ENGINEER GROUP PLANS CONCLAVE AT UNIVERSITY

Many Schools to Attend Conclave Here Dec. 28, 29, 30

The Pacific southwest section of the Society for the Promotion of Engineer ing Education will hold its eighth annual convention at the University of dents are enjoying the annual Christmas vacation.

Besides the University of Nevada other member schools of the society who will be represented at the threeday conclave are University of Southern California, Stanford University, Los Angeles City College, California Institute of Technology and the Universities of Arizona, Utah and California.

The Society for the Promotion of En gineering Education is a national institution composed of professors of engineering in the different colleges and universities of the country. The purpose of this group is to improve the teaching of the profession in schools and to raise the standards of all institutions offering courses in it.

Dean Frederick H. Sibley is the chairman of the Pacific southwest section of this society and is in charge of the arrangements for the local convention Other University of Nevada faculty members assisting Dean Sibley are Pro fessors J. A. Carpenter, S. G. Palmer I. J. Sandorf and W. O. Wagner.

The ladies' committee is headed by Mrs. F. H. Sibley. She will be assisted by Mesdames J. A. Carpenter, S. G. Palmer, W. O. Wagner and I. J. San-

The tentative program schedules discussions and addresses by prominent educators in the field of engineering University of Nevada professors will take important parts in the three-day conclave. Dean Sibley will preside at the first session, which will be held in the mair lecture room of Mackay science hall. At noon of the first day of the meet ing an informal luncheon will be held at the Golden Hotel, at which time the wives of the delegates will be enter tained at another luncheon at the home of Mrs. J. A. Carpenter.

Dr. Leon W. Hartman, president of the University of Nevada, will extend the official greetings of the university

Dean Fred W. Traner of the school of education of the University of Nevada will also address the group. His subject will be "Trends in American Edu cation. Primary and Secondary.

At the third session, scheduled for Friday morning, Dec. 29, Professor I. J. Sandorf will speak to the delegates on "Some Effects of the Accrediting

'In Relation to Registration of Engineers" is the topic of a discussion in which Dean Sibley will play a prom

President Leon W. Hartman will again address the group at an informal ban quet which will be held at the Hotel El Cortez Friday evening, Dec. 29.

The convention will close Saturday afternoon, Dec. 30, with an excursion to local points of interest.

William Friel Wins

Writing Contest

William Friel's freshman English theme, "Lost or Strayed," was selected by Professor A. E. Hill, head of the English department, as the prize-winning theme in the monthly contest sponsored by the U. of N. Sagebrush.

Every month the best theme is chosen from a group submitted by all fresh man English classes and a prize i awarded to the writer. The prize this month is the novel "The Nazarene," by Sholem Asch.

The winning theme is published or page two of this issue of the Sagebrush.

Publication Banquet

Members of the publications board and the heads of the campus publica tions held a banquet last night at Carlan's Inn.

The following were present: Cleora Campbell, Jack Rhoades, Frank Schu-macher, Sue Hicks, Clarence Heckethorn, Jean Harris, Ross Ashley, Gyneth Strom, Tony Yriberry, Margaret John- day night in St. Stephen's chapel for

AND TOMORROW WE GIVE THANKS

As far as we can gather, from all reliable sources, tomorrow is Thanksgiving day . . . at last! We were just a little bit jealous (likewise confused) to see all of our friends from California colleges arriving home last week . lounging around while we were still dutifully attending classes. But our day has finally come . tomorrow we will all sit down to a royal feast of turkey, cranberry sauce, turkey, mashed potatoes, plum pudding, turkey, pumpkin pie, and, best of all—TURKEY!!

Reno's going to look mighty deserted when the liveliest part of its population takes off for various points throughout Nevada in fact, several of the wellknown establishments serving coke, ETC., will probably have to shut down for the next four days.

