

Co-eds To Select Debating Teams

Representative teams of each sorority will be selected next week for the women's intramural debate tournament with at least six teams expected to enter the competition, Robert Griffin, debate coach, said this week.

"This is the first time in the history of the university that a women's debate tournament has been planned," Griffin said, "and if successful it is likely to become an annual competition."

The question to be debated in the tournament is: "Resolved: That congress should be given the power to establish minimum wages and maximum hours for industry." This is the same question being debated by leading colleges throughout the country.

The competition will start early next semester and the winning team will be selected by a round robin tournament similar to the interfraternity tournament held each year. "As yet no definite trophy has been selected for the winning sorority, but we think that a loving cup will be offered," Griffin concluded.

Sodapop-Hot Dog Sales Reported Financial Success

With all "pop" sold out by the end of the half, sales at the Nevada-Idaho game Friday were unusually successful, Sagen and W. A. A. heads announced this week.

Nineteen dollars, to be used toward a panel in the Artemisia, was cleared on "pop" sales, according to Evamae Beemer, Sagen head, in charge. Working with Miss Beemer in directing the freshmen women who sold were Joyce Cooper and Betty Blum.

Money cleared by W. A. A. will be added to their scholarship fund, Emily Tholl, head of the group, announced. Directing the hot dog sale was Ruth Goldsworthy, assisted by Orpah Morgan and Katherine Luke.

Four freshmen women failing to sell were reported to the women's upper-class committee for punishment.

Debate Activities To Open Tuesday

Debate activities on the campus will be formally opened next Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. when members of the intramural debate squad will meet with Coach Robert Griffin to discuss the proposition to be argued in this year's competition.

According to Griffin, the resolution, "Resolved, that Congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industry," is the topic selected by Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary fraternity for speakers, and will be the subject for inter-collegiate debates throughout the country.

The intramural debate tournament is an annual event between the fraternities on the campus for the perpetual Ginsburg trophy, which is awarded to the fraternity represented by the winning team.

"It is imperative that each fraternity and association on the campus have a representative at next Tuesday's meeting since many important issues will be discussed," Griffin stated.

In competing for the trophy, each fraternity is allowed to enter one team as its representative. The debates will take place late in January in the form of a round robin tournament, and the team winning the most of its debates will be awarded the trophy.

A seminar will be established in the library, where all reference material will be placed for the convenience of the debaters, Griffin reported.

Last year's winners of the trophy were Lewis Pulsipher and Charles Doherty, a split team representing the Beta Kappa and Lambda Chi fraternities, respectively.

BOOKSHOP CLOSES

After making a profit of twenty-three dollars, the Y. W. C. A. bookshop closed last Friday.

Students who were unable to get their money before the shop closed may now get it by applying to Mary Catherine Blakely, manager of the bookshop, she announced today.

Mariana Exhibit Is Well Attended

The exhibit of the works of John Mariana, university graduate with the class of '33, which was shown in the University Fine Arts seminar, was well received by all students and town-folks who viewed the seventeen displayed pictures of the versatile artist, which included several charcoal and colored sketches. Ellen Creek was in charge of the exhibit.

According to Margurite Feutsch, president of the group, another exhibit will be offered on the campus late this month. It is not definitely known whose work will be displayed next.

While an undergraduate on the campus, Mariana played an active part in student life, being editor of the now extinct "Desert Wolf." At the present time he is studying art in the East, where he has been awarded several scholarships for his outstanding work.

Prominent Graduates Visit From Hawaii

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coffin, both prominent graduates of the University of Nevada, left Reno early last week for eastern cities after spending four days visiting friends in Reno and on the campus.

Harold Coffin, 1926 graduate, was editor of the Artemisia and Desert Wolf while attending the university. Since graduating, he has spent nearly ten years in the Hawaiian Islands, reporting for the Honolulu-Star-Bulletin, editing the magazine Hawaii and doing publicity work for the Hawaiian Tourist bureau. Before going to the islands, he served as a reporter on the staff of the San Francisco Chronicle for a short time.

Mrs. Coffin, the former Jane O'Sullivan, is the author of the popular university song, "The Triumph Hymn." She was graduated in 1924.

While on his tour of the larger cities in the east, Coffin will consult editors of leading magazines and publicity directors to gather suggestions for his publicity and editorial work in the islands.

