Student Question Contest for Frolic Planned by 'Brush

Faculty Members Will Answer Winning Entries

Students at the University of Nevada will be given the opportunity to turn the tables on their inquisitors, the professors, if proposed plans for a Sagebrush Quiz Contest to be held in connection with the Annual Wolves' Frolic are successful.

Submitted by members of the staff of the Sagebrush, the contest will call for humorous questions to be mailed in by members of the student body and which will be answered by a staff of unrehearsed, unannounced faculty members from the stage the night of the annual presentation.

Under the rules of the proposed contest a student can submit any number of questions, and may receive any number of prizes, up to twelve. In case of duplicate entries the winner will be determined by the postmark on the envelope containing the submitted questions. Academic queries will not be considered in the contest. The questions must be humorous and of a type suitable for a mixed audience.

Prizes in the contest will be tickets to the Frolic. One winning question will result in one Frolic ticket for the sender, two winning questions, two tickets, and the number may increase up to twelve.

It is imperative that all entries in the contest be mailed. Only those questions submitted by mailing will be accepted. The contest will officially open Sept. 12 and will close Oct. 10, one week before the Frolic.

Judges in the contest, whose decision shall be final, are Prof. William O. Miller, Frolic director; Joe T. McDonnell, graduate manager; Bryn Armstrong, Sagebrush editor, and Mary Margaret Cantlon, Sagebrush business manager. Neither of the publication heads are eligible to compete in the contest.

Prizes for the faculty members called upon to answer the questions submitted by the students will be given. Entries should be mailed to the Sagebrush, Box 9205, University station, and must be postmarked before midnight, Oct. 9.

Complete rules governing the contest will be announced next week.

Blue Key Parking Tickets Given Out

Beginning next week Blue Key parking signs will have been placed at all parking locations, leaving no excuses open to offenders who claim they don't understand the restricted zones, Wes Schlager, upperclass committee head, stated this week.

Schlager's committee has been giving out parking tickets all week, and have issued many dollars' worth. These tickets must be paid, or the $1 will be taken from the student's general deposit.

The parking system, sponsored by the Blue Key, was officially adopted by the student body last spring.

Object of the trip was to study the operations at Consolidated Chollar where over 400 tons of ore a day are being removed from the earth by steam shovel and truck. To get at an approximated two million tons of ore deposit, the mine is first removing 15 million yards of overburden.

Yuba Junior College Game Hopes Fade

The possibilities of adding Yuba J. C. to the Frolic football schedule is very slim, stated Coach Robinett.

There had been talk of adding Yuba to the schedule, but at the present no decision has been made. The football heads don't believe there will be a game held with Yuba J. C. The frosh have a four-game schedule and if they decide to play they will meet at Yuba in November.

Announcements of various Homecoming sub-committee heads were made this week by Ed Dodson, Homecoming chairman. The committee leaders were named at a meeting held Wednesday.

Bonfire arrangements are in the hands of Jack Diehl who is to be assisted by Bob Wise and Bill Morse. Rules concerning the number of boxes and tires that must be obtained by the freshmen will be announced at a later date.

Bernard Smith was chosen to head the cup committee which has charge of procuring awards for the various Homecoming competitions.

Rose Arenaz and Leota Davis were chosen to assist Dodson as stenographers. Their duties will probably include the mailing of invitations to alumni and former students.

The committee will begin to function next week, Dodson said, at which time plans for a bigger celebration will be furthered.

A complete schedule of events will be announced at a later date, Dodson added.

Singleton Elected To Sager Office

Bob Singleton, junior member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, was elected vice-president of the Sagers at a meeting of the group held last night.

William King and Edward Grundel were named to head the committee in charge of the annual Sager's varsity swing which will be held Sept. 27, on the eve of Nevada's opening grid contest with Cal Poly.

Members of the visiting team will be invited to the dance as guests of the organization.

In outlining a program for the coming semester, Jack Pierce, president of the organization, indicated that his group intends to aid the newly-formed rally committee in planning and presenting pep rallies during the coming year.

Robert Crowell was placed in charge of the setting up of the tables for the interfraternity bean feed Monday night and will also have charge of the clean-up crew.

New members of the organization will be chosen Sept. 18. All of those chosen will be second-semester freshmen and will fill vacancies left by members who did not return to school.

Plans for affiliation with the Intercollegiate Knights, a national organization similar to the Sagers, were dropped, Pierce announced.

