-15 and a big part of the Wolf Pack was in the hospital in the person of the "Arrow Colar Kid"—Spud Harrison. Not a bit bad.

SHOULD NEVADA INSTALL SYSTEM OF HONOR CODE?

community, a certain percentage of people whose absolute honesty under all circumstances and varying degrees of temptation might be questioned. This is as true of the personnel of our student body as elsewhere.

Clever Cheaters

It is commonly known that in every school there are a certain number of people who are there for the sole purpose of obtaining a degree, and the methods employed do not necessarily involve the memorizing of a bunch of tedious formulae or the accumulation of any other valuable information that would enable them to pass an examination on their own merit. These people are clever, as a rule, and should they choose to use their ingenuity in a legitimate manner, they would not need to be dishonest. Whether or not they would abide by an honor system, were they pledged to do so, is questionable.

"Get By'ers"

In addition to the few who are dishonest, either by nature or from choice, there is a large and rapidly growing class who simply want to "get by" with a minimum amount of work. The girl who wants to make a sufficiently high mark to be initiated into her sorority or the boy who doesn't want to be dropped from the football team. These people are not necessarily dishonest—they want to be good—but outside activities take much of their time and when examination time comes they are worried. Failure to pass means to them so much—as they see things—and just a little peep into a note book wouldn't hurt anything. Whether or not they would stand by the terms of an honor system is also questionable.

Majority Are Honest

The great majority of students, however, would not be seriously affected by the adoption of an honor system. Those that work hard do not need such a thing, and most of the others do not need a strict set of rules to differentiate between right and wrong—they know instinctively. The question arises, then, just who is going to be benefited by an honor system?

The chief value of an honor code is just the thing the name implies. It places the student upon his honor. It is designed to develop within the student, while he is in college, a sense of honesty and duty toward his fellow man that will become a part of him and guide his conduct in his relations with people after college days are over. It must necessarily be designed for the regulation of those that are naturally weak and for the protection of the rights of those that are strong.

"Intellectual Goldbricks"

It is believed by many, whose idealistic attitude is almost sublime, that an honor system would even inspire many of the so-called "intellectual goldbricks" to work, and thereby ac-

Frosh Spel Wurds in There Own Way

"The thunder was peeled from the skies as he prepared two leaves," orates an unsophisticated Frosh in a weakly theme... It is not an account of the wrath of God falling upon Adam and Eve, for the childish author is but thinking of a Sov-downer saving his knuckles, as one discovers by continuing the reading:

"There on the sagebrush covered planes, with the rivers frozed over and only the bill aff'or of the sagehen to be scene in parts, he spied a dirtish breakman.'... and not a caveman, either.

"Finely he clutched the tale of the monkey dek and with a wrench pried his body onto the fast moving freight."

(Editor's note): The simplified spelling exhibited in the foregoing has been taken directly from the themes of freshmen enrolled in English 2.

Such is the value of a college education—where, or, where, are we at?

accumulate something at college besides a degree. On the other hand is the pessimist, who believes that more rules to obey simply means more violations on the part of the habitual offenders, which must be put up with by the people who are naturally honest.

Whatever be the merits of an honor system or whatever be its faults is, in all likelihood, soon to be decided by the student body of the University of Nevada. It is a serious matter.

Honor Requirements

Whatever the nature of the particular system adopted by this school may be, it will contain certain fundamental principles. It will require students to be perfectly honest in the preparation of their work and in the class room; and in all probability, it will demand that an offender be apprehended by his neighbor when an offense is committed. Certainly it will demand that all of its provisions be strictly adhered to by all concerned.

Does the University of Nevada want an honor system? It might be well to consider this question deeply before the matter is voted on.

a bad game at all. "Dutch" Hood scintillated across the floor more than once and was easily the star of the 21-18 affair, with the Goofs on the long end, for once.

Eight-ten found the Santa Clarans out, immediately followed by the Wolf Pack.

Amid the lusty applause given the Wolves, who should saunter across the floor in a nonchalant manner, but that most famous of campus women haters—Scott Hill. He had fallen!

The Varsity opened the game with a score and things looked good for a victory, but one can never tell by a beginning.

And this Frosh Murphy! He had the audacity to creep meekly across the floor with two women. Talk about the crust of a brass monkey! How soon before the ice will be off the pond?

Gilberg and Falbaum must have got their wires crossed, for they began their little tete-a-tete in the manner that should have finished it. The first round was of the real caliber, the type that you pay money to see, but the second found them wiser, but sadder, mitt pushers.

Two victories next week-end. No doubt about it at all, the stars say so.

STUDENTS TO PUBLISH NEVADA STATE JOURNAL

Class in Journalism Will Make Its Debut Late This Semester

News of every variety. Local news, national news, international news. Feature stories, city stories, country stories. News of every kind, shape and variety that a score of college students are able to unearth.

And when the forms are finally locked and the press begins its nightly grind, what a rush there will be for "souvenir copies" of the paper! And the Journals that will be mailed to friends and "fond parents" will exceed all calculations.

But the student newspapermen are taking the plan seriously and promise to show the "old timers" that a college course in journalism has real value. While they intend to get a lot of fun out of publishing The Journal, they also intend to put out a paper that for ideal makeup and live news content will be an exception to the general rule.

Prof. A. L. Higginbotham, the class instructor, is confident that the venture will be a success and says that the members of his class are going to handle all the news that goes into the edition.

"As far as writing ability is concerned, I feel sure we could turn out our edition now," says Prof. Higginbotham, "but as we are going to do every bit of the editorial work, we must have some intensive training in copy reading, head writing and newspaper makeup. It will be a great experience for the class and a real advertisement for the University; President Clark is heartily in favor of the plan."

Idaho Wants Honor System for Classes and Other Affairs

Univ. of Idaho, Feb. 7—(P.I.N.S.)—A plan is being worked out whereby the honor system, or honor code, can be adopted by the student body. This plan, which has met with the hearty sanction of the faculty members, would provide for the honor system covering cheating, not only during examinations, but all undesirable actions on the campus, and a student council to enforce the system by punishment of its infractions.

J. STITT WILSON SAYS WORLD IS IN BAD CONDITION

writer, has said, "I want to say to you that this civilization in which we are living is tumbling down, and tumbling down fast unless heroic efforts are made to save it, and I do not see these efforts being made."

Following these with other quotations of a like nature showing the scrutiny which was being leveled at us by world leaders, he summed it up by saying, "The political agencies must be made the moral agencies of mankind."

Giving what he termed as President Harding's confession, he said that the only time that this impassioned man, with the cool brain, made reference to world affairs in his first address to Congress, was when toward the latter part of the document, he said: "It is no figure of speech to say that we have come to the test of our civilization."