Poetry Contest To Start Nov. 1

The annual women's poetry contest, which is sponsored by Chi Delta Phi, women's honorary literary society, will be held from November 1 to December 1, Nina Boczkiewicz, chairman of the campus poetry contest, announced today.

As a means of stimulating more interest in the contest this year, cards are to be sent to professors of English and presidents of sorority houses, which will acquaint students with the contest.

Two awards will be given, an upper-class award, which is an honorary bid into Chi Delta Phi, and an underclass award of five dollars.

Pan-Hell Dance To Be Postponed

Because a large group of Nevada students plan to attend the Nevada-Cal Aggie game at Woodlands October 17, the Pan-Hellenic dance scheduled for the eighteenth probably will not be held.

Norma Jean Mills, president of the Pan-Hellenic council, said today that the inter-sorority dance will probably be held some time next semester.

Senior Bench By Hall of English Is Scrubbed By Violators Of U. N. Tradition

Eleven Ordered To Present Skit Before A. S. U. N. Meeting In Near Future

Beth Fredrickson and Margaret Turano, junior students, scrubbed the senior bench at 11:25 today as punishment for violation of the tradition that only seniors are allowed to use the bench.

June Bradbury, Vera Beorrigter, Betty Emily, Mildred Smart and Mrs. Joan Lyon were dismissed by the Women's Upperclass Committee after reporting before the committee Thursday afternoon.

Flossie Lou George, Margaret Handley, Myrtle Isbell, Yvonne Johns, De Loma Lorraine McCord and Pauline Tobener will appear Tuesday before the committee for failure to report when summoned to the meeting Thursday. Dorothy Kunch will also appear for sentencing for sitting on the senior bench.

Fourteen women, including two of upper class standing, were summoned before the women's upper class committee Thursday afternoon for having violated campus traditions.

Three were caught sitting on the bench near the English hall reserved for seniors only. As a result the bench was scheduled to receive its first washing of the season this morning at 11:20 with Margaret Turano, Elizabeth Fredrickson, junior students, and Florence Kunch, freshman, wielding the toothbrushes.

Eleven of the violators were ordered to present a group skit before the next meeting of the associated students. Nina Bockkiewicz and Peggy Gill were appointed to supervise the preparation of the skit, in which the following freshmen women have been ordered to participate: June Bradbury, Della Emily, Margaret Handley, Myrtle Isbell, De Loma Lorraine McCord, Yvonne Johns, Mildred Smart, Pauline Tabener, Vera Beorrigter, Flossie Lou George and Mrs. Joan Lyons.

Of the total number, eight were summoned before the board for failure to attend the first meeting of the associated women students; one for not reporting to the committee in charge of hot dog sales at the football game, and two for failure to participate in the sale of pop under the supervision of the Sagens.

Every complaint turned in to Mary Millard, head of the committee, was handled systematically. The name of the violator, place of violation and nature of the violation were listed on the complaint and signed by the woman turning in the name as well as any other persons who may have witnessed the act of violation.

Sororities Plan For Homecoming

Three breakfasts and two lunches are being planned by the six sororities in honor of their alumnae on Homecoming Day. Two open houses for the campus in general were also scheduled at house meetings this week.

Kappa Alpha Theta, Beta Sigma Omicron and Alpha Delta Theta will fete returning alumnae at breakfasts Saturday morning, while Gamma Phi Beta and Delta Delta Alumnae will be the honored guests at luncheons on the same day.

Open houses are planned by Gamma Phi Beta and Tri-Delts. The Gamma Phi will open their house to the campus immediately after the football game, with entertainment lasting until eight o'clock that evening. From five until seven o'clock, a similar function will be held at the Delta Delta house.

Other sorority activities for Homecoming center around the Frolic with coeds from most of the houses taking part in the chorus.

Letter to the Editor

Editor, The Sagebrush:

I don't think the following organizations have been adequately acknowledged for the splendid work they performed during the rally and preparation for and during the game. I refer to the Sagers, Sagens and Blue Key. The rally would have been a sort of "bust" if the Sagens had not been there to hold back the crowd of rooters at the various intersections when yells were given.

The Sagers and Blue Key lined the parking places, sold programs and various other things that helped to make the game and the rally a success.

I would like to use your column to thank these members for their splendid work and cooperation. Thanks.

