Z412 VOL. XLIX No. 32

Established by the A. S. U. N. Founded October 19, 1893 UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA, RENO, FRIDAY, APRIL 30, 1943

PRICE FIVE CENTS

Summer School Credits Allowed to Reservists

Marine reservists, Navy V-1 and V-7 men, and all others who will be called into the services during the summer will be able to receive credit for work completed in the wartime summer sessions of the university.

Those completing five to eight weeks of the wartime twelve-week session will receive half credit, those continuing for more than nine weeks will receive full credit. Seniors who would be able to receive a degree at the end of the 12-week session and are called into the service after five or more weeks of summer school will be graduated, according to Dr. Harold N. Brown, director of the summer sessions. However, he said, only entrance into the armed services will be considered reason for withdrawal with full credit.

Undergraduates, as reservists and those called to service, will receive half credit for five to eight weeks work, full credit for nine to twelve weeks. A semi-pre-registration will be conducted for students planning to attend before the close of the present semester. Summer school bulletins with the time schedules are in Dr. Brown's office. Each student must make out a schedule and have it approved by Dean Fredrick Wood of the college of arts and science.

Students taking pre-medical work are able, under the new program, to complete the university medical course by attending the university for two years inclusive of summer sessions. At completion of the course, the student will receive no degree as before, but will be eligible for medical school.

Cap and Scroll Sets May 7 for Dinner, Morrison States

Cap and Scroll day was set for May 7 at a dinner meeting of the organization held Thursday night at the Grand Cafe.

Harriet Morrison, president of the group, stated that new members were chosen but their names will not be announced until May 7 at a special assembly.

Initiation of the members will be May 14 and a dinner will be given in their honor on that day. Yvonne Rosasco is in charge of arrangements for the dinner.

Cap and Scroll is the highest women's honorary on the Nevada campus. It is composed of senior women who have excelled in scholarship and leadership in college activities. To be eligible for membership, women must have been active in several organizations and shown pronounced leadership in at least one.

Present members of the group are Mary Kathryn Carroll, Rose Arenaz, Frances Hawkins, Yvonne Rosasco and Harriet Morrison.

Mines Scholarship Given by Kittle

The Marion Lyster Kittle Scholarship fund of $200 for the benefit of senior students in the Mackay School of Mines has been established here by Lieut. Otis Kittle, a graduate of the School of Mines.

Lieutenant Kittle has founded the scholarship in memory of his wife, Marion Lyster Kittle who died suddenly at San Rafael, Calif., in November of 1942.

The announcement was made this week by Dr. Vincent Gianella, who with Dr. Harry E. Wheeler and Walter J. Tobin, will administer the fund.

Lieutenant Kittle is now serving with the armed forces, probably in England. Kittle was employed by the U. S. army engineers in mine evaluation work after his graduation in December, 1941.

Breakfast for Graduates Planned by Pi Phi May 23

Pi Beta Phi will hold its annual breakfast honoring graduating seniors at the chapter house on baccalaureate Sunday, May 23, according to house president, Frances Hawkins.

Beulah Haddow and Nadine Gibson have been named to head the committee arranging for the breakfast, decorations and a program.

Miss Hawkins also announced that election of new officers for the sorority will be held next Monday night.

NOTICE GREEKS

University fraternity and sorority houses are required to file, not later than May 1, a statement of board rates charged during the week of April 4 to 10, as well as a statement of menus in effect, according to Dr. Ernest L. Inwood, district OPA price officer.

Statements must be filed with the Reno war price and rationing board. This requirement places university housing units on the same basis as restaurants, clubs and other dispensers of prepared food and drink.

PRESIDING OFFICER

Eugene Mastroianni, ASUN president, is acting as presiding officer for the PSPA convention in Reno this week. The president was called into the navy this week.

President Sends Threat to Petrillo

Problems of Service Men Discussed by Group

The first active business of the Pacific Student Presidents' convention was the decision on part of the delegates, during the clinic meeting held yesterday morning, to send a telegram to James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFM), recommending him to remove San Jose State College from the musicians' union blacklist.