"France," according to Mr. Wilson, "is dowdish and imperialistic. Germany is sullen, but is still breathing despite her poverty. The Balkans and Austria are in a ferment. Russia is still a bear growling from the forests. Van Loon, author of the great 'Story of Mankind,' and who has just returned from an extended trip abroad, has said that there is only one sane country in all Europe."

As Lincoln, Wilson said he would rather "go down with truth than up with error." He wanted to impress upon us the supreme importance of understanding the days in which we live. He quoted effectively from Lincoln's great address in which he said, "We must find out where we are and whither we are tending, then we can find out what to do and how to do it."

Mr. Wilson said our first duty was to find out "where we were and whither we were tending." He felt that the world would not be restored to normalcy for some time to come, for its hurts were too deep and its wounds were too sore. His frank plea was that inasmuch as the world is not tranquil, we make it our business to use our youth, enthusiasm, and ability, for the hour has come when culture will mean humanity's salvation.

"I counsel you tonight without apology, to give your heart in response to moral and spiritual leadership, not for my sake, but for the sake of torn Europe, and this crumbling world."

Friday Morning's Lecture

With an apology for forcing such a startling statement at college students, J. Stitt Wilson opened his second address Friday morning, with the remark: "It is the consensus of opinion of the greatest minds in the world today, that we are facing the most crucial and possibly the most tragic crisis that has ever arisen."

Mr. Wilson felt in his second address that he was really talking to the student body of the University and he was more intimate in his dealing with student problems than at any other time during the series.

After telling of the death of his son in the European War, he summed up the conditions in this manner, "Youth pays the price for the world's mistakes. Those who are fat in body and fat in purse little realize the untold suffering now going on in the world. Ten million young men with no responsibility were sacrificed on the altar of the world's error."

"No good tree can bring forth evil fruits."

The trouble with the world, he felt, was that it was too slow. Very few men (college faculty excepted) ever thought a new thought after they were forty. In support of his statement regarding the youth of our country, he quoted from the head of the Department of Psychology of the University of Pennsylvania, who has said, "The permanency of this perplexed civilization is dependent upon the number of creative intelligence among our youth."

"The college student is under a particular obligation to know the details of the world in which we live. A successful engineer once stated that, in order of importance, the requisites of a good professional man were, (1) character, (2) understanding of the problems of mankind, and (3) technical training."

Mr. Wilson impressed upon the minds of his auditors the necessity of making themselves acquainted with the affairs of the world. He mentioned that in a recent list submitted to students of an Eastern university, two replies which were received, catalogued Lloyd George as the President of Ireland, and Samuel Gompers as an American poet.

"You," pointing to the students, "will pay the bill for poor statesmanship. A man's mind keeps company with the stars. No man can serve well who doesn't know well. I am not bringing you something that does not concern you."

"Know the World's Affairs"

Mr. Wilson presented the four great problems which were breaking the heart of mankind. He grouped these under the four heads of: (1) Inter-racial, (2) International, (3) Property and Poverty, and (4) Moral and Spiritual and Personal.

"The people must become acquainted with the world affairs," Mr. Wilson said, in closing. "No nation has ever solved even its own internal problem completely. It is estimated that we have $23,000,000,000 invested in non-taxable securities. There are fifty million people who own no property. Thirty-seven per cent of the people control ninety per cent of the wealth. This is no question for radical trade unionists, I. W. W.'s, or Bolsheviks, but rather requires the greatest and coolest comprehension and analysis."

Speaks Again Friday Evening

Mr. Wilson addressed the student body again Friday evening, and his audience was as large, if not larger, than during the morning talk.

"What a man soweth, so does he reap," was his major topic. "Twenty years from now every one of you will be reaping just what you put into your life during your college days and no more. Your four years in college can net you a fine harvest with high interest, but it is up to you. These are your greatest days. Learn to think."

"The problems of the world will be solved by thinking. The line of thinking may follow any one of five lines; any of them will contribute something toward a solution. And we must think! It is a case of adjust or perish. Nature doesn't care for whole populations or nations."

"A student should be a skeptic in that he should have his mind always open to a new thought," continued Mr. Wilson. "And it is not enough that he should think; he must also act. Act, even though you act wrong. A frog, if he jumps toward land by mistake, will find out his error and jump back the other way."

Creative Thinking Needed

"The state, school and church is in dire need of original thinkers. Original thinking and creative intelligence is the biggest happiness a human being can have," Mr. Wilson went on to say, "but this must come through inner action. It is an illumination, a transformation, a metamorphosis."

"The most terrible need of the world today is for great individuals, great personalities, great characters, and the rest will follow. The essential characteristic is not beef nor money, but it is a moral and spiritual qualification which makes an understanding of conditions possible."

"Dismiss that which insults your own soul," advised Mr. Wilson, "for any cloudiness will make a smoke screen of irreverence through which it is impossible to see truth. Notwithstanding the great pusillanimity, acquaint yourself with the teachings of Christ. He is to character, what Edison is to the electrical world, or what Raphael is to the field of art. Christ is the Master Character."

"Whenever you do anything which separates you from contact with human beings, you are sewing your own shroud," and with these words Mr. Wilson concluded the last of his three powerful talks.

J. Stitt Wilson came originally from Canada, and was born at Auburn, Ontario. He graduated from the Northwestern University, from which college he holds both A. B. and M. A. degrees. He also studied at the Garret Biblical Institute, becoming an ordained minister. For four years he was pastor of the Erie Street Methodist Church in Chicago, but he resigned the pulpit in 1897 and took to the lecture platform. He traveled for some time through England, Wales, Canada and the United States, lecturing in the interests of Socialism.

In 1910 he ran for the office of governor of California on the Socialist ticket. He was mayor of Berkeley for two terms in 1912 and 1913.

For the last several years he has been connected with the student department of the Y. M. C. A., and he has spent most of his time addressing college students and various young people's organizations.

He is the author of numerous pamphlets and several books, among which are: "The Impending Social Revolution" and "How I Became a Socialist."

REPAIR THE TRACK

The spring athletic season is well under way. Eight of the scheduled basketball games have been played and in a month the season will be over.

In keeping with the policy that athletics for the benefit of everyone in the University, the next activity that will be taken up is track. The largest number of men who ever desired to go out for this sport are now in school, and they represent the best material that has been in the University for years.

What are the conditions that they will meet? The University has but little track equipment. This can easily be met by the purchase of new shoes; the best that the market affords.

The crying need is for the track. It is in a deplorable condition, due to past neglect and lack of foresight. Training is a long grind, a hard one, and this is the time to prepare.

It would seem that the coaching staff and the various organizations that have the interest of the school at heart would see to it that this sport is given a fair chance this year.

After a short preparation, of the track by mechanical means, the cooperation of the entire University should be secured and the oval put into decent condition.

This should be done before Mackay Day. Action is needed, not later, but now.

READ THEM

There are two stories, beginning on the first page of this issue, that you must not fail to read.

