

Nevada's athletic program gets overhauling

Nevada's football opponents will be in the same league which has filled the grid iron slate for the past several years, it was revealed this week in a list of tentative policies adopted by the board of athletic control and approved by President Malcolm Love and the university regents.

The new policies, adopted after a series of meetings that were attended by practically every faction interested in the athletic activities at the university, calls for reorganization of the athletic board of control, the eventual granting of faculty ratings to members of the coaching staff, and a set of eligibility rules for athletes.

Under the new policies a board of athletic control would be composed of two alumni members, two faculty members, two students, and for the first time, the university comptroller. This seven-man board will have "jurisdiction over intercollegiate athletics subject to the approval of the policy and appointments by the president and the board of regents."

The policy calls for plans to continue playing schools of the same caliber that the university has been playing in the past few years; to cooperate with such schools in this area in the organization of a conference; a definite commitment to a program of freshman athletics, based on the expectation that the freshman will spend four years at the university; definite emphasis upon attracting Nevada high school graduates; and the consideration of intercollegiate athletics as a desirable part of the university program.

The staff of the athletic department, to be selected in the same way that faculty members are selected, will be expected to participate in the total university program and to support the policies that are approved by the board of regents.

"Duties will include a positive program in the area of public relations and the acceptance of the general understanding that public relations is not a personal right, but an all-university concern and, therefore, that any statements of releases to the press will be made in accordance with university policy."

The new policy also calls for a faculty eligibility committee of five members appointed "in the same manner as all faculty standing committees, i.e., by recommendation of the administrative council and with the approval of the president."

The raising of funds for grant-in-aid and employment compensation to athletes will "be received and disbursed by the University of Nevada through the comptroller's office upon recommendation of the director of athletics and the approval of the board of athletic control."

The board of athletic control will establish standards of merit and qualifications on the basis of which athletic scholarships will be granted.

"F" or "W"

Watch it, student correct procedure can save grades

Correct procedure for withdrawing from a course at these crucial times make the difference between an "F" and a "W."

"It is not enough simply to inform your instructor if you are withdrawing," warned Mrs. Jeanette Rhodes, registrar. "There have been a large number of failures issued in the past to students who believed they had officially withdrawn from a course."

The correct way to withdraw from a course is to obtain a withdrawal card from the registrar's office, have it signed by both the instructor and the dean of the college, then return the card to the registrar. The instructor is then officially notified by the registrar and the student is "clear."

Local Red Cross wants students among directors

The Red Cross needs student affiliation with the downtown organization and wants two university students to sit on the Red Cross board of directors, the local organization said today.

The two students under consideration for the position are Jim Hulse and Thelma Gerrey, who, if the plan goes into effect, will be leaders in Red Cross work and activities on campus.

The matter is to be decided by the senate before the Red Cross annual drive in January.

Psychology group studies movies

Two psychological films were shown to about 50 students by Psi Chi, honorary psychology society, at the Education auditorium Tuesday afternoon.

According to Dr. Ralph T. Irwin, head of the psychology department, these films, "What's On Your Mind?" and "Feelings of Rejection," were made available through the courtesy of the state department of public health, division of mental hygiene by Dr. Lloyd Henderson, who has his office on the campus.

Nevada halfback Lee Schroder charges around end in the Montana game here Saturday. The inspired Wolf Pack pulled this game out of the hole for the first win in eight starts. Final score, 19-14.

Debate squad competes in L.A. this weekend

Ten members of the university debate squad will participate in the Western Speech Association forensics tournament at George Pepperdine College in Los Angeles this weekend.

The tournament is held annually in connection with the convention of the Western Speech Association.

All students will take part in the debate event. The topic for the debate was announced last week as follows: Resolved: That the non-communist nations should form a new international organization.

Discussion groups will consider the responsibility of the federal government for the welfare of the people of the United States.

Debate teams are divided into two groups. The junior group includes freshmen and sophomores and the varsity group is composed of upperclass members of the squad.

Junior men who will attend the tournament are Robert Ballard, who will participate in the extemporaneous speaking event; Proctor Hug, discussion; Louis Cannon and Clinton Wooster, oratory.

