

SEMESTER CHANGE EFFECTIVE IN FALL

Paul Yparraguirre Is Named Chairman Thirty-Fifth Mackay Day Celebration

Paul Yparraguirre, senior Alpha Tau Omega, was named chairman of the Mackay Day committee by the senate nomination committee, in a panel confirmed by senate at a meeting last Wednesday at 7:30 pm.

Appointed in the panel to assist Yparraguirre in planning the 35th celebration in honor of John W. and Clarence Mackay, benefactors of the university, are Bob Uhlig, Jane Creel, Jack Dieringer, Frank Apa, Valerie Scheeline, Florine Miller, Bonnie Yater, Robert Craig, Clayton Trigerro and Patricia Usery.

The two-day fete scheduled for April 6 and 7, Friday and Saturday, will consist of the traditional events concluded with the Mackay Day dance, according to Yparraguirre.

As in previous years, men will be required to grow beards, starting six weeks before the event and to be judged during the affair, with prizes going to the best specimens. This ruling will be enforced by the men's upperclass committee.

Featuring the schedule of pre-war years the celebration will open with an assembly of fraternity and sorority houses will hold open house that night.

The 18th Mackay Day queen will be chosen to be introduced at the luncheon on Saturday and crowned at the dance. Also bids for membership in certain organizations and honoraries will be given at the luncheon, and awards will be presented.

Queen in 1944 was Jane Dugan, Kappa Alpha Theta, chosen by Earl Carroll of Hollywood. This year's mistress of ceremonies will probably be picked by Carroll, Yparraguirre noted.

Cleanup day on the campus is scheduled Saturday morning with all sororities and fraternities and other organizations participating in assigned tasks.

The annual Mackay Day dance, highlight of the celebration, will be held Saturday night. Awards for various achievements will be presented at that time.

An annual fete since 1913, the University of Nevada has celebrated the first Friday and Saturday in April in remembrance of two great benefactors of the university, first John W. Mackay and later his son, Clarence. The Mackays did much in donating to the grounds and buildings of the campus since 1907.

CAMPUS SINGERS TO AID PROGRAM

Aided by the University of Nevada singers, the Reno Civic Chorus and Orchestra has planned to present a portion of the oratorio "Elijah," one of Mendelssohn's best known works, some time in March.

Prof. Theodore Post, head of the music department, assisted by Harlan Laufman, accompanist, will direct the concert.

Because of the interest shown in chorus rehearsal held each Tuesday at 7:30 pm in the new gym band room, students are invited to audition, Post announced.

Publications Board Ratifies Reported Artemisia Expenses

Marilyn Dugan, sophomore Kappa Alpha Theta, will replace Thelma Charlton, junior Kappa Alpha Theta, as business manager of the Sagebrush, it was announced this week following a meeting of the publications board Tuesday. Miss Charlton, who has handled these duties since last fall, resigned because of a heavy pre-medical course this semester.

Presented for discussion at Tuesday's meeting were the printing, engraving and cover contracts for the Artemisia. They were ratified, as recommended by the Artemisia staff.

Plans for a dinner to be held in late February were also considered.

Those Present

Members of the publication board present were Dr. C. R. Hicks, faculty advisor; Betty Molignoni, editor of the Sagebrush; Thelma Charlton, former business manager of the Sagebrush; Bette Poe, editor of the Artemisia; Mary Watts, business manager of the Artemisia; Leonore Hill, ASUN president, and Kathleen Norris, Italo Gavazzi, and Rose Marie Mayhew, student advisors.

Military Group Moves Into New Offices in Gym

After occupying the location in Stewart Hall for more than 30 years, the military department began last week to move into offices in the new gymnasium.

Separate offices are provided for Lt. Col. E. L. Field, Sgt. McCormick and cadet officers in the new building, and a reception room, a large glass trophy case, and a closet for battalion and ROTC flags complete the arrangement.

In addition to the suite of offices, there is a large, well equipped darkroom and two showers for the use of the staff. On the north side of the building two rooms are provided for students of military science, equipped with blackboards and facilities for the showing of training films.

