Two changes in the headquarters personnel of the 9th corps area took place recently, according to a report from the military department.

Lieutenant General Albert L. Bowley, former commander of the 4th army, and the 9th corps area, retired from the army on Nov. 30.

SKIERS PARADE TO BE INCLUDED FOR CARNIVAL

A skiers' parade through downtown Reno Friday, Feb. 2, will be included in the schedule of events of the second annual Nevada Snow Carnival, according to announcement by Joe McDonald, chairman.

The schedule will follow much the same order as last year's event, McDonald said, with several added attractions, including an appearance by Elsie Crabtree, former student of the U. of N., whose baton-twirling has gained her nationwide recognition. Miss Crabtree will make her debut as a skier Sunday, Feb. 4, at Galena Creek.

Fraternity and sorority members are being contacted in an effort to secure their cooperation in providing open houses for all contestants and spectators. A contest in house decoration is also being planned.

Many Schools Invited
Invitations to compete in the tournament have been mailed to 25 universities throughout the United States. Colleges included in the list are most of the coast schools, Reed College in Oregon, Idaho University, Montana, Utah and Dartmouth University.

"Definite arrangements have been made for a contest to elect a Snow Queen who will preside over the snow frolic which will be held in the state building as a climax to the festivities," McDonald said. He also announced that a series of skiers' meetings would be called and ways to improve the Carnival would be discussed.

McDonald is being assisted by Pat Meaker, Jim Gibbs, Ray Garamendi, Bob Cameron, Jack Pieri, Don Downs, Ted Knoph and Glen Keiser.

A complete schedule covering social and competitive events is being prepared; all will be released at an early date, McDonald said.

Juniors Give Annual Prom Saturday Eve

"Junior Time," with its unusual decorations, arrived on wings of music last Saturday when the annual prom was presented at the state building.

Music for the occasion consisted of songs which had as their theme darkness, daylight and the hours in between, and included such favorites as "Darkness on the Delta," "When It's Nighttime in Nevada," "Let's Stop the Clock" and others, both sweet and swinging, classic and popular.

Andrea Anderson and the Theta quartet provided a musical interlude singing "Marie," "Chiribin" and "I Cried for You," and Lee Strauch entertained by singing "Scatterbrain."

The hall was decorated with huge clocks on which was shown the number of the dance being played, while streamers tied to pennants gave the names of the songs.

Music was supplied by Les Leggett leading a ten-piece orchestra.

PROMISE SHOWN BY WOLF PACK IN SCRIMMAGES

Y. M. C. A. Trounced Tuesday
As Varsity Displays
Aggressiveness

Coach Charles Schuchardt's fast-breaking, aggressive varsity hoop squad finished off its first week of active scrimmage Tuesday night by pasting a very thorough thumping on the Y. M. C. A. quintet of the local city league, and then sat back and took a two-day lay-off for the inauguration ceremonies.

The Wolves showed enough against the Y aggregation to leave their supporters with a lot more than faint hopes for a better-than-average season. In the first place, they're going to be a very aggressive basketball team in every sense of the word. They break hard and fast, they follow every ball off each backboard as though it were the one that the game depended on, and they start and end the game at a pace that can only be held up because they're absolute tops in physical condition.

True, they were pretty rough in spots Tuesday night in missing more lay-ups than they should of, in their occasional ragged ball handling, and in their defensive work, but every one of those faults was no more than just what it appeared to be—early season over-eagerness and not enough practice together.

Schuchardt himself, though not over-enthusiastic about the showing, was pretty well satisfied at that, describing the raggedness as being a natural result of the first real scrimmage of the year.

"These kids may not win all the games on their schedule this season," Schuey said, "but I'll guarantee one thing—they'll be darn pleasing to watch every minute of every game, because they'll never let down for an instant at any time."

The varied offense that Schuchardt employs, combining a nerve-tingling fast break with a series of more or less set plays, showed plenty of promise through the rough edges Tuesday night.

Thompson, Cobeaga, Etchemendy, Radovich and John Mayse rolled up 11 points in the first quarter, though they could have easily doubled that, had they made a reasonable percentage of the set-up shots they had. Cobeaga and Mayse played defensive guards, while Etchemendy and Mayse handled the guard posts on the offense with Cobeaga moving up to "Little Etch's" spot at forward.

High Scorers
In the second quarter, another team of Blake Speers, Bob Hawley, Bob Taylor, Gus Edwards and Jim McNabney took over, and though they didn't break away for quite as many shots as the first combination, they made what they did have count a lot more, and scored a total of 16 points before the half. When it's taken into account that the quarters were only five minutes in length, some idea can be gathered as to the speed with which the squad as a whole plays.