Varsity members Joan Foster and William Engel will take part in discussion; Arline Allen, oratory; Jerone Marks, Bulkely Wells, Jr., and Ralph Brown, extemporaneous speaking.

Gale Richards, assistant professor of English, will accompany the Nevada group and will act as a judge for tournament events.

Virginia Alonso, a senior from Sunnyside, California, announced her engagement this week to Fred Wood, a Lambda Chi and junior from Elko, Nevada. No date has been set for the wedding.

Pack leaves for games at N. Texas, Wichita

The grid team and coaching staff of the Nevada Wolf Pack departed last night from Reno by chartered plane for Denton, Texas, where they clash with the North Texas State Eagles tomorrow.

The Pack took off at 10 p.m. after attending a dinner given at the Riverside Hotel by Reno football enthusiasts in recognition of the showing the team made last Saturday over Montana, 19-14.

Arriving in Dallas this morning, the team traveled to nearby Denton by bus and held a workout in preparation for the game.

Nevada will be out to register its fourth straight win over the Texans since the first game between the two teams in the 1948 Salad Bowl game. It will also mark the first appearance of a Nevada athletic team in the state of Texas.

After the Texas game, the Wolves will journey by bus to Wichita, Kansas, for a Thanksgiving Day date with the University of Wichita which winds up the 1950 schedule. The Pack has easily beaten the Shockers in two previous years.

Both North Texas and Wichita are favored over Nevada this year. North Texas has won its conference title, behind a strong aerial attack paced by quarterback Zeke Martin, though it has lost two games to undefeated Kentucky and tough Arkansas. Wichita, still in the running for the Missouri Valley conference title, has dropped its last three games, after winning the first four straight, including a win over Utah State, a team which squeezed past Nevada, 7-6.

Following the Wichita game, the locals will fly back to Reno, arriving early Friday morning.

The usual lineup will probably start tomorrow's game. At offensive ends will be Don Jones and Wally Graf, while working on defense will be steady Wally Barnard and Joe Lash. At tackles are "Punjab" Hairston and Ron Einstoss, and at the guard posts will be Bob Martin and Gordon Surber. Carmel Caruso will again anchor the line at center. In the backfield are Pat Brady at quarterback, Myron Leavitt or Tom Massey at right half, Andy Kalmanir or Lee Schroder at left half and at fullback will be Bud Brooks and Herm Fisher.

Annual Messiah scheduled for Dec. 11; 125 will participate in chorus

Preparations are being made for the annual presentation of Handel's Messiah, according to Theodore H. Post, professor of music and conductor of the Messiah.

The Messiah will be presented on Monday, December 11, at 8:15 p.m. in the university gymnasium. Those who wish to participate must apply before December 1, Professor Post said.

Marjorie Dickinson and Janet Langfear will sing the soprano solos. Yelda Robertson and Dorothy Gray were chosen as the contralto soloists. Joseph Battaglia will sing the tenor and Eric Schaffer, the baritone.

The hundred and twenty-five singers will participate in the chorus. The chorus consists of the University Singers and the Reno Civic Chorus. The Reno Civic Orchestra, consisting of 30 musicians, will play.

Fred De Salvo will be the concertmaster. Winfred Smith was chosen as the manager and Felton Hickman will assist Post in conducting. Verlita Johnson will accompany the chorus as pianist.

Hickman is guest conductor at Navy concert in Reno

The new director of the university band, Mr. Felton Hickman, was honored last week at the concert of the U. S. Navy band by being guest conductor for one of the band's numbers.

Under the auspices of the Reno Kiwanis Club, the band played before 2,000 persons at its two performances in Reno. The navy unit was making its first nationwide tour since the war, and is generally acclaimed one of the finest organizations of its type in the country.

On the campuses

TEXAS U.—If you know a dean of men at some college who could stand a little improvement, drop him a note and suggest he join the Dean of Men Association.