A big supply room for the storing of uniforms and equipment is located on the ground floor. Guns, ammunition and other ordnance are to be stored in a specially constructed vault, of concrete and steel. Col. Miller said that the ROTC cadets would drill on the large basketball court in inclement weather.

MAGAZINE PUBLISHES ARTICLE BY MOSELEY

An article on the philosophy of Christian education by Dr. John O. Moseley, president of the university, was published in a recent edition of the Desert Churchman, Episcopal monthly in Nevada.

Material for the article came from a talk Moseley gave at a parish dinner of the Trinity Church in Reno in October.

Dean Hammon Named Assembly Speaker For Phi Kappa Phi

Featuring Dean George P. Hammon of the University of New Mexico as principal speaker, the Phi Kappa Phi assembly will be held Friday, February 9, at 10 am in the education auditorium.

Prof. F. L. Bixby, president of the national scholastic honorary on the campus, stated that the subject of the address will be Mexico. Students and professors newly named to the society will be announced following the speech.

Evening Speech

Dean Hammon will also speak Friday at 8 pm in the education auditorium in a lecture on Argentina open to the public.

A meeting to complete arrangements for Phi Kappa Phi day will be held Thursday, and a vote on changing the by-laws of the local organization will be taken. New members may be elected at this time.

Individual Clubs Schedule Socials For Semester

In addition to the official social calendar drawn up by the committee consisting of Dean Rueben C. Thompson, Dean Alice B. Marsh and Dr. Robert S. Griffin, dates were approved Thursday for individual clubs which meet at inter-

Griffin to Handle Requests for Gyms

Dr. Robert Griffin, acting dean of men, will handle requests for the use of either the old or new gym for purposes other than class work, according to President John O. Moseley.

Cap and Scroll Elects Members

Creel, Heany To Be Initiated at Rites

Jane Creel, senior Kappa Alpha Theta, and Barbara Heany, senior Pi Beta Phi, were named this week to Cap and Scroll, women's honorary organization, according to Katherine O'Leary, president.

Rites on Friday

Formal initiation ceremonies will be held February 9 in the home economics rooms, to be followed by a banquet at the Trocadero.

Cap and Scroll, Nevada's highest women's honorary society, is limited to seniors who have exceptional scholastic standings and are active in campus affairs. Present members are Nancy Herz, Nadine Gibson, Leonore Hill and Katherine O'Leary.

Miss Creel headed the campus war bond drive to purchase a Navy Helicat, and is chairman of the finance bureau of the war board, president of Home Economics Club and chairman of the election board. She is a member of WAA, Saddle and Spurs, Sagens, YWCA, Fine Arts and the Artemisia staff.

Miss Heany is president of University Singers and one of the accompanists, head of Fine Arts and a member of the women's upperclass committee, Sagens, and the senate executive committee.

MARINE LIEUTENANT

Marine Lt. Ed Grundel visited the university military department Tuesday afternoon. Lt. Grundel, a former student, has taken part in the Bougainville and Marianas campaigns.

Russia, China, Poland, Norway, Holland To Be Represented in WSSF Drive at UN

Foreign countries to be portrayed by campus organizations participating in the World Student Service Fund drive, February 9 to 16, were announced today by the finance bureau of the war board, backer of the drive.

Russia and China

Using the theme of Russia, Pi Beta Phi will open the drive next Friday sponsoring the contribution booth across from the library from 9 am to 4 pm. Jean Marie Proctor is in charge of the decorations.

China will be portrayed by Delta Delta Delta on Tuesday, and Poland by the Interfraternity Wednesday morning and the Independent Wednesday afternoon. Valerie Scheeline, Jim Coleman and Judy Bogart are the respective chairmen.

Regents Approve Change at Meeting On University of Nevada Campus Sat.

Beginning the fall semester of 1945, the University of Nevada will use the long term plan, providing four weeks of class work following the Christmas holiday and breaking February 1.

Result of informal action taken last week by the board of regents and faculty members, approval followed the recommendations of a specially appointed committee under the chairmanship of Dr. George W. Sears, head of the chemistry department.