Faculty and students alike will find much material for thought in James Byrkit's discussion of the honor system and his comments on the present conditions here at Nevada.

The resume of J. Stitt Wilson's series of lectures emphasizes the high points of his talks and, we believe, is entitled to every inch of space we have given it. Mr. Wilson's book-list is also printed in this issue; don't overlook it.

And about the honor system—we believe that the time for definite action on this matter is here. Why blind ourselves to true facts? Never has "cribbing" been so open, so widespread. It cannot and must not go on. There is but one path open; some form of the honor system points to it.

Are we going to graduate cheats, or gentlemen? The question is before the house and the Sagebrush will be glad to print your opinion on the matter.
U. of N.

ANOTHER DEFEAT—WHY?

The Nevada Rifle Team has lost another intercollegiate match; this time with Northwestern University.

Eighteen men compose the Rifle Team. There are 169 men enrolled in the R. O. T. C. By a simple arithmetical process, we are able to reach the conclusion that there are 151 men in the University who lack school spirit—who care not whether Nevada wins or loses. What's the trouble?

The gallery in the old barracks was repaired and put in good condition with but one main purpose in view—so that high scores might be made.

For the loyal eighteen, we have nothing but praise and admiration. They possess that "something" known as "true Nevada spirit."

For the apparently indifferent majority of 151, we have no comment to make—at present. It's a call to the colors, "151," a call to the Silver and the Blue. Will you heed it? The school is watching. Act!
U. of N.

THE CADUCEUS

This issue of the Sagebrush contains the first account of a new women's athletic club appearing on the Hill. Under the name of the Caduceus, ten women have pledged support to a society for fostering outdoor sports, good fellowship, and a finer spirit of womanhood.

Every year sees the formation of several new clubs on the Nevada campus. Some have good intentions, but fade into obscurity in a year or so. Others have on real purpose other than a craze among the members for clubs, and then more clubs. This type usually fails to weather even the first storm.

But the Caduceus evidence a genuine worth on the campus. It is strange that, until now, no group of students has been organized for the one purpose of systematically utilizing the mountains around Reno for recreation purposes. The new club will take the first step toward doing this. With a program for a better standard of health as well as finer spirit, the success of the group is assured.

We have only one criticism to make. Although the program is far-reaching, the membership is not. Limited to a maximum role of sixteen, the number of women benefiting directly will be a very small proportion of those in school. If some way could be found for extending the privileges which you offer, to more women, we feel that your accomplishments would be multiplied ten-fold.

Congratulations, Caduceus, and good luck for the future.

QUALIFICATIONS OF A COLLEGE EDITOR

A college editor should be a superman, endowed with the patience of Job, the editorial ability of Horace Greeley, the managing and directly ability of Charles Schwab, the diplomacy of Woodrow Wilson and the judicial qualities of former Chief Justice Marshall; he needs the keen humor of Lincoln, and the agnostic tendencies of Ingersoll; he should have the literary ability of Shakespeare, and the lack of conscience to perpetrate the atrocities of Amy Lowell. In addition to these few qualifications he needs the physique of Jack Dempsey, the nerve of a hold-up man and Edison's ability to go without sleep. His brain should be so constituted that he could absorb the essentials of a twenty-credit course by means of the barest perusal of the subjects therein contained and to pass the final exams with honors so that the faculty will respect him and allow him to remain in school. He should be absolutely foreign to the needs of rest, sleep, eating, recreation, the love of society, the inclination for glory in athletics, school activities and in love. Having these few requirements he should be able to qualify as a fairly competent editor, and there is a possibility that he would not be hauled on the faculty carpet more than once a week and kicked by the student body in general more than once a day.—Idaho Argonaut.

ABOUT THE HONOR SYSTEM

Cheating during examinations is an evil that must be combated every year. Various methods to correct it have been proposed several times, yet nothing other than talk has ever come of it.

One method proposed is the establishing of the honor system; many believe that would practically eliminate the cheating habits of certain students. Others think that the professors should keep a close watch of their students, and act as detectives. However, the method that seems to be followed now is to leave the question squarely up to the instructors themselves. Perhaps the latter method is the better, though the argument for the establishment of the honor system certainly is sound, and, the "Trojan" believes, should be given a fair trial at this university.

Scholarship at U. S. C. certainly ranks with any other institution in the United States. The university spirit developed at the Trojan institution also ranks with the best in the country, and it will not brook the violation of student honor in the taking of examinations. When the student cheats he is cheating himself, lowering his self-respect, and establishing distrust of himself in the eyes of others. In no way does he hurt the professor, and he only injures the university by his presence in the institution. Far better off would the university be if every cheater could be expelled without further trial from the ranks of students at U. S. C.

Let's watch the cribbing during the coming examinations. Those who are dishonorable enough to cheat are unworthy of being admitted again into the university. But the "Trojan" believes that the students of U. S. C. are as honest as they are elsewhere, and that by far the biggest majority of them are true blue, both to themselves and to the university. These are the salt of the earth, and the backbone of the university.—U. S. C. Trojan.

NO EDITORIALS NEEDED

It is customary to use a great deal of editorial space about this time of year to urge students to attend basketball games, and to conduct themselves in a sportsmanlike manner when they get there. No opportunity for such an editorial has yet presented itself this year. The army has been packed for most of the games and the utmost courtesy has been shown visiting players. It is a source of pride.—Oregon Daily Emerald.

HAZING AND TRADITIONS

A radical change in the method of imparting knowledge of University traditions to freshmen in more than desirable—it is imperative for the good of the University. Hazing, if it accomplishes its stated purpose, is both necessary and beneficial. As it exists on the campus at present, it is worse than useless. If our upperclassmen and sophomores would themselves take more than an apathetic stand toward our traditions; if they really cared enough to take means to see that freshmen were taught to learn and love these traditions; or if the observance of these traditions were enforced upon all classes equally, the folly of present methods of hazing would be only too obvious, and California Spirit would be much dearer in the hearts of all freshmen than it is now.—Daily Californian.

PICKIN'S

WHISKERINO SAL SPEAKS

I like men who know their stuff
When it comes to treating the ladies rough;
None of this snaky stuff for mine,
Give me the twenty-four, cave man line.

I do not like the honest youth,
Who always tells the girls the truth;
A man is tame who can be believed,
I'd rather be thrilled, tho it means deceived.

I like nice manners—but not too nice—
And I don't like men as cold as ice
I hate a man who requests a kiss—
I want a '24 man I CAN'T resist.

I want a wan who knows his stuff,
A man who's gentle—but can be rough;
Who, tho he sometimes isn't true,
Will always keep you from feeling blue.

None of the courtly, kissing hands,
As was done in other days and lands—
I'm a twenty-four girl in a modern day
And I want love made in the '24 way.

Try this before going to another basketball game. It will hide your blushes.

NOT GOLD DIGGERS

The latest dance is the Penny Hunt. So called, presumably, on account of stooping and dumb-gazing postures of the dancers.