This year, though, Thanksgiving vacation means more to us students than usual . . . not only a four-day week-end . . . but one of those memorable trips to Stockton! . . . and from what we hear, it's going to be QUITE a

Monday morning is going to be a bad day to start reviewing for those exams . . . (OOH . . . who mentioned finals?) . . . we expect to see a tired, happy, thankful and (we hope) victorious stu-dent body trooping cheerfully back to class come Dec. 4 looking just as fresh and bright as though they had had three hours' sleep over the holidays!

Nevada Debaters Plan For Spring

Coach Pleased With Squad's Showing In Recent Tournament

Debate Coach Robert Griffin, highy pleased with the showing made by the Nevada team at the recent interscholastic debate tournament in Stockon, this week announced an enlarged schedule of events for the varsity and first year members of the squad during

First on the schedule is participation n the annual western states spring urnament, to be held in Redlands California, some time in the early spring. As many debaters as finances vill allow will make the trip.

The outstanding orators and debaters of the campus will take part in the Pacific Forensic League meet, which will be held in Corvallis, Oregon, at Oregon State university. Entries are and consequently only the best from each university will take part. Neada's representatives are as yet unseected, but Robert Joy, who reached the inals in last year's competition, will probably make the trip as one of the ontestants. The College of Pacific's debate team will meet the Nevada varsity squad in Reno next spring. The Pacific squad vill continue to the Pi Kappa Delta debates in Tennessee, after meeting the U. of N.

University of Nevada debaters will conclude a busy fall semester next week with completion of the intra-mural depate tourney. The tournament ,scheduled for the entire week following the Thanksgiving recess, includes debates between the various fraternities and sororitiy teams at the university.

The Nevada squad may receive several strong additions upon completion of the intra-mural debates next week. Coach Griffin indicated. Most of the entries are an unknown quality, and conse quently little is known of their abiilty "The primary purpose of intra-mural debate is to develop speakers on the campus," Coach Griffin said. "It also regard to positions on the varsity

Campus Club Plans Dinner For Sunday

Next Sunday night, the Campus Club of St. Stephen's chapel will entertain the St. Stephen's young people with a dinner in the Federated church parlors. Miss Mary Moore ,secretary of the Western Coast Board of Foreign Misions from New York City, will be the guest speaker. The Campus Club meets every Suna general discussion hour.

CARNIVAL FATE TO BE MADE BY

Pending the action of the Board of Athletic Control, the fate of the University of Nevada Ski Carnival and tournament is still uncertain.

At the last student senate meeting the group approved the ski carnival as First Scrimmage of Year a student body activity provided the board of athletic control would handle the ski tournament. The Board of Athletic Control has postponed action on the ski tournament until further information can be gained on the financial setup.

Before any action can be taken ingard to the ski carnival, the Board of Athletic Control must render its deci-

Should the Board be forced to exclude the tournament from the University's athletic program because of financial reasons, then the action of the senate to include the carnival as a school activity will be nullified.

All work has been stopped until action on the outcome of Nevada's big "snow frolic" is definite.

However, no matter what the outcome is on the board's action, Nevada will still hold its annual ski event. If the tournament and carnival are again held as outside activities, support will have to come from local merchants and townspeople.

R. Stewart Tells Convention

Dean Robert Stewart of the college of agriculture who recently attended the 1939 convention of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities held Nov. 15 to 17 in Washington, D. C., stated that he considered the proposed combination engineering-agriculure course as the most important issue discussed at the meeting.

This course was proposed in view of the new qualifications being required of college agricultural schoo lgraduates wishing to secure jobs with the government of the United States.

The course provides that the student should spend his first four years majoring in the college of agriculture and also obtaining the fundamentals of the college agricultural school graduates a fifth year entirely to the school of engineering, thus obtaining a course combining the outstanding elements of

Other problems discussed, Dean Stewart said, were the increase in the college years required for graduation, new types of teaching methods and gradlate work, while a speech was given by Secretary Henry Wallace on soil erosion and a general session of all visisiting groups was held.