The Texas chapter of the DOMA has just held its rules committee meeting and approved these instructions for all members:

- First, don't take yourself too seriously.
- Second, don't try to be a jolly, hail-fellow-well met.
- Third, don't be too sensitive about criticism.
- And, last, don't try to dominate students.

MICHIGAN U.—A University of Michigan student has invented a new mechanical brain.

But his device turned out to be stupid. Says Inventor Guy Tribble, "It thinks like an idiot."

He says, "I've worked and worked on it, but all it can do is add one and one—in just a little less than half an hour."

Took the brain machine quite a while to learn that. At first it kept coming up with an answer of zero.

But now, says Tribble, "I've found the trouble. It had been subtracting all the time."

IDAHO U.—Idaho's selective service director, Brigadier General John Walsh, says he favors the drafting of college students.

He told members of the Cauldron Club at Boise this week that the country will need an army of 3,000,000 men for ten years.

He explained that military experts have pegged the nation's needs at that figure.

Walsh says he does not believe that selective service can continue to exempt young men from the draft by reason of attendance in college.

OHIO STATE—Ohio State University's radio station KOSU had an unscheduled performer on the air this week.

When the staff arrived and turned on the power one morning this week, there was a squawk, fuses blew and the station was off the air.

Members of the staff found the trouble. A mouse had crawled into the station's transmitter. It was electrocuted.

INDIANA U.—Defensive halfback Johnny Davis of Indiana is a man of patience, but he admits enough is enough.

Davis had had his nose broken eight times playing football. Eight times he has had it straightened, and by now he is disgusted. Davis says he'll have the nose straightened just one more time, and that's going to be when he is through playing football.

OKLAHOMA A&M—Know a girl at least 15 minutes before asking her for a date, but don't hesitate to proffer a kiss the first time out if you like her.

That's the advice of an Oklahoma A&M home life counsellor who spoke to male freshmen members of the campus YMCA this week.

Mrs. Gladys Marshall, an assistant professor, added a final comment. Don't be alarmed if the looks from the opposite sex aren't as long as you'd like them.

"As first year men," she said, "you lack the necessary maturity to attract them."

ARNOLD COLLEGE—Andt Robustelli, ace halfback at Arnold College, is a very embarrassed lad this week.

Robustelli was discharged from the infirmary with his broken leg completely healed. He was back in the infirmary a few hours later, the same leg fractured while playing football, touch football with some girl friends.

FCB asks settlement with bus lines

The Finance Control Board has recommended that the ASUN ask for a settlement with the bus lines which transported the Nevada band to San Francisco two weeks ago for the St. Mary's game, but lost the band instruments. The FCB said the $605 invested in the trip was a total loss.

Also on the FCB's agenda was the bookstore question. Though no formal agreements have been signed, its acquisition seems to be only a matter of time.

Debate Squad

A total of $445 was allotted to send a ten man debate team to the Western Speech Association tournament to be held at Pepperdine College in Los Angeles, November 20 through 22. Professor Gale Richards is in charge of the Nevada team.

In order that bookkeeping might be simplified, ASUN funds on deposit with the comptroller are being broken down into three separate accounts, namely, the board of athletic control, the ASUN and the ASUN special fund, for student accounts handled through the graduate manager's office. This change will take place December 1.

As a result of the meeting, the ASUN general fund is some $211 richer than before. This sum is the amount collected as traffic fines when Blue Key was in charge of campus traffic nearly two years ago.

For the benefit of students who may be misinformed, the graduate manager pointed out that budget items for the activities of groups using ASUN funds should not be altered. If a group has a budget and plans to underspend in one category in order to spend more on some other portion, it is destroying the efforts of its own student finance control board, according to Mastroianni.

EE's hear lecture

Electrical engineering students heard a lecture by a vice president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Friday night.

Ralph Hopkins, employed by Westinghouse Company, who spoke Friday, was one of a series of speakers engaged by the AIEE. Other representatives of the organization will discuss technical matters in future lectures.

Hayden gives professors lowdown on budgeting

Perry Hayden, comptroller and treasurer of the university, was the guest speaker at the second meeting this year of the American Association of University Professors. The meeting was held last Wednesday in the basement of Artemisia Hall.