WAIL OF A WOMAN

Oh, dear! Oh, dear! they say that Valentines day—
Will soon be here!
But what co-ed wants a valentine
Bewinkered from ear to ear?

Our Love Wails Department editor gives the following spicy advice on the above wail: "Never mind, dearie. The Whiskerino will be over by the fourteenth."

FROSH REPARTEE

Nineteen: "I want a girl for the Whiskerino, and I want her bad"
Twenty-six: "What kind of a girl did you say you wanted?"

THESE HEAVY BEARDS

AND SOME SNAKES
Some men have whiskers—others are frosh.

YEAH, WHY NOT?

Excited Stud in Chem: "Hey! the gas is leaking from this tank."
Prof. Hicks: "Why come to me about it, child? Go get some putty and plug it up—use the berry; use the berry."

ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

Money: "Oh, what lovely flowers. And isn't there a little dew on them?"
Yarborough: "Er, yes. But never mind, I can pay that later."

MIGHT BE AT THAT

The useless hind-leg bone of a whale was one of the specimens shown to Prof. Jones geology classes. Before explanations were forthcoming, the guess was that it was a fresh bone for the Gow House.

NASTY REMARK, WHAT?

Some one was overheard to say that the frosh girls took after the varsity when it came to basketball. That's what we call a hard slam at the girls.

AIN'T WE THO?

Now that the Whiskerino is on, shaved faces are in vogue. When there is no whiskerino, unshaved faces are the rage. Psychology explains this as a natural law of the humans. Ain't we mortals fools?

Fee: "Did you have a good time at the Tri Delt tea?"
Lange: "Hell, no! All the corners were taken when I got there."

BEEN SKIING YET?

WE ASK A QUESTION

The burning, burning, burning question of the Sagebrush office is this: Whether or not the staff will get bids to various hops, at homes, teas, card parties, cookie fights and so on? Or shall the Staff refuse to give publicity society news, mention, or names in the Brush? Which shall it be? We are here to say that we are not oafs, boors or other such things, and figure we can conduct ourselves just as properly at a tea fight as any snake on the campus. In justice why not give us a trial? We aim to please—money back if not satisfied.

HOW COME?

Why is it that any time one mentions Whiskerino, the girls all shudder?

"They" say the Prune Pickers had the Wolf Pack on its back during the basketball game. That's nothing. A mouse can give a large woman fits.

Now is the time for every man to rid the world of this bird who starts in saying, "Day by day, in every way, the Sophs get deadier and deadier."

Artemisia Jiggs sez: Mackay Day comes early this year, and we might get the book out on that day. But not before you've turned in that razz picture, can we go to press.

The six weeks have passed. Have you had your little cinch yet?

The keen stuff about skating is the ice.

We wonder what all the noise was about in Lincoln Hall early Friday morning. Some say they were getting the frosh up to dig out the ducks frozen in Manzanita pond. Perhaps.

Casting about for a little gossip, we asked a Tri Delt what the news was. "Well," she replied naively, "if you want to find out something, just ask Barbara Steninger what happened to the green olive." Nothing funny that, but there might be if you ask her.

TRUTH HURTS

What is this place?
It is the li-brary.
What is it for?
For se-rene and peace-ful stud-y.
Are those girls stud-y-ing?
No.
Is any-one stud-y-ing?
There is a girl in the cor-ner who is try-ing to stud-y.
Why do not these girls stud-y?
Be-cause they pre-fer to chat.
What are they yell-ing a-bout?
They are not yell-ing; they are laugh-ing at a joke the tall one has just told.
What are those oth-er girls do-ing?
They are pay-ing a vis-it they owe each oth-er.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Last week Mrs. Clara Taney Will, district delegate from Seattle, Washington, was the guest of Gamma Phi Beta sorority while on her official visit to the sorority chapters in the Western section.

While here, Mrs. Will was the complimented guest at several social gatherings. Monday evening Mrs. A. E. Turner entertained at a dinner party. Tuesday afternoon the members of other sororities and their patronesses were invited to meet Mrs. Will at a tea given at the home of Mrs. James Dunne. Wednesday evening the Gamma Phis were hostesses at a dinner at Whittaker's Lanai, after which Mrs. Will departed for a visit to Eta chapter at California.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

The members of Delta Delta Delta have recently been hostesses to several campus and sorority functions, which were thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed by all who were present.

Card parties, attended by many well-known residents of the City of Reno, were held last Friday afternoon and evening. These constituted the second entertainment of this nature of the series that has been planned for the semester. Refreshments were served the game.

On Saturday afternoon, the Tri-Delta doors were flung wide open to receive students and members of the faculty who had been extended an invitation to the housewarming. Everyone was charmed with the effect of the subdued lights in every room, by the friendly warmth of the massive fireplace, and by the feeling of "hominess" that pervaded the atmosphere.

The Tri-Delta Dance Hall was, at this time, officially christened. Strains of music from the basement enticed many guests down the flight of stairs to enjoy the spell of rose-tinted shadows and hypnotic melodies. Light refreshments were served throughout the afternoon. Mrs. J. H. Clemons and Mrs. H. E. Reid poured.

In the evening, the Tri-Delta house was given a party in honor of its first birthday. Many valuable gifts were presented to it, not only from friends who reside in Reno, but from those in different cities of the country.

DEAN HALL

Quilting parties were dull affairs compared with the snappy coterie of rug-makers that gathered at Dean Hall's home Friday afternoon. As a result of the industry displayed there, the rest-room in the Education building will now have its inhospitable interior quite transformed by a gay-woven rag rug. A most delicious dinner, followed by games and songs, was then enjoyed by the students of the Normal Department and several faculty members.

U. of N.

FAIRYLAND DANCE

"All students are invited to attend a dance given at Fairyland on Saturday evening. (Signed) Miss Maek and Miss Sissa." This was the notice that appeared on the bulletin board calmed the students fears that there would be no social entertainment for the week end.

Although the night was chilly and the mercury dropped below zero, many responded to the invitation; resulting in a crowded hall and an evening of pleasure. Delicious refreshments were served and the guests expressed their opinion as being pleased by the thoughtfulness of their hostesses.

PAGE-GARDNER

Friday, February 2, at a Valentine luncheon, Miss Helen Gardiner announced her marriage to Mr. Raymond Page. Mrs. Page is the bacteriologist at the State Hygienic Laboratory. She is a graduate of the University of California and was a member of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Albert were the host and hostess, others present being Mrs. Helen Gardiner Page, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Dinsmore, Mrs. K. Reed, Mrs. Perkins, Miss Zelda Reed, Victor Coker and Wayne Adams.

PHI GAMMA

Last Friday night the brothers of Phi Gamma enjoyed a delightful banquet at the Whittaker Lanai. Those present included the full membership, the faculty advisors, and the pledges. The decorations were in the form of a large mass of flowers arranged as a centerpiece in the club colors, brown and gold.