Other state officials, including the members of the legislature, will be present to extend greetings to Dr. Hartman on his inauguration day.

Senator Key Pittman, Senator Patric McCarran, and Congressman James G. Scruggan, Nevada's representative in congress, have been invited to join in the inaugural event.

As judge of the federal district court for Nevada, as well as representative of the University of Nevada and the institution's oldest living alumnus, Frank H. Norcross will be among those in attendance, as will Miles A. Pike, federal district attorney for Nevada.

Former Governor Richard Kirman and his family and Mrs. Emmet D. Boyle, widow of the late governor, have been extended special invitations.

All of the district judges in the state, as well as high school superintendents and principals and Washoe county officials have been asked to attend, and many of them are expected.

Members of the state boards of education and of vocational education have been tendered a special invitation because of their connection with education in the state, as has Miss Mildred Bray, state superintendent of instruction, and the state deputy superintendents of public instruction.

Otis Welsch, director of the Tonopah School of Mines and Industry, will be present on behalf of that institution.

Representing the University of Nevada alumni association, Angelo Urrutia, its president, and Mrs. Louise B. Lewers, its secretary, will march in the academic procession.

Miss Gertrude Freeman, acting president of the Associated Students of the University of Nevada, will take part in the procession on behalf of the entire student body. She will be accompanied by Miss Reveau Hanson, secretary of the student body.

DR. HARTMAN IS SIXTH U. N. HEAD

History of Presidents
Show Great Progress
At University

Five educators have held the position of president of the University of Nevada. Tomorrow Dr. Leon W. Hartman officially will be the sixth to hold the position at this state's only university.

President Hartman succeeds Walter E. Clark who held the post from 1917 until October of last year, when he was forced to retire because of ill health.

President Clark came to the university from the College of the City of New York, where he served 16 years on the faculty after being graduated from Ohio Wesleyan and Columbia universities.

Three years after President Clark took control of the university, it was placed on the approved list of the Association of American Universities. A general beautification of the campus also took place during this period, much of the surrounding desert being reclaimed and planted in grass and shrubbery.

In 1917, the university employed 54 regular instructors, whereas at the close of President Clark's career, more than 80 faculty members were on the staff.

Serving the shortest term of the six presidents, Arthur W. Hendrick, graduate of the University of Toronto, came to Nevada in 1917 to guide the destiny of the university for three years. This period was characterized by a general modernization of the university.

Joseph Edward Stubbs preceded President Hendrick, being inaugurated in 1894 and serving the university for 20 years. His administration was characterized by increased academic standards and enlargement of the campus.

Many needed buildings were added, and the university began to take on the aspects of older colleges.

From 1890 until 1894, Stephen A. Jones occupied the president's position, and he has been serving as acting director for the past month.

Dr. C. R. Hicks, associate professor of history, was permitted to act as public representative and chairman of the Nevada apprenticeship council. The appointment was made at the request of R. N. Gibson, state labor commissioner.

Service Groups, Military Officers, To Participate In Elaborate Fete

Nevada students will take an important part in the inauguration of Leon W. Hartman as the sixth president of the University of Nevada tomorrow.

Aside from those actually participating in the ceremonies, many are expected to attend as guests. The committee in charge invited all students to be present at the formal ceremonies on the campus and in the gymnasium tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Leaves of Absence Granted By Board

Oecil W. Creel, director of the agricultural extension bureau, was granted a year's leave of absence by the board of regents at the meeting held today. He will assume an executive position with the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities in Washington, D. C., at the first of the year.

An appointment of a successor to Creel will be made in the near future. The title of this position will be acting director of the bureau.

Eva Adams, instructor in English, was given a year's leave of absence to assume the position of private secretary to Senator P. A. McCarran.

Announcement was made of the election of Prof. J. A. Carpenter to the directorship of the Mackay School of Mines. He has been serving as acting director for the past month.

Dr. C. R. Hicks, associate professor of history, was permitted to act as public representative and chairman of the Nevada apprenticeship council. The appointment was made at the request of R. N. Gibson, state labor commissioner.

Accompanying the vocal group will be the University-Community orchestra, which will also play the processional march "Triumph". Both musical organizations are under the direction of Professor Theodore Post, head of the university music department.

All cadet officers of the university ROTC battalion will take part in the event as student marshalls, guides, color guards, and ushers.