A rule under which any member who is absent from two consecutive meetings without adequate excuse will be dropped was adopted last night, Pierce said.

Enrollment Shows Decrease of More Than a Hundred

With an enrollment of 968 students, registration at the University of Nevada is reaching a near-final total, Mrs. Jeanette Rhodes, registrar, said today. Registration for the fall semester will close Saturday at noon.

In comparison with the number enrolled at a similar time last year, registration shows a decrease of 121 students. Last year's total was 1089.

Greatest membership decreases have been noted in the freshman and junior classes. Freshman enrollment of 339 is 70 short of the total reached by that class last year. This class is the farthest short in reaching the membership of the 1940 fall semester. There are 44 fewer juniors, 9 sophomores and 3 seniors this semester than last.

The drop in the freshman class enrollment was the least expected, Pres. Leon W. Hartman said today. His only explanation of this shortage is that many advantageous jobs are now open to young men and women, and that they favored these opportunities to continuing their schooling. The junior class drop was foreseen and expected.

Decrease in the university enrollment has been about 11 per cent, Dr. Hartman said. This is a smaller decrease than that expected at similar institutions throughout the country. A 15 per cent decrease was found in the University of California enrollment, he added, and various eastern universities including engineering colleges, are expecting as much as a 25 per cent decrease.

Class enrollment thus far for the first semester of 1941-42 is as follows: Freshmen, 339; sophomores, 241; juniors, 166; seniors, 167; specials, 23; graduates, 32. Of the 968 total, 613 students are men and 355 are women.

Number Enrolled In ROTC Classes Shows Increase

Upon the recommendation of Col. Oral E. Clark, PMS&T at the University of Nevada the advanced military class has been increased in number from 41 to 50. This was made possible by orders of the commanding general of the ninth corps area. A large number of applications have been on file with the military department for the past year. There are many more applications than there are class members.

Cadet officers of the ROTC battalion are selected from the advanced classes. Upon graduation from the military department the cadets receive commissions in the officers' reserve corps with the prospect of being called to immediate active duty.

Several new phases have been added to the cadet corps this year. Cadet officers will teach at least 10 hours of basic classes from now on. This will relieve the regular instructors for more pressing duties and give the cadet officers much needed experience, according to the military department.

Cadet officers are being allowed to wear field uniforms this semester. The field uniform consists of full equipment without blouses. Overseas caps resembling those worn by basic cadets will also be worn on certain occasions.

Lieutenant Thomas Prunty and Sergeant Michael McCormick took part in regular army maneuvers at Camp Hunter-Liggett this summer. They were connected with the public relations office of the fourth army.

Prunty is personnel adjutant for the military department and McCormick is one of the basic course instructors.

Rally Committee Has First Meeting

The rally committee held its first meeting Thursday and George Homer, new rally committee head, announced the plans of the committee for the coming semester.

Homer said that a new subsidiary committee had been formed this year. The purpose of the sub-committee is to take the load off the shoulders of the rally committee and devote more time to handling the football rallies.

The first "pajamboree" will be held on the eve of the Calif. Poly game, Friday night, Sept. 27. Also the band will ride through town on Saturday morning prior to the game.

Homer hopes to have a rally program presented on the radio on Friday evenings before the home games.

Plans for taking care of parades, rallies and football seating have been discussed. He states that U. of N. marshals will be appointed to do this.

The committee hopes that by devoting more time to the football rallies that they will become more interesting and at the same time attract more spectators to the games.

Members of this sub-committee are Dorothy Casey, Lela Iler, Rodney Boudwin, Michael Zorada and Sam Drakulich.

Students Volunteer In Drive to Aid War-Torn Nation

The campus chapter of the YWCA and the Sagers have volunteered to aid in the medical and surgical relief committee of America's drive to raise funds to provide medical aid to China, local officials of the program announced this week.

The program consists of raffling tickets, with prizes of a weekend in several Nevada, California and Utah cities. The tickets will be distributed to the various fraternities and sororities on the campus by Mary Ann Lockridge, president of YWCA, and Jack Pierce, president of Sagers, has pledged his group to aid in handling campus sales.

Arrangements have been made with leading hotels in Reno, San Francisco, Las Vegas, Long Beach and Riverside, Calif., as well as Salt Lake City, Utah, whereby winners of the contest will be housed for any weekend the holder of the lucky tickets wishes. The accommodations will be available for winners during the months from September to January, except Nov. 22, 23, 29 and 30 for San Francisco hotels.