The toastmaster of the evening was John J. McElroy. Those who responded

WOMEN TO INVADE MEN'S SANCTUARY

Can you swim? If not, here is a chance to learn, for new arrangements have been made with the Y. M. C. A. for the use of their swimming pool at the same time as formerly—Wednesday evenings, but the temperature of the water will be heated to seventy-two degrees.

Swimming teams have been formed and with the special instruction of the W. A. S. members, quite a lot of competition is expected. W. A. S. points are granted for swimming as for any other women's athletics.

Life saving instructions will be given and those taking it up will have an opportunity to get an American Red Cross Life Saving Certificate. Come out and support this movement—join your swimming team and make extra W. A. S. points.

BANDANAS CHOSEN FOR CLUB EMBLEM

The Caduceum Club has made its appearance on the Hill. This organization has ten charter members, the membership being limited to sixteen.

The aim of the club is to promote a better spirit among college women through outdoor activities. Their interest lies in the enjoyment of participating in outdoor sports; together with the real comradeship resulting therefrom. The club is interested primarily in hiking, but is fostering skiing, skating, horseback riding, tennis and baseball. They have chosen the bandana handkerchief as their "sign of the road." Their symbol, from which they derived the name, is the staff of Mercury, the Caduceus. The staff proper stands for hiking, the snake wound round the staff is symbolic of health, while the wings denote speed and accuracy.

The club has enjoyed a number of hikes into the hills both this, and last semester. One day was devoted to a hike to Sparks, where they breakfasted before returning to the city. It has been arranged that points shall be awarded to the women working for W. A. S. sweaters.

The members of the organization are Verda Luce, Marion Muth, Janet Marshall, Dorothy Sullivan, Mildred Leavitt, Micky Miller, Zella Reed, Frankie Howard, Anna Maud Stern and Alva Quilici.

MISS SOMERS BACK FROM WORK IN EAST

Miss Katherine Somers, instructor in physical education, returned Monday from her extended sojourn in the Teacher's College at Columbia University, where she was working toward her Master of Arts degree.

Miss Somers left last fall for New York and although enjoying her work in the east, says she is surely glad to get back to Nevada and sunshine. She intends to return to Columbia next summer to complete her course.

On last Friday afternoon, twenty young women met at the home of Dean Hall for the purpose of sewing together strips of rags. These, when woven together, will form a rug sufficiently large to cover a major portion of the floor space.

Besides the first and second year normal students, there were also present Miss Detraz, Mrs. Trainer, Mrs. Williamson, and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Rowe. The pleasant afternoon was terminated by an enjoyable dinner.

toasts were Professor Lehenbauer, Bussy, Snoddy, Farwell, Clausen, Chitendon, Curtis, Bent, and Dean Stewart

IGNATIANS BRING STRONG QUINTET TO TACKLE PACK

"Praying Connoleys" Have the Best Non-Conference Team, Say Critics

Next Friday and Saturday nights the Saint Ignatius varsity quintet will be seen in action against the Wolves. This team is one of the strongest non-conference teams on the Coast and is rated as the best team the Ignatians have turned out in the past five years.

The star of the team is Imp Begely, the diminutive captain. It will be remembered by all those that saw the "Praying Connoleys" in action last year that it was the little fellow who gave the Silver and Blue five such a merry chase. He is smaller than the "Rabbit" and he has an uncanny knack of dribbling around a man; leaving him standing wondering what it's all about. The rest of the team is made up of stars, five, count 'em.

Jimmy Needles, former Santa Clara man, is playing guard for the Ignatians and is better than ever before.

The Ignatians, while having been defeated, are rated as one of the best teams on the Coast and all the conference teams are thanking their lucky stars that this team is not in the conference. In the game with Stanford, the "Praying Connoleys" showed the Cards a rough time of it and it was only after one of the hardest games yet experienced by the Stanford five that they were able to down the Hayes Street Gang. Also, in the California game, the Ignatians displayed a wonderful exhibition of basketball and

RENO HI WINS GAME BY NARROW MARGIN

By defeating Winnemucca and Sparks, the stock of the Reno High basketball players took a decided jump. Both of these teams have defeated Elko, who in turn has defeated Reno.

In the game with Sparks, the Reno men seemed to have found their stride for they played good basketball. The game was hard fought from start to finish and the outcome was in doubt at all times. The scoring started when Simas of Reno, made a pretty follow shot that was closely followed with a basket by Kistler.

Reno continued to score and had gained a lead of eight points, before Sparks was able to score; Dakin making a nice field goal for Sparks first tally. Clever team work brought up Sparks total to seven, the half ending 10 to 7 in favor of Reno.

Sparks took the lead in the second half on baskets by Robinson and Dakin, and it looked as if "Bill" Martin's Railroaders were going to win. Reno braced and some exceptional guarding by Hartung enabled Reno to tie the score.

Both teams were now extending themselves and it was not until the last minutes of play that Reno forged into the lead when Longabaugh and Simas made two pretty baskets from neat side-shots—the game ending with Reno on the long end of a 20 to 16 score.

In the girls' game, Reno completely outclassed Sparks by a score of 58 to 6.

made some of the California men look very slow indeed.

The Ignatians have beaten every team they have come up against except California and Stanford and are going great guns already. Their team work is something to wonder at and their basket shooting is nothing short of spectacular. They are able to hit the hoop from any angle on the court, and if it is impossible to penetrate their opponents defense, they have dead eyes on the long shots. The games this weekend should bring forth all varieties of basketball and will without doubt bring one of the classic organizations on the coast to Nevada.

WOLF QUINTET LOSES TO SAINTS' VARSITY

Friday Night's Game Close, But Second Mix-Up Is Easily Visitors

Directly after the Goof-Northwestern game, which the Clubmen won 23-18, the Santa Clara varsity came onto the floor followed closely by the Wolf quintet. They spent a few minutes warming up and after preliminary instructions by Referee Elfrink, they were off.

For the first five minutes the two teams played a defensive game and it looked as if the score would be very low. After two tries at the basket, Johnny Logan was called for a personal foul and Fredericks broke the ice when he caged the two foul shots. Following his two successful tries, Fredericks swished the net from underneath the basket and Nevada was leading 4-0. He duplicated the basket right after the tip off and the stands went wild.

The first Santa Clara score came when Vukota caged a free shot. Jim Logan hooped a pretty shot from near the foul ring. Soon after the Missionites took a burst of speed and at the end of the half were leading 12-8.

At the outset of the second half Vukota made a pretty shot from near the sidelines and the Red and White went farther into the lead. In this half Anderson, Nevada's running guard, brought the bleacherites to their feet several times with spectacular dribbles and at the end of each rush down the floor, caged a basket. The Saints seemed to be unable to hit the basket with any accuracy and the Nevada five were soon right on their trail. The rooting section was yelling for the Wolves to tie it up, but in this they were doomed to failure as the gun went off ending the game with the score 18-15 in favor of the visitors.