The new arrangement will provide semesters of a 17-week minimum exclusive of holidays. Tentative dates announced for new class schedules are: first semester from September 17 to December 20, 1945, with Christmas holidays until January 3, and classes lasting through the last week in the month.

Uniform Credits Set for Entrance

Uniform quality credits for entrance will apply to both Nevada applicants and those from outside the state, Dean Stanley G. Palmer, chairman of the admissions committee, stated.

Changes Approved

Other changes approved at last Friday's faculty meeting include regulations concerning special students, who now must submit a program of work to be undertaken at the university.

This must be approved by the dean of the appropriate college before enrollment. Special students are those over 21 years of age who do not meet standard college entrance requirements, Palmer explained.

Sign Statement

New students must also sign a statement verifying the accuracy of the information supplied, and stating they will conduct themselves at all times in a manner to reflect credit on the university.

To induce students to file credentials at the registrar's office promptly, Palmer explained, he will write letters to all high school principals this spring, enlisting their aid in this regard, thus expediting registration of new students.

High Registration Seen in Philosophy

Student interest in philosophy courses is maintaining a new high this semester, with a record of 99 enrolled, according to Dr. Albert G. Wiederhold, professor of philosophy and psychology.

This figure represents an increase of about 30 students, although the total number of hours being taught in the department is less than in previous years.

"Advantages accruing to the university under the plan for semesters of equal length far exceed any inconvenience caused," Dr. Sears, whose committee made a thorough study of the question over a period of almost three years, commented. "The committee made every effort to base judgment on the value of the change to the university, not on any personal preferences."

Listed by the doctor as principal benefits derived from the change are: life science departments will be availed of the later spring semester; practicing teaching courses will coincide with the calendar year of local schools; semester dates will conform with those of the majority of the nation's colleges; the best of Reno's climate will be utilized without the interruption of the Labor Day weekend.

Also, he added, the number of late registrations will be reduced; transcripts not previously secured will be more readily obtainable from high school principals already back at their desks; registration for January high school graduates will be simplified; faculty members will be free to attend national meetings in their specialized fields in early fall and Easter week.

From a survey of the four largest employers of summer help in this vicinity, Dr. Sears said he discovered that to the highway department and mining industries the change would make no difference. For forestry service and employment at Lake Tahoe, the September opening of the university is better suited since it permits students to retain jobs until after Labor Day.

Modern Fiction Taught on Campus

Dr. Robert A. Hume, head of the English department, is now instructing an evening class in modern fiction, following the general trend toward increasing interest in adult education.

Dr. Hume, who taught a similar course at Purdue, expresses gratification at the large enrollment, three-fourths of which are townpeople. During the term 25 or 30 modern short stories will be read and analyzed.

Work Studied

Novels to be considered as part of the semester's work are: "Ethan Frome," by Edith Wharton; "Portrait of a Lady," by Henry James; "Of Human Bondage," by Wm. Somerset Maugham; "Victory," by Joseph Conrad; "Arrowsmith," by Sinclair Lewis; "Farewell to Arms," by Ernest Hemingway; "Looking Backward," by Edward Bellamy, and "Grapes of Wrath," by John Steinbeck.

With cooperation of the Washoe county library as well as the university library, books will be available to students without the necessity for purchasing the entire list.

WSSF Sponsors Letter Writing

Nevada campusites may now correspond with foreign students in China and Russia through the World Student Service Fund in connection with its annual drive on this and other campuses for funds to continue relief work.

In accordance with their belief that such correspondence does much to develop student solidarity and understanding, the WSSF announced that letters may be sent to the World Student Service Fund office, 8 West 40th Street, New York, 18, New York.

Regulations

The following regulations must be observed in writing letters due to wartime conditions; the salutation "Dear Student Friend" must be used, write on one side of one sheet only of onionskin paper, address must be in upper righthand corner, and the full name should be signed in closing.

The WSSF will forward the letter to its destination and will be responsible for the reply when it is received. The student should stipulate whether a man or woman correspondent is desired, as lists of Russian and Chinese student names wishing to correspond with Americans are kept on file.

