Indications that the semester has almost run its course and that students will be burning the pages from now on getting in late themes, catching up on notebooks, and writing term papers, to say nothing of studying up for the newly installed final examinations are seen in the increasing crowds in the library at all hours.

THANKSGIVING Absence Leaves Unobtainable CALLS STUDENTS

Repairing to their homes to be present around the family festive board when the turkey is brought in, out-of-town members of fraternity and sorority houses and dormitories, besides Reno residents, will forget the cares of college for a four-day interval of feast and merriment this week.

Thursday, November 26, has been proclaimed by President Hoover the national day of Thanksgiving, and in accordance the University will suspend classes on that day and the following Friday and Saturday.

LAKE FROZEN DURING LAST COLD SPELL

Monday night the body of Nevada's most beautiful and prominent member was found silent, cold and immovable. Her formerly beautiful face was ghastly pale and bore scars that gave evidence that her last conscious moments were spent in excruciating pain.

Until last Monday she was the pet of the whole campus, vibrant, happy and deliciously feminine. Her beauty by far surpassed that of any other woman at the University. Many were the toasts to her varied beauty. At times she was moody, at other times gay, and then again her expression, tranquil beyond all reason, gave hints that she knew another life than the one observable by her many friends. They gave hints that her nature was not wholly human and that perhaps she was superhuman and held communion with the elements.

MASS MEETING OF LAST WEEK TERMED FAKE

The campus "mystery mass meeting" which was held in the Gym Friday night turned out to be a mammoth rally, instigated by several upperclassmen and the Sagers. William Ligon, former student at the University of Nevada, was chairman of the mass meeting before it was turned into a rally.

Practically the whole student body was drawn to the gathering by the "Tocsin" posters spread about on the campus Thursday night announcing the assembly.

Ligon opened the meeting with a discussion of prevailing conditions on and around the campus, which ended abruptly when the lights went out and guns were fired in different sections of the Gym. As the lights came on Dean J. C. Jones explained the reason for the shooting and then introduced Bill Blakely as chairman of the rally.

Each man pointed out the importance of school spirit and backing the team, and said "that if the players would go on the field in a fighting mood, there would be no question of a Nevada victory over the University of San Francisco eleven."

THREE CAN'T WEAR CORDS SAYS M.U.C.

Three students who have been wearing cords this semester were warned by the Men's Upperclass Committee today that unless they have secured other wearing apparel by Monday morning they will be subject to an upperclass tubbing at the earliest opportunity.

The men, Graham Kistlingberry, Gene Waller and Chuck Josephs, were notified of the committee findings today as a general part of the investigations into class standings which began when the group was re-organized last week.

President Canton stated yesterday that these three men are not alone, and that other offenders will come in for their share of punishment unless they comply with the A. S. U. N. regulations. He said that the investigation was by no means completed as yet.

Pepper is a former student at Oregon State College at Corvallis, and is making a tour of his fraternity chapters throughout the country. He was scheduled to leave today for the Northwest.

Idel Anderson, '29, who is now teaching in the Ely grammar school, was in Reno for Homecoming day.

Chester Newell, '29, is auditor for the Nevada Life Insurance Corporation.

Claude Smith, '05, was a visitor in Reno and Carson early this month. He is now living in Long Beach.

Bill Howard of the class of '31 is principal of the grammar school at Hawthorne this year.

Co-eds Lag In Love, Says Noted University Man

Women with College Diplomas Make Less Salary Than Those Without

But Sixty Per Cent of College Women Willing to Marry and Get Domestic

Co-eds have a 20 per cent less chance of getting married than have non-campus women, and they earn much less money, according to the findings of Dr. Roy N. Anderson, personnel investigator at Columbia University, who has reached the conclusion that the college girl lags both in love and in business.

Dr. Anderson found that top salary for the woman with a college degree is $1,600, while that for the woman who has never had the so-called "benefits" of a university education was $2,275. Low salary for the college woman, however, was slightly higher than the non-co-ed, the yearly wage being set at $950 and $905 respectively.