In the second game both teams displayed a rather ragged offense, but put up a wonderful defense and as a result the game was very slow and uninteresting.

It was probably the slowest game seen on the Gym floor for some time. In the first half both teams seemed to be afraid to start a rush down the floor and tried long shots, most of which were missed. At the end of the half the Saints were leading 5-3.

At the beginning of the last half Jim Logan hit the hoop from the sidelines with a pretty one-handed hook. Fredericks made a foul shot and then the shots came fast and furious. Johnnie Logan made one and Monahan retaliated. Vukota and Jim Logan each made one and Fredericks, not to be outdone, hit the ring for four more points. After time out was called for Santa Clara, Clay caged one from close under, but Toso and Jim Logan each made one and the Nevada team was still trailing. As the end of the half was approaching Vukota and Fawke hit the ring for one each and just as the gun sounded, Fredericks made a pretty overhead shot from near the side lines and the game was over. Score: 25-15 for the Saints.

Considering the fact that Floor Captain Harrison was in the hospital and unable to play, the Nevada team was under a great handicap and for all of this put up a good game. Had "spud" been there it would have been a different story. Anderson and Fredericks displayed a wonderful brand of ball and kept the Mission boys guessing all the time.

For the visitors, Vukota and Jimmy Logan were the bright and shining lights, while Malley vied with them for the honor of being captioned the star.

Wrestling Popular On Northern Campus Shown by Turnout

University of Idaho, February 7, (P. I. N. S.)—Twenty-five men reported to the call of Coach James A. Brown for aspirants to the Varsity wrestling squad Monday evening. Four letter men, Kinnison, Horning, Brown and Hillman reported. Around these four the squad for the season will probably be built.

George Owen, Harvard's most brilliant athlete of the past decade, will set a new record in the competition for the Crimson "H" this year when he will receive his ninth Varsity letter. The previous record was eight.

HIGH SCHOOL HOOP TOURNEY DATE SET

This year the University will again hold an invitational basketball tournament for the high schools of the state. It will last four days, from March 7.

As in previous years, the Block N Society, under the direction of Fran Martin, will manage the meet. Both boys' and girls' teams will be represented, as in the past. It has been arranged that the teams eliminated in the first round of the competition will form a second group and will play a series of games for the championship of the "Junior Tournament." In this way every team has a chance to participate in at least two games.

By special arrangement with the Southern Pacific, rates have been secured for the contestants. This will help create a larger attendance than ever before. Visiting schools will make the campus their headquarters. Provision has been made to feed the visitors at the dining hall, while the dormitories and fraternities will be their homes while staying in Reno. Sixteen boys' teams and ten girls' teams are expected to participate in the tournament.

In the tournament last year the schedule was made out so that the weak teams played the strong at the start. This was done in order to keep from eliminating the strong teams at the beginning. The plan was to be followed this year, but it has been decided by the committee in charge that drawing was the fairer method of arranging the schedule.

From all indications the coming tournament will, in every respect, surpass those of previous years. The teams are more evenly matched and there is no cut and dried information as to who is the stronger. There will also be a greater representation than in the past, nearly every school sending at least a boys' team. All this tends to bring about better relationship with the prep schools and create a strong bond of friendship between them and the University.

FAIRCHILD LISTED ON ROLL OF HONOR

"Ted" Fairchild, former University football star, now in the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania, is among the players listed by Outing magazine for January in its annual "football roll of honor" which is "based on the recommendations of the important coaches of the country." Every player on the list was selected by at least two football coaches of recognized standing in the athletic world. Fairchild played left end on the Wolf Pack eleven during the 1919 and 1920 seasons. Transferring to Pennsylvania in 1921, he was unable to play on the first team owing to the one-year residence rule, but last fall he won a place on the varsity from a large number of candidates and played in every scheduled game.

R. O. T. C. CADETS TO ATTEND CAMP AT MONTEREY BAY

The summer training camp for the R. O. T. C. students of Nevada and California will be held this year at Monterey, California, from June 14 to July 25. Students from the following institutions will be assembled at this camp:

University of Nevada, University of California, University of Wyoming, University of California (Southern Branch), Pomona College, Oregon Agricultural College (Cavalry unit only), Stanford University (Artillery unit only).

In addition to the advanced course students required to attend the camp, a limited number of basic course students will be permitted to attend. The quota of basic course students allotted to the University of Nevada is 24. The total number of students to attend the camp will be from 400 to 500.

Attendance at the camp is absolutely without cost, as the government provides transportation to and from the camp with meals while en route, and furnishes all subsistence, clothing, and necessary service at camp.

Monterey, located on Monterey Bay, about 125 miles south of San Francisco, is the recreational center of the west coast; it is noted for its delightful climate, natural beauties, and the many points of interest near at hand. Students who are fortunate enough to attend the camp should have a very profitable and enjoyable vacation.

BOOK LIST

Suggested by J. Stitt Wilson for the Students at the University of Nevada

1. CHRISTIANITY AND ECONOMIC PROBLEMS, a Discussion Group Text Book, edited by Kirby Page, David R. Porter, and others. Association Press, 347 Madison avenue, New York, 50c. Contains a fund of valuable reference material, specially prepared for students.
2. THE ACQUISITIVE SOCIETY, by Richard Henry Tawney; Harcourt, Brace and Co., New York, $1.50. Perhaps the most constructive criticism of our present economic system. Very interesting reading.
3. PROPERTY—ITS RIGHTS AND DUTIES, a series of most scholarly articles on the Evolution of Property. Introduction by the Bishop of Oxford. Essays by various writers. MacMillan Co., New York, $1.50.
4. THE CHURCH AND INDUSTRIAL RECONSTRUCTION, edited by Association Press, 347 Madison avenue, New York, $2.00. A thorough going application of the Christian principle to the perplexing problems of the present day.
5. THE NEW SOCIAL ORDER, by Harry F. Ward, MacMillan Co., New York, $2.50. Besides a careful analysis of Christian principles, devotes a large space to a consideration of the various proposals, such as that of the British Labor Party, to meet the economic situation.
6. THE MIND IN THE MAKING, by James Harvey Robinson, Harper Brothers, New York, $2.50. This book will help to deliver your mind from prejudice, race ignorance, and intellectual vanity, by showing you how your mind is made.
7. CHRISTIANIZING THE SOCIAL ORDER, by Walter Rauschenbusch, MacMillan Company, $1.50. If you can buy but one book, buy this one. The noble author, a superb character and a wise teacher, has passed to his reward, but in this book you get the prophet's great message.
8. THE RECONSTRUCTION OF RELIGION, by Charles A. Ellwood, MacMillan Co., New York, $2.25. I cannot recommend this work of Dean Ellwood too highly. It is a great book. Buy it and keep it near you until you have made its spirit and contents your very own.
9. THE DIRECTION OF HUMAN EVOLUTION, by Edwin Grant Conklin, Charles Scribner Sons, New York, $2.50. Breathes the very spirit of true science, and true religion in a study of the origin and destiny of the human race. A fine companion volume to Ellwood's book.
10. THE SCIENCE OF EATNIG, by Alfred W. McCann; Geo. H. Doran & Co., New York, $2.50. This book is worth $1,000 in gold to any student, and will probably save that much in loss of time and energy and doctors' bills to the average student in a few short years.