For Digestion's Sake... Smoke Camels
THE FIRST DAYS of the semester are usually crowded. But Camels help a lot. Camels give you a welcome "lift" in energy—stimulate digestion—bring a sense of well-being. And they never jangle your nerves.
With Camels, mealtime is more pleasant—digestion is stimulated—alkalinity increased
In our busy lives, mealtime is apt to catch us at a disadvantage. We're often under nervous tension and physical strain. As a result, the free flow of digestive fluids is slowed down. How quickly Camels change this. For when you enjoy Camels the digestive fluids are gently and naturally restored to fuller flow. Alkalinity is increased. Time and again, physiological laboratories have checked this welcome effect of smoking Camels.
Camels are mild—you can enjoy them any time. They never jangle your nerves or tire your taste. Camels set you right!

SUBSIDIZED FOOTBALL

"This fall it is estimated that 40 million fans will pay $50,000,000 to college box offices in the most financially successful season the game has ever known. With gigantic profits like these at stake, the March of Time points out that more valuable to their Alma Mater this year than ever are the crowd-drawing football heroes—the few well-publicized youngsters who make college football big business."

The above is an excerpt from a news release recently sent out as part of a campaign to show "the countless underhanded methods of secretly subsidizing crack players."

While it is common knowledge that such practice is carried on in colleges throughout the United States, and that 1936 is perhaps the first year of open subsidization, there seems to be no call to get excited about the matter.

It seems obvious that any organizations engaged in a business of the gargantuan proportions which football has assumed in the past few years would take steps to safeguard their interests.

The decision of thirteen colleges in the Southeastern Conference to adopt a new ruling recognizing athletic ability as a determining factor in the allotment of student loans, jobs and scholarships constituted an admission that the subsidizing of football players was an actual problem too large to be ignored. They chose to accept it, and go on record as openly bidding for the services of capable football players.

But the professionalizing of the player is not the only "evil" the release attacks: "To demonstrate that commercialism is definitely on the upswing, they point to ivy-clad universities like Yale leasing broadcasting rights to their games to commercial sponsors on nationwide networks; to the increase in ballyhooed intersectional games that once were loudly condemned for over-emphasizing amateur sports to collegiate athletic publicity bureaus that are more highly geared today in an effort to attract for their own box-offices the largest possible slice of the season's receipts."

If colleges throughout the United States have seen fit to grant to players a portion of the profits which they have been able to derive from the business of college football, that is their own affair. It is unworthy for colleges to hide their commercialism behind a mask of trickery and deceit, but they have the right to conduct the game on a business basis.

THAT TRAIN RALLY

The train rally held Wednesday noon in honor of Doug Dashiell and the squad, who left for Salem to play Willamette, drew a small and slightly enthusiastic crowd of students down to give the group a rousing send-off.

The spirit displayed by the pep band, under the direction of Assistant Band Director Reuben Tuttle, and Louis Wiener, yell leader, was excellent, as was that of the students who turned out—but where was the rest of the student body?

In spite of the fact that enthusiasm knew no bounds before and after the first game was played and won, it would seem that student indifference is again returning to foster in the minds of the football men an "I don't care" attitude that breeds defeat—not victory.

No squad can be expected to fight to the last ditch for a student body that cares only slightly whether the game is won or lost. Even a team which shows ability must be encouraged to play a clean game to win, and this can only be done by offering whole-hearted support at rallies.

The members of the team have to come home, and it would be an excellent idea if we of the University of Nevada could contrive to meet them at the train—especially if they lose. After all, it is hardly necessary to "cheer up" a team when it wins.

WE'RE NEUTRAL, THANKS

This week the U. of N. Sagebrush begins a campaign to sponsor a straw ballot in an effort to determine the trend of campus political thought. Directly tying in with this comes the hotly-put question from members of both major factions on the Hill: "What party has captured the support of the 'Brush?"

The various editors and staff members have indicated their affiliations—which is as it should be—but they are agreed that the paper shall have a personality of its own, maintaining the right to refrain from "taking sides."

Therefore, the 'Brush is non-partisan, and it conducts the straw vote from an impartial vantage-point of an observer who stands to lose nothing no matter which direction the weight of public opinion casts the die.

The Pedagogue

There is one question involving the psychology of university professors which the Pedagogue has never quite been able to solve. It involves the time that said profs decide the class needs examination.

That in itself isn't so bad. After all, learn something and to be tested upon our knowledge. But what we would like answered is why is it that every instructor on the campus must get the same idea at identically the same time?

