

CAREFUL PLANS MAKE POSSIBLE WIFE'S CAREER

STUDENT AT GOUCHER ATTENDS TO HOME AND STUDIES

Baltimore.—Mrs. Evelyn Lynch Nelson has the three-fold duty of being house wife, mother and college student. And she attends a goodly measure of success in each.

Mrs. Lynch is now in her third year at Goucher College. She enrolled as a student at Goucher in 1925 when she was Miss Evelyn Nelson. At the conclusion of her first year she left college to become Mrs. Kirby Lynch.

When the baby, Eileen Marie, was one year old Mrs. Lynch decided to complete her college course. She declared that she decided to resume her studies because "wifehood and motherhood had taught her the value of study." She re-entered Goucher last fall. She expects to complete the course for a bachelor of arts degree.

A carefully planned schedule enables Mrs. Lynch to take proper care of her various pursuits. During her classes the wife-mother-housekeeper-student's mother takes care of the baby. Mrs. Lynch, however, devotes her other hours to attention to her husband, child and home. She lives near the college.

Y. P. F. TALK IS GIVEN BY ADAMS

"How College Changes Human Nature" was the subject of an informal talk given Sunday evening by Dean Maxwell Adams to the Episcopal Young People's Fellowship.

Dean Adams pointed out some of the ways in which sudden changes in environment have changed individuals and nations, concluding with the advice, "Keep your old ideas until you know enough of the new ones to judge them fairly."

"Cold sealing wax breaks easily, but if warmed a little, it bends without breaking," said Dean Adams. "We are like sealing wax. If we change too quickly, we break; but if we warm ourselves to conditions—take things gradually—we bend like the warm sealing wax, without injuring ourselves."

W. A. A. Profits By Concessions Sale

Approximately twenty dollars was secured by the Women's Athletic Association by selling concessions during the Nevada State High School basketball tournament. Verdie Fant '30 was in charge of buying the candy, soda water, and sundries, and Geraldine Green '30 was in charge of the selling. The profit this year showed a marked decrease over the amount cleared last year. It is thought that the drop in sales was due to the fewer number of contestants and hence the smaller crowds who attended the games. The candy that was left over was sold to the Y. W. C. A. candy booth and the soda water is being sold in the gym. The proceeds go into the W. A. A. lodge fund.

Homer Managing West Indies Mine

A recent technical article in the Engineering and Mining Journal mentions Dudley D. Homer, a prominent member of the class of 1910 and a graduate of the Mackay School of Mines.

At present Homer is general manager of Cuba's largest copper mine which is affiliated with the American Metal Co., Ltd. located on the north coast of Cuba about 150 miles from Havana. Homer has recently asked for the services of any available Nevada graduates for employment in his company.

OXFORD EDUCATIONAL GLIMPSSES

Editor's Note:—Starting with this issue, The Sagebrush will offer a series of studies of Oxford University. These studies are presented from the viewpoint of the American students who were former Oxford scholars. The papers are given with the purpose of better acquainting the people of our land with the educational opportunities which Oxford offers. The study is made broad enough to include every department and school of the English university.

THE HONOUR SCHOOL OF ENGLISH LITERATURE AT OXFORD

(Assistant Professor of English at Swarthmore College, and assistant to the American Secretary to the Rhodes Trust.)

The course in Oxford University which leads to a B.A. with Honours in the English language and literature, involves probably the most thorough undergraduate survey of its subject offered in any university at the present time. Although the final examination allows the individual considerable freedom of choice, it demands in any case a broad general knowledge of British literature from Beowulf to the present time, a good understanding of the chief works of philology and their application in the history of the English language, a reading knowledge of Anglo-Saxon and Middle English, and a specialist knowledge of certain periods considerably deeper than those demanded by the average American college degree. Such requirements permit few real gaps in the student's knowledge of English, and many an American holder of an M.A. in English finds his knowledge woefully piecemeal and chaotic when faced with the exactions of Oxford final honours exams. But no holder of a B.A. in English from an American university or college of good standing need feel unduly discouraged by the Oxford requirements,—provided, of course, he is prepared to work diligently and without dismay for two or three years in preparation for his degree at Oxford! He will find that, by intelligently planned work, he has but to fill in the gaps of his knowledge of literature to master the requirements in philology, which can be reduced to a minimum and almost memorized,—and he is ready for the Oxford "schools!"