The message sent last night stated: "After a full consideration of the facts in the blacklisting of San Jose State College the PSPA, which includes all Pacific coast colleges and universities and many western universities, recommends that this ban be lifted. Because other colleges have similar difficulties your immediate reply by Saturday will determine what action we will take." The group's decision will be made at the general business meeting Saturday evening.

Friday Morning

In the discussions this morning, one small school other large, delegates of the PSPA devoted most of their business, concerning "development of campus activities" to problems of the service men in college.

They concluded that the trainee going to university for the navy or the army should use his own discretion whether he wants to take part in student activities or not.

As a result of the duo-discussion, two resolutions were drawn, one concerning the service man, the other student body business.

The one on service men is "Booklets and college papers explaining traditions and activities that service men are able to participate in should be given them. (a) Represent our community, be sociable, not exclusive. (b) Find out if service men are eager to take part in social activities and offer them accordingly."

The other resolution tended to put the power of student government into the hands of the student body executive committee. It reads, "That the student body should maintain a position of dominance in student affairs and that all activities should be carried on under the direction or approval of student body executive committee."

Eugene Mastroianni, presiding officer, pointed out that all resolutions passed in either group discussion would meet final vote at the final session tomorrow evening.

The first meeting of the group was especially designed to orientate new college presidents to the task before them, to give expert advice from retiring presidents and to help them with their next year problems.

At the clinic meeting they resolved one measure for future consideration in regard to army or navy men on the various campuses: "All agreed that methods used should be organized to meet local problems—should invite the service men to participate in social and extra-curricular activities."

Besides these two problems, the college presidents discussed honor systems during examinations, salary of student president and other minor issues. Of all the schools represented, Nevada, Chico State and San Francisco State are the only schools that do not compensate the student president for his work.

Thursday Meeting

Yesterday afternoon the PSPA meeting was split into two discussions—smaller colleges and bigger schools—both considering the same problem.

"Orientation of freshman and transfers" was the topic of discussion led by Jack Ogg, University of Arizona, for larger schools; and Bob Campbell, of (Continued on Page 4)

MEASLE PLAGUE CONTINUES COLLEGE RAMPAGE

Measles. The childhood plague that dogs college students' steps into maturity.

You itch. You have a peculiar burning sensation about your eyes and a dripping action about your nose.

First measles usually spatter a series of four or five vivid spots across the victim's face. Next, five or six red spots erupt on his chest. As three or four more itchy regions appear spontaneously on various parts of his anatomy, he shouts "Bingo!" and is immediately admitted into the infirmary.

This week Mrs. Eunice Griffith, resident nurse at the infirmary, sorrowfully admitted three more measles-mottled coeds into isolation last week. Janet McClellan, Karma Reid and Helen Batjer are struggling in the throes of the spasmodic itching blight.

The measles plague seems to be easing up on the campus for the time being, but it is leaving many a student scratching in reminiscence and cursing the unthinking soul who carelessly spread the contagion around so generously.

YWCA Roll Bandages For Local Red Cross At Meeting Wednesday

YWCA met Wednesday night at local Red Cross headquarters to roll bandages, according to Clara Beth Haley, president of the group.

Each member put in about one hour's work, which will be counted toward her organization in the competition for a plaque to be given by the women's war council.

After the meeting, the group had a waffle supper at the downtown YWCA quarters with Nancy and Pat Herz in charge.

Prospective members of the organization who were guests included Catherine Cazier, Frances Cook, Georgianna Hicks and Melba Trigero.

Complete Program Of Baccalaureate Announced This Week

Edward M. Hulme, professor emeritus of Stanford University and now history instructor for pre-cadets stationed at Nevada, has been chosen to deliver the principal address at the university's 53rd annual commencement, President Leon W. Hartman announced today.