Hayden spoke on "Budgeting Control Come to Nevada."

Two assemblies left; forum on student fee increase scheduled

Two more assemblies are scheduled for this semester, said Jerry Wyness, assembly committee chairman, at a meeting Monday.

The first, to come on December 1, will feature a forum on the proposed increase of the student body fee of $1 to provide additional funds for the Artemisia. Senator Pat McCarran or Governor elect Charles Russell may speak.

Also scheduled is the introduction of Nevada's '50-'51 basketball squad and head coach Jake Lawlor.

Student officers including the new senators-at-large will be sworn in.

The second and final assembly for the semester will be the annual Christmas assembly just before the Christmas vacation, on December 19. Last year this program included the singing of the Messiah by the University Singers.

Student directory on sale at YWCA

The student directory for this year is now on sale at the YWCA for 25 cents, according to Marjorie Dickinson, YWCA director.

The contents of the directory is the same as last year. It lists the faculty, faculty organizations, students, student body officers, student organizations, and the churches of Reno.

The directory came out late because of a delay in the paper shipment, Mrs. Dickinson said.

Skiers plan Swap Shop

A Skiers Swap Shop, sponsored by the university Ski Club as a trading post for skiers, will open officially Wednesday, November 29, in the Aggie building.

Chairman of the event is Bill Briner who said the project will offer "ski bums" an opportunity to pick up much needed equipment in trade, or get rid of outgrown ski togs.

The swap shop will be non-profit.

Nevada plays welcome for Navy band

University of Nevada bandmen led a downtown parade last week in a gesture of welcome to the United States Navy band which presented concerts in the Reno Civic Auditorium.

The band, whose members were guests at the Navy band concerts, paused at First and Virginia intersection and again in front of Washoe courthouse to play special numbers.

Band director, Felton Hickman, was a guest conductor for one number at both afternoon and evening concerts.

Brushfire will flare up by Christmas

The first issue of Brushfire will be out sometime between Thanksgiving and Christmas, Guy Cardinali announced today.

The Brushfire staff has had trouble getting this year's first issue out. Recently all of the material was lost or stolen, and none of the missing material has turned up as yet, Cardinali said.

"We would like to name a more definite date but at this time it is impossible," he said.

The Case Against the Foreign Language Requirement

There are few souls, including the foreign language instructors, who can give a very sound or sincere argument in favor of colleges continuing to require a foreign language.

It is perfectly obvious to everyone, ESPECIALLY the instructors, that one cannot learn a language in two, or even three academic years of college study. One cannot read the language adequately, it cannot be spoken understandably, and no cultural appreciation can be achieved.

It is a cause for despair among students to find the way to useful subjects blocked by this stodgy requirement. They must waste time with this antiquated system when they could be devoting their efforts to something worthwhile. Even their advisors tell them to "get it out of the way. Take it now, and you can concentrate on what you need later."

Foreign language is a holdover from the days when one's education was measured in the number of languages he spoke. It was nice for young ladies to speak drawing-room French, and this was about the extent of what educated young ladies could do.

No one has bothered to investigate just exactly why we are stuck with this thing. No one knows why liberal arts students should take two years of "some foreign language." They are not even sure what language they should take—there are so many.

As a matter of fact, one of the few remaining fields which language advocates always point to as needing their wares, is abandoning Latin. Medicine has finally dropped this from its list of absolutely necessary pre-medical requirements. However, this was immediately replaced by the requirement of two years of French or German.

Undoubtedly there are those who should include language in their course of study. But they are few. And those that do need the subject, take it for many more years than the college requirement.

Of course languages should still be available in every college curriculum. However, even their value as an aesthetic is to be questioned. There are too many other subjects among the humanities that are of real value to students.

The case against the foreign language requirement would bring a verdict of "guilty—death" in any court in the country. But educators have neglected to bring it to trial for no other reason than it was here when they arrived.