Sympathetic students will realize that the writer has just been caught in a maelstrom of quizzes, examinations, reports, and all the rest of the phenomena which go to make up the professor's own particular little "Hell Week."

No, Profs, we are not "gripping" exactly, and we realize that in this lament we are battering our heads against the old stone wall—because professors are just made that way, and they all have the idea that the class they teach is the only one "on the hill."

Well, we can't exactly say we expect to create a revolution with the above words—but we have succeeded in getting a pet piece out of the old system. Now who can we pick on?

Decrepit as your old pal is, he still feels a gratifying sensation using his spine as a racetrack as he notes the show of interest around the campus regarding the return of the frosh drink. The bill may fall through when it comes up for vote, or it may be passed, but in either case, there is a strong odor of battle in the air.

Early in our campaign we swore to be "against" everything that the 'Brush championed, but now we find that the heart over-rides the mind. We join with the editor in helping to put the drink back on the crown of the freshman.

And while we are on the subject of campaigns, it looks to this "mug-wump" as if the major political parties are well under way on their dust-in-the-eyes campaign to capture the campus vote. We are wondering what the campus angle will be in the arguments of both parties. It is supposed that neither will attempt to use the old emotional approach here (university students are supposed to be able to see through that) and as there is no other logical approach for a political argument or speech—well, we still wonder.

Sulphuric fumes are again rising this week over the political no-man's-land; and it seems that the forum and debate (or an equivalent) is all set to go on for the benefit of towns-people and students some night in the near future. Supposed to be a place wherein the speakers may be challenged from the floor of the house, and must be prepared to answer any challenge. We've an idea we could make life miserable for a few politicians—might even go to start some fireworks.

About every so often, some new place, peopled by strange beings, comes through with a new idea on the perfect man or woman. We don't offer any further comments—just give the thing publicity:
I LOVE HIM BECAUSE:
He is interested in hearing about me before he starts talking about himself.

He sends flowers at the proper time and for no good reason at all. He hates girls who talk baby talk. He never thinks I mean things I say I mean but don't.

He keeps me guessing. He knows when I have on a new dress and doesn't know when I have on an old one.

He dances well enough to be interesting and often enough to be worthwhile. Because, Oh Gosh, it's prom season and a girl has to be in love with someone.

I LOVE HER BECAUSE:
She really understands football games.

She tells me I'm handsome when I know darn well I'm not. She doesn't recognize my roommate's clothes when I wear them.

She doesn't ask me if I'm stringing her along when she knows darn well I am.

She says I have that certain some-

Editor, The Sagebrush:
Professor Theodore H. Post is still the director of the University of Nevada band—and will be for some time to come, I and a majority of the students on the campus sincerely hope.

She doesn't agree with me too much.

She keeps me guessing. She is intriguing to other men but is intrigued by me.

Undoubtedly it is one of the finest but the story remains untrue. Reuben Tuttle is the assistant director of the band and is hired only as such. He is a very desirable asset to the band and university as a pep leader. Naturally, he can and does—and is paid to—appear in capacities that would be out of place for a faculty member and a department head. He is not qualified in any way to be a band director of the caliber necessary for a university the size and standing of Nevada.

Professor Post has been at this institution for many years and is recognized as a true leader, musician and composer nationally. The University of Nevada is fortunate in having him as a member of the faculty and director of the university band.

Other stories in the Sagebrush than the one quoted have implied that Professor Post is not the director of the band.

This should definitely be corrected.

Professor Post willingly and beneficially gives a large part of his time to student activities and is an inspiration to true musical work on the part of band members. The Sagebrush should thank him for his admirable work instead of discrediting him.

IN THE SPORTLIGHT

SHORTS ON SPORTS FROM FAR & NEAR

When Nevada meets the football eleven from the Davis farm they will be going up against an experienced outfit. The Aggies are primed to make their football star rise a little higher on the sports horizon and they are twenty-two experienced men.

Among the men returning to uniform this year is Serpa, 182-pound fullback, Schneider, 200-pound left tackle, Peterson, 195-pound guard, and Oatman, 185-pound guard.

The Nevada-Willamette game will be broadcast over KOH tonight starting at nine o'clock. Thank, Fellows.

More evidence of the returning spirit to Nevada is the fair crowds which attend the intramural sports events every night. The horseshoe games and volleyball games draw the bulk of the spectators while some few others drift over to watch the tennis games.