The meeting represented the annual get-together of some 400 delegates who came from over the United States to W. Creel, director of agricultural extension, and other university officials al-

Scabbard, Blade Initiation Planned

Twenty-four junior officers of the R.O.T.C. battalion will spend a weary night pacing the campus streets Tuesday night as a phase of their introducion into Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military society.

The initiates will be required to know various infantry drill regulations as a part of the initiation. They will halt everyone who passes on thecampus with the cry of "Halt! Who goes there?" From seven p. m. until seven a. m. they will tour the campus.

The officer of the day will be Dallas Downs, and Raymond Garamendi will be sergeant of the guard. Corporals of the guard will be Bill Casey, Ralston Hawkins, and Leland Strauch.

The privates of the guard are Bill Andrews, Darrell Birch, James Barrett Phillip Carroll, Mitchell Cobeaga, William Cochran, Lee Conaway, Nick Evasovic, James Gibbs, John Giomi, Stanley Hill, Charles Jones, Robert McDonough, Gilbert Morehouse, Nick Pappas, Perry Pollock, John Severne, Mark Stewart, Jess Tranter, Eugene Williams and Henry Morehead.

The supernumeroes of the guard will be Fank Claus and Jack Wittwer.

On Dec. 10, Olinto Barsanti, cadet, first lieutenant, and chairman of the initiates' committee, has made tentative plans to hold a banquet at Carlan's. ciety and their guests will be invited.

BOARD DECISION VARSITY SHOWS

Very Encouraging, Coach Says

Coach Frank Schuchardt's 1940 varsity basketball squad ran through its riod and to give the song team more first scrimmage of the season Monday night as the results of three weeks of rigorous training began to show in the air. condition of the team as a whole.

The scrimmage revealed a lot of things. First, it showed that the fans ing and uses for its theme, typical Neand students who marveled loud and long at the training routine Coach Aiken sent his footballers through "ain't seen nothin' yet," if the condition the hoop squad was in is any indication of the training schedule they've been through. Like Aiken's gridmen, they showed, though the scrimmage was brief, that whatever else it is, this year's Nevada basketball team is going to be in as close to top physical condition as it's possible to get.

"I'd like anyone that has any basketball in him at all and is eligible for varsity play to turn out for the sport," said Schuchardt yesterday in an appeal for more material. "This situation is far from being cut and dried, and none of the men now out are at all sure of a starting Schuchardt said that all men interested in turning out for varsity play should report to the gym at 4 p. m. on Monday, Dec. 4. Freshman candidates should report at 6 p. m. on the same day and junior varsity men at 7:30.

Second, it showed that again like the footballers, the basketball team is going to base its entire type of play this winter on solid fundamentals, precision and teamwork. Schuchardt has drilled the men on ball handling and footwork almost exclusively for the last three weeks, and such training is bound to bear fruit.

Veteran Element

Third, it showed that there's just nough of the veteran and letterman element on the squad to hold the greener men together. John Radovich, the giant center; Gordon Thompson, steady forward; John Etchemendy, flashy little down-court man, and Ted Olsen, one of the best defensive guards ever to perform at Nevada, provide all the experience the squad needs. In addition, John Lemich, Lee Conaway and John Mayse all played enough ball to crowding the older veterans plenty.

"I like the way these kids play basketball and I like their attitude," said periors, and even though the culpr continued. Being a master of understatement, that may mean a lot coming from him.

Defense Strong

Sixth, it showed that the Wolves are going to be a real defensive combination this season. Schuchardt can put a quintet on the floor that averages well over six feet two, and every man of it will be capable of playing strong defensive, as well as offensive ball. A lot of the drills the squad has run through so far have emphasized the importance of protecting the home basket, and that showed in the type of ball played in the scrimmage

High Morale

And seventh, it showed the same attitude and team morale the football team has displayed all fall. The different combinations worked easily and smoothly together for such early season play and individual starring was almost entirely absent.