War Prisoner Mail

It is not possible to write letters to a prisoner of war unless his name and complete prison camp address are known, but a limited number of letters will be received for European refugees and internees now in Canada or Australia. It is also possible to correspond with Japanese-American students still in relocation camps.

Dean A. B. Marsh Moves to Stewart

Mrs. Alice B. Marsh, acting dean of women, has announced that her offices will be moved into the quarters now occupied by Col. E. L. Field and the military department on the ground floor of Stewart Hall. The moving day will depend upon completion of decorating work and the installation of a cement floor.

Mrs. Marsh added that these rooms were formerly the home economics department and university dining hall in the early days when Stewart Hall and Morrill Hall were the only buildings on the campus.

Fine Arts to Hear Dr. Effie M. Mack

Dr. Effie M. Mack will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Fine Arts group to be held Monday, February 5, 8:30 pm at the Kappa Alpha Theta house, according to Barbara Heany, president.

An exhibit sponsored by the Fine Arts group ended today after being on display for a week in the electrical engineering building. The collection of lithographs, pencil and ink sketches, shawls, rugs and tapestries was loaned by Charles Cutts, well known Reno collector.

Frosh-Soph Hop Plans Are Made

The frosh-soph hop scheduled for the evening of February 24, will be held at the Twentieth Century Club, Gloria Mapes, sophomore class manager, announced this week.

Plans Secret

Plans for both the dance and assembly are still secret as committees for both events continued conferences this week.

Members of the dance committee are Rachel McNeil, John Baker, Pat Babb and Howard Williams, while the assembly committee is comprised of Rose Nannini, Jack Dieringer, Phyllis Green and Bob Durham. Coordinating all activities are the two class managers, Gloria Mapes, sophomore, and Neva Gardner, freshman.

Commander Sends Letter to Campus

A letter expressing thanks for support in the sixth war loan drive was received today by Lt. Col. E. Lewis Field of the campus military department from the commanding officer of the Ninth Service Command in Fort Douglas, Utah.

More than a quarter billion dollars' worth of war bonds were purchased by military installations in this area during November and December, 1944, and thanks were extended for the cooperation that made this achievement possible.

Nevada together with California, Utah, Arizona, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana is in the Ninth Service Command area, Field said.

WE DON'T LIKE IT!

Last week the University of Nevada faculty decided to adjust the school term so that the fall semester will begin September 17 and terminate the last of January. The spring semester will begin February 1 and will end June 10. The board of regents, at their meeting here Saturday, approved the plan as presented by the faculty.

Underlying this act was a great deal of controversy on the question. Many faculty members are opposed to the change, and the ASUN senate voted unanimously to keep the semester as it is this year—with the fall semester ending before Christmas vacation.

The sub-committee appointed by the faculty—and headed by Dr. George Sears—asked the student senate to express its views on the question. It did express its unanimous opinion, in a letter to Dr. Sears last week, that the present system is unquestionably desirable from the student viewpoint.

However, the ASUN senate's letter was not even read in the faculty meeting at which the decision was reached. Mention was made of the student opinion—but it was said that arguments presented by the students were not worthy of consideration. The majority opinion in the faculty conference was that students wanted the semester the way it now stands, but they—the students—had no particular reason to offer.

The opinion of the faculty members was erroneous. Students did have reasons for their carefully-reached decision. It is harder for students to obtain jobs in various fields when they get out of school in the middle of June. Though the job-hunting element may bear no significance in the minds of faculty members, it means the difference between coming back to college or leaving college permanently for a good number of Nevada students.

Another element to be considered is the transportation problem. When the semester ends before Christmas, students will stay on campus to take their final examinations. If finals are not given before Christmas, an appreciable number of students who live out of town will cut classes and go home two or three days before vacation formally begins.

Likewise, there will be a few days between the end of the fall semester and the beginning of the spring university session. During this time, students will again want to go home. Whereas, with the end of the semester before Christmas, students are able to go home once, have a two-week rest, then return—ready for another semester. With the long-term plan in effect, students will have two few-day vacations and will be utilizing twice the transportation facilities they would require in taking one trip home.