This writer thinks that the affair between Washington State and Stanford is a disgusting exhibition. The gesture that Stanford should have made, even if they did think they had been "cheated," would have been to ignore the incident.

The Indians held the center of the spotlight on the Pacific coast for three years running, it has been a means of lucrative return and has, in fact, supported all other sports at the institution and aided materially in other activities.

It is unfortunate that a complaint of this type should come out. Much has been said about the steady commercializing of football with over $50,000,000 being paid into the turnstiles last year. This move will materially weaken the reputation of the game and people will begin to wonder if after all the game is still for the "Simon Pures."

Add to your list of upsets: St. Marys over California. Washington State beating Stanford.

From the South comes the brain storm of Johnny Calhan, sports editor of the Review-Journal and former university sports writer. It is his pet name for the Wolfpack, which we think is a huge sufficiency but which he calls "Dashie's Dragoons."

High school football was thrown into a muddle when the co-champs of the state, Ely and Sparks, went down to defeat at the hands of Stewart and Carson. Three teams seem to have championship calibre this year. Las Vegas has one of its biggest teams in years and has powerhoused its way to two overwhelming victories. Stewart Indians are holding a favorite position in the field after their win over Ely and Yerington with Polish and Dupratt should be in or near the money.

A little history on Willamette: With little All-American Halfback Johnny Oravec leading the way for the fourth and final year, Willamette won its second straight conference championship in the 1935 season. They were the strongest offensively and defensively in their conference, won the most games and were the only eleven to emerge from the season untied and unbeaten, placing six members of the first string on the annual all-conference eleven. Further honors were brought by the Bearcat star, Oravec, who was named Little All-American halfback and later chosen by popular vote of the nation to play with the collegiate all-stars against the professional champion Detroit Lions. Willamette has nineteen men who are six feet tall or more; Seven men who weigh more than 200 pounds with Stan Peppers, the center, as the heaviest man, with 245 pounds of beef. Seven men have had three years of college experience, five have served for two years and thirteen have seen one year of action. Coach "Spec" Keane has an impressive football record in his ten years at Willamette which any coach would be proud of. His teams have won 33, tied 2 and lost 12, three times winning the conference championship and three times losing no games during the conference season.

Tonight at 9:00 o'clock the Nevada-Willamette football game will be broadcast, the program to be picked up by KOH from one of the Northwest stations and relayed to Nevada audiences.

This will be the fourth time that the Nevada Wolves have combatted their opponents under artificial lights. Their last game was played against College of Pacific three years ago, when Nevada was defeated.

It was announced this week by George Ross, KOH announcer, that all remaining home games would be put on the air over the local station.

Organization of a team will begin tonight, according to Frank Sharpe, Crucible club head.

Athletic Award May Be Dropped By Women's Group

Women's Athletic Association may be forced to discontinue awarding the annual W. A. A. scholarship as a result of financial shortage following a budget cut by finance control, was the statement issued by Emily Tholl, president, following a lengthy meeting of the executive board of the group held yesterday.

The discussion centered around the value of buying equipment to maintain certain activities on the program which will have to be dropped under the present system, and this equipment would have to be purchased with money previously used to pay the scholarship, Miss Tholl said.

The board voted to sponsor the Pataky concert which is scheduled to be held in November. A general meeting was set for Thursday at 4 p. m., in the women's gym.

'Blues' Victorious In Cub Practice

Divided into two teams—blues and whites—the frosh football squad played a full-time game yesterday afternoon on Mackay field, with the blues coming out on the long end of a 25-0 score. Led by Alfred Marone, fullback, and George Deverell, quarterback, the blue team outplayed the whites both in offense and defense, accounting for four touchdowns and one conversion. First counter came when Marone scored on a long pass from Deverell in the first quarter. The only white scoring threat of the game was stopped when they had the ball on the blue eight yard line. Stanley Farris, white fullback, and Ollito Barsanti, who played in the backfield for the blues, both suffered ankle injuries during the game. For the whites, Stott, guard, Sala, end, and McMichael, quarterback, played an outstanding game. Marone was acting captain for the blues, while Chesser acted in that capacity for the whites.

Cubs Victorious Over Placer J. C.

The Wolf Cubs won their first game of the year last Saturday when they pounded out a 26-0 win over a supposedly stronger Placer county junior college team.