The contest will open immediately and continue until Sept. 20. The price of the raffle tickets has been set at 25c and may be obtained from fraternities, sororities or Mary Ann Lockridge on the campus as well as at the local headquarters of the group downtown.

Other plans for the season include a popular concert and community sing in October; the "Messiah" in December; another concert and sing sometime in February, and the presentation of "Elijah" in April which will conclude the season.

Also accomplished at the meeting was the passing of a set of rules and the determination of the group's aims.

Funds received for membership fees are to be used to purchase music and defray expenses incurred in presenting its programs.

Aims announced by the group included their intention to contribute to the cultural life of Reno through its program presentations, and their purpose of adding to their music library and enlarge the repertoire of the organization.

A welcome to old and new students was extended by President Leon W. Hartman. In his address, Pres. Hartman advised students to "plan for tomorrow as though tomorrow were certain."

Newcomers Sign for WAA Tennis

With several promising newcomers to Nevada signing up for elimination matches prior to the WAA tennis tournament to begin the latter part of next week, the experienced veterans should have plenty of competition to face.

Among the freshmen girls planning to participate in the matches are Pat and Nancy Herz who have had considerable experience in tourney play in Reno. Frances Hawkins, 1941 winner of the Nevada state doubles championship, and Fritzi Jane Neddneriep, former state doubles champion and winner of last year's WAA tournament, are two of Nevada's top women racquet wielders.

However, all girls interested in tennis are urged to enter play, for an attempt to match players according to ability will be made, thus offering a chance for all to participate.

To date, those who have indicated entry in the tournament are Ruth Osborne, Pat McCarty, Victoria Black, Jackie Thompson, Bette Poe, Leonore Hill, Dannie Shovlin, Marie Aldrich, Pat Herz, Nancy Herz, Peggy Clark, Dorothy Hansen, Mary Higgins, Goldie Howard, Marianne Smith, Evelyn Boyer, Lauris Gulling, Jeanne O'Conner, Jean Clawson, Fritzi Jane Neddneriep and Frances Hawkins.

Jean Clawson is manager of the tourney.

Course in Skiing To Start October 1

A course in dry land skiing will be instituted around the first of October, according to an announcement from the women's physical education department.

Designed primarily to get the prospective skier into condition and to exercise essential muscles for actual skiing, the course will also include basic skiing principles.

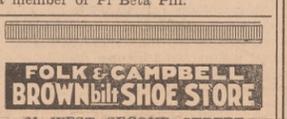

Miss Ruth Russell, who will teach the course, warned those interested that they must furnish their own equipment which will include ski boots, poles and skis.

Betty Perry, former student from Ely, visited the campus this week. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi.

WATER IS WET

This is a friendly, big-brother type of editorial written for the men of the freshman class who look with longing eyes at the B.M.O.C. (big man of the campus) with his key chain filled with keys, and the front of his sweater covered with pins and emblems, ala Goering.

Looks attractive doesn't it, and you would like—more than anything in this world—to be one those fellows, wouldn't you? Well, no one can blame you for that, but in case you have the notion that the lot of the activity man is a bed of roses, forget it. Don't give up your ambitions, but you might as well go into the activity merry-go-round with open eyes, then you are bound to get more out of it. And you can always look back and say, "Well, I knew what I was getting into, so I might as well make the most of it."

First of all, to be an activity man you must know the right people. "The right people" does not mean that you should make your friends among the seniors exclusively. Confine your efforts to the freshmen and the sophomores. They're the ones you are going through school with, and they are the ones from whom you will get most of the breaks. You might as well start practicing now on how to get along without any sleep. A good way to do this is to stay up late studying every night. If you follow this, you will be killing two birds with one stone. You can say, after graduation, that you studied while in college. The first couple of years are the only ones in which you will get the proper amount of studying done.

You have to break in somewhere. You might as well start with the Sagers. If you work real hard and get to know the right people, next comes Blue Key. They are the boys with the pretty white caps, with the yellow and blue emblem on the front. The campus work-horses they are called by the people in the know. These caps are clean and white when new, but after about the first semester, they begin to get dingy. They collect the smoke and grime of the Homecoming bonfire, the dust of the campus during the Mackay Day cleanup. The smoke which hovers about the roof of the banquet room, and tinsel and decorations from a thousand and one dances for which the boys decorate.