Must Learn Business
It is Dr. Anderson's belief that women should learn a profession or a business in addition to their college education, both to make up for their reduced chances in the marital market and to compete with the less learned women. He arrived at this conclusion after a survey of 891 college girls in 225 schools.

Anderson says he thinks that after four years of mental stimulation in classrooms and libraries of institutions of higher learning, after four years of social life on the campus, after four years of specialized study and contact with keen-minded individuals, the college woman must not expect too much by way of a job.

Only from 40 to 60 per cent of the college women marry and settle down to the vocation of a home maker, according to the investigator, who says, "it is a known fact that approximately 80 out of 100 women marry and settle down to the vocation of home maker. Among the college women the percentage who marry is somewhat lower. It has been variously reported as 40 to 60 per cent."

Restriction of the general field into which a college woman might try to enter was one of the things Dr. Anderson held responsible for the failure of the ex-co-eds to compete with business and professional women in the line of salaries. Some jobs will not even be considered, he says, while others will prove to be difficult. He points out that the average college graduate is unwilling to start at the bottom of anything, and this is especially true of the women.

"It is evident that the range of occupation upon which these college women have entered is very restricted," Dr. Anderson comments. "More than half of them have followed the beaten path and aligned themselves with clerical occupations. Jobs in manufacturing and mechanical industries and in domestic and personal service are not considered by college graduates."

Two-Piano Concert Given By Thetas

Presenting a varied program of two-piano numbers to an audience which filled the Century Club to capacity Tuesday night, members of Kappa Alpha Theta were artists and sponsors of the first concert of the winter season in Reno.

According to latest information received from musical centers of the United States, two-piano concerts have achieved considerable popularity recently and most of the programs to be presented this season will be of this type.

The numbers, including selections from both classical and modern schools, were played by Florence Billingham, Mrs. W. E. Clark, Helen Steinmiller, Margaret Martin, Margaret Fuller, Adele Clemons and Denise Denison.

Following the concert a reception was held for attending guests at which members of the sorority presided in evening attire.

Nevada Semenza, '24, is woman's editor on the China Press in Shanghai. While at Nevada she was the first editor of the Desert Wolf, a member of Phi Kappa Phi honorary society, and was the gold medalist of the class of 1924. She was a member of the first class in journalism to be graduated from Nevada. Miss Semenza is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

WOMEN The U. of N. Sagebrush SOCIETY

Co-ed's "Reputation" Is Deliberately Cultivated, Says Visiting Professor

The modern college girl deliberately cultivates the reputation of being a "red hot baby," according to Dr. W. Moulton Marston, visiting professor of psychology at Long Island university.

No college boy is safe from the attacks of co-eds. "Women in taking this so-called 'brazen' attitude," he said, today, "have merely abandoned an age-old pose of 'victorian timidity'."

He believes the sexes have changed their professional status; that the hunted has become the huntress; that men students have more ideas about women than about themselves; that a majority of men prefer to be "unhappy masters" rather than "unhappy slaves." He found that men students consider all women gold diggers at heart, and that the women consider men as "patronizing or egotistical."

Not a single man, the survey shows, wants a "perfect love affair" in preference to a million dollars, but 92 per cent of the women wanted love affairs.—Daily Kansan.

Paul Leonard and Angelo Urrutia, who presented a humorous skit, Lloyd Leonard, accompanied by Mrs. L. Wheeler, played several violin solos.

Following the singing of fraternity songs by the members, the guests were served with refreshments.

Those parents who were honored are Messrs. and Mesdames A. M. Smith, C. A. Beemer, Thor M. Smith, E. E. Umber, J. M. Blakely, F. W. Wilson, L. L. Leonard, C. W. Stark, G. L. Sanford of Carson City, and Mesdames William Cupples, Denver Dickerson, Alonzo Priest, P. Leonard and J. C. Gilmarin.

Engagement Is Announced

pale yellow and lavender and in the center was a large silver "wonder ball" which was later unraveled to reveal the secret. Many university students attended. Esther is a transfer from the College of Pacific where she was prominent in student affairs, being assistant editor of the Pacific Weekly, and a member of the Alpha Theta Tau sorority. Mr. Cleveland, a former student of the University of California, is engaged in contracting in California.
