Boardman Explains
"A few conflicts will result from attempting to follow this schedule pro-at the same hour. In such a case the instructor in the Firday class should make special arrangement for that student if he can not shift the whole class to a period avoiding all conflicts. For another example: Supposing an instructor has one class meeting on Monday at a certain hour and another class on Wednesday-Friday at the same nour; if one or more students are in both classes he should arrange another hour for the examination in the Monday class. If no student is in both and acquaint themselves with the subat the same time and place.

ing at different hours on different days he shall give only one examination in that subject, preferably using the period corresponding to the hour when two books upon the country and, haymeets the class the greater number

"Fewer examinations are scheduled for most of the periods of December 20-21-22 than for the other examination days so probably some of these periods can be used to relieve conflicts and to

'In general, specially arranged examinations should be given during the regular examination week if possible. By mutual agreement of class and instructor such a specially arranged examination may be held on some evening of examination week," Boardman Calif

Independents Plan Active Semester at Meeting Monday

The organized Independents held a mbined social and business meeting Monday night. Dancing was the order of the evening and at the end of the meeting chocolate and cake were served as refreshments.

President Dick Roche asked that all members please pay their dues even if "they have to do it in installments." He also announced that, beginning with next semester, strict measures would be taken with those who did not keep their dues paid up.

Roche suggested that a Christmas party be held to finish the semester "with a bang" and asked that the members think it over and give any suggestions or ideas to Dorence Jones chairman of the social committee.

The next meeting will be a business meeting in room 109 Aggie building, Monday, December 5. All members are asked to attend.

Some folks listed as missing probably could be found at a bridge tournament.

Coed Upperclass Group To Meet Monday for Further Action

Helene Hudspeth and Dorothy Bowers, who were called before the women's upperclass committee last week but failed to carry out the terms of the punishment given them at that time, will have to take part in the one-act play which the two-time offenders listed last week will put on, Betty Kornmayer, chairman of the committee, said today.

The play will be used for entertain ment at the next student body meeting, which probably will be held some time next month, Kornmayer stated.

Campus-cutters were called before the committee Monday, but because there were only three days of school this week they will be punished a week from Friday instead of today.

Kornmayer stated that the com mittee will meet next Monday in the A. S. U. N. building, at which time all of offenders consist mainly of campus-cutters, their punishment will take the form of hair-ribbons, discarded makeup, and signs bearing the inscription, "I cut campus," Kornmayer said.

Downtown Sporting Store To Aid in Repairs On Range

Possibility that rifle marksmanship will be resumed at Nevada loomed this week with the announcement of a downtown sporting goods store that it would assist in repairs needed to make the rifle range safe for fire.

Despite the efforts of military authorities to procure funds for improve ments of the range, no action has been taken by the university and the barracks remain banned as dangerous.

Range Condemned The range, located on the top floor of the building, was condemned by the military department because of the absence of bullet stops behind the targets. Several heavy sheets of steel will be required to stop the lead.

Rifle marksmanship, a leading minor sport at Nevada, has been delayed but will get under way with the reconstruc-tion of the range.

BLOCK N SOCIETY WILL SPONSOR DANCE DEC. 3

Arrangements for a Block N dance were made last week at a meeting of the Block N society in the Mackay training quarters.

The dance will be held December 3 according to present plans, Fred Galloway, head of the organization, said. The affair will be the first undertaking of this sort by the society in several years.

The committee to work on the selection of an all-state prep school football team was also appointed. The selections should be complete in about two weeks, Galloway said.

The group discussed and decided to adopt a recognition key which will be worn by all members in the future. The keys will be purchased through an initiation fee which will be charged to new members. Changes necessary in the present constitution were explained to the group by Galloway. Definite action will be taken by the group at a later meeting. The group decided, however, to levy a charge of 25 cents on all members who were absent from meetings without a suitable excuse Discussion was held whether or not the Block N society should longer sponsor a state high school track meet in the spring. Definite action will be taken by the group at the next meeting.

Meetings of the society probably will be held in the Block N room of the training quarters, Galloway said. The room originally was intended

The editorials in the University of Nevada Sagebrush express the thoughts of the editor of the publication and make no pretense of being the barometer of the sentiment of the University of Nevada student body or administration. All editorials are written by the editor unless signed otherwise.

THE NEVADA STATE JOURNAL

last Sunday reprinted an editorial from the Reese River Reveille of Austin. The editorial was entitled "What Is the Matter With the University of Nevada?'