Homecoming plans will be last-minute affairs under the new setup. We will have scarcely two weeks to plan for one of the two big events the campus stages each year. It has been very difficult for students—limited in number as we are—to make a success of these large-scale activities when there was sufficient time for minute planning.

We of the University of Nevada have been active in bond selling, March of Dimes work and World Student Service Fund functions. We, too, find our time limited, but we feel that we are doing just a small part to help our country fight the war in which we are involved.

If we are to continue our work with the degree of success we have thus far attained, we must be accorded a little consideration in order to make our future plans profitable. The time element in our planning is an important one—despite the opinions of some faculty members.

These are our arguments. We had no fair hearing—and the faculty sub-committee explained that the senate letter did not reach them until after the decision had been reached. When the decision was placed before the faculty, student opinion was lost in a lot of talk.

The faculty offered these arguments for the long term arrangement: under the present plan, the spring semester is one week longer than the fall semester; therefore courses taught both semesters must be either shortened during one semester or lengthened during the longer session. The botany department finds that certain specimens desirable for laboratory work are available only during the late spring, and this longer spring semester will coincide with the whims of nature.

The education department finds that students in practice-teaching courses are not given a sufficiently long period of actual teaching experience because Reno schools do not have terms starting and ending at the same time the university classes begin and terminate.

Their final argument is that under the present arrangement the second session of summer school ends on the Saturday preceding registration for the long session at the university. Also, summer school attendance depends largely upon state teachers. In some cases, it was said, schools from which these teachers come do not end before the university begins its summer session. Summer school must start after public school ends, the faculty explained.

A superficial glance at two of the foregoing arguments automatically points to solutions.

In the complaint that a course must be either compressed or lengthened to correspond with the length of the semester, it is fairly obvious that it would not make a great deal of difference whether the material was given students one way or the other. A week's time as far as any one course is concerned makes little difference in the amount learned by an individual student. Either he learns the subject—or he does not. The instructor can arrange the work in keeping with the length of the semester.

In the complaint that summer session ends the Saturday before regular registration, two solutions are possible and are now in effect in several other colleges.

Class periods during the summer session may be extended from 50 to 60 minutes—and the material to be covered in the class can be handled in the extra ten minutes per class period with the same results.

Also, summer classes could very well be held on Saturday—as well as during the week—giving a six-day school week instead of the present five-day arrangement.

It would seem that the faculty was a little to willing to scoff at student arguments, but they failed to inquire into the weaknesses of their own objections to the present system.

Students go a long way in determining public opinion in relation to the state university—the only university in the state of Nevada. If the students are dissatisfied—as they are now—they will undoubtedly convey their opinions to their parents—the taxpayers of Nevada who support the university.

There is no law prohibiting students from this state from attending other west coast universities where students are given some consideration. There is a likelihood that students from the southern portion of Nevada will convey their opinions of their treatment here to their parents so forcibly that at some time—in the not-too-distant future—people from southern Nevada will ask the state legislature to establish a university there.

We, the Associated Students of the University of Nevada, feel that we were not given fair consideration by the faculty and that an element of personal convenience of some faculty members governed the decision on adjustment of our school semester. AND WE DON'T LIKE IT!

INFORMATION FOR VETERANS

An information bulletin designed to answer veterans' requests concerning the advantages, facilities and courses offered at the University of Nevada, has been prepared by Dr. Robert S. Griffin, acting dean of men and executive secretary of the Alumni Association.

A thin pamphlet, it contains concise information condensed from the university catalogue, for prospective students who are being discharged from the armed services and will be furnished them on request.

To meet the wide variety of educational needs, as expressed by the veterans, courses of many types are outlined.

Standard four-year courses leading to degrees, college preparatory and refresher courses designed to prepare for work leading to degrees, special courses, not leading to degrees, but helping to prepare for special types of vocations, correspondence and extension courses for those who cannot attend college regularly, special courses to make up high school deficiencies on the campus, preparatory to college entrance.

Thus, the university's standards will not be lowered, but everything will be done to help the applicant achieve college standing, Dr. Griffin explained.

The bulletin concludes with special instruction on apply for admission, records and transcripts necessary, and credits to be given for college training programs taken under military auspices.