Probably you are an active member of Blue Key, so somebody gets the bright idea of running you for a class office. Naturally you win. The campus big shots always do. So you have some more work to do. You organize class dances. And if you haven't already done so, you learn that if a committee of fifteen to work on the dance is appointed, about five will show up, and you're stuck again. You have the job on your hands. Then comes the climb to the heights, the shining citadel. The student body presidency. Well, here's where you really go to work. You have the whole student body to organize, but you find that the little mathematical ratio worked out back in the innocence of class manager days still holds true. One out of five is the best you can hope for, so you are stuck again.

The trend could go on indefinitely. You could have left the political career alone and tackled a publication or two. Take the Sagebrush. It calls for only about half your time. The only difference here is that you find your staff a little more reliable than the one out of five proposition, but the worry is the same. Sometimes the staff gets too enthusiastic and works too hard, and you have the whole campus to fight, not just a committee.

Well, this is just the beginning, but if you have stuck it this far, there is no hope for you. You're sunk. So come on in, the water's fine. Pretty soon you won't notice how cold it is.

THE WET FISH

Morale is a highly important factor in any campaign, whether it be military, political or athletic. Morale has won and lost wars, has caused the downfall of nations, and has raised a countless host of peoples up from the muck and grime of slavery and servitude to the solid ground of freedom.

Morale is something upon which no price tag can be pinned; it cannot be bought or sold. Morale must be inspired. Those who possess it are blessed in full measure with a great richness.

The boys who will play football for the University of Nevada this fall have a high degree of morale. We have seen this displayed more than once—in a hundred different ways.

They displayed it last year, most of the boys who are working for the team, when they left for BYU. The chairman of the rally committee asked all the students to be at the station to see the boys off. Twenty-eight showed up.

Still they went on to Provo and held the highly-favored Cougars to a 6-6 tie.

Nobody was there when they left for Stockton, San Jose or Moscow. Yet they went out on the field with high spirits, and heart-breaking defeats could not destroy their morale. Sometimes last year the boys slacked off. Sometimes they didn't play as hard as they could, but have you ever walked up to anybody you haven't seen for a long time, offer to shake hands, and then get slapped in the face with a wet fish?

You have? Then you know just how the boys felt last year when they would pull into the station here at Reno and were greeted by nothing but the train's whistle. How can they be expected to fight their heads off all the time when they get nothing for their efforts. Anyway, last year, and the year before, they got nothing from the student body. And that's who should be on hand—win, lose or draw—when the boys come back from a long campaign.

With Coach Aiken it's a different proposition. He's filling about six jobs. He coaches football. He acts as an advisor for all the boys. He worries about their studies. He tells the people downtown what a swell bunch of kids we are up here. And to top it all off, he has to act as the rooting section most of the time. Well, we pay him back by slapping him in the face with the wet fish. We don't support the football team, and by neglecting them, we automatically neglect him.

We have some good players up here at Nevada. Many of them would do well at much larger universities. But they're at Nevada. And they have morale. Jim Aiken gave it to them. One hurdle is surmounted. Now won't somebody please hire a Jim Aiken to coach the student body?

PROSPECTING

With SMOKY EVANS

There is just one thing lower in terms of useful work than a Blue Key try-out, and that is a fraternity meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting reveal, intermingled with a dozen gusty resolutions that are already forgotten, this, "It was voted to have work day this Saturday morning, all members and pledges to show up at 8 o'clock."

Well, Friday evening comes along and one gathers that this house has just been permitted to break a six-months' diphtheria quarantine. Supper attendance is scanty, and soon the house is empty, the door swinging in the night wind just as the last one fled from it, as if from an abode unclean. In truth, the place resembles a baseball park just after a game.

Some hours pass and reluctantly most return to the fraternal fold by sun-up, Saturday morning. Eight o'clock looms just three hours away, sometimes four hours. No one is stirring. Eight o'clock arrives on time. Casual search of the cells upstairs reveals the guard wrapped in blankets, shades drawn in quiet darkness. The guard, mind you, who bosses work day.

Minute inspection of the house, even behind the piano, reveals no pledges. In the kitchen one lone riser is shovelling puffed wheat through his teeth, engrossed in Dick Tracy. This is the first sign of life, though definitely primitive and simple. Hope rises as we ask what he plans for this bright morning. He replies that he has a field trip in 15 minutes. So we do a little shovelling ourselves.