WHY IT SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO REMAIN, WHILE SUBJECTS SUCH AS AMERICAN HISTORY ARE SO SADLY NEGLECTED (SEE SECOND EDITORIAL) IS A QUESTION NO ONE CAN ANSWER.

The Case for American History

A war is never over, it has been said, until we finish saving the country we have just finished licking. By "saving" is meant, democratic indoctrination. However, our success in this field will be limited, until we ourselves become intimately aware of our nation's past, and of its position and responsibility among the nations of the world.

Unfortunately, few Americans know very much about their country's history. It is appalling that two-thirds of our colleges and universities do not require their students to study American history. Only one-quarter require American history for admission.

It is not likely that such people can do much toward spreading a belief when they themselves are not quite sure how we got where we are, why we came this way, and what we are doing here.

Furthermore, it is small wonder that subversive influences find such easy inroads against our nation, our appreciation of our heritages, and the sacrifices that have been necessary to preserve them. Foreign ideologic footholds could never have been gained had Americans understood their heritage.

Layman and educators are generally agreed that knowledge of our own history is essential to making of Americans.

All this is not to stay that we should create a kind of fanatical nationalism. American history should not be taught exclusively and at the expense of all other history. History is the only means we have of understanding each other, of teaching tolerance of individual differences and appreciation of varied abilities and interests. It helps us to understand the pattern of society.

What this means is, we cannot hope to sell a product about which we ourselves know nothing. We cannot hope to preserve democracy if we don't know its contents.

Our problem in world peace is not only to teach democracy to the rest of the world, but to learn ourselves what it all really means through American history.

America's greatest commercial artists featured in exhibit on campus

The art department of the University of Nevada has been displaying a collection of commercial and advertising art for the past week in the department's art gallery.

This collection, of about 90 works of art, has been sent to the university by the Art Directors Club of New York. It will also be displayed in California, Oregon, Washington and other western states. It represents the work of some of America's greatest commercial artists.

The display consists of pictures advertising various products that have appeared in many of the country's national magazines. Some of the originals and some reprints are among the collection.

The collection cost the art department $150 but contains art works valued from $100,000 to $150,000.

"This is one of the finest and most important display of art work that the university has had lately," was the comment of Craig J. Shepherd, assistant professor of art at the university.

He stated that most commercial artists in the Reno area have already come to the exhibition and he hopes that more people will take advantage of the collection before it is shipped to the coast.

This is part of the art department's program to have at least one exhibit a month for the coming year. This is the first exhibit presented this year.

Turkey shoot open to novice

The annual turkey shoot, sponsored by the University of Nevada Rifle Club, will be held tonight at 7:00 in the basement of the old gym. Everyone is invited to attend, Sergeant C. Brunetti of the military department, said.