To be sure, if he expects first class honours, he must do more than this. Men who have taught and studied English literature at Oxford believe there is no more difficult school in which to get a "first" and certainly "firsts" in English are rare enough, particularly among Americans.

For a "first" demands a foundation of real knowledge and thought, upon which is erected a structure of original interpretation and some distinction of style. Such a combination of merits is impossible of attainment to some, but hardly beyond the just ambition of a serious student with an American undergraduate career of distinction behind him. Even if he misses a "first" and wins a degree with second or third honours, (both of which carry real training under some of the best tutors in their wake!), he will have had tours and lectures in England and America, and have gained a broad general knowledge of English literature.

superior to many an American Ph.D., who, from specializing in a narrow field, has scamped his general study of the subject he professes. It is difficult to conceive a better foundation than the Oxford Honour School upon which an American student may later and with infinitely greater ease erect the gorgeous panoply of advanced degrees!

Specifically, the final examination, on which the class of honours and the degree itself depend almost entirely, consists of nine three-hour examination papers selected from a list of thirteen periods or subjects. The average American student makes a selection which reduces his study of philology and Old English to a minimum, and usually chooses four of his papers from those on literature since Shakespeare's time. In these papers the candidates are expected to show a good knowledge of the social and political background of the time. They may also offer a special subject or a dissertation, which must be approved by the Board of the Faculty, but neither of these is necessary for the attainment of highest honours.

In spite of the exigencies of the requirements, no place could be more ideal for the study of English literature than Oxford. Guided by daily and frequently familiar contact with great professors like George Gordon, D. Nichol Smith, Percy Simpson and W. A. Craigie; inspired by the beauty and the literary traditions of the old city of Oxford and its green countryside, where Addison's Walk and Shelley's retreats and the Scholar Gypsies' trail are still little altered; aided by the priceless libraries of Bodley and the daily possibility of meeting Massfield, Bridges, Chesterton, or John Buchan walking on High street—to the Ameri-

OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE STUDY OF LAW AT OXFORD UNIVERSITY

By Albert C. Jacobs

(Former Rhodes Scholar, now Lecturer at Oriel College, Oxford, Member of Law Faculty, Columbia University.)

For many years more of our American Rhodes Scholars at Oxford have studied law than any other subject. Added to this is the certain fact that they have achieved pre-eminent success in their legal work while at this great English university. Each year the list of those persons obtaining "First Class Honours" both in the Final Honour School of Jurisprudence and in the B.C.L. (Bachelor of Civil Law) contains a goodly number of American Rhodes Scholars. It can be stated without any doubt that the finest records made by our Rhodes Scholars in England have been made by those who have devoted themselves to the study of law.

In legal circles in this country the question is frequently asked, why should an American spend three years studying law at Oxford; what possible advantage can he derive from the mastery of the English legal system; are not his three years wasted from the point of view of preparation and training for future practice in this country? To those who have been trained under the Oxford legal system, the answer to this question is simple. Oxford has much to offer the American Rhodes Scholar who expects to practice law in this country. The Oxford Law Faculty is a strong body, picked from the ablest legal minds in England, composed of persons of real scholarship and intellectual ability. And there is much to be said for the system of personal instruction and supervision, for the opportunity of a discussion of legal problems in very small groups rather than in large classes where the individual can be given but little attention. This factor is being recognized more and more by our leading American Law schools.