Return of players formerly on the injured list when the frosh met Lassen two weeks ago, together with extensive defensive and offensive practice, had it result in the lop-sided margin of victory. The Auburn boys were unable to crash through the stubborn forward wall of the yearlings, while the wide-open style of play featured by the visitors seemingly bewildered the Placer team.

The frosh will not play again until October 17 as a result of an open date on their schedule. The yearlings will be out for revenge at their next game, since they will oppose their old rivals, Lassen Junior College. Susanville has been the only eleven to defeat a freshman team in the last two years, coming out on the long end of the score in the only game played last year and in the first game of this season.

250 Men Enrolled For Army Training

The 1936-37 University of Nevada R.O.T.C. corps is the largest and best equipped unit of its kind in the history of the school, Captain H. W. Isbell, cadet commandant, said this week.

Enrollment figures on file in the captain's office show that there has been an increase in the number of students taking military training each year since 1932. The close of registration this year, however, showed a total of 250 men, or an increase of 25 per cent over the record enrollment of last year.

"The school as a whole will be materially benefited this year by this banner R.O.T.C. enrollment," Captain Isbell said. We have fulfilled the army agreement, which states briefly that any student R.O.T.C. group in which 250 men or more are enrolled is entitled to 25 new band instruments. I am happy to say that the requisition has already been sent in and the instruments should arrive in the near future. The clause also states that an additional instructor should be added to the military staff. This is, however, just a probability."

Other innovations this semester will include wide leather belts to replace the old canvas web ones, and new distinctive arm insignia. The new belts will be much easier to clean and will look smarter.

The arm insignias, which will be worn on the left arm just below the shoulder, are the creation of Captain Isbell.

They are in the form of an outline of the map of Nevada in blue, with a wolf's head in the center, and a yellow scroll above, on which is inscribed in black letters the words, "Battle Born." The insignia is very colorful and will serve to distinguish the uniforms of the Nevada cadets.

Creps Addresses Sagers Meeting

Robert Creps, graduate manager, was guest speaker last night at the Sagers dinner meeting held at the Lambda Chi Alpha house.

Immediately after the dinner, President Doherty called the meeting to order and Creps was called on to speak to the group. Creps stated that he was pleased with the progress of the organization. Several years ago, he said, he was on the committee to draw up a constitution for a junior Blue Key organization. The group was called the Sagers.

He said that he had sort of grown up with the group and this year the Sagers, so far, have reached the peak for activities. The Sagers were complimented by Creps for their good work during the game and rally. In conclusion, he asked the Sagers to keep the good work up.

After the talk, regular business was discussed. Charles Doherty thanked the boys for turning out at each call for work.

Ellis Ceander Leaves For Eastern School

Ellis Ceander, electrical engineering graduate with last year's class, left Reno Thursday night for Washington, D. C., where he has accepted a position with the Rural Electrification administration.

Ceander, who is making the trip east on the "City of San Francisco," will attend a school in Washington for eleven and a half months where he will study problems of electrification. Ceander will be paid a salary by the federal government while he attends this school.

At the end of the training period he will be employed in an advanced position by the administration.

Campus Demos Organize Club

Meeting last Tuesday night under the temporary chairmanship of Sherwin Garside, the supporters of President Roosevelt organized the Campus Democrats, a group formed to work for the election of the Democratic party.

Joe Cleary was made president, Sherwin Garside vice-president, Lewis Pulpipher secretary and Bob Miller publicity director. A guiding committee composed of Vernon Wines and Walter States was also elected at the meeting.

According to President Cleary, the first activity of the newly formed club will be a smoker and get-together to be held next Tuesday night in the Lyons building at 8 o'clock.

"This get-together is the first of a series of planned activities by the club and all men and women on the campus are cordially invited to attend regardless of party affiliation," Cleary stated. "Refreshments will be served at the meeting."

Young Republicans Register Members

Three weeks of campaign activity by the campus chapter of the "Landon for President" club has resulted in the registration of approximately 50 new members.

A committee composed of Charles Doherty, Kenneth Tedford and Norrison Beatty forms the nucleus of the drive being carried on by the entire organization to register every young Republican on the campus.

According to Tedford, vice chairman of the club, the signing of the Republican pledge cards has met with a greater response than was anticipated, and a continuation of the membership drive should find the number of new members more than doubled.

"We are planning several speeches and other activities between now and November 3 and extend a hearty invitation to all those who are interested in promoting the election of Landon for president to join our organization," Tedford reported.