Plans for baccalaureate Sunday on May 23 and for commencement on May 24 are nearing completion. Dr. Hartman said, and only minor details remain to be arranged. Among these is the selection of music for the programs and announcement of the speaker's topic.

About 100 Graduates
University officials expect to graduate a class of about 100 students this year, as compared to 144 in 1942. The decrease is a result of withdrawals from the university by seniors who entered the armed forces, Dr. Hartman stated.

The program for baccalaureate services May 23 will include the following: Invocation by Dr. Albert G. Weiderhold, member of the university faculty; reading of the scripture by the Rev. William T. Holt of St. Stephens University chapel in Reno; baccalaureate sermon delivered by the Rev. Fredric H. Busher, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Reno; benediction by the Rev. S. Dwight McQueen of Sparks.

Dr. Hartman added that one contingent of air force pre-cadets would be invited to attend baccalaureate services.

The commencement program will consist of the invocation by Chaplain Eugene Murray of the Reno Army Air Base; Professor Hulme's address; administration of the oath for the degree by the Hon. William E. Orr, chief justice of the Nevada Supreme Court, and the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. Thomas F. Collins of the Catholic Church in Reno.

Advanced Cadets Report for Duty Sometime in June

Senior advanced ROTC officer candidates will be voluntarily inducted into the army shortly after the close of the semester, the military department announced today.

There will then be a period of waiting until orders are received for these men to report to designated service schools. The orders for the seniors will come from headquarters, ninth service command.

The junior contingent of advanced ROTC cadets will go to basic training at a location to be designated. Upon qualified completion of their basic course they will be sent to the indicated school to complete work for commissions.

All of the seniors will be commissioned in the infantry branch of the army except three.

Eugene Mastroianni and Lyman Earl have been ordered to duty with the signal corps, while Neil Stewart will receive his commission with the engineers.

Campus Dining Hall Receives Equipment; Helps Labor Problem

Several pieces of labor-saving equipment arrived at the university dining hall last week and more have been ordered, according to James Grayson, dining hall chef.

A steam table which will replace approximately 15 student waiters arrived and will be put into use soon. The table has six containers and will be adjoined by a second table on which dishes, trays and utensils will be placed. The second table is to be built under the direction of Carl Horn, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Also received were two urns from which hot beverages will be served.

Four wagons for the use of bus boys in carrying dirty dishes to the kitchen have been ordered, Grayson said.

At present there are 30 students working in the dining hall.

WESLEY FOUNDATION MEETS

Wesley Foundation met Sunday night at the Methodist Church for a discussion led by Bill Rhodes, member of the group. The Rev. Fredric H. Busher, who usually leads these forums was in San Francisco. After the meeting, games were played and refreshments served, according to Al Mills, president.

PESSIMISTIC SPECULATION

Summer school will commence again at Nevada starting June 7 for the 12-week session and June 21 for the six—probably the last normal time civilian semester for the duration.

Though university officials refuse to speculate on the extent of college education next fall, it is rather obvious it must be curtailed. The limited number of students makes this decision mandatory.

Actually next fall the only students that can attend school are women, 17-year-olds, draft deferred men, rejects from the army and those with honorable discharge. In each of these cases, the limitation of a normal time college life tends to destroy their interest in school.

In view of this, summer session is the last realistic opportunity for collegiates to continue education on a normal plane. If they don't take advantage of it they are foolish, for chances of ruining an education for the duration is probable.

Many factors enter the minds of college men and women regarding the attendance of summer school—the men facing military service and the women undecided in view of wartime conditions.

Some of these men are deferred to continue education, however, and are required to attend school. However, other men might be rejected or honorably discharged and have the choice of attending the summer session or working in some defense plant pushed cushion job. Women, too, have this choice.

In face of impending conditions, they would be much wiser attending summer school and insuring their future with a diploma or advancement to a degree than working for money to spend.

The 12-week session, a war measure, began last year to give students an opportunity to finish school in three years, but this year the accelerated process of drafting men into the service has eliminated this prospect.

