Sagebrush Obtains Exclusive Messages From Prominent Executives and Legislators Extending to State and University Their Wishes for Success

THE WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTON

April 23, 1924.

My Dear Mr. Harwood:

I am very glad to have this opportunity of extending to the students and alumni of the University of Nevada, through the columns of The Sagebrush, my cordial greetings and my heartiest good wishes, on the Fiftieth Anniversary of the institution.

While we are often accustomed to refer to the fine traditions of the older states, there can be no prouder boast than that of Nevada that it came into the Union to uphold the hands of Abraham Lincoln. It is well, also, to do honor at this time to those men who, in a sparsely settled community, had the foresight to make provision for the true development of the state through the establishment of a

You have before you a wonderful opportunity to aid in the upbuilding of a great state, and to carry out in this way the plans of the founders.

STATE OF NEVADA EXECUTIVE CHAMBER CARSON CITY

April 3, 1924.

Mr. Paul A. Harwood, Editor, The U. of N. Sagebrush.

I am glad to avail myself of the opportunity to extend my congratulations to the students and alumni of the University, which you offer through the medium of your paper.

The students and alumni are to be felicitated on the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the University of Nevada. While in terms of the age of learning this is not a long period of existence, it lacks but ten years of the age of the state and marks a progress which has been the real stimulus to material and cultural advancement in Nevada. While the University was generously endowed by grants from the Federal government, the major cost has been borne by the people and the institution has become truly typical of the aims and ideals of Nevadans.

It is the fortune of the present generation to reap the fruit from the seeds planted in the past. The students and alumni may well rejoice over this anniversary and from it take encouragement The Minden branch of the associa- to foster and preserve all those things for which our and their

My Dear Mr. Harwood:

I am proud of the University of Nevada. The high standing of its trustees and faculty, the superior character of its students, its noble traditions and splendid aspirations excite our respect and admiration. We are all happy by reason of the loyalty of the people gram was arranged for next year. Congress of the United States House of Representatives

Washington, D. C.

April 10, 1924.

My Dear Mr. Harwood:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 1, 1924, containing the information that this year marks the Fiftieth Anniversary of our State University, and at the same time you tender conditions in these two Far Eastern me an opportunity to extend my congratulations to the students and countries. alumni of that institution. I appreciate such a courtesy, first because of my natural interest in things educational; secondly, my inherent interest in institutions within my home State.

Reflecting upon the history of our University, I recall that its are looking forward to a busy and sucbeginning was the little City of Elko, and it rests within my cessful year after the summer. individual memory its struggling to administer to the educational needs of our youth. It was indeed a pioneering effort in the strict sense of the word and characteristic of all such efforts within our State.

Geographically the State of Nevada seems to be handicapped, gestion of other campus affairs during which force seems to be ever present in the shaping of its destinies. I say this because its fixed position as to its place on the map of our great government, together with surrounding physical conditions, makes all effort toward development in any line particularly trying pose of raising money for their treas- for this reason were willing to extend and exceptionally difficult. I say this because where nature has been kinder in offering inducements, people congregate more readily and development where financial requirements play a part follows easier, because of the increased wealth thereby created.

Our University has experienced the effect of this natural force. However, to offset nature's handicap, we are endowed with a people of a frontier type whose characteristics of daring and fortitude go to the accomplishment of their aims no matter what they may be. Because of people willing to approach an insurmountable task, we of Nevada can give thanks and congratulate ourselves on the position occupied by our University and our State educational system as a

The far-sightedness of our early educators and the wisdom of our law makers, has worked for results better than they knew. Today our State stands in the foremost with school funds and the willingness of our people is ever evident by liberal legislative allowances towards our University. It is to be regretted that some of our great mining fortunes, and great estates, produced and made within the borders of our State, have not reflected more often a sense of appreciation by donations to our State institution of higher education.

Those who have taken advantage of its being, and those who today constitute its student body, with the coming of others who will take advantage of its tendered opportunities, do and will reflect with pride upon their Alma Mater that ranks in the educational position occupied by the University of Nevada. This is due to the foresightedness of pioneers and a present desire of its administrative officers. We can be proud of them as we are of its faculty, all of who reflect a carefulness in selection and show untiring devotion to duty, together with ability to impart their knowledge.

It is with pleasure that I tender my sincere congratulations to all those who have come, and to those who are there, and to all who are to come after, upon the occasion that marks the Half Century period of the existence of their University. I trust, and I have no fear, when I say the trying period of its existence is over and the succeeding years will see such decided expansion and advancement that all who live within our State, and many without, will point to it with pride.

Thanking you again for this opportunity for expression, I am,

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES L. RICHARDS.