Nevada Drops Nod To RAAB Team in Terrific Contest

Smolenski and Simon Star for Wolf Pack In Spite of Defeat

The Reno Army Air Base defeated the University of Nevada last night 49-33 in a fast and rough game played in the old gymnasium.

This was sweet revenge for the boys from the air base, having lost a practice tilt to the collegians earlier in the season.

Little Davey Dentzer, all-state forward, led the Flyers home, tossing 15 points through the iron hoop. He was threatened for high scoring honors by Norb Smolenski, bespectacled Wolf Pack center from Chicago, who meshed 13 points and played a terrific floor game.

The Flyers started fast with Dentzer and his scoring mate, Larry Palmer, another all-stater, pouring it on, to lead at the end of the first quarter 12-4. Pete Simon, Nevada forward, scored the only basket for the Wolf Pack in the first set-to.

Smolenski carried the brunt of the Nevada attack the rest of the first half, but the university cagers could not close the gap. The Flyers left the court at the intermission with the score 26-16 in their favor.

The Wolf Pack crept to within six points of the Flyers after the second half had gotten way, but Klitch, center of RAAB, and McGee, forward, started banging away from the corners and it was the ball

Thirty Members Form This Semester's Band

Starting anew this semester with 30 members after having disbanded before the end of the fall semester, the University of Nevada band is holding regular practices every Tuesday at 4 pm, according to Prof. Theodore Post, head of the music department.

Any student who desires to play in the band is encouraged to attend practices, Post pointed out. Drummers, saxophone and cornet players are needed, as well as a bass horn player.

Klitch totaled 10 points, eight of them in the second half when the University of Nevada was making its strongest bid.

Mastroianni and Guffrey were the officials for last night's game. In a preliminary game the Reno high C team defeated a pickup team of collegians 27-22.

The University of Nevada Wolves entertain the Fleet City Sailors Saturday night in what should be another fine tussle. The sailors have won 14 and lost six playing in the Northern California Association and are a high scoring organization.

Spike Moran, six foot one inch forward, is the leading scorer of the association, with his running mate, Kramer, in the number two spot. Kramer stands six feet four inches in his stocking feet.

George Glavin is their six foot five inch center and the guards are Len Yandle and Al Madsen both five feet ten inches.

Palmer, Van Dyke To Represent UN

Representing the University at the meeting of Diesel Engine Manufacturers Association to be held in San Francisco February 8, will be Stanley G. Palmer, dean of the college of engineering, and Prof. James R. Van Dyke, acting head of the school of mechanical engineering.

Program

Spending the morning at Enterprise Engine and Foundry Company's plant, San Francisco, representatives of the diesel engine industry will take them through Atlas Imperial and Union Diesel Engine Company plants, to acquaint them with the manufacturing side of the industry, Dean Palmer explained.

Diesel Education

Accredited colleges interested in diesel education have been invited to this meeting for the purpose of helping them work out college level diesel educational programs.

Indicating a preference for college trained personnel, industry representatives suggest proper preparation for the important diesel engine field, Palmer stated. Many opportunities are available for trained personnel.

Others to Attend

In addition to the University of Nevada, seven other institutions have indicated they will attend. Representatives from Oregon State College, University of Santa Clara, Stanford University, Washington State College, University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles and California Institute of Technology are expected to be present.

All manufacturers in the San Francisco bay area will send representatives to the meeting, and Harvey T. Hill, executive director of Diesel Engine Manufacturers Association, plans to come from Chicago to the meeting, according to his letter to Dean Palmer.

Nevada Pack Trims Fallon Navy Team

Wolf Pack Puts End To Nine-Win Record

Flashing two newcomers, the University of Nevada Wolf Pack broke the Fallon Racchorses' series of nine wins with a 57-52 victory Thursday night in the old gymnasium.

The crowd, gathered to aid the March of Dimes, thrilled to the towering cagers who took high point honors for Nevada; Cliff France, husky, talkative forward, six feet three inches, who netted 20 points, and Norbert Smolinski, smooth center, six feet three inches, who hit 14.