To interest these young men in college, or any high school student with 14 acceptable credit hours, university officials have formulated a plan to allow high school students to register for the summer session.

This should especially appeal to those men who expect call into the army before they finish high school. The plan is especially designed so that these men will not only gain a taste of college but a high school diploma as well.

After the war it is hoped they will have this degree from school and sufficient insight to continue education at the university.

Marine and Navy reservists, subject to leave someone in July, have also been considered by university officials. They can start the 12-week session and if they finish five to eight weeks of summer school will receive one-half credit for their work. This plan is being carried out in the regular semester at present. The only provision is call into service. If these men complete nine weeks or more they will receive full credit.

In case any of them might be graduating seniors, five weeks of summer school will be sufficient to attain a degree from the university.

This editorial isn't an appeal to the better senses of men to come to summer school merely for the university's sake, but an appeal to the betterment of themselves. No student, whether an army reject, woman or honorable discharge, should miss the opportunity the university is given this summer—especially considering curtailment of college education next fall—curtailment of which official speculation doesn't exist.

THE SPECTATOR

BY BOB CROWELL

We were a lazy people, a sleek, fat, complacent people. Rich beyond the wildest dreams of most peoples, strong in numbers and natural resources, we feared no one. We considered ourselves a chosen people. The rest of the world might be drawn into a whirlpool of hate and fear and bloodshed, but it would never touch us. Drawing back into our ivory towers, we sat on our hemispheric haunches and watched the rest of the world go by.

We had reason for believing ourselves invulnerable. On either side lay a mighty ocean, an ocean which (our military experts had assured us) no enemy force could ever cross. And standing as an impregnable bulwark before us was a fabulous scrap of paper, the Monroe Doctrine. The Monroe Doctrine, which pointed out in no uncertain terms to the rest of the world that we would let them play as they liked in Africa, Europe, Asia and the islands, but hands off America. We wished no part of their games. And we never doubted for a moment that they would heed our warning.

So, in our secure little tower we continue to follow a course of isolation. Oh, we were glad enough to trade with the less fortunate nations. We sent our salesmen to the far flung regions of China, and inner Asia, and Cario and Timbuctoo; and we established merchant houses in Paris, London and Berlin. And our people traveled. Tourists from Dubuque and Peoria and Kansas City marvelled at the glories of the Acropolis and the Colosseum at Rome and the Taj Mahal and consulted their Baedeker Guide Books for information about more wonders that they might wonder at. And they spent good American money for native products (at twenty times the normal price).

But that's where it ended. We scored in the League of Nations. We refused to take part in this experiment to form a world union to end all wars. We knew that war could never touch us. We had our oceans and our doctrine.

We watched the coming of Hitler and Mussolini and the growth of the empire of the little yellow men of the east with interest, but detached interest. We watched them arm for the mighty conflict to come and we sat around consul tables discussing plans for disarmament.

And then war came to Europe. Suddenly we realized that the world had grown much smaller. We saw figures giving the flying range of heavy bombers and the strength of the armies and navies of the axis nations. We found that we weren't self-sufficient but that we depended, heavily, upon our trade with other countries, a trade which the axis nations were threatening to snuff out forever. We ran to the book stores to get a copy of Hitler's "Mien Kampf," we read his plans for the conquest of America with growing anxiety. We asked each other, "Why doesn't somebody do something?"

So we did something. Our president thundered to the world that the frontiers of America were on the Rhine. Our congress sanctioned a lend-lease program designed to aid the embattled democracies. We dug deep into our pockets to aid those who were fighting for freedom. But it was too late. The seeds of willful isolation which we had sown for the last 20 years began to bear fruit. We found that we couldn't snuff out with dollars the fire which had been fueled with the blood and sweat of millions. War struck us on that fateful Sunday in December.