At quarter after nine someone in the cell block takes a fast dive from an upper berth and lands on his heels. Pictures swing and windows rattle as the quake passes. In about 10 minutes a noise is heard from the steps, that of a cow loping contentedly downstairs. A door receives the slam of its life, and there appears in Levis and wide scatterbrain smile, one lone pledge.

"Hello, chum! Boy, what a date I had last naph choo mig guph!"
"If you'll put only half that banana in your face I could understand."
"Never mind, chum, pass the milk."
The silence is broken by sounds—say a horse eating celery and grapes.
"Are you in a hurry?" I ask.
"Boy, am I! Gotta get out of here and mock figolo gumbala chugup!"
"Oh, is that so! When are you going to do your work?" The grinding noise stops, fork and egg quivering in mid-air. Several loud strangling sounds emit, then, "What?"

"I said, when are you going to do your house work?"

could tell he heard me the first time. He is stalling, time is not only short, it is now in the red.

"Wha—wha—whufore?"
But I go on shovelling—because he is only one and it is a large house.

At a quarter to ten, there are five irresolute figures lounging in the front room, waiting for someone else to start work. At this moment enters the guard. He is suddenly an executive, and gives orders for painting, floor waxing and weeding the lawn.

"Where is the paint?" asks one who is evidently a thinker.
The guard looks surprised. "There should be some in the basement."

Scrutiny of the basement does, indeed, reveal several cans—all open with brushes firmly cemented in. The guard sees his chance, and leaves to get paint.
"Get the wax!" yells Little Hitler on his way out. A pledge saunters without enthusiasm to the closet door, which pops open at his touch. He confronts a vacuum cleaner in several pieces that clatter from the top of the pile to the floor, two very old brooms, an assortment of dust rags, an old quilt, a mop can, a box of stale crackers, a busted ski, a shuffle of phonograph records, a broken cigarette stand, two footballs, and a volley ball net.

"You mean in HERE?"
"Yes, and hurry up!"
So the pledge mucks out, and curious bystanders choose their toys. One runs to the phonograph with the records, winding his legs up in the volley ball net. "Well—it, why don't you look where you're going?"

An amateur mechanic is now trying to make the cleaner work. Since the milk truck ran over it, it has always come apart easy. Suddenly, it makes a noise like a cement mixer, and he drags it over the rug.
"Hey, get off the rug, you blankety blunk, we're taking it outside!"
"Leave it in here you stupid lug, it's easier to clean!"
"Say, who's boss around here, you or me?"

"All right, the hell with it. YOU clean it." And he drops the cleaner and works through the crackers. Suddenly he lifts a mouse-trap from the crackers. He walks from the room, wordless.

There is now a confused medley of vacuum cleaner, phonograph, executive instructions, furniture scraping, shuffle of traffic more interested in moving around than doing work, whilst lubricating all this confusion in an undertone of steady, unrestrained profanity. Things are now under way, it is 11:30, and speed is necessary to make time before lunch.

The paint job in the bathroom is going nicely. They are painting over anything that is smaller than say, a small cat. Nails, stickers, radio wires, picture hooks, mops, even the pencil sharpener—all are covered without prejudice in a pale lavender, using the slap and drip technique.

And outside in the glorious sunshine, two brothers who tired of toying with dandelions, are in spasms over last Sunday's funnies.

WE'VE BEEN READING . . . again. Our library, consisting of a drawer full of two-bit grid pulps, gives Nevada a double barreled roasting. Street and Smith say we'll win three, lose seven and get more publicity, while the Football Annual also ranks us rank. Of our opponents, San Jose leads the statistical steeple chase with a ranking of 62, with Arizona in 77th place. Others are Fresno, 121; San Francisco, 143; New Mexico, 168; Loyola, 184; Nevada, 259; Cal Aggies, 305; Cal Poly, 460. Santa Barbara and Hawaii were omitted from the list.

UNCLE JIM AIKEN . . . on the other hand, agrees with the Brush prognosticators of last week, even more so. Take a look at the two-deep line: Goodner and Quilici at ends, Shea and Smithwick at tackles, Schlager at guard and Skidmore at center are all veterans and are going to be hard to push around in any man's league. Bobby Blaine, so far the seventh man, is plugging hard enough to beat out Warren Dark and Dee Leavitt, and that's recommendation enough in itself. These "first stringers" average a neat 197 pounds. On the "second team" Daniels and Anderson at ends are good enough to make the veterans hustle. Daniels is a tough man to get around on defense, and reliable on offensive tactics. With Dark and Leavitt pressing for the first string berths, Branson and Ford giving a try for the guard jobs and Potter and Bator sweating for Skidmore's post, the competition is good, big and tough. White, Edsall and Beko can't be forgotten as line candidates, and there are others who will be heard from.