The combined civilian-naval team with "Streak" Capucci at the reins, held the collegians for the first quarter which ended 8 to 8. The fast pushing Nevada team featuring three successive shots by Pete Simon, flash forward, left the Merchants lagging 14 to 26 at the half.

The second half was the scene of fast, concentrated effort by the Fallon Merchants as ball stealing and clever dribbling highlighted many of the plays. Delashmit, Fallon veteran of the hardwood, tallied nine points to become high point man for the visitors.

Fleet City Game Slated Tomorrow

The basketball schedule for the 1944 season became more definite this week after it was found that the new gymnasium would probably be ready for use within two weeks.

Play Fleet City

Tomorrow's game with the Fleet City Bluejackets scheduled for 8 pm, should draw a good sized crowd to the old gym. The Wolves also have on the game schedule Camp Parks and Fleet City for February 16 and 17 to be met at their respective bases.

New Gym Prepared

Backboards and baskets are to be installed in the new gymnasium within a week, according to Coach Jim Aiken, and the gym ready for use within two weeks at the most.

The problem of placing the baskets has been worked out and a steel frame is being built by the Martin Iron Works of Reno. It will be Aiken expressed the hope of scheduling the University of California to play the Wolf Pack on campus March 3 for the game in the new gymnasium. The Nevada western zone high school tournament will be played in the gym on March 1, 2 and 3, with the varsity game intended as the final attraction. Before or after this last play the gymnasium would be dedicated, Aiken said.

University of Nevada to Compete in National Contest for Selling Bonds

National recognition on a network radio broadcast from the campus is the prize for which the University of Nevada will compete in a nationwide war activity contest being staged by the treasury department, according to Kathleen Norris, president of the university war board.

All United States colleges are eligible to enter in the contest, the one reporting the best all-around war bond program by April 1 will be selected for broadcasting.

The winner will be chosen on the basis of college participation, group initiative and ingenuity, and connection of the war bond program with the educational program.

Nevada has an excellent chance to receive the national recognition because of student participation in war activities this year, Miss Norris said. The splendid results of the Hellcat drive last semester should do much in promoting the university for this honor.

Reports sent in from the various colleges may be in any form, but scrapbook form is suggested. Included will be information on all war bond activities; selling devices; statistical records of sales to the faculty and students, and pictures and posters of the various campaigns and drives.

Under the direction of the finance bureau of the war board, a rough draft of the scrapbook is being made. Students are requested to send ideas or suggestions for organization of the scrapbook to the bureau, along with any pictures or posters portraying war activities of the university.

The university war board is making plans to purchase a minute man flag for the campus, one of the activities mentioned by the treasury department as counting in the final decision. The right to fly the minute man flag may be earned by a college if 90 per cent of the student purchase a war stamp each week.

Following the close of the Student Fund drive February 16, the university bond booth will be open each Friday, sponsored by campus organizations, and student lists will be checked to show participation.

Reports for the contest are made to the state war finance office which then sends outstanding examples to the treasury department in Washington, D. C. Entries from the 48 states will be judged by a committee of prominent citizens, and the college which is selected for national recognition will be announced and honored during the latter part of April.

War bond chairmen who submit reports will at the same time submit a list of students who have helped with the campus war bond program and are deserving of a special treasury citation for their work.

Campus YWCA Slates Room Warming Fete In Artemisia Hall

Plans for a room warming in the re-decorated room in the basement of Artemisia Hall to be held February 6 were discussed at a YWCA meeting Tuesday afternoon at Manzanita Hall, Patricia Herz Cooke, president, announced.

Appointed to handle arrangements were Maie Nygren and Dorothy Thomas, co-chairmen; Dot Hendel, Blanche Parker, Marjorie Swenson, Barbara Mills and Shirley Campbell. On the refreshment committee are Roma Gardner, chairman; Billy Heath, Mary Lou Hoventon, Pat Ussey, Ann Irriarte and Jean Scott.

A dinner for all Y members was planned for March 5 to be held in the Reno YWCA building, and the proposed Y hut was discussed.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Mrs. Mabel Richmond, secretary of the Reno chapter, who spoke on the work and purpose of the organization. Other guests present were Mrs. J. Bibb, president of the campus advisory board; Mrs. Leonard Chadwick, treasurer, and Pat Lowry, secretary.