CALIFORNIA GRANTED OVER NINE MILLIONS

UNIV. OF CALIFORNIA, Feb. 7.—(P. I. N. S.)—In Governor Richardson's "economy" budget, presented to the legislature Friday, the University of California was allowed $9,653,947 for the next two years. This is $284,957 less than the appropriation two years ago.

The Board of Regents requested $10,508,947 to run the University and all its branches and activities, but this amount was cut $855,000. It was planned to purchase land adjoining the campus and additional property at the Southern Branch with this amount.

According to reports, the Southern Branch is to receive $1,000,000, while $2,857,257 goes to the College of Agriculture.

GEOLOGY PROF. PUTS QUAKE NEAR ALASKA

"In all probability the recent earthquake that set up tidal waves which caused considerable damage and loss of life at Hilo, on the Island of Hawaii, and was felt from coast to coast in the United States, originated somewhere along the Aleutian Islands off the Alaskan Peninsula," is the statement made by Prof. J. C. Jones of the Geology department of the University.

The earthquake, which was felt by many people in Reno, was registered on the University seismograph. The first preliminary, or seven mile wave, started the needles vibrating at 8:18:32 a. m. Friday, Feb. 5. The final record on the seismograph chart was recorded at 11:35 a. m.

The difference in time recorded was three hours and twenty-four minutes. Professor Jones calculated the point of origin to be within a radius of 3,500 miles. The estimation at Berkeley was the same; at Washington the distance recorded was 5,000 miles; at the Hawaiian Islands between 2,000 and 3,000 miles. All points correlated and the location, without exception, pointed to the Aleutian Islands.

The fact that very few earthquakes occur on the Atlantic coast eliminated that region as the possible origin. The two remaining points to be decided upon were Central America and the Aleutian Islands. The former was abandoned when no news of earth adjustment was received from that locality. That the Aleutian Islands is the most probable location is strengthened by the fact that the tidal waves, traveling at the rate of 400 miles per hour, struck the Hawaiian Islands on the eastern side. No news as yet has been received from Alaska.

One of the best indications of their strength that could be given was the California Aggies' 23-22 victory over the Hawaiian All-star basketball team last week. The Aggies put up a wonderful fight and held their own throughout the affair.

The University of Pennsylvania opened its 1923 mat season by winning four out of five wrestling matches from the Princeton grapplers.

SPARKS IMPROVING IN RACE FOR CUP

Yerington Is Another Team That May Prove To Be Strong Contender

If Sparks should happen to win the Tournament, they will justly deserve their reward. Coach "Bill" Martin, former football and basketball star of the Wolves, began his season with but one man, "Oats" Farrar, left from last year's championship team, and that man, one of the reserves.

The season began rather disastrously, Sparks taking a defeat at the hands of Fallon 20-4. "Bill" evidently put the old "pep" into the boys for when they met the strong Douglas five, they nearly sent that team to the showers on the short end of the score. However Douglas playing on their own floor, managed to nose them out by a few points.

A somewhat better line might have been obtained on Sparks had they played their scheduled game with Carson, but due to the snow the game was cancelled.

Sparks more than showed their stuff when they met the Red and Blue on Reno's floor last Friday. Playing the best ball they have shown all season, they threw a scare into Reno's five which will take that aggregation some little time to recuperate from. The way in which that little team from the Railroad town shattered Reno's five man defense was a sight worth seeing. From start to finish there was never a difference of more than two or three points and it was anyone's game up to the final whistle.

At this writing it appears that the Sparks team is improving with every day and it is a cinch that it will not take a great deal more advancement to put them right up to the final game in the Tournament.

It is certain that whether they show further improvement or not, they are sure to make the best of them hustle to win and if Sparks has Lady Luck on her side when the bracketing for the Tournament is announced, then look out everybody.

The girls team, on the other hand, is rather weak. They have met with defeats, many of them large, so far this season. They are lighter than the average and while fast, and always fighting to a finish, lack the punch to make them a strong aggregation. But they too are improving as the season develops and with concentrated efforts of their coach, Mr. Foster, may yet fool a lot of teams who consider themselves good.

Yerington

The Yerington boys do not appear to be as strong this year as they were last, but they are fighters and are fast. They have a well-balanced bunch, and are clever on their passing and floor work. The weak points of this team appear to lie in the center position and in their ability to miss the basket when they need the points worst. Nevertheless, they defeated Virginia City, and the Stewart Indians by close scores. In fact, the last Indian game was tied at 19-all at the end of the second half. Playing an additional five minutes the Yerington lads gathered in two baskets and the Indians converted one foul shot thus giving Yerington the game 23-20. When they tangled with Douglas, that team sent them home with a doubled score but the defeat may have been due in part to the long automobile ride the day of the game.

While Yerington may not get far in the big Championship look out for them when it comes to the Junior Cup, for they sure are going to make someone hustle.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA GRANTS CHARTERS TO COAST LOCALS

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Seattle, Feb. 7.—(P. I. N. S.)—Phi Sigma Kappa, national fraternity, has granted a charter to Apres la Guerre, hitherto the strongest local on the campus which was founded in 1920 by a group of disabled world war veterans. Induction will take place in the early spring.

Field Marshal Ferdinand Foch, commander-in-chief of the allied armies during the war, is one of the honorary members of Apres la Guerre.

Charters have also been granted to the Embarcadero Club at Stanford and the Iota Nu fraternity at the University of Montana. The induction of these local groups will bring the national fraternity's number of chapters on the Pacific Coast to six; there are already chapters at the universities of California, Nevada and Oregon Agricultural College.

HASEMAN TO SPEAK ON EINSTEIN THEORY

The Einstein Theory of Relativity has proved one of the most puzzling, although interesting, problems ever presented to the human race. Due to widespread interest, most college people have a desire to at least know what the theory is.

Prof. Charles Haseman will deliver his lecture on this subject at a meeting of the Electric Club February 15, at 7:30 in the Electrical Building. Anyone interested is cordially invited to attend.

Probably no one in the state has as Haseman, so the opportunity to hear clear an idea of the Theory as Prof. him is one which should not be taken lightly.

Nevada Men Resemble Bolshevik Convention

Oceans of Whiskers, Roulette Wheels and Dainty Damsels to Mingle in General Confusion, Bullfights to Claim Attention

Whiskers—whiskers—nothing but whiskers.