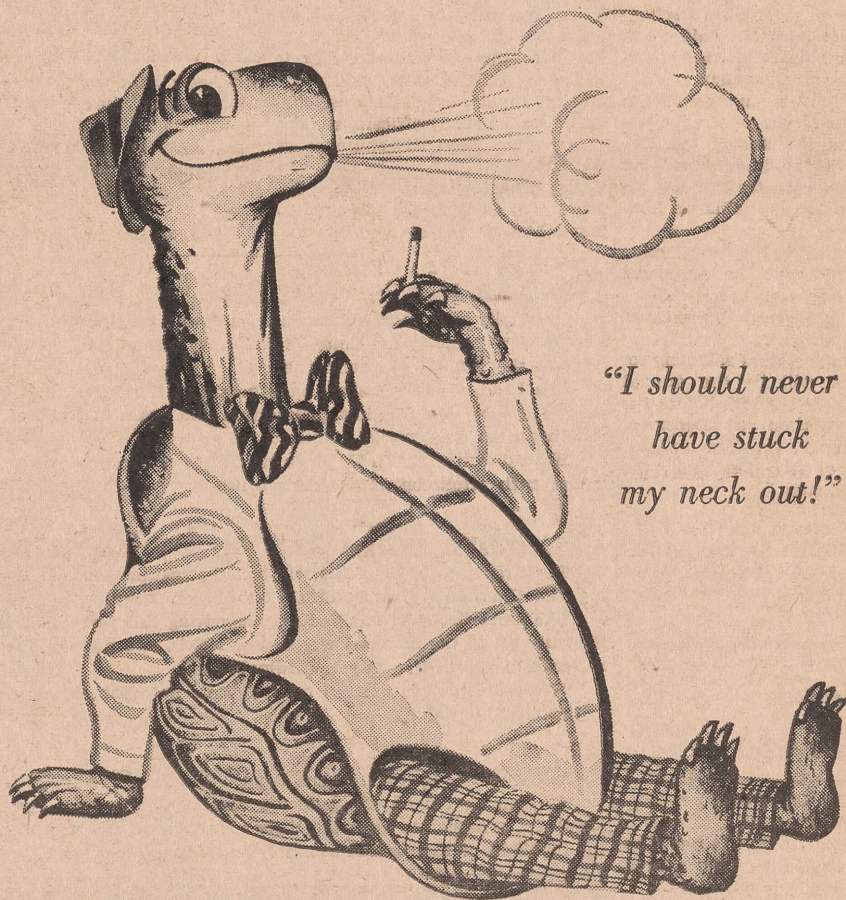

The only charge will be for the ammunition, which will cost around 50 cents for three shots.

The type of target used will be similar to a punch board. The idea is to try and locate the lucky numbers by shooting out the numbered squares. This type of target gives an equal chance to both the novice and the marksman, since scoring a hit is a matter of luck.

The present ASUN building was constructed prior to 1900 and served as a museum.

Inter-faith council plans many events

Representatives from the Wesley Foundation, Newman Club, Lambda Delta Sigma, Congo-Preps, and the Jewish organization met last week in the Inter-Faith Council meeting.

Discussed at the meeting were plans for a swimming, dancing and dinner party to be held sometimes December 1. The swimming will be at the Reno YWCA. The dinner and dance will be held at the fire-side of the Methodist Church.

Sending delegates to Asilomar, the YWCA camp just outside Carmel, California, was also discussed.

The tentative plans will be voted on at the next regular meeting which will be Monday, November 20.

Freshman woman wins scholarship; trip to Chicago convention

Marilyn Mills, freshman from Logandale, Nevada, is going to Chicago, to compete for honors at the national 4-H Club Congress November 26-30.

Miss Mills, 17, is one of 11 Nevada state champions in the annual 4-H Club contest and was awarded a $200 scholarship by the First National Bank of Nevada, as well as the all-expense trip to Chicago.

Working in 4-H Club activities for nine years, she specialized and did outstanding work in the fields of clothing, food preservation, canning and freezing, and food preparation, according to Mr. Paul Maloney, assistant director of junior extension work in the Agricultural Extension Service.

"I'm awfully glad that I won this trip," Marilyn said. "I have never been farther east than Montana. I love to travel and am anxious to see one of the big cities of the east."

Representatives from the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and 11 foreign countries will compete in Chicago.

Wise-Y discusses politics for students

The student's role in local and national politics was the topic of discussion held at the Wise-Y meeting on campus Wednesday.

The discussion was conducted by Eleanor Holloway, vice chairman of the Washoe county Republican group, and Leslie Gray, wife of the county chairman.

Wise-Y is the upperclass group of YWCA members and is conducting a program this semester to inform students of local and state affairs.

Pat Welty, president of the group, announces that all meetings are open to anyone interested in the discussions.

Job placement bureau in action

Job placements are being made now by the YWCA through their newly instituted placement service.

There was an approximate 65 per cent return on the postcards that were sent out by the YWCA asking whether the students wanted jobs.

Applications are still being taken for those students who want jobs but have not signed up yet.

Brush Strokes

By Mark Curtis

MUST BE THE ALTITUDE: It takes six months to get a resident license for hunting and fishing in Washoe County, Nevada. However, it takes only six weeks of residence for a divorce. . . . Dean of men, Robert Griffin, was worried enough to call the fire department a short time ago. An overheated tar-pot was threatening Lincoln Hall. "I think you'd better come over here right away and take care of it," he said on the phone. The department said sure, right away. A half hour passed and the tar-pot still was shooting flames, so the dean called again. "You'd better come over right away. This thing doesn't look any better." The answer which came over the phone—impatiently, "All right, all right! I told you we were coming!" (Sorry, fellows, we won't mention it again).