Two color guards will be present, one bearing the university flag, and the other the state colors.

Both will be carried by cadet officers and ROTC graduates.

This affair will be sponsored by the faculty and regents, and Gertrude Freeman will perform the introductions as acting student body president.

The number of universities and colleges which will send official representatives to the inauguration was swelled to over 80 when several institutions accepted the invitation early this week.

Of these, 40 come from the University of Nevada faculty, who were delegated by their alma maters to extend greetings and congratulations to the newly-inaugurated president.

Formal Ceremony
The formal ceremony will begin at 9:30 a. m. and last approximately two hours. Dr. Monroe E. Deutsch, vice-president and provost of the University of California, will deliver the principal address, speaking on "The University and the People".

The program will be broadcast by station KOH in Reno from 10:00 until 12 o'clock, Merle Snyder, University of Nevada student will act as commentator.

In the event the seating capacity of the gymnasium is exceeded, radios will be available in both the Education building and Mackay Science hall auditoriums for those unable to find seats in the gymnasium.

Outlining his future policy at the University of Nevada, President Hartman will deliver a speech. He will discuss his policies concerning the proposed raise in scholastic standards.

He will also tell the audience of his attitude toward inter-collegiate athletics, faculty-student relationship, alumni-university association, and university finances.

DID YOU EVER SEE A BELL WALKING?

Gone with the wind and back only the lord knows how!

That's the story of Nevada's famed rally bell, brought back from the College of Pacific, when the Wolves beat the Bengals, 8-0, on Dec. 2.

The bell, which had been placed in the Sigma Nu house for safe-keeping before presentation to the student body next week, apparently grew legs and walked out of the fraternity house last Saturday night.

No one knows how it went—in fact no one knew it was gone until Monday night. Threats flew thick and fast, and scouting parties took stealthy surveys of other Greek domiciles, but to no avail.

Then, at the stroke of midnight last night a phone bell tinkled eerily in the silence of the Sigma Nu house. "Your bell's in the senate room of the A. S. U. N. building," said a mysterious voice. The phone clicked off, and a group of frantic "Snakes" rushed for the promised land.

There, in all its bi-colored glory, was the bell, as the voice had promised. Sigma Nus promise that the student body will be next to get it.

Ferguson, Mann, Win Debate Cup

Cooke and Lattin Lose In Final Clash Of Tourney

The team of Warren Ferguson and Kenneth Mann was proclaimed winner of the intra-mural debate tournament this week when it defeated the team of Tom Cooke and Bill Lattin in a close contest.

Meeting in the education auditorium Monday night, the two teams clashed in the final debate of the tournament, with the team of Cooke and Lattin upholding the affirmative side and Ferguson and Mann arguing the negative.

As a climax to "one of the most successful debate tournaments yet held on the campus," according to Professor Robert S. Griffin, debate coach, the winners will be presented with the coveted Ginsburg revolving trophy.

Two years ago the trophy was won by the team of Bob Parker and Andrew Rosachi, while last year the winners were Bill Casey and James Driscoll. This is the fifth year that the trophy has been presented to a winning team.

Competition was strong in the tournament with six teams entered. Winding up in second place by virtue of four wins and two defeats is the team of Cooke and Lattin. Third place is a tie between the teams of Eli Nickovich and Clifton Young, and Cameron Batjer and Mary Arentz, each credited with three wins and two defeats.

In fourth place is the team of Darrel Birch and Jack Streter, with one win and four defeats, followed by Fred McIntyre and Artemus Ham with five defeats.

Each team this year met with at least one defeat.

Judges for the tournament were members of the varsity debate squad. The question used in the tournament, and also the one being used by varsity squads in Pacific Coast competition is: "Resolved, That the United States Should Adopt a (Strict Economic and Military) Isolation Policy Toward All Nations Outside the Western Hemisphere Engaged in Armed International or Civil Conflict."

R. H. IVORY SPEAKS

R. H. Ivory, personnel director of the Standard Oil Company of California, spoke to the members of the commerce club at the meeting last week.

Ivory made a special trip from San Francisco to outline for the students the personnel methods of the Standard Oil Co.

After Ivory spoke the meeting was adjourned to the home of Dr. E. L. Inwood, where a Christmas party was held.

Seniors May Take Civil Service Tests

Four seniors of the college of agriculture who will graduate this month are eligible to take the consolidated civil service examinations for appointment to junior positions in the U. S. department of agriculture, Dean Robert Stewart said today.