MARION MOTLEY GETS . . . a boost in a recent publication, which puts him on its All-American check list. To date, Motley has been verifying the drum-beater's notes, crashing and tackling with freight train drive.

THE BACKS LOOK . . . so much better than any combination fielded last year in fact, that we don't see how Aiken can pick starters for months yet Freeman, Kot, Brennan, Slaughter, Sorenson, Polish, Bennett, Chappelle, Hatalla, Rainone—any of these names, and others, can be splashed in black ink across the top columns as standout Nevada men.

A WINGBACK FORMATION . . . starting from the left, which clicked late last season for a few surprise plays, has been polished up and worked in scrimmage to effect.

Alpha Tau Omega
Grabs Early Lead
In Volley Ball Race

Intramural volley ball went into the second week of play this week. As yet it is early to predict the winner until play ends on Sept. 22, but the strong teams are becoming evident as play progresses. Friday ATO defeated Lincoln Hall in two games. Phi Sigs defeated Sigma Phi by a default. Tuesday Lambda Chi defeated BK in three close games, BK taking the first game, 14-15, and Lambda Chi won the next two games, 15-13 and 15-10. Sigma Nu won over the Independents by a default.

Wednesday ATO defeated their University Terrace neighbors and present holders of the Kinnear trophy, by the close scores of 13-15, 17-15 and 15-13. Sigma Nu won over Beta Kappa, 15-10 and 15-7.

Thursday Lincoln Hall beat Sigma Phi by a default. The boys from Evans Avenue defeated the Phi Sigs in two straight games, 15-1 and 15-7.

As yet Sigma Phi Sigma and the Independents have not entered a team. Chet Seranton announced that teams having either one of these on their schedule need not show up for these contests unless he announces that they will enter players in these games.

that freshman football may be abandoned on the hill. In his editorial column are even the beginnings of civil war. SAN FRANCISCO'S . . . Call-Bulletin took a whack at the Pack this week in a trade designed to show that Ben Winkelman's Moffett Field Soldiers have been insulted, the spirit of American democracy defiled and the great god, amateur football, given the heave-ho by the cancellation of a Sept. 20 date between the soldiers and Nevada.

Dull days in San Francisco. No strikes, no police graft—only a minor earthquake in Scrib McDonald's tepid tripe-writer.

Varsity Veterans Fill Line
Vacancies As Backs Flash

Aiken Smoothing Out Veterans, Building Reserves for Shiftier Offensive

Nevada has a football team. No journalistic theorist, combing the texts for a handful of W's can pump out enough adjectives to adorn such a statement. A handful of thirty-odd men with football in their chromosomes and fight in their stomachs has been welded into the steel Wolf Pack mold of designer Jim Aiken, and are eating, living and loving the bruising battles of Mill Memorial Field.

Practice sessions throughout the week have been given a grunted approval from the head office. A near-veteran first string line, pushed hard by seasoned reserves two and three deep, is learning the tricky Aiken-devised system of angle blocking, and even the most obnoxious of the Hill Field sideline-quarterbacks haven't boiled the backfield candidates down to first or second or even third string nominations. Lettermen are scrambling with sophomore and junior college transfers for the ball packing jobs.

Line Two Deep "The line is shaping up well," Aiken commented. "We have veterans from end to end with the exception of a guard spot. Bobby Blaine looks very good in the guard hole, with Warren Dark pushing him for the first string call. Goodner and Quilici will be tough to beat for the end positions, but Rex Daniels, especially, and Ben Anderson, Buck White, Floyd Edsall and Bill Beko are all on call to take over the flanks."

At the tackles returning veterans, Vince Shea and Hugh Smithwick, fit like old shoes, while Branson and Ford are rounding into shape for reserve strength. Co-captain Schlager is a standout at his guard spot, and little Beko is being groomed for a key role in the Pack attack.

Motley Has Plenty Motley, all-American candidate, is the key man of the backfield. The 215-pound tail-back has everything in the offensive department but a 75mm gun, and his defense weaknesses uncovered last season are being overcome under a heavy seize of line-backing.