It is possible as well as advisable for an American to obtain two law degrees while spending his three years at Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar. The regular law course is known as the Final Honour School of Jurisprudence, the degree being a B.A. in Jurisprudence. This consists of a thorough survey of the fields of contracts, torts, property, jurisprudence, constitutional law, legal history, international law, as well as a fine grounding in the principles of Roman law. It is easily possible for an American who has had no prior legal training in this country to secure this degree in two years. The second degree, known as the B. C. L. (Bachelor of Civil Law) is much more difficult.

It is frequently spoken of as the most comprehensive examination in the British Isles, including as it does a thorough knowledge of contracts, torts, real and personal property, equity (including trusts, partnership, and administration of assets as well), the whole field of Roman law, international law, (or the conflict of laws), jurisprudence, criminal law, procedure, evidence, and a few minor subjects. The B.C.L. can be taken by an American in his third year who has successfully completed the work for the B.A. at the end of his second year. It is possible for those American who have had some legal training before going to England to proceed directly to read for the B.C.L. and to take the examinations after three years' work. But such a policy has been found to be not advisable. The wiser course by far is to take the two degrees within the three years. The B.C.L. covers just as wide and extensive a field as any law course in this country; in fact it is probably more comprehensive. This, however, is hardly true of the B. A. in Jurisprudence. In the B.C.L. the standard is much higher than in the B.A.

OVER THE PICKHANDLE

Faculty men! Haul out your old blue jeans and denim shirts on Mackay Day. Take your place at the end of a pickhandle to chum with the men who on other days are your students.

Joke a bit over the pickhandle with your classroom students. This is the only day specifically set aside the entire year in which you can chat with your student over a pickhandle instead of questioning him over a mahogany desk.

Nineteen years ago, with the initiation of Mackay Day, a primary purpose was designated as the fostering and maintaining of a closer feeling between student and professor.

Help revive that old spirit of comradeship and good will! Help better the campus internally as well as externally! The students are asking for a 100% turnout of the faculty men, and they will hope to find you ready and willing to help them on Mackay Day.

SERVICE

Announcement made last week that Dr. J. E. Church has tendered his resignation as a member of the Rhodes Scholarship committee and had requested that a former Rhodes Scholar be appointed in his place, comes to historically-minded Nevadans as a noteworthy bit of news.

It further brings to mind the man's achievements in fields independent of University curricular work and it is only in recalling these attainments that the individual can come to the full realization of the meaning of the word "service", as is especially exemplified by Dr. Church.

In line with giving up this task Dr. Church has also turned over his snow survey work at Mt. Rose to another. By so delegating his outside occupational interests of the past, Dr. Church has as his ultimate aim, as he has so well put it, "to enjoy the cream of life in way of reading, the taking of colored pictures and a returning to that great northern country."

60 Men Are Out For Position On Highly Coveted Nevada Varsity

San Jose To Be First Outside Opponents of Wolves

U. of N. Relay Team to Compete at West Coast Relays

With the inter-class track meet only two weeks away, some sixty men are working hard to show that they are worth a position on the varsity. Coach J. E. Martie has one of the largest squads that he has had to work with and he should be able to develop a well balanced team this year.

Tuesday, April 9, has been set as the date for the inter-fraternity meet. Last year the A. T. O. team won the cup with Kappa Lambda second. From present indications the Taus should have a strong team again this year, but it is probable that they will have some strong opposition.

First Opponent

San Jose Staters will be Nevada's first outside opponents, when they come here for a meet April 13. Many fans will recall the thrilling meet with the Staters last year that ended with a score of 62-60 in favor of Nevada. Judging from last year's thriller, this meet should attract a large crowd. No advance dope has been had on the San Jose team but it is probable that it will have a stronger team than last year.

Nevada's second meet will be with St. Ignatius College of San Francisco, and will mark the first appearance of a St. Ignatius track team in Nevada. Little is known of the San Francisco team, as this is only the second year that Ignatius has had a track team, but judging from its basketball and football teams, the tracksters will give a good account of themselves.