The Wolves open their season here on Jan. 5 and 6 with the Gaels of St.

Comedy Production Scheduled Dec. 5

The curtain will go up at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the education auditorium on the first of three performances of Clifford Goldsmith's "What A Life" as presented by the University Play Productions department. Student body cards will be good for admission any of the three nights.

Thanksgiving gives the cast a tem porary rest from the routine of re-hearsale, Director Edwin Semenza having let them go home for three of the four day vacation period. Dress rehearsals for the play will be held in the education building on Sunday and Monday evenings.

The plot deals with the difficulties of a mis-placed high school boy, Henry Aldrich, portrayed by Grant Sawyer who does not seem to become accus tomed to life in a typical American secondary school.

Far Western Conference To Be Awarded Winner Of Stockton Game

Nevada's Wolf Pack today predicted a win over College of Pacific when the two team clash Saturday at Stockton. Coach Jim Aiken indicated that the Wolves might beat the Bengal Tigers when he said, "We're not expected to win this game, but every team, no matter how poor, is always due for at elast one upset a year. Title at Stake

A win over Pacific would make the Pack holders of the Far Western conference title—an honor they have not had since 1933. This is the only conference football championship Nevada has ever had; the Wolves tied San Jose State for the crown in 1932.

Bob Robinett, first-string center, assured Nevada of a win by stating "We're going to win.

Barsanti Speaks

Lint Barsanti, varsity guard, backed up the prediction by saying, "I think we'll beat them; we're due, I know."
"I think we've got a good chance for an upset," Halfback Mitch Cobeaga said, if any team ever did have.

Clyde Vinson, the Nevada fullback who made San Jose take notice, said the Wolves had the best chance in years to beat COP.

"I feel that Nevada is going in there to fight," Guard Wes Schlager said, 'and I believe we're all set." Polish Optimistic John Polish, the triple-threat back who has been suffering off and on with an injured knee since September, said,

'I think we can beat them. They haven't any more of a football team than we have, anyway.' 'We are going to play a good team but we're good too,' said Halfback Frank Beloso, "and we'll settle our score of Riley Lee, center, said, "Looks to me like the boys are going to come through and pull the upset of the year by beating the best team in the conference. To Settle Old Score

"It's my opinion that COP is going to be a mighty sad bunch after the game Saturday. We've got an old (sore) core to settle, said Earl Brooks, guard. "We've got a score to settle with those rune pickers down thar and we'll do

Theme For Junior Prom Is Announced

The theme for the 1939 junior prom will be "Father Time Dances." Frank McCulloch, prom chairman, announced Monday. This idea will be worked out by using a large clock as the centerpiece, with streamers radiating from it on which will be placed the number of the dance played.

A complete program of entertainment has been planned to provide an inter-lude between dances. The entertainment will consist of dancing and sing-

Tickets were released for campus sale Monday and sales are reported as being fair, considering the fact that two weeks remain until the dance. Representatives of fraternities who wish to enter the ticket sales contest are requested to contact Jack Pieri, publiciy manager of the prom. The date bureau which was installed recently to provide dates for the more reticent of the campus males is enjoying a huge success," Pieri announced "and our lists are now so complete that we are able to fill all orders, whether for blondes, brunettes or redheads. THEME OF THE MONTH

I see a boy, as from a long distance. The boy, working, studying, hoping laughing, fearing, running, despairing, playing, reading, looking at some of life and living the rest of it. A young boy he is, a schoolboy, a high-school boy Not much study, too busy living, acting, playing games, thinking largely.
And dreaming—silly dreams of tomorrow, and how fully he would live it, the things he would do, and be, and see,