The Sagebrush believes that the editorial is erring and many of the pertinent points brought out by the editorial are not points at all and would not have been written by a person who is very familiar with the University of Nevada.

However, this piece of penmanship was written by a citizen of the state of Nevada and printed in newspapers which are circulated throughout the state of Nevada. If the article in the Reese River Reveille is an indication of what people not so close to the university think, then it is little wonder that the university has not progressed farther than it has. In an effort to right whatever mistaken views the people who read and believed in the Reveille's editorial might have obtained, the Sagebrush humbly tries to answer some of the viewpoints that the University of Nevada as an instrument for the general higher education and cultural improvement of the young men and women of very large sums of money, in proportion to the population and taxable defeated unless the second one is also defeated. property of the state which is expended upon it.

Now, Mr. Reese River, what justification have you for saying that the university is not accomplishing its purpose? Have you anything besides a mass of newspaper clippings concerning the activities of a football team to justify your claims? Are you considering the university as one thousand students or as forty or fifty students?

And another thing: What large sums of money are being spent on the University of Nevada? The press agents of the state have us believing that the state is in the best financial condition of any state in the union, and yet, when the question of funds for the maintenance of the university is broached, the inevitable answer is, "Well, consider the fact that Nevada is not as well populated as other states. We can't stanford. afford to put out any more money." This from citizens that boast that THEIR state is out of the red and sound financially.

Secondly, the state paper states, perhaps merely pouring oil on the waters, that the institution has turned out many brilliant and highly useful graduates but that . . . "general society in the state is suffering that it can do one thing (Of course this from the very mediocre attainments of many of the graduates of the

This department would like to see Mr. Reese River point out any graduate, and tell that graduate that his efforts in life are mediocre. we make use of it at all times. Thus Perhaps the writer of the editorial is judging the graduates by his own we must have a column regardless. Now, attainments. If so, we are sure that Mr. Reese River finds the whole of course, a column has to be written state of Nevada very mediocre.

Again the editorial states that the trouble is with the institution and not with the boys and girls of Nevada who make up the student body. Then, however, it states that they often enter the university unprepared because of the incompetent and inefficient teachers the university turns out to teach in the high schools of the state.

Have you consulted any of the principals of the high schools in the state, Mr. Reese River, and asked them how inefficient and incompetent these boys and girls of Nevada are who formerly made up the endeavors on the margins of your notebody of the University of Nevada's students? It certainly is strange book paper—so-o-o-! body of the University of Nevada's students? It certainly is strange of how paper of the university of Nevada's students? It certainly is strange of how paper of to the said educator's proficiency cannot perceive that the student is incompetent to be teaching in a high school.

Again, the Reveille states that one of the troubles of the university is its location and that it should be moved somewhere else. Might we ask if any special new location could be considered unless it is some site entirely out of the state. We all know, don't we, that when the legislature passes a law it is in force throughout the state of Nevada and not just in Reno? Or do we?

The Reveille states that the university tries to cover too much educational ground. Whose fault is that? If the people of the state want a university that will teach the children of the state, then the university must be diversified. If it is not with many educational facilities then the cry is heard, "Why should I send — to the University of Nevada? He can't get what he wants there. Besides, it's nothing but a little one-horse institution.

The writer then strikes at the over-expansion of social and athletic activity. The editorial says, "In this it is foolishly emulating other and larger institutions serving an entirely different element of people.' Well, well! The Sagebrush is interested in knowing now whether the people of Nevada are the desirable or undesirable element.

Continuing the editorial: "The University of Nevada should serve only those desiring the serious pursuits of knowledge. There are too many fraternities, sororities, social clubs and social events of every sort at our university

Perhaps the writer is right. Maybe the fraternities, sororities, social clubs, dances, athletic events, service clubs, and publications which take up a great deal of the student's time should be abolished. But this, however, leaves a serious problem—that of co-education. But, perhaps, an imaginary line could be drawn down the center of the campus with the convent situated to the right of the line and the monastery to the left.

One other point: The editorial states, "It has too large a faculty and gives them too much to do." That is quite an accomplishment in itself. If there is too large a faculty then certainly the faculty must enjoy a certain amount of leisure time. But, nevertheless, with such a large faculty (too large for the university, remember) still the faculty has too much to do. The statement obviously is self-contra-

The Sagebrush hopes that these few points have been cleared to the reader's satisfaction. However, we suggest that the reader obtain a copy of the Reese River editorial reprinted in the Journal last Sunday and read the editorial for himself. Anyone reading it with an analytical mind can see that it is contradictory and vague.