The four students who may take the examinations are Earl Brooks, James McDonald, Duane Collins and Walter Christensen, Dean Stewart stated.

The consolidated civil service examination, which was given a trial for the first time last year, has been so successful that the civil service commission plans to make it an annual affair.

Examinations will be given the latter part of February or in early March and students passing them will be eligible for appointment to positions about July 1.

During 1939, there was a great demand, particularly for eligible applicants to fill the positions of veterinarians, engineers and administrative technicians, and the demand for junior professional workers is expected to continued through 1940.

Dormitories to Be Closed Next Week

Manzanita and Artemisia, women's dormitories, will close shortly after Friday, last day of final examinations next week, Miss Margaret E. Mack, dean of women and supervisor of the halls, said today.

"As nearly all students leave for home during the Christmas vacation, the dormitories are always closed at this time," Dean Mack said. Those students not going home must go elsewhere for the holidays, as they will not be allowed to stay in the halls, it was declared.

All first-year women from out of town are required to live in the halls for the freshman period.

Hartmans To Give Tea For Students

A special part in the inauguration of Dr. Leon Wilson Hartman as president of the University of Nevada has been provided for the students at the institution, Dean Robert Stewart, chairman of the inaugural committee, announced.

Sponsored by the board of regents and the university faculty, a reception will be held from 3:30 to 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, to enable the students personally to meet the new president and his wife.

As acting president of the Associated Students of the University of Nevada, Miss Gertrude Freeman will introduce the students to Dr. and Mrs. Hartman.

Dr. Hartman has expressed the wish to become acquainted personally with all the students, and the regents and faculty have arranged the occasion for a personal introduction on the day he is inaugurated as president.

Miss Ruth Pray, assisted by members from the home economics department, will take charge of the tea service and planning. The students who will help her are Mary Arentz, Caroline Best, Helen Cameron, Dorothy School-ey, June Bradbury, Marie Borsini, Virginia Crofut, June Drake, Edna Pflum, Mary Urrutia, Alice Wade, and Luana Whipple.

Music for the affair is being arranged by Professor Theodore Post of the department of music.

Many organizations plan to attend the affair as a body.

Charles Warren, '35, who now owns a chain of restaurants in Oakland, California, was a recent visitor to the campus. While in college he was affiliated with Lambda Chi Alpha, was a member of Blue Key, Coffin and Key, and served as varsity track manager.

Cobeaga Elected Lambda Chi Head

Mitchell Cobeaga, junior in the college of arts and science, was elected president of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity Monday at the regular meeting in the chapter house.

Harley Harmon was re-elected treasurer; Bryn Armstrong was named secretary, replacing James Perkins, and Jim Betts was elected as sergeant-at-arms, replacing John Russell.

Other officers are: Buddy Williams, re-elected as social chairman, and Cyril Ham, who succeeds himself as house manager.

All officers will hold their positions through the fall semester of 1940.

INITIATION RITES HELD FOR TAUS

The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity held a formal initiation for Mike Miskulin, Emery Conaway, Nick Pappas, Peter Rosaschi and Kirk Day Sunday at the chapter house.

The initiating officers were George Friedhoff, Frank Rosaschi, Andy Rosaschi, George Basta, Peter Kelley, Ralston Hawkins and Arthur Kinneberg.

Following the initiation a banquet was held at the chapter house. James Aiken, Charles Schuhardt, James Bailey and Dean R. C. Thompson were honored guests.

U. N. Professors Speak To Parents

Two speakers from the University of Nevada school of education addressed teachers and parents last week.

"Newer Practices in Method and Curriculum" were outlined Wednesday in Yerington by Dean W. F. Traner of the school of education at a meeting of Lyon county teachers.

The meeting was called to discuss what could be done to increase the worth of the teachers' institute to the teachers of the state of Nevada.

Sixty teachers from Hawthorne, Fernley, Dayton and Yerington, half of whom were University of Nevada graduates, attended.

The new methods of discipline were contrasted with the old by Professor

J. P. Puffinbarger in one of two addresses to the Fallon PTA Friday.

Compelling a child to conform by means of threats, bribery, ridicule and embarrassment is giving away to the more modern idea of instilling a sense of responsibility, he stated.

Puffinbarger declared that helping the child help himself, rather than declining for him, does much the older method fails to do.

In his second talk the effect of home background on school children was told Fallon parents.

The University of Nevada public relations committee is furnishing the speakers for the meeting of the Fallon elementary school PTA.