"There aren't any outstanding backs because the competition is so keen," Aiken commented. Kot, Brennan, Motley, Slaughter, Polish, Sorenson, Hatalla, Freeman, Chappelle, Bennett, Rainone and others are all under the mentor's scrutiny as candidates for starting berths.

Aiken is working more on developing a two-deep machine, having learned from last year's riddled club that his seconds are essential cogs, than in the stressing of any eleven men as "varsity" cinches.

The progress made in three-week-old practice sessions can be noted from the number of new plays being worked by the club. The '40 rules revision which allows a forward handling of the ball, thus eliminating the consistent necessity of a spinner-type reverse, is being used in several modifications. Introduced late last season in the Pack offense, the left wing formation is also being worked in scrimmage drills. The shift from a right wing to a left wing caught both Pacific and Fresno defenders with their moleskins in an awkward position for touchdown plays late in the '40 campaign.

Four Houses Tie
For Horseshoe Lead

With horseshoe single matches well over the half way mark, no house has yet been undefeated, leaving the gate open for any of the Greek clubs to emerge victor in this close contest.

Four houses are in a three-way tie with three wins and one defeat. ATO, BK, SAE and Lambda Chi are in first place at present, Sigma Nu and the Independents have won one and lost two. The Phi Sig house has lost four and won none to take undisputed possession of the cellar position.

Tuesday Righetti of Lincoln Hall defeated Bell of the Independents, while O'Shaughnessy of the Taus defeated Roush of Lambda Chi. Cambell of the SAE's defeated Gamble of the Phi Sigs as the Sigma Phis defaulted to Moore of Beta Kappa.

Wednesday the SAE's star, Cambell, upset Moore of Beta Kappa, last year's winner of this event. Roush of Lambda Chi won over the Sigma Phis by a default, and Quilici, Sigma Nu, won over Lincoln Hall's Righetti.

Thursday O'Shaughnessy, Tau mainstay, won over Quilici of Sigma Nu, while Bell of the Independents won over the Phi Sigs by a default. Roush, Lambda Chi star, bested Cambell of the Evans Avenue house. Moore beat Gamble of the Phi Sigs.

She (tenderly): "When did you first know you loved me?" He: "When I began to get mad when people said you were brainless and unattractive."

Bennett doing most of the pitching have looked good in the nightly sham battles. Goodner, Quilici and Daniels are breaking fast to cover the "spot" on the play.

Veteran John Polish is carrying his share of the mail, and Bennett looks good at the work-horse blocking back spot. Manny (man of the week) Chappelle is a sparkplug at the same chore. Kot is a ripping, twisting ball packer, while his Ohio mate, John Hatalla, is showing flashes of speed and hip-calisthenics past the line of scrimmage.

Slaughter tosses his knees high, fighting for yardage, and there's no catching the fleet Freeman in the secondary. The Weber College transfer is shiftier than most sprinters in picking his openings. Sorenson is running the ball hard, getting back the form that made him one of the best backs in the state while he was a member of the Reno town team two years ago. Rainone, if he can master the signals, can get the call for the fullback spot.

ALL-AMERICAN?

Marion Motley, 215-pound tailback, mentioned in the current issue of the "Football Annual" as a potential all-American back. Motley is being groomed for a key role in the Pack attack.

Wolf Pack Spirits Are High
Team Fighting for Aiken
Practice Gets Tough as Season Advances

"If the spirit of the student body in general is similar to that displayed by the Nevada football team, that team will make history," according to the head man, "Uncle Jim" Aiken.

"We're working the pants off of the men, running them, sweating them and cursing them, and they're coming along fast, tough, hard and like it."

The gravel-throated Aiken has built up a reputation as a tough coach, in Ohio high school circuits, at Akron University, and at Nevada. On the field he's a driver, stressing long, grueling practice sessions, day after day—moreover, he whip-lashes with a salty tongue, ridiculing bonehead plays and missed signals. Off the field he's a worry-wart, carrying his football around like an injury, gnawing at his heart. The football players gripe at the work, the blocking, running, driving grind. They gripe at the intricate signals and new formations. They gripe loudest at their own failings, when a missed block brings down quick hell from the coach.

On or off the field, tired and bruised or fresh and optimistic, the boys are for Aiken. They like him, play for him, respect him and train for him.

That's the spirit of the football team, and that's the spirit Aiken looks for from the student body. That's the spirit that makes football as American as an anthem, and that's the spirit that shadows Jim Aiken wherever he goes.