The Sagebrush also hopes that this year when the university is The Sagebrush also hopes that this year when the university is the possibility that intercollegiate athtrying to work towards further achievements that the people of the state do not rush headlong to conclusions—that they will not believe next few years, thus allowing an opportall rumor and hearsay, but that they will work intelligently toward athletic set-up, and consequently betthe erection of a finer, new University of Nevada—a University of tering the spirit of the student body Nevada that will do a great deal towards a real "ONE SOUND as a whole (we hope).

The first amendment deals with the allotment of class funds. It says that the class allotments of the junior and senior classes should wood) just won't put anything down be 50 cents from each junior and senior student fee while the class in a coherent form.

Oh well, even the best of them fail allotments of the sophomores and freshmen should be 25 cents from to have ideas at times. Take Einstein, for example: He hasn't spouted off in the underclass allotments.

The Sagebrush can see no good reason why this amendment should not be passed. Certainly the action will give the central treasury more trekked up the campus that the good money with which to use in helping support activities on the campus. fairies or some such creatures The money in the past has been used rather unwisely and generally a good deal of it has been squandered on class dances.

The underclasses do not need the money which they are alloted. They can combine and give an underclass dance which would relieve an overcrowded social calendar and at the same time they would have be continued—but with a little more enough money to give as lavish a dance as they pleased.

The junior class needs enough money to give two dances during the year—the Junior Prom and the Senior Ball. The senior class should have enough money in its treasury to buy a respectable senior gift.

The second amendment deals exclusively with the forensics or debate squad of the university. The amendment states that 35c of each student's fee shall go towards defraying forensic expenses.

It is the Sagebrush's observation that if the first amendment is passed that there will be enough money in the central treasury to cover such a forensic fund. However, if the students pass the second amend-In the first place, the Reveille says: "We have long been convinced ment but defeat the first there will not be enough money in the treasury for the board of finance control to allot to the debate team.

Have you ever wondered what would happen if all intercollegiate athletic contests were closed to the public? Try it some time; you'll be surprised at the conclusions you reach.

Imagine a stadium, not a large one, just big enough to hold the rooters of two schools. There is no admission charge because the team isn't expect to to support the entire student body. You can enjoy the game without a pro gram because you already know who's playing, so what the devil!

Sagers Upset Powerful Blue Keyers In Campus 'Big Game' of the Season

Mackay field again was the scene of a spectacular gridiron classic last Saturday norning when the Sagers downed the Blue Keyers, 6 to 0. The game, although touch-tackle, featured hard blocking and fast running. John Sala and Leonard Carpenter of the regular varsity played for the Blue Key team, and their weight, in gof the commanders and adjutants height and experience helped to keep the score down. Playing even ball, neither team scored until the fourth quarter, when Etchemendy, Sager tailback, heaved

Hartman and Ross Return to Duties From Convention

Creel, Buckman and Doten Also Attend Annual Conclave

Acting President Leon W. Hartman and Chairman Silas E. Ross of the board of regents returned to Reno last Friday night after attending the annual convention of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities held in Chicago November 9 to 16.

Cecil W. Creel, president of the land-grant association and head of the extension division of the University of Nevada; Thomas Buckman, assistant director of agricultural extension work; and S. B. Doten, head of the gricultural experiment station, also attended the convention.

Universities Conclave In addition to the land-grant gathering, Hartman also attended the annual convention of National Association of State Universities, at which questions relating to university administration and accrediting problems were discussed and studied.

"President Creel was warmly praised by the land-grant group for his fine work as head of that organization, and special thanks were extended the University of Nevada for granting Creek resity of Nevada for granting Creef-freedom in the execution of his presi-dential duties," Hartman said.

'The attending alumni members were emphatic in expressing their deep interest in the University of Nevada," Hartman added, in praising the group.

Clark Honored

At the final meeting of the National Association of State Universities, ex-President Walter E. Clark was extended an honorary lifetime membership by the association as tribute to his many years of service, Hartman explained.

Invitations for the 1939 meeting were received from Los Angeles, Atlanta and Washington, D. C., but a definite selection was delayed for the present by the executive committee.

Aptitude Tests Show Frosh Average Higher Than Nevada Sophomores Grade

The air of superiority manifested by the present sophomore class over the supposedly uninformed crop of freshman is entirely out of place, judging from results of the psychological test given to all new students at the beginning of the semester. Final tabulation of the scores in the test shows this year's frosh with an average of 75, while the class of '41 tallied only 70. Marks of the test this year ranged all the way from a low of 29 points to the high of 121 out of a possible score of 150.