Nevada Students Take Part In Show

Many University of Nevada students will take part this year in the fourth annual presentation of "The Messiah" in Reno on the evening of Dec. 20 in the state building. One hundred and fifty persons in all will participate in the performance.

Those students who are members of the University Campus Choral Society and the University Singers, in combination with the members of the Reno Choral Society, make up the Reno Choral Union which annually presents Handel's great oratorio.

In 1937, under the direction of Professor Post, who organized the Choral Union, the first performance was given. It was so enthusiastically received that it was planned to present "The Messiah" every year during the Christmas season.

Under the sponsorship of the Reno Chamber of Commerce, the oratorio has been presented to the community free of charge for the past three years.

The instrumental music and accompaniment will be furnished by the University-Community Orchestra, with Miss Leota Maestretti as the concertmaster.

Each year new members have been added to the chorus and orchestra, and many of those who took part in the first rendition are still with the group.

John Mearns, senior engineering student, is vice-president of the organization and President and Mrs. L. W. Hartman are on the advisory board of patrons. Other officers of the union are Mrs. Arthur Daniels, president, Jack Cooper, manager, and George Lohse, secretary.

Robert Farrar, local insurance agent, was named an honorary member of the Lincoln Hall association at a hall meeting Monday.

R. Allen Grube, former missionary to China, entertained members of the Campus Club of the Federated church with lantern slides of the Orient at a meeting last Sunday night.

A musical Christmas program will be presented by members of the club Sunday evening at 6:30.

Eleanor Goldsworthy, president of the organization, said today.

The party, scheduled for January, will be in charge of Lola Fraser, junior arts and science student, who will handle arrangements for entertainment and refreshments.

Intra-mural basketball organized by the WAA will start shortly, Miss Goldsworthy said. Manager of the team this year will be Mary Higgins. University women are being urged to participate in these sports, it was stated.

Women To Begin Rifle Practice Soon

Plans for women's rifle teams to begin practice in January were announced this week by Frances Larraguetta, manager of the sport.

Sign-up sheets for coeds interested in trying out for rifle squads have been posted on the bulletin board, and in the various sorority houses, and try-outs will be held after school opens in January, Miss Larraguetta said.

Both intramural and varsity shoots will be included in W. A. activities. Miss Ruth Russell of the women's physical education department faculty will act as advisor for the group, and instruction in rifle shooting will be under Major Richard Bassett and his assistants.

THE LIBRARY AGAIN

Again come requests for more library hours. Final examinations start Saturday; tomorrow is the inauguration of Dr. Hartman and still the library will be closed Sunday.

It is the argument of the student body that Sunday, being the only day of the week that class work is suspended, is a perfect time for studying and research work and the library is an ideal place for such. But this year the library has been closed every Sunday.

The professors, too, seem to be turning to library research and reference reading for their classes more and more, and in most cases such books and papers are not permitted to be taken from the building. The result is that many students are being handicapped by the present schedule.

Perhaps we're a bit late this semester, but it's a constructive suggestion to consider in January.

THAT JUNIOR CLASS

Three years ago there came to the university a group of freshman students acclaimed by campus leaders the most lively and ambitious class ever registered.

These students started off with a bang. They worked together. In fact they were so auspicious that it was necessary to organize a sophomore vigilante committee to keep the frosh in hand. For the first time since the late nineties class rivalry prevailed.

Later in the spring the freshmen, who were headed by Fred McIntyre, challenged the sophomores to a field day. The event, as everything else they championed, was a big success and was considered the highlight of the Mackay Day celebration. Later that semester the class, without any other support, sponsored a barbecue.

During the second year at the university the class, although it sponsored no outstanding celebrations, still maintained its unity and leadership on the campus.

As juniors the class of '41 again came to the foreground. The majority of the varsity football team was composed of these same ambitious students; they took over leading activity positions and when it was time for the annual Junior Prom they came forward with a new idea.

The dance, they promised, would be a financial success as well as a social success. And so they started their campaign. The committee agreed to have the affair semi-formal; they launched an advertising campaign such as has never been seen, and when the gate receipts were totaled, the juniors had sponsored the most successful dance yet. They lost only $14—a new low for class dances.

Schedules Prepared By Faculty Group

The schedule of classes for next semester has been printed and a copy sent to each member of the faculty, although they will not be available for distribution to the students until after Christmas, according to Emily Ross, chairman of the committee planning the schedule. They may be obtained from Mrs. Rhodes, university registrar, before the opening of the new semester.

