A revamped Wolves' Frolic, including a 12-piece orchestra, chorus, singing acts, blackouts, and special features will be presented to the townspeople of Fallon tonight at the Fallon Miss MacGillivray said. theater, according to Darrell Berry, who with the aid of Clarence Byrd, is sponsoring the show.

"One reason that we are taking this ON FOOD SOLD trip," Berry said, "is to let outsiders know that we really have a university here in Reno, and show them what we can do."

The main reason for the trip is a result of numerous requests by Fallon people who saw the Frolic homecoming to have it shown there.

"We are not presenting it for personal gain or profit," said Berry, "but for the benefit of the Fallon people who have expressed the desire of seeing the main acts of the show. We are charging just enough to clear ex-

Nevada Makes Last Attempt To Score Conference Victory

A victory-starved pack of Nevada wind up a disappointing season with at least more than one win.

Although hard-hit by injuries, Coach 'Brick" Mitchell's men hope to pull another upset like the St. Mary's game against the Bulldogs in tomorrow's contest. The team has undergone several changes during the past week of vamped lineup.

The probable starting lineup will include: Benson and Dellanoy, ends; Carroll and Showalter, tackles; Haynes and Turner, guards; Cashill, center; Sauer, tailback; Robb and Flournoy, halfbacks; and Samuelson, fullback.

Veterans Back

The Nevada line will be bolstered by the return of two veteran guards, Marvin Turner and Ralph Havnes. Turner, who will complete four years of football service on the Wolf Pack, has been slowed down this season by injuries but can be expected to turn in a real game tomorrow. Haynes is just returning to the lineup, having been confined to the bench all year with an injured knee.

Vic Carroll and Tom Cashill, who are also completing several seasons of representing Nevada on the gridiron, can be counted on to wind up their careers with an outstanding performance against Fresno.

The other two veterans who will be lost by graduation and who will be relied on tomorrow by "Brick" are Harvey Hill and John Flournoy.

A PLEASANT THANKSGIVING

When the Pilgrim Fathers set aside a day of Thanksgiving Court street. years ago, they did not know of course that that day would December meeting will probably be be heralded with joy each year by a small group of students held at the end of this semester or on the western side of the continent attending the University followed by a formal banquet. of Nevada. Although these same students are not thankful for the same reason that the Fathers were, nevertheless the fact woman must be of at least high junior remains that they are thankful.

Thankful for what? some one may inquire. Well first, they course and must be a leader in one are thankful that a few days of rest have broken up the activity and interested in one or more monotony of study and will give them an opportunity to brace themselves for the final mad rush preceding the semester's close. Second, they will be thankful that once again they will be able to see the folks at home and partake of that Thanksgiving dinner, whether it consist of turkey, chicken or just a plain roast of pork. Third, they will offer thanks that they are able to attend good old U. of N., and will rejoice when the vacation, short though it may be, is over.

If that isn't enough to be thankful for, one could expand the list indefinitely. Your pessimist might point out that the football season hasn't been so good, but then we can all be thankful that the Pack defeated St. Mary's. Again someone with a "flunk" in view might point to the dark side of life and ask what he has to be thankful for. A good answer might be that he should be happy that he hasn't failed all his courses. And so on.

There is something, no matter how small, that every student on this campus will find to be thankful for. If he is genuinely thankful, the holiday will have served its purpose and he will come back next week refreshed. Until then the Sagebrush takes this opportunity to wish everyone a pleasant Thanksgiving!

THE LAST GAME

Tomorrow a much battered Wolf Pack plays the final game of a disappointing season, a season marked by injuries, a season in the latter part marred by much grumbling and acid comment by Nevada fans. Gone is the dream of a victorious year, so eagerly looked forward to when the season opened. At this stage of the game little interest is noted in the contest to-

At the beginning of the season the Sagebrush exhorted true Nevadans to "Back the Pack" to the utmost. This has not been "FLIRTATION fought, it deserves whole hearted support, win or lose. These players have tried hard and if they have failed they should be given every credit for their efforts.

The game tomorrow is just as important as any other played so far this season—it is a part of the schedule and should be just as hard-fought as the others have been. And those who profess a love for Nevada should be just as solidly behind that team.

Whatever the causes for Nevada's losses, just bear in mind that the team did not want to lose. Remember that until the season is closed criticism is harmful to team morale. Back it tomorrow, to win, but if it loses, remember it is still your team.

In this last game then, and for the last time for the present @ football season, "BACK THE PACK!"

MORE VANDALISM

It is difficult to believe that an individual with such a poor sense of values as to absolutely mutilate library books could exist in our own small society, yet such is the case. Four expensive scientific volumes have been butchered and are on display in the library, with the following note on them, "Here is what some University of Nevada students do to their library books."

The books destroyed were part of a large set, and were only for use in the library, but evidently some student with a report due and not enough time to read his references, sneaked the books out of the building, heartlessly cut huge sections from them and then brought them back.

Naturally the books now are little more than worthless. They are ruined as to content and binding. Any students who might have need to refer to the clipped articles are now unable to do so because on vandal has taken them for his own selfish

Every member of this student body is vitally interested in the library. When a criminal act like this is committed all suffer indirectly, for the thief is robbing many of the facilities given them for study. Nevada has a fine library, built through painstaking care, and for years maintained on a very slim book fund. When some moron actively destroys its euipment, it means that growth is retarded.

Nothing should be more rigidly enforced on this campus than a wholesome respect for the equipment of our university, Fifty-seven Women Red Cross Pins and any individual discovered committing such an act as destroying valuable library volumes should unceremoniously be expelled from this institution.

AN OLD GRAD DIES

Another old grad has passed. Frederick Stadtmuller, a to Sarah Graves, student manager of LaRue Stark member of the class of 1932—the second class to be graduated that sport. The enrollment is the from the University of Nevada—died last Saturday. He leaves two classmates behind him, out of an original total number of class to maintain their perfect record

His death came as a shock to those of this university who who succeeded in taking one game of ...Robert Nelligan had known him intimately, for they realized that many years a series of three from them. Raymond Frohlich, Robert Creps have passed since this man was a student himself, helping to found this university with his small circle of fellow-students. They realized that the University of Nevada has been fortunate in keeping its sons so long in its family.

"Fred" Stadtmuller's life represents the ideal for which students of Nevada should strive. Coming to our university when it consisted only of Morrill hall, a few sheds and a campus of sagebrush, this man and a handful of others helped to start the fine university that is ours today. His faith has been constant and he has always been loyal. Whenever possible he has helped us on our way.

The university is saddened by the loss of one of its oldest

Pipe tobacco made by the Wellman Process and rough cut as Granger is, does not clog the pipe but stays lit, smokes longer, slower and cooler.

We believe this process is the reason for Granger being milder.

We know it adds something to the flavor and aroma of the good, ripe White Burley Tobacco that cannot be obtained in any other way.

We wish, in some way, we could get every man who smokes a pipe to just try Granger.