Nevada can't lose with a spirit like that, no matter what the score. Nevada football is making men out of boys and teams out of men, and win, lose or draw, you'll be proud of them.

The real college cheer is the check from home.

On the Hill it's "Hello."

MAN OF THE WEEK BY BARBARA FRANCIS

Wesley Schlager, co-captain of this year's Wolf Pack, and a Block N member, is a Las Vegas contribution to the University of Nevada, and a man to be taken into consideration if you are making a list of persons to speak to on this campus.

However, he is the wrong man to meet in any of several situations. First, you should definitely be sorry to see him coming toward you if you are a freshman and forgot your dink or bible today, or are slyly sitting on some comfortable senior bench. Reason: he is chairman of the men's upperclass committee, and should be able to swing a paddle with a considerable amount of ability and whack.

Second situation: You would depart hurriedly, indeed, if you saw Wes just coming out of the Lambda Chi Alpha house immediately after you had pitched a football through the front window. Reason: He is the house manager, and while he might like to stop and play football with you, he has to see that the Lambda Chi windows are kept intact.

Third situation: You would be sorry to meet Wes if you were on the football field as a member of the opposing team with the ball tucked neatly under one arm and the goalposts as your object. Wes plays guard for the Wolf Pack, and it's just as hard to get around Wes as it would be to make a luncheon date with Hitler.

So, as you can see, he is a man of some consequence to the U. of N., and he really isn't ferocious as long as you keep on his good side!

Nowadays, a couple marries and the first thing you know they have a little divorce.

Where Life Begins in Reno

First in Series of Faculty Sketches Introduces Dr. Auchampaugh to U. of N.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles to be written about members of the University of Nevada faculty.

Author, teacher and family man is Dr. Phillip G. Auchampaugh, new assistant professor in history at Nevada. This is the first time he has been in Reno, and he expects his family to join him here sometime in December. At present, Mrs. Auchampaugh, and their son and daughter, Lee, 12, and Virginia, 15, are in Syracuse, N. Y.

As an author, Dr. Auchampaugh's specialty is the middle period of American history, about which he has written two books, one on President Buchanan and his cabinet, and another about Robert Tyler, son of President Tyler and a champion of the old south.

He has also written many magazine articles, and one of his studies entitled, "Old Buck at High Tide," concerning the election of 1856, will appear this fall in a set of essays by American educators, and published by a New York publishing house.

Dr. Auchampaugh received his A. B. degree at New York State Teachers College, his A. M. at Syracuse, and his Ph. D. at Clark University, Worcester, Mass., where he held the fellowship of the American Antiquarian society.

Modern Age—When girls wear less on the street than their grandmothers did to bed.

Athlete—A dignified bunch of muscles, unable to split the wood or sift the ashes.

Faculty to Honor New Members at Meeting Tonight

New faculty members will be presented to the Faculty Club tonight at a meeting in the Home Economics rooms of the Agriculture Building.

Following a welcoming talk by Dr. Hartman the new members will be introduced individually to the group and later will be entertained at an informal social hour.

The new faculty members and their wives who will be presented at the meeting are Dr. Phillip G. Auchampaugh, assistant professor in history; Arthur W. Kaufman, assistant professor of civil engineering; Dr. Christian F. W. Melz, instructor in foreign languages, and Mrs. Melz; Keith Zeigler, fellow in mathematics; Charles W. Saalfrank, fellow in mathematics, and Mrs. Saalfrank; Albin E. Lindblad, fellow in chemistry; James R. Van Dyke, associate professor in mechanical engineering, and Mrs. Van Dyke.

Frank Richardson, instructor in biology, and Mrs. Richardson; Catherine Austin, fellow in women's physical education; Mildred Klaus, assistant in teacher training in commercial subjects; Holly E. Mertel, fellow in chemistry; Mrs. Alene DeRuff, library assistant; Karen Bratton, library assistant; O. H. Metzger, U. S. Bureau of Mines; Thomas B. Glazebrook, Forest Service, and Ernest Larken, U. S. Bureau of Mines. Hosts and hostesses for the evening will be Pres. and Mrs. Leon W. Hartman, Dean and Mrs. Stanley B. Palmer, Prof. and Mrs. William I. Smyth, Dean Margaret Mack, Prof. and Mrs. A. L. Higginbotham, Prof. and Mrs. V. E. Scott, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Batdorf.

Kiss — An indescribable something that is of no value to anyone, but is much prized by the right two.