West Coast Relays

April 27 is the date set for the West Coast Relays at Fresno, and Nevada will send a team there. This meet is an annual affair and is participated in by nearly all the colleges on the Pacific coast. Nevada sent a relay team to this event last year.

The Far Western Conference meet is to be held in Sacramento May 4, and will be the last meeting of the year. This will be the fourth Far Western Conference meet. Nevada has won the last three. Competition has been getting closer each year and this year promises some of the best teams ever entered in this meet.

Groups Tied In Handball Tourney

Teams Not Appearing Forfeit Game to Opponent

With nine games already played of the round robin handball tourney, several promising players are being brought to light, and the possible champions have begun to assert themselves.

The Sigma Nu's and the Independents are tied for first place at the present time, each having taken a pair of games, and many of the teams which are on the foot of the list are so rated because they have failed to play their games at the scheduled time. Coach Seranton has announced that any team not appearing to play should forfeit the game, and has urged that the teams appear on time.

Game Results

Following are the results of the games played so far:

March 15—Independents won over A. T. O. Sigma Phi Sigma lost to the Sigma Nus while Phi Sigma Kappa team took the Delta Sigma Lambdas into camp.

March 16—Lincoln hall defeated S. A. E. Kappa Lambda beat Beta Kappa and the Independents defeated the Phi Sigs.

Athletes Receive Unusual Grades

Columbus, Ohio.—Prof. Darwin A. Hindman of the department of physical education at the University of Ohio has discovered that students participating in college athletics are no lower in the scale of intelligence than the ordinary run of students. The notion that college athletes are "dumb," he said, arises from the fact that publicity is given to the athletes who fall behind in their grades, while their fellow student are flunking out of school quietly and with no attending publicity. Professor Hindman, in his research work, found "that proportionately, more athletes 'flunk out' than non-athletes and that proportionately, more athletes receive degree than non-athletes."

The fact that flunking athletes have their shortcomings paraded in the newspapers, and the fact that most of them are eager to stay eligible for

SECTIONS HAVE FAST COMBATS

The "Collegiates" played the "Nightmares" in a series of basketball games last week in which the "Nightmares" emerged winners. This probably sounds like something new and different—well it is. These were the names of the two teams of the sections of basketball which competed in the sectional tournament.

The costumes as well as the games were well worth seeing, originally being the predominating feature. The "Nightmares" appeared arrayed in pajamas of all colors and designs while the "Collegiates" were, to say the least, very collegiate looking in their trunks, loud shirts and louder ties.

Next week will terminate basketball season when the class teams are chosen and the class games are played off.

FOOTBALL MEN BEGIN PRACTICE

LARGE GROUP READY FOR SPRING SESSION OF SPORT

With a large number of men checking out equipment the last two days, spring football is scheduled to begin tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock under the direction of Assistant Coach Chester M. Seranton.

George Philbrook, newly appointed Wolf grid mentor, will not arrive at Nevada until April 8 and stated in a letter received by Seranton that he will be unable to attend the Mackay Day exercises because he has entered his team in the All-Conference track meet to be held in Los Angeles on April 6.

It has not been decided as yet whether practice will be held three or five days a week and this matter will be left to the players themselves.

Spring Session

The spring session will consist mainly of the fundamentals, such as tackling, blocking, charging, and falling on the ball with plenty of kicking and passing. It is Seranton's plan to have the men in condition as quickly as possible so that when Philbrook arrives he may start at once to introduce his own particular system of which nothing is known except that he does not use the Notre Dame shift.

No plans have been made for a scrimmage to close the season, but it is probable that there will be one.

There are 100 teams so far entered in the intramural basketball tournament at Michigan university.

Baseball, Archery To Begin Tuesday

Baseball and archery, the last two W. A. A. sports having a regular, allotted season, will begin next week. The University of Nevada W. A. A. encourages women interested in athletics to come out for these sports. The sign up list will be in the gymnasium the latter part of this week and the first part of next week. Practice starts next Tuesday.