A quiet boy; the noises are all inside him. A friendly boy, for he likes peo-ple, just because they are alive and human and real. A moody boy, sometimes with tremendous, flaring anger at shallowness, at dirt and obscenity, at arrogance, boastfulness, stupidity, at all the world's mistakes. A sincere boy, with deep beliefs in God and human nature, the goodness of each and the greatness of both. And this, he told himself, was enough. Believe in these two things and you have two anchors to hold on to and cling to in times of stress. Good. Life was good. Life was simple, too. Two beliefs, one life to live as fully and as beautifully as possible

But even then, disturbances filtered through his consciousness. Race prejudice, a mad dog in Germany, oppression in much of the world. These angered him. Wrong, he would tell him self, all wrong. This wasn't what God wanted, men at each other's throats, ready to quench life's flame. Wrong all wrong. And this mad dog, and these other men who had come to rule people, what about them? Aren't they humans? And didn't I decide upon the fundamental goodness of human nature? And then he would explain to himself, these are only a few, the inevitable black sheep among the white, the filth among the cleanliness. Sure, things are all right, just a bit unsettled. Forget it, work, play, live.

But doubt was there, now. Some germ had been planted, and left to grow. Doubt where there had been pure faith in his anchors. And he felt this doubt tugging at the back of his mind and he didn't know quite what it was, or how to do away with it. And there it was. But he pushed it back, shrugged it off. Go on and live, he said, what are these things to you?

And so he went on living, and growing, and he began looking around more, understand more. In looking he saw filth, and greed, and slime; lewd glances, frowsy stories, a man looking at a woman and the woman looking back. And he saw people, the drunkards and the disease-stricken; cab-drivers and miners, and shop-girls, and housewives, and street walkers; and in seeing he began to understand, to know. Hold tight, he said, hold tight to those an-

Things began to happen faster to the boy, growing up, learning—what school had to teach, and much that it did not. He was afraid, and he learned to conquer it. He was poor, and he cared very much, but in growing up it bothered him less and less. He began No unanswerable questions, no fears, to want-beauty, and security, and

KING TURKEY WINS BATTLE OVER EXAMINATIONS

A battle between conscience and turkey has been waged in all the out-of-state U. of N. students during the past

Thanksgiving being celebrated in ome states on Nov. 23 has caused a onflict in schedules which has resulted in a considerable amount of confusion

Students have been trying to decide whether it is worthwhile to cut classes so near the end of the semester in order to celebrate Thanksgiving.

In nine cases out of ten, conscience lost the battle, while turkey won in a walk. Not even the most conscientious scholar would so readily relinquish this annual feast, even for the sake of future final examinations.

Not only the price of food and the type of window-shades but even college women's fashions have been influenced by the present European war Vogue's Paris Broadcast said, for in-

Even such novelties as spats have made their appearance on the Paris streets, not to mention high rubber

War or no war, however, formal eve ning dress continues to take its cue from the Paris collections. At the recent fashion premieres, famous designers each presented his or her style of the moment. Piguet's pailleted sweater and long broadcloth skirt was described as the perfect war-time evening costume, as was Schiaparelli's convertible formal, which can be drawn up into a bustle effect for wear as a shorter dress during the day. Molyneaux's collection emphasized fullskirted taffetas of only ankle length. Jersey or chiffon full evening dress with classical draped bodice was presented by Lelong.

New ideas in hats include Agnes' wool lace turbans; Descat's quilted jersey berets: Suzy's wool mesh turban snoods and Schiaparelli's stocking caps, described as "gnomes' "caps.

THE RESTORATION

Sometimes things happen which restore the faith of even the worst pessimists in the human race and students at the University of Nevada

Such a restoration took place last week when the students showed so conclusively that they were level-headed enough, unselfish enough, and far-sighted enough to overwhelmingly pass the two amendments which officially created the Board of Athletic Control and provided for the raise in the student fee. If the margin by which the measures had passed had been small, indicating half-hearted and desultory support, the future administration of athletics on the campus would have been inevitably the same. No function of a student body can be successfully and vigorously executed without the complete and vigorous support of that student body, and the count last Friday seems to clearly indicate that the

Again, if the customary three or four hundred voters that usually have sufficient energy and interest in their school to make up its electorate had again been left to do the deciding for the entire university, it would have indicated that the apathy of which we've been accused so many times by outside sources was not imaginary but very real. Nearly 80 per cent of the entire voting body turned out and rolled up a record that has never been equalled in the past and probably won't be rivalled for some time in the future. A comforting situation for members of the Board itself as well as for active supporters of the admendments.