So now, instead of debating whether or not to apply sanctions against the conquest of nations — sanctions which might cost a few dollars in trade—we are fighting for our way of life and for our life itself. It's no easy task that we have before us. We're faced with an enemy which was building a gigantic military machine while we were busily engaged in adding turrets to our Ivory Tower. We'll win in the end. We must win, though it calls for the sacrifice of all but enough to keep the breath of life in our bodies.

But when we win, we shall have only just begun. We shall have to readjust our national outlook. Forever must the forces which advocate isolation in a world in which there can be no isolation be set aside. We must forget the antiquated policy laid down in the Monroe Doctrine. We must realize that if we are to live in a safe world, we must help make that world safe. Our pre-war Ivory Tower must be consigned to oblivion.

It's up to us.

Story of Last Man Off Bataan Added To University Libe

The gripping story of Bataan is told by Col. Carlos P. Romulo, last man off the peninsula and personal aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in his book "I Saw the Fall of the Philippines," which has been added recently to the library, according to Miss Thea Thompson, librarian.

All the gallantry, hope and despair of the men who held Bataan becomes life agony in the pages of this book. Grim details of eating the last rat and the last mule before the final evacuation make this volume the record of American ideals and endurance. It shows well the cost of freedom and should be an awakening influence upon anyone who reads it.

Considered one of the most prominent native editors of the Philippines, Colonel Romulo sets forth in this book complete descriptions of bomb blasted Corregidor and ravished Manila.

With dignity this man who was a Pulitzer prize winner brings into print the most terrible and touching story of the war.

A Scotchman went into a general merchandise store and asked for a spur. The storekeeper looked at him rather funny and asked why one spur. The Scotchman answered, "Well I figure if I get one side a going the other side will go."

Thetas Top List Of Bandage Rollers

Tri-Delts Follow, Gamma Phi Third

Kappa Alpha Theta leads in Red Cross bandage rolling after five weeks of sorority competition, having amassed a total of 74 hours and gone over its weekly quota of 15 hours twice, Dorothy Reynolds, chairman, announced.

Second in the contest is Delta Delta Delta with 66 hours. The Tri-Delts have a weekly quota of 16 hours which they have met once and approached closely each week.

Gamma Phi Beta with 49 hours is third in the competition. Their weekly assignment is eight hours. They have equaled this once and exceeded it one week by 15 hours.

Women from Artemisia Hall have put in 36 hours during the last five weeks and have exceeded their quota of eight hours twice, failing to meet it at other times.

Independent and Pi Phi

Independents have met their eight-hour assignment once, having a total of 22 hours. Pi Beta Phi trails with ten hours in the competition, never having met its quota and having put in no hours last week.

Weekly quotas are determined on a percentage basis from the total membership of the groups, competing, according to Harriet Morrison, chairman of the women's war council workshop.

Competition among sororities and organizations in bandage rolling has been in progress for determining the winner of a plaque to be given by the war council. Each organization has contributed one dollar toward buying the plaque, Miss Morrison said.

Dorothy Reynolds is in charge of the bandage rolling activity of the workshop and it is her duty to tabulate hours put in each week.

Mastroianni Cancels Block N Stag Night

The on-again-off-again status of Block N stag night assumed a permanent off complex when official cancellation this week was revealed by Gene Mastroianni, president of the group.

Several boxing bouts and two wrestling matches had been arranged for the affair, but plans for the use of the gymnasium fell through, so the event was definitely cancelled.

Many Problems Face Today's Traveller, According to One Easter Vacationist

BY ANNETTE LEIGHTON

Train rides should be thought over carefully before one makes the attempt. Not only is it unpatriotic to travel unnecessarily but in case one elected lower berth 13 as his accommodation who knows what might happen.

If you'd rather not take a chance on a berth, you might be able to obtain a seat in the club car. However, if you happen to get on in the middle of the night it does not add to the cheerfulness of the situation to have the porter sleeping down at the other end of the dimly lit car and giving forth ferocious snores. All you can do is hope he does not walk in his sleep and wish that the conductor would come back and check tickets or something.