If a student wishes to make out his program in advance, he may go to his faculty advisor and use his copy of the schedule, Miss Ross said.

A useful innovation introduced in the pamphlet this year is the final examination schedule for next semester printed on the back cover.

Grace Semenza, '35, is now doing graduate social service study in New York City. She is an alumnae of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Congratulations Come From Many Institutions

Greetings and felicitations to Dr. Leon W. Hartman and the University of Nevada on the occasion of Dr. Hartman's inauguration have been received from numerous colleges and universities throughout the country.

Many greetings are official documents bearing the seal and the signature of the president of the respective schools. A number of these documents are very elaborately printed and quite colorful. Especially striking are those of Ohio State University, Cornell University and Harvard University.

Plans call for placing the collection on display at the University library sometime in the near future.

GREYHOUND

Do You Know That . . .

By JEAN HARRIS
In '98 we had a coed basketball team that played a game with some of the University of California Amazons. Even though the U. of N. girls were beaten, they looked good enough to have games scheduled with both Cal and Stanford the following season. Their uniforms were quite tricky—long black bloomers that took up where the long black stockings left off, and very full dark blouses with high collars and long puffy sleeves gathered at the cuffs.

In '94 the coeds decided that something should be done about the T. H. P. O. lads—S. A. Es. have always been a problem on the campus—simply because they hid behind their mysterious initials and wouldn't tell what they stood for. The girls emerged with a secret society called the O. P. H. T.

Barsanti's gorgeous hair? We think that it is just too too divine.

Mr. Polish for the benefit of our files just what IS the name of your enamorata?

Come on you coeds! A man that is hard to get is Milton Mapes. He says so himself.

There is a time and a place for everything, McDonald, but Saturday night and Farley's were neither the time nor the place, Joe.

Skippy "Let 'em buck" Vincent rode a winner at the Dog House and ended up with a bottle of champagne which lured a beautiful blonde to his table. His equestrian ability fascinated her. Or was she thirsty?

For some months we have been envious of those gastronomic marvels performed by the eastern college boys, who have been given to the entertaining, if barbaric, pleasure of swallowing goldfish. This week the pioneering prestige of our university was not only saved, but a new precedent was established. Four ounces of slippery, slimy tadpole were swallowed by alumnus Ira La Rives after losing a wager to Pancho Moore.

And so to terminate this incoherent dribble. When you read this column, follow the sage counsel of this blase old Parisian: "Cherchez la femme."

The T. H. P. O. retaliated by suggesting that it meant "Old Petticoated Howling Termagants."

The girls' cadet corps that used to drill on the parade ground carried wooden muskets.

One day a certain student decided to play a joke on one of his professors. He wrote the word "monkey" on a card and put it in the prof's hat. The rest of the class was primed and watching for the results. When the prof. entered the room he glanced at his hat and remarked, "some gentleman has left his card, I see."

Those same coeds who paraded with wooden guns were subjects of the following editorial comment:

"Orders have been issued to the young ladies' battalion prohibiting the wearing of corsets. If the inauguration of military drill for the coeds results in nothing more than the abolishment of this barbarous custom, it shall have served a worthy end and one that should recommend its continuance as a part of the curriculum of the university."

WHAT WE THINK

By JACK RHOADES

Elsie Crabtree is the best majorette in the business. She was the highest-ranking baton-twirler in a recent newspaper poll. It would be a help to the school if Elsie would start a class in this subject. She could use her dimpled knees to attract a good many girls to the school just to take the course. (A lot of the boys would probably crash the gate). It is quite an honor to get this high award, considering the girl has been in the limelight only four months. Some of the young ladies who were mentioned have been participating in athletics for many years.

The Big Banquet

The football boys were treated to a swell banquet the other night down town. Each member was presented with a small award in reward for his services during the campaign. Speaking of awards, it would be good if every member of the Pack was presented with a sweater this year. Only a few fellows were out for the team and it wouldn't hurt the coffers very much if every person was given a sweater. The board of athletic control may be thinking of this themselves.

Basketball

The man to watch on the varsity basketball team is "Stub" Taylor. He has been playing good ball in the practice sessions and may rate a starting berth when the schedule opens Jan. 12. Other men who will probably be in with Taylor are Olson, Penny, Thompson, Hawley, and others. Dick Kolbus, the Block N deopster, may return to school next semester. He will be a hard man to keep off the varsity. A little large around the waistline, Dick will have to work pretty hard to get in shape but when he does, watch out for the Pack in the conference race.

Why Not Touch Ball?