Whiskers—long ones, short ones, brown ones, red ones, black ones and hybrid ones.

Whiskers—worn on the chin, the upper lip, the sides of the face, under the chin and some all over the face.

Whiskers—the essence of manhood, the caveman's pride and the Snake's special abhorrence.

Whiskers—things that the women have hated; and yet kindly tolerated for three weeks. Lord bless 'em! Just think what agonizing moments they have spent on the tram, in the shows, at the dances! Without much to say, in their women's way, they have looked on with expressions of grief and thoughts of purgatory while the men have fondly cultivated the hairy facial growths.

From figures calculated by the math sharks of the University the result of Whiskerino Week is astounding. Simply astounding; appalling. Great minds set to work on the problem. Greater minds fathomed out the mysteries. Their discovery is passed on to less greater thinkers.

For instance. The amount of whiskers, piled neatly in bundles and baled like hay, would weigh something like nine and seven-tenths tons. Think of it! As much as the prize elephant of the King of Siam!

Do you know to what use nine and seven-tenths tons of hair can be put? Gaze upon these figures:

Seventeen parlor sofas may be stuffed.

One hundred and six pillows, ditto.

Eight and four-fifths hair mattresses.

Twenty-two Louis Something chairs can be stuffed.

Wigs can be made for all comic operas in the world.

Two three ring circuses could use the hair instead of sawdust—And so on. Try and think of it!

More. Figuring each whisker as one-eighth inch in length. Each hair placed end to end with other hairs, cover a distance of something like 5,167,198,204 miles, figured in African feet. Imagine! When the figure was announced, all those in on the secret said in unison: "Well, who'da thunk it?" And, no doubt, the rest of the world will say the same. Each whisker, laid out so that each end touches a neighbor, will form a direct line, as the worm turns, from Reno to Sourabaya and back half way to Liverpool continuing on around the globe. Or to put it more exact in a more comprehensible manner, the line would reach almost to the fifth moon of Mars, or twice around the satellite of the earth.

As to the local aspect of the Whiskerino Week. The local barbers, at their weekly price-cutting meeting went on record as saying that if the juniors continued in the method of keeping the men of the campus in a condition of unshavenness, each barber would have to send in his application to the Senate to stop all future Whiskerino celebrations.

The gym will be a gay place Saturday night, if one can keep in mind the fact that the modern eds and co-eds will revert back to their granddaddy and grandmama types. The calendar will be set back a matter of fifty years or so, and the dancers will be of the type that wandered unmolested on the Carson sink without being mobbed for wearing peon pants and side-burns. The girls will probably wear either their cheap calico dresses, with bustles, or cheesecloth effects, without bustles.

Real bull-fights, too, will be staged. No fake about this. A live, ferocious red-seeing bull is already on his way over the hump. John Philbin went down to San Francisco especially to acquire the beast. Along with the bull will be the regular consorts. You know matadors, toreadors, picadors, cuspidores, and just dors of the usual breed.

Along with the old-time atmosphere will be an old time roulette. Here the men will be allowed to play their money for the girls. It will be either a win or lose matter; take it or leave it. Other gambling games will be in vogue. Hot dawgs, with all the trimmings, will be sold to appease that ravishing feeling, so prone to women. This will not necessitate a trip to town after the dance, so there is no need to worry. Soda pop, as they called it in the old days, will be sold in a hard condition. The bottles will be hard, being made out of glass.

The winners of the whisker contest will be chosen. This is what most of the men are going for. But—despite the hard condition of the floor and the bull and the soda water bottles, the dance is expected to be one of the best, the liveliest, the spiffiest of the year. The campus cry is "Well, see you at the Whiskerino!" Are you in on it?

PROMISING MATERIAL SIGNS UP FOR TRACK

Cotter Will Captain 1923 Cinder Path Artists—Stars Come Out

"There will be a more ambitious schedule than we have had for some time," said Coach Courtright when he spoke to the thirty-eight track candidates who signed up at a meeting Tuesday afternoon. "I am greatly pleased at the showing," he said later, "and we should make a good showing with the material we have."

"Most encouraging," said Alex Cotter, last year's track skipper, who was re-elected again this year. "Providing the weather is favorable we should have no difficulty in turning out a team that will make a fair showing in the scheduled meets."

Slips were passed out to the men with the request that they give their previous track history. The result showed that nine were Nevada Varsity veterans, twenty-two had high school experience, and seven were beginners.

Captain Cotter will again work out on the high sticks, his favorite event and the one in which he holds the University record—16:1. Koehler and Quill, last year's distance men, are both back, while one of the new men has a high school record of 4:54 in the mile. Nesbit, a ten flat performer in the century, is another man who will wear spikes for Nevada for the first time. Nesbit holds several California records in the sprints.

In the field events, several men have good prep school records. Three claim to be able to top eleven feet in the pole vault. Al Lowery made over 21 feet in the broad jump last year and should do better work in that event this season. Babe Carlson, another winner from last year, will take care of the weight events, the shot and the discus.

The track schedule has not been definitely fixed as yet. Beside the inter-class meet, which opens up the season on April 14, a dual meet will be held with Davis on April 28. Providing that California can arrange her schedule satisfactorily, a four-cornered meet with Santa Clara, St. Marys, Nevada and California competing. Santa Clara will probably be met on either April 21 or May 6.

BLOCK N SOCIETY WILL TAKE OVER BASKET TOURNAMENT

The high school basketball tournament will be entirely in charge of Block N Society. Such was the decision arrived at when Block N met on Tuesday.

"There will be more enthusiasm if the athletic society of the University gets out and works for the tournament," said Professor Charles Hase-man, who addressed the athletes.

"It means hard work, but the effort will be worth while. I expect that between eighty girls and sixty boys will take part this year. It means that housing conditions will be crowded, but I believe that the various fraternity houses can solve the difficulty."

"Letters have been sent out to all high schools with the request that entries be sent in by February 22. This will give you ample time to make all arrangements. It is fitting that you take over the proposition and handle it in all its phases."

A motion to this effect was made, unanimously passed, and the balance of the time was devoted to discussing in an informal way various activities that Block N should take part in.

NEGATIVE CREDIT SYSTEM EXPLAINED

The registration Committee has found that, during the past semester, there have been a number of negative credits received for absences and there has been uncertainty concerning the way in which these credits should be counted. In order to clarify the situation, the committee wishes to make the following important announcement:

Negative credits incurred by reason of unexcused absences must be made up by the student through registration in additional hours required for graduation. For example—the course taken by a student requires 124 units for graduation. If the student incurs two negative credits, then the total number for graduation will be 126.

The negative credits will also be counted to disqualify the student for registration by adding a number of negative credits to the subjects failed. They will likewise be used in calculating the final averages of the students for the semester's work.