It's going to be nice in future years, if you're on the wrestling squad, let's say, not to have to pay your own transportation costs, your own meal costs, in fact the costs of everything but the admission to the show you're putting on. It's going to be nice, likewise, not to have to wear track shoes broken out at the seams or sweat suits torn and ripped from stem to stern by years of use. And above all, it's going to be nice to do whatever you do in the way of athletics with the knowledge that your particular sport is no longer a cast-off orphan but a recognized, school-supported

That kind of thing can lead to lots of surprising and pleasing results if it's nursed carefully along the right paths. During the course of the semester there have been rumors, slight and vague, To the Editor to be sure, but cropping up often enough to insure that they must have some basis, that there was a 'new spirit' at Nevada. At times it looked as though that spirit were going to break into something active, but nothing definite occurred until this last amendment The results of that vote showed beyond a shadow of a doubt that the fundamental something that it takes to make a school spirit that is visible to the naked eye is present in Nevada students in great quantities.

Who knows? If this thing keeps growing and eventually springs off the solid foundation it has already set up, we might have something here that every Nevada student can be justly proud of.

Anyway, we think it's the advent of a new era, given life and brought into actual existence when the new amendments rode to their smashing victory-F. M.

SHOULD WE BE THANKFUL?

Nevada students have a great deal to be thankful for this annual holiday of 1939 which will be celebrated tomorrow.

First, and probably most apparent, we have a football team, rebuilt and brought up from the very depths of destrruction, that has given the university the best record since 1933. We will definitely have a new gym next fall, and if congress appropriates public works administration funds in January, the university will be able to construct a gym equal to any on Thirdly, Nevada has a great debate team this year, as evidenced by the showing the squad made last week at Stockton, Calif.

We can join in thankfulness that the student body and service organizations, allthough slow to start, are beginning to show some of that old school spirit that prevailed back in 1936. The result of the election last week, too, is another thing that we should all join in thankfulness for. The passing of the amendments, without a doubt, is the most constructive thing the students have done for the past four years. The fact that today is the last day of school until next Monday is another thing, for without the next four days, how could we prepare for those difficult examinations we have been promised?

And last but not least, thank God the 'Brush is finally out . .

Letters to the Editor

A serious problem has come before us girls in Manzanita and Artemisia halls concerning a refund of our board mon-Business Manager ey during Thanksgiving holidays. We sincerely hope you will be able to help us with our problem.

We in Artemisia hall get awfully, awfully homesick weekends and vacation times. Now, Heckie, how would like to stay in this cold, dreary hall and eat gow-house food on Thanksgiving day when all your friends are at nome enjoying hot turkey and dressing fireside gatherings, Momma and Pop pa, and all the rest of the trimmings Well, we wouldn't like it either!

We girls are forced to eat at the gow ouse and pay our $25 a month board even though we feel the urge so seldom to gobble a few mouthfuls of that food. The boys, on the other hand, are free as the wind; they can eat when and where they want to, or even eat at the gow-house one week and lav off the next. How do they rate?

Now for our problem: As we have home Thanksgiving. Many of us are leaving Wednesday morning, and it nearly breaks our hearts to think we will miss all of five days of gow-house food. Nevertheless, we think we could stand not eating there if we were allowed a refund for five days. It seem that seven days is the shortest possibl time for which to secure any board Stenographers money for absence. That seems ridiculous when so many of us will be absent Circulation from the two halls to charge us the full amount. Goodness, how we would like to have that extra bit of jingle to finance our trips home.