25 ELECTS HEADS FOR THE LAST LAP

A handful of loyal members of the class of '25 gathered on Monday afternoon in the Agriculture building for the purpose of electing officers to guide the destinies of the class through its fourth and final year.

The meeting was called for 4 o'clock, but President Hug postponed the openng formalities for some 10 or 15 minutes in the vain hope that a few of the absent ones might find it in their hearts to attend.

Few Present

Finally, at 4:15, when a few stragglers had brought the total number of those present up to 20, a spirited discussion was held as to whether it would be advisable to elect officers with so small a number in attendance. One enterprising person suggested that as the sign had blown off the bulletin board it might be possible to get a larger number out to vote later in the week. However, when a vote was called for, it indicated that those present held a more pessimistic view of the matter, and nominations were

No Opposition

An unusual spirit of harmony prevailed and with a great show of efficiency the four officers were all unanimously elected. John Fulton will wield the gavel for the seniors-to-be. Thelma Hopper is to serve as vice-president, Isabel Hayes as secretary, and as treasurer Sid Holt will manage the financial problems of the class.

The meeting adjourned after plans for the Junior-Senior Ball were briefly

FROSH GET PUNISHMENT; BUT FIGHT FOR REVENGE

Five moss-hung, mud-bespattered, shivering, but triumphant frosh scrambled from the depths of Manzanita Lake Friday, after they had reeived their punishment.

No less than two scalps draped the belt of one of the doused frosh. Leon Hainer was able to pull "Von" Edwards through the slippery mud into the icy water, and "Monk" Morrison was the second victim of this fighting

The five freshmen, accused unanimously by the committee on frosh discipline of "queening," showed exceptional ability in the elementary tactics of defensive fighting but were finally flung, at the count of "three," into the freezing depths of the pond.

Coleman, Kinnon, Hagmeyer, Castle and Hainer were unceremoniously grabbed by 40 pairs of hands and given their decreed punishment but not without many frantic struggles.

Those who did not appear for their punishment at the command of the scrap of yellow paper placed on the bulletin board Thursday are to be tenderly admonished by the frosh committee in charge. _____U. of N.___

Students living in the dormitories will have to pay seven dollars per month room rent next year instead of the present five. This is the most important of the changes appearing in the University of Nevada catalogue for 1924-25, which is now ready for

The other most important change is the lowering of the required units for degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture. All students having enrolled prior to 1924 will be required to present 152 units for the degree, while students enrolling in the fall semester of 1924 will need only 130.

A new prize is offered for the first time this year. It is known as the Senior Public-Service Prize and is the gift of Dr. Henry Albert of the State Hygienic Laboratory. It carries an annual value of $25.

"The prize is to be awarded annually to the member of the graduating class whose record shows the most satisfactory combination of good scholarship, good character and worthy service in behalf of the University, the community, or both."

The Women's Athletic Association Scholarship has been raised from $50 to $100, with the qualifications the same as heretofore. A slight alteration has been made in regard to debating prizes for intermural debate.

The new catalogue may be obtained at the president's office or by a written request.

A crowd began to collect but no one dared go near the charged wire. After a vain attempt to hold class under such disturbing conditions, Prof. Hill dismissed five minutes early!

CAMEL HAUNT WAS ANCIENT LAKE BED

By the discovery of camel bones in the Walker Lake region last week-end Prof. J. C. Jones has thrown new light upon his Lake Lahontan theory.

Prof. Jones delivered a lecture at the Hawthorne high school Saturday night and, having heard of the buried bones, he decided to make an investigation while he was in this region. Sunday, accompanied by M. A. Johnson, principal of the school, Jones dug up several specimens of the skeletons. They were buried in the tufa many feet above the lake level.

The bones are conclusively proved to be those of the now-extinct camel which is believed to have ranged over this region during the Lahontan period. A fused shinbone found, together with several other characteristic camel bones, proves them to be of this species. The camel alone has the fused shinbone. other mammals, as well as man, having the two separate bones in the shin.

This discovery has an important bearing on Prof. Jones' book now be busy outlining their program of speak- ing published, in which he formulates his Lake Lahontan theory.

Hush! -- The Burglar

There's an old saying, "If gold were not valuable there'd be no thieves.'

In line with that we might suggest that if we had all followed the custom of Adam and Eve there would be no need of the clothier.

But happily our style of dress makes clothing stores necessary and we are proud to say we are in the clothing business and like it.

We are so fond of it that we take pains to hunt up the best lines and best values in America, and we will say without fear of contradiction that the clothes we sell are GOOD AS ANY-BETTER THAN MANY.