Katherine Priest '30, is manager of baseball and Evelyn Gault '30, is manager of archery, both of which are major W. A. A. sports. The mythical varsity, chosen from those who go out for baseball, plays the professors in a tradition friendly game at the close of the baseball season on the annual spring Play Day, which this year will be May 4. The class archery teams will also shoot their interclass matches on that day.

There are 100 teams so far entered in the intramural basketball tournament at Michigan university.

RIFLE TEAM TO SCHEDULE MEET

The women's varsity rifle team is using this week for practice in order to put its best into the final matches which are being shot off next week. The rifle season ends next week. It is the longest season of any of the W. A. A. sports, lasting from the latter part of November to the first of April. It is also the only sport in which the University of Nevada co-eds participate in intercollegiate matches.

Four matches are scheduled by the women's varsity rifle team for next week. After they are shot off the rating of each member of the varsity and the per cent of matches won by the co-ed squad will be ascertained.

Last week a practice match shot between the men's and women's varsity teams was held, resulting in a victory for the co-eds.

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield!"

Snipe-hunting, as a sport, is rarely indulged in more than once in one life time. For wisdom comes to the eager freshman as he crouches under the chill night sky, holding till dawn a large and very empty bag.

And wisdom comes to the smoker, too, who "holds the bag" until common sense tells him to expect a lot more than mildness in his cig-rettes. Practically all cigarettes are mild—certainly Chesterfields are, but it's the upstanding character, flavor and satisfying taste that put it in a class alone.

Once you've put this "satisfy kind" to the proof you'll have but one reply to future invitations to snipe-hunts:

"Thanks, I'd rather have a Chesterfield!"

Y. W. SECRETARY SPEAKS ABOUT FOREIGN WORK

MISS WIGGIN TELLS OF AID GIVEN DURING WORLD WAR

In her lecture before the students of the University of Nevada, Miss Anne Wiggin, secretary for the International Student Service, pointed out that the World's Student Christian Association had done three big things for the universities of central Europe and that the young men and women of the United States had given their share in the way of financial support, particularly during the war when, for one drive alone, $1,000,000 was raised for the advancement of this international cause.

Starving Students

In saving the universities of central Europe during the World War, a time when the students were literally starving, the conference saved one hundred thousands of students from death. By establishing trades and student enterprises of every imaginable description the International Student's Association made the students of Europe self-supporting. This was something entirely new to Europe and opened up opportunity for young men and women of small means to attend school, where only the moneyed class had been able to get an education before.

That the International Student's Christian Association gave aid to students of enemy countries and saved their universities, was, to Miss Wiggin, one of the biggest achievements of the conference. It went a long way in establishing the feeling of international good will and friendship between the students of all nations, disregarding creeds as well as political and racial differences. "It is marvelous," said Miss Wiggin, "to see young men and women of so many different creeds and nationalities meet and discuss their problems freely and with such good will."

Aid Sought

The conference is now asking the students of America to raise $30,000 in order to help establish a student cafeteria in Paris where poor students may earn their way and buy nourishing food at a low cost; to maintain a hospital in Bulgaria, which is much needed since the recent earthquake, and to give aid to Chinese students who are poor.

Monday afternoon Miss Wiggin met with the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. cabinets and members of the Cosmopolitan club to discuss plans for a drive on the Nevada campus. A tag day was planned and will be held some day next month.

Picnic Supper

A picnic supper Monday evening at Steamboat Springs was attended by Miss Mildred Van Every, Reno Girl Reserve secretary, and members of the University Y. W. C. A. Miss Wiggin left that evening for New York after having spent two months visiting colleges on the coast in an effort to interest them in this drive and the needs of foreign students.

It is possible, Miss Wiggin stated, that the convention of the World's International Student's Christian Association will be held in the United States next year.