Eight Students Win Scholarships

Eight scholarship awards were recently presented to University of Nevada students for superior scholarship, according to Dr. Harold N. Brown, chairman of the University of Nevada scholarships and prizes committee.

Carmen Bergeret Grundel, senior student, was awarded $150 under the Major Max C. Fleischmann scholarship fund.

Donald Johnson, freshman student from Golconda, Nevada, was given the Rotary Club of Reno scholarship award for $100 to be paid in $12.50 monthly installments for eight months. Johnson is a Theta Chi pledge. Good character and superior grades are the standards for this award.

Three students who received $100 each from the Jewett W. Adams scholarship fund include Wilburta Flavin, freshman student from Montello, Nevada; Adele Mary Marsh, sophomore student of Reno, and Ethel Crouch Wright, senior from Sparks.

Katherine O'Leary, Raylyn Collins, both senior students, and Jacqueline Prescott, junior, each received $75 under the Rose Sigler Mathews scholarships.

Coeds to Attend Formal Dance at Fallon Navy Base

Women from the University of Nevada will attend their first formal dance of the semester at the Fallon Naval Air Station, according to Mrs. Alice B. Marsh, acting dean of women.

The officers' ball will be held in the Officers' Club at the base which is southeast of Fallon. A buffet supper, to be served at 11 pm, will be a feature of the evening.

The dance is being held on a Friday so that it will not interfere with the social affairs of the campus. Navy buses will pick the women up at 6:30 pm Friday and will leave the navy base at 12:15 am the same night. The officers have requested that the buses leave at that time.

Women in the dormitories who are planning to attend the affair must have permission from their parents, said Mrs. Marsh.

Old Lady: Little boy, I wouldn't kick my sister around the street like that if I were you.

Little Boy: Oh, it's all right. She is dead.

Grafton Returns To U of N Campus

Prof. Eldon C. Grafton, associate professor structural engineering, returned to the campus at the beginning of the semester after service with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers since January of 1941.

With the rank of major, Prof. Grafton went into France with the invasion forces and was assigned reconstruction of railroads and particularly railroad bridges.

In the army reserve since 1921 when he enlisted in the national guard, Prof. Grafton receive a leave of absence from the university for his army duties.

Previous to his overseas assignment, Grafton took a year's instruction in battalion commanding overseas.

He was on duty training aviation engineering students for a year and served as senior instructor of ROTC at Washington State College, his alma mater, for 18 months before going overseas.

The facts of his field experiences and specific duties will of necessity remain military property until after the war, Prof. Grafton said.

New Courses Set In Pre-Med Field

Graduation Degrees Conferred on Four

New pre-medical technologist courses leading to B.A. and B.S. degrees, based on electives chosen, were sanctioned for the university by the regents at a meeting Saturday in the president's office.

Three years of campus study followed by 12 to 18 months of out-of-school training in approved laboratories will equip students as laboratory technicians or prepare them for medical, dental and other specialized fields, Silas E. Ross, chairman of the board, stated.

Need Technicians
Since there is an urgent need for laboratory technicians now and in the future, many opportunities are opening for trained persons in this field, he added.

Degrees of graduation were conferred upon four students by the board on recommendation of the faculty. Jeanette Taylor Cloud and Hellen Meaker, both of Reno, received B.A. degrees in the college of arts and science; Marilyn Bradley, honor student with a 3.94 scholastic average for the fall semester, received a B.S. degree in the arts and science college, and Arthur Weller received a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering.

A report from the committee appointed to study development of the university farm and the Ladino dairy farm, recently given to the university by Major Max C. Fleischmann, into a laboratory unit for agriculture students was considered.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY TO HAVE OPA RECORDS

Pending a final okay from Washington, D. C., the University of Nevada library is awaiting further correspondence to go ahead with plans to transfer the Office of Price Administration records to the university library, according to Dr. James J. Hill, librarian.

In the past, these files were kept in the court house buildings in Minden and Sparks. However, lack of space forced a change, and now the library has been designated as the depository for the OPA records.