Most of the colleges in the west play touchball instead of volleyball for their intra-mural sport. This game is a lot more fun and calls for more training than the other sport. If it wouldn't take up too much time a few letters would be appreciated concerning the subject. Just drop a line to the Sagebrush, voicing your opinion.

Gossip

Elsie withdrew from the university last week. She stated that she was doing too much traveling to attend classes. She also stated that she would be back in school next year to lead the band. What ever happened to the football schedule for next year? A rumor says that Santa Clara will be here next Homecoming. . . . With Jim Aiken coaching his football team next spring, who will take care of the track? . . . The golf setup looks good. The sport needs only a few dollars to get started. Jim Bailey could act as coach since he is a pretty mean golfer in his own right. . . . Are the "Wolves" starting to howl at Stockton J. C.?

The Bowl Games

U. S. C. over Tennessee. This will be a whale of a football game. The Vols haven't been out of their own back yard and may be homesick when they get to Pasadena. Texas A. & M. over Tulane. Texas will have a hard time with this outfit from New Orleans. The Aggies

Frosh Hoop Team To Be Good: Bailey

Total of 25 Players Out As Practice Is In Full Swing

Although having met only a few times this season's freshman basketball team shows promise of developing into an outstanding ball club, Coach Jim Bailey said yesterday.

The 25 men who showed up for practice ranged in various heights and therefore the team is to be divided into individual squads consisting of tall men as one unit, and all smaller sized men as another unit.

To Average 6 Feet Two

The tall squad which will probably average about six feet two inches in height will play opponents of equal size and the smaller team will represent the "high speed" type of player in which fast passing and breaking are essential.

The complete team will play both A and B squads in most games, thus to give every man a chance to see action.

High School Stars

This year's team has many former high school basketball stars and seasoned players, among them being Harry Paille, Alphonse Wisniewski and many other who show initiative and fine playing ability, said Coach Bailey.

The team is scheduled to play a series of three games with the junior varsity and will engage in many scrimmages with other teams throughout the season.

The season game schedule is: Jan. 13—Lassen Junior College at Lassen.

- Jan. 19—Chico frosh at Chico.
- Jan. 20—Chico frosh at Chico.
- Jan. 26—Lassen Junior College at U. N.
- Jan. 27—Lovelock at U. N.
- Feb. 2—Stanford frosh at U. N.
- Feb. 3—Stanford at U. N.

C. Vinson Leads Pack In Minutes

Just who were the so-called "iron-men" of the University of Nevada football team this fall was brought to light Wednesday by Earl Brooks, member of the football team and president of the Block N Society.

Out of a possible 540 minutes of action in nine games, Clyde Vinson, fullback, took first place in actual minutes played with a total of 484.

Both Robert Robnett, center, and "Hank" Clayton left end, recorded the same number of minutes—425 apiece—to tie for second place.

Third place went to Mitch Cobega, halfback, who had the total of 398 minutes.

Pat Eaton's playin gability netted him the sum total of 387 minutes to take fourth place.

Hubert Smithwick's amount totaled 369 minutes to take fifth place.

Del Stewart, with 346 minutes, and Frankie Beloso, with 339 minutes, took sixth and seventh places, respectively, of the so-called "iron men."

The last two to finish in the 300-minute class were Hilary "Bud" Young, with 314 minutes of action, and Ray Garamendi, with 312 minutes out of the possible 540.

The number of minutes necessary in order to receive a football award and be in standing with the Block "N" Society is 160.

Bill Guterson, varsity quarterback on the Nevada Wolf Pack of 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, is now the coach of Clearfield high school football team which is tied for first place for the championship of the Pennsylvania high school conference.

Guterson was the mainstay of the Nevada "wonder team" that beat Santa Clara, St. Mary's and tied California 0-0.

DO YOU THINK THIS IS A FUNNY STORY?

Why are there so many frowns on the brows of those usually light-hearted students.

Why are those oft-unoccupied library chairs filled with row upon row of bent heads.

Why have students started to use the library door more than the Wolf Den's entrance.

Why have inveterate coke drinkers started to imbibe psychology and history, rather than their favorite drink.

Why have the librarians been checking out reference books that should have been read early in the semester.

Why are the campus jitterbugs jittery and not because of music.

Why are lights burning 'till early hours in halls, organization houses and private homes about the campus.

You don't know—Well you had better ask or you'll wish you had about day after tomorrow.

By J. MILTON MAPES "There is no royal road to learning." Education has always been considered among the civilized people of the world, as a necessary instrument of progress, but through the years their ideas of the adequacy of this progressive instrument have changed.