But no, the money cannot be obtained. Think of those chefs, only having a few hungry mouths to feed over the weekend, and the food they will save also Probably there will be all of 20 people satisfying their hungry selves at the gow-house for the vacation period. Less good will be consumed, therefore, less money put out for provisions, and it all oils down to the refund which should be given to students over that period In a way it is lucky there aren't more our-or-five-day vacations, for our parents might raise a fuss over the money they must pay out at the gow-hous when their loving children are home eating to their hearts' content. At this rate the gow-house is making money Should this be? We thought this or ganization was for the convenience of the students rather than a money-makng proposition. Could we be wrong?

Editor Heckie, could you enlighten us? This is rather an irking proolem. The more we think about it the more irked we become. Perhaps we had better stop, suppose so? As yet, we still have our sweet natures under control, but for how long?

We want a refund over Thanksgiving vacation. We whole-heartedly believe we should receive at least a portion of being there. We really aren't Scotch, Heckie, but a few treasured shekels would surely come in handy over the week-end. We have heard that you help little girls with their problems; that is why we are appealing to you very ear-We are sure that you could persuade Dean Mack and Miss Garrion to see this growing problem in the right light. Here's good luck! We'll always love you for your co-

F. R. and M.

Editor's Note: Dean Margaret Mack informs me that there is a possibility that you girls may receive a refund, but that must be decided by President Leon Hartman when he returns. In the meantime, Miss Mack has no authority to give a refund because the catalogue specifically states that a student must miss at least a week's board before receiving a refund.

Once upon a time there were three men (?) who weren't so very wise. days a week, in the student union building, and the rest of the time they spent shaking their fingers under each others' noses.

Now one day these three unwise men met on the campus, and being very stupid and tactless, they decided to hold a contest. Oly Glusovich, the new proprietor of the Wolf Den, had invented a new drink composed of Nesbitt's orange and ice cream, it seems and they—the stoops, that is—decided to help the Count along by giving the that they had already christened it a "slisher," though that meant nothing to anybody and made everybody feel slightly billous when related to refreshments.

"I'll make the box," said the tall one, nearly jabbing out the eyes of the other two with the extended forefinger. And

"I'll make the sign," said the round one, poking the tall one in the tummy, since he couldn't reach him in any other place. And he did.

"I'll tell Glusovich that he's going to give the winner of the thing a carton of cigarettes," said the skinny one, he being the business brains (another question mark) of the outfit, And HE did. too.

So after a great deal of finger-shaking and "drats" and "bilges" they ran Oly down behind his counter and at the point of three fingers forced his compliance in the affair.

Came the week of the contest and the names poured in by the dozens while the three unwise men proclaimed would be fair and impartial, giving equal consideration to all. When the night cast a fearful glance in the direction

WHAT WE THINK

By JACK RHOADES The Big Game

C. O. P. vs. Nevada. This game will determine the outcome of the Far-Western Conference title. The fellows can remember that October day last year when the Wolf Pack was beaten 51-0. You can bet your last dollar that it won't be that score this year. The squad is in better physical and mental condition now than any time this season and team spirit is at a record peak. Even the students are behind the Pack 100 per cent. Many followers of the team expect to make the trip to Stock to in the hope of seeing a new conference champion in football.

Basketball

The local broadcasting station may broadcast the basketball games this winter to give the basketball followers a chance to hear the local games. Each year only a very few people are permitted to see the games, due to the size of the "cracker box gym", and therefore the many spectators who would like to see the games but can't will be taken care of over the radio.

The New Amendment

The happiest man on the campus Friday was Joe McDonnell, graduate manager. He stated that Nevada car now look for an upward trend in athletics. The vote showed that the students are finally behind the new ath letic program. Whether a good footbal team brought this about, or the fea that football at Nevada would remain at the low ebb it has been for the past few years is not known, but we are sure that it will not be regretted.

Poor Elsie!