A decision to take a daytime trip doesn't solve the problem. There is no food except sandwiches that were made two weeks ago in New York which eventually reach you through the first-in fire-out process.

It happens rarely, but the engine might break down and leave you out in the desert a thousand miles from nowhere for two or three hours where you could throw rocks at the telephone poles, throw remarks at your acquaintances or chase jackrabbits up and down. After thinking it over perhaps you'd rather stay home.

Eight Teams Meet In Track Tourney

Obstacle Course Added To List of Events

A track and field meet with eight teams competing will be held on May 1 in Mackay stadium, according to the recreation department this week.

Four teams from the combined flights of our students and the freshmen, juniors, sophomores and seniors will complete the roster of teams for the meet.

None of the contestants will be allowed to wear regulation track shoes, but will compete in regular gym shoes in all the events.

An innovation in the meet will be the running of obstacle course in which the fastest man to complete the grind will garner points for his team.

Events included will be the 100 yard dash, 200 yard dash, 440 yard dash, 880 yard run, mile run, two mile run, 220 low hurdles, 120 high hurdles, shot-put, broad jump, high jump, the hop-step-jump, 440 yard relay, 880 yard relay, mile relay and the obstacle course.

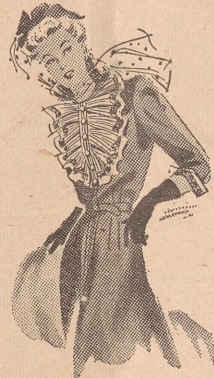

The javelin throw, discus and pole vault have been eliminated.

Each squadron and class is responsible for getting a team ready, and every team will be required to furnish two officials.

The shot put, high jump and broad jump will start the meet, which is scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Those chosen to serve with her were Katy Little, Pi Phi, as vice-president, and Katy O'Leary, KAT, as secretary-treasurer.

The group completed plans for a silver tea to be held May 6 from 7 to 9 pm at the Kappa Alpha Theta house.

Proceeds from the tea will be used to further interests in art on the campus, Miss Neddrenrip stated. At this time paintings will be exhibited.

All students, faculty members and Reno residents are invited to attend, Barbara Heany, chairman, announced.

Assisting Miss Heany with the tea are Lois Bradshaw, Lela Iler, Katy Little, Kathleen Norris, Betty Flyge, Mary Alice Holmes, Janet Wilson, Leonore Hill, Doris Knight, Mary Watts, Jane Dugan and Dorothy Savage.

House mothers of the four sororities will pour at the tables. They are Mrs. Dorothy T. Grill, Pi Beta Phi; Mrs. Hazeldine Slet, Tri Delta; Mrs. Dean Dukes, Kappa Alpha Theta, and Mrs. Ceine Francis, Gamma Phi.

Other business transacted at the Monday meeting was an announcement by Miss Little that she had been successful in making arrangements in securing pins for the group. They will resemble an artist's palette and brushes and engraved on the back with the member's name.

Camp Kern's ERC Send Poem Home To Nevada Campus

Several ERC were sent to Camp Kearns, Utah, while there one of them picked up the following ditty and sent it to one of his friends at the university.

Whether he wrote it himself or whether he picked it up at a camp ballad is unknown, but here it is:

The Camp Kerns Theme Song
This is the song of a G. I. muse,
Lumbering along in G. I. shoes,
Sung to a sort of G. I. tune,
Under the G. I. western moon.

G. I. I'm loaded with G. I. clothes;
G. I. I'm tired of G. I. hose;
G. hon, I'm sick of G. I. issue—
And, oh my darling, G. I. missue.

G. I. long for a G. I. pass
Far from the dusty G. I. grass;
I'm so darned tired of G. I. whirrs
With the usual crop of G. I. girls.

G. I. adore you, darling mine,
(G. I. I'm tired of this G. I. rhyme),
But G. I. happy and I'll tell you why,
Ours is a love that is not G. I.