Lehenbauer Gives Lantern Slide Talk

P. A. Lehenbauer, professor of botany, spoke to the combined Parent Teachers associations of Reno Wednesday evening at the High School, about landscape gardening. His talk was illustrated with colored lantern slides.

Prof. Lehenbauer delivered the same illustrated talk in Carson City a week ago Wednesday to the Leisure Hour club there.

The first part of the lecture was an explanation as to caring for lawns, shrubs, trees, and flowers in yards. The views, shown in colors, illustrated the difference between well-balanced gardening and trashy or top-sided landscaping.

"Roses" was the subject for the second part of the talk, in which Professor Lehenbauer presented pictures and descriptions of the best varieties for certain purposes. In conclusion, directions were given for pruning trees correctly.

It makes all the difference who you are. A rich man has a hobby, but a poor man is just a crank.

POP OFF VALVE

What's wrong with the sophomore class? This question has been given plenty of publicity in the past month but as yet no one has found the answer.

Last week a notice was posted on the bulletin board requesting the presence of five frosh in the rear of the Aggie building at 1 p. m. the following day. The five frosh kept their appointment but only two sophs put in their appearance.

Needless to say, the president of the sophomore class and his one colleague, who put in their appearance, proceeded to carry out the punishment. It is true that the paddling could not have been done more thoroughly had the entire sophomore class been present.

From time to time during the year we have heard sophomores complaining about upper class interference. Maybe the upperclassmen have done something to make the sophs afraid to wield a paddle; then too maybe they haven't. Anyway, that paddling a few days ago proved that there were at least two sophomores who did not fear frosh, upperclassmen, nor the wielding of a paddle.

No matter how hard one or two men may work they can not hope to enforce Nevada traditions. If these traditions are to be enforced the entire sophomore class must take a hand and show the frosh that they are not fooling. If the class of '31 continues the semester as it has started it will probably be held up to future classes as an example of what not to be like.

SPRING FESTIVAL TO BE APRIL 20

DANCE OF THE STORM IS SPECTACULAR FEATURE

A flight into a fairy-like wonderland will be taken by the dancing classes of the women's physical education department when they present the 1929 Spring Festival, the dancing pageant presented annually by University of Nevada co-eds. With the event set definitely for April 20, practice of the various dances has begun in earnest.

Collaborate on Theme

Miss Elsa Sameth and Miss Dorothy Crandall, former instructor of music on this campus, collaborated on the plans for this year's festival during the Christmas vacation. The theme concerns the adventures of Patsy and Peter who are carried to wonderland on a "sea" of blue sky, perfumed with jasmine.

One of the most spectacular scenes promises to be the dance of the storm, in which thunder, represented by clashing symbols, rain, sunlight, and the rainbow take part. Although most of the numbers will be done by groups, several solo dances by the more advanced students are also planned.

W. A. A. CHOOSES TERM OFFICERS

Election of officers of the Women's Athletic Association for 1929-30, held Tuesday afternoon, resulted as follows: President, Valborg Olsen '30; vice-president, Dora Clover '31; secretary, Dorothy Kallenbach '32; treasurer, Clara Tomlin '31.

Outgoing officers are: President, Ellen Baldwin '29; vice-president, Idel Anderson '30; secretary, Dora Clover '31; treasurer, Mary Weeks '30. The new officers will take over their duties at the first regular W. A. A. meeting.

Nominations made several weeks ago by a committee appointed by the president were announced at the last regular W. A. A. meeting. Up until election time, however, nominations were open and several additional names were added to the list of candidates.

Brewster Adams Speaks to Group

The Cosmopolitan club held a meeting recently at which Brewster Adams spoke. During the evening the following new members were taken into the organization: Bernice Blair '30, Natalie Lippman '31, Marchand Newman '31, Choki Oyana '31 and Margaret Hartman '29.

Last Thursday the club met again, this time at Lincoln Hall where Dean Leach interested the members by a talk on Japan.