After traveling 'way down to Lo Angeles, she didn't get to lead the parade. It seems that the girls who were first chosen to do the job didn't like it because a first-class majorette migh show them the better points of the art and so the girls went on strike. O course the committee couldn't stand for this and the only way to solve the prob lem was to let the girls lead the parade

Nine members of the Pack will be playing their last game against C. O. P. this Saturday. Four or five of them will probably start the game. In picking Nevada to win this big game, we are thinking of these nine players and what they will give in the way of fight and everything else that a man gives in the last football game of his college career. If Nevada plays ball like it did against B. Y. U. the Pack will win

Survey Shows How NEVADA DID MUCH FOR UNITED STATES IN LAST WORLD WAR College Grads Do

By BRYN ARMSTRONG

Nevada, true to its tradition of being a battle-born state, did much toward insuring the success of the United States during the course of its participation in the World War.

This state played a major part in the drive for funds during the campaign of the Student War Friendship Fund drive, contributing a total of $2,-926.90. This total divided among 260 students and faculty members, gave Nevada an average of $11.20, which was a national record.

The following achievements were also listed among Nevada's accomplishments: first to enlist quota of men; to subscribe to quota of Liberty Bonds; was the only state in the union to fill draft quota without a penny of expense to the United States government.

Many of the members of the faculty saw service under their country's flag in almost every branch of military service. Professor E. A. Sutherland of the home economics department, was an officer in the engineering corps of the second division, which saw service overseas. He was wounded four times and received two citations. Professor F. C. Murgotten of the foreign language department was with the British army in Paelstine and also taught French to the British soldiers slated for duty in the Far East. Professor Louis Titus of the department of agriculture served as a non-commissioned officer in the 144th field artillery, which served overseas and was wounded in the line of duty. Professor Jim Coleman of the P. E. faculty was an officer in the 40th infantry, 14th division, but did not serve in France. Professor Paul Harwood, English professor, served with the 81st field artillery in the 8th division, and was in active service overseas.

A. L. Higginbotham, professor of journalism, served in the students' army training corps while in school at Oberlin college in Ohio. Jack Ryan, instructor in shop practice, also served with the students' training corps, as did Clarence Thornton, lecturer in the college of agriculture. Nevada men also saw service with the navy, as Thomas E. Buckman of the agriculture extension division, who served as an electrician on a mine sweeper operating in gett, Ray Frazer, Betty Cochran, Jack

Dean Robert Stewart, head of the college of agriculture, is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and served in Turano Emilie Turano Bob Cameron, the Philippine Islands with the 1st Utah Barbara Dickerson, Nevio Rosa, Sybil regiment of the field artillery. Brig- Furchner, John Etchemendy, Vernon adier-General Hines, U. S. army, was another member of the same contingent. He was also a member of the detachment that landed on Wake Island and raised the flag of the United States in Mary Kornmayer, Dorothy Cole and Members of the factulty who served only in the United States include Professor C. E. Spencer, officer of the 343rd infantry, and Professor L. R. Vawter, who served with the veterinary corps.

Eleven per cent of the alumni out of college eight years report earnings of from $4,000 to $5,000 or more, while 11 per cent receive $1,500 or less. The survey revealed nursing and teaching among the best paid occupations for

Most important single item in the whole survey, however, is the account of how students obtained their first positions—half of the placement of the nation's graduates in their first jobs as wage earners was contributed to personal initiative plus experience before graduation. The theory is given that a higher percentage of men and women who had maintained good health and had to work part time through their four years of college, possessed a higher degree of personal initiative

On the basis of the survey, it would seem that students who content themselves with mere routine of class attendance, notwithstanding their scolastic records, reduce exactly one-half their chances of obtaining a job. It is the student who takes part in extracurricular activities who makes the most of every opportunity on and off the campus to gain experience in the ways of modern life, who can be pretty sure of finding a place in the outside world after leaving the classroom.