It was only yesterday that each rising generation of children were taught the thoughts of the past, and to the past they were taught to stick and thus they were narrowed.

Only the few who have had the courage to think and do beyond the established have had their names inscribed in the very annals of history responsible themselves for the turning back of its pages to be read by the multitudes "who didn't know and dared not say."

They were taught that the knowledge thus acquired would later by an unknown and somewhat spiritual process, transfer itself effectively within to adult life and enable them to carry on in their life-long endeavors and performance of the duties of citizenship.

What is the grown idea of today? Today, we believe that educating the youth, from elementary to college, is insufficient to enable the present generations to perform the duties of citizens and to earn sufficient for the support of himself or others.

We are now beginning to believe that formal education in our youth is only a stepping stone for an education, i. e., our formal education prepares us to carry on the process throughout the active years of our life. The formula of today is: "The People Resources Knowledge of Community Problems Equals Prosperity."

Central idea of education in the state of Nevada throughout the 53 years of its existence in Reno has been education in strictly modern aspects. The last five presidents of this university have fortunately overshadowed the ideas referred to in the first paragraph of this article. They have all fought for modernization, new ideas, advancement even over eastern universities, until today it is streamlined in all of its aspects.

The inauguration of Dr. Leon Wilson Hartman as sixth president of this institution tomorrow marks another milestone in the history of Nevada and the nation. In the early days of the school, the department of mines was the most pressing need, since mining was the backbone of the state.

The mining men wanted a "place of research" and to educate their own men to tackle the fruits of the hills.

Gradually the university grew, establishing its many departments and fine list of faculty members, until today it is considered one of the leading universities of the United States and its graduates have earned more than one mark on the great slate of fame and have carried the traditions of the school and the knowledge gained therein to the four corners of the earth.

Mrs. William J. Mahoney, mother of Aileen and Mary Mahoney, junior Pi Beta students, visited her daughters last weekend.

California University Abolishes Long-Used Student Honor System

The abolition of the honor system at the University of California was the subject of much discussion on the University of Nevada campus during the past week.

The honor system has never been used in academic work at the University of Nevada. However, the university military department has employed the honor system for the past two years. Since Nevada is a smaller institution, there are fewer students in the various classes, and direct personal supervision by the faculty is not such a difficult problem.

The honor system was abolished at the University of California last week.

Under the honor plan no professor, instructor or monitor remained in the classrooms where the examinations were held. The students were required to subscribe on their honor to a statement on each paper that they had received no aid during the examination. Students who did witness cheating were expected to report the incident to the students' judiciary committee.

The late President Benjamin Ide Wheeler originated the honor system at the University of California.

This system has been tried in many other schools, but has never been put into practical use. It has never received in any institution where it is practiced the complete support of both students and faculty. The common theory is that a certain number of students will cheat regardless of the circumstances, and thus injure the honest student who has no objection to being watched. Most of the students who witness cheating are unwilling to report it and so make themselves conspicuous in the eyes of their fellow students.

The popular opinion on the California campus is that if a written examination is held, it should be held under the more impartial eye of faculty supervision. This insures fairness for all students alike and removes the responsibility from the shoulders of the students.

The honor system has never been used in academic work at the University of Nevada. Since it is a smaller institution, there are fewer students in the various classes, and direct personal supervision by the faculty is not such a difficult problem.

Students who have transferred to Nevada from other universities where the honor system is practiced do not regard it favorably.

Norie Goldwater, junior student and California transfer, said: "during an examination if you saw a student cheating you were supposed to start tap-

Nevada Graduate Corresponds By Radio

The world at large is the ears of Merle Smart, former University of Nevada student who is at present residing in Fallon, Nevada.

Smart, by means of a radio which he has constructed himself, talks regularly via the ozone with correspondents in Capetown, South Africa, Berlin, Germany, and various points in Australia.

Smart also enjoys weekly conversations by means of his invention with a former University of Nevada classmate, Leland Hinckley, who is residing in the Philippines.

On a recent trip to Fallon, President Hartman visited Smart and exchanged introductions and greetings over the Smart radio with an Al Johnson, who was talking from Youngstown, Ohio.

ping your pencil, the rest of the students were to take this up, and within two minutes the room sounded like a prison yard."

"This didn't happen very often, however, since most of us disliked the responsibility of another person's conduct," she continued.

"We didn't like cheating, but felt that a higher authority was needed during written examinations."