NEWSPLASHES: The Tulsa Tribune, worried about tact, said "Tactical use of the A-bomb to support ground and sea surface action is an often-mentioned goal of military planners." . . . Which reminds of a dispatch of Nevada alum Bob Bennyhoff, UPressman in Korea. Bennyhoff was asking Major General Church if the Korean war resembled the battles he'd fought in Italy and Western Europe. Complained the general, "These North Koreans don't observe the rules of civilized warfare." (Yes, we know what it means, but it sounds kinda silly) . . . One of the wire services bureau in San Francisco had Harry Truman's arrival from his Pacific conference with MacArthur on the wire an hour before anybody else. The leg man at the airport called up and gave the word, "He's landed!" The story went out immediately across the nation. Ten minutes later the phone rang. "Mistake! That wasn't the president's plane!" So for the next half hour the staff of the news bureau prayed that Harry Truman would land safely and soon. Not concerned, of course, about Harry's safety, but about their own necks. Anyway, that's how this news service scooped all its rivals. Close, huh?

CONVENTION NOTES FROM MY-OH-MY MIAMI: Everything is bigger and better in Florida. Governor Fuller Warren says so. The climate, industry, political complexion, health and citrus. Everything! Warren failed to mention in his impressive sales talk, however, that he went to California for a wife. Very lovely, too. . . . Warren has been chosen as the handsomest public figure in the land, beating out a man of the same name in a close race—Earl Warren of California. . . . Fullof—rather Fuller didn't mention another item which Florida has the biggest and best of—hurricanes. The palms are hunched over in a perpetual, cowering slump. Looking out of a window on a calm day, you'd swear the wind was still in a hurri. Miamians take hurricanes in their stride. They measure the storm durations in hurricane parties. One pint, two pints and one-fifth, etc. The one a short while ago was of a pint and a half duration. Following the hurricane the women's conselor at the U of Miami allowed the freshmen in her orientation class to claim "emotional upset" on their papers. Not one of the girls claimed to be at all perturbed by the big blow . . . Sigma Delta Chi delegates were special guests of the U of M at the Miami-Louisville football game. Halftime ceremonies were dedicated to the journalistic frat. The stadium of 66,000 heard the convention delegates' response of gratitude to this impressive greeting—a wild and enthusiastic support of Louisville. Miami was ninth in the nation at the starting gun. Final score, 13-13 . . . Incidentally, the opening day's proceeds from Hialeah, Tropical, and Flamingo race tracks go to Florida's colleges and universities—for athletics. Miami is also in the midst of a resolution demanding a "complete retraction and proper apology" of an editorial in a Southern California paper. The editorial implied that U-M had enlisted the aid of gamblers in the Purdue upset. So Nevada isn't the only one with such headaches. . . . A columnists forum on the Miami campus was one of the big treats of the convention. Bob Ruark, United Feature's great columnist (you can catch him in the Reno Gazette), Inez Robb, International News Service, and John Crosby, New York Herald-Tribune radio and television critic, were featured. When the forum was over, Bob Ruark said, "I understand one of my employers is in the audience. I'd like to see him." Thereby turning Nevada delegate Ted Scripps into a lovely shade of Flamingo.

INSIDE U. S. A., by John Gunther, was written several years ago. Among many revealing things, it said "Such a fracas over academic freedom as occurred at the U. of Texas would be inconceivable in California; its university is by most standards one of the six or eight best in the country; it has no regent trouble." . . . This may inspire you. President Harry Truman never attended college. He took a couple of years of law at night, at the Kansas City Law School. . . . Inside us there was a little furor about Manzanita Hall's card file on the men on campus. However, this method, though coldly scientific, beats the fraternity house manner of recording pertinent info. Classic remarks are penciled on the wall.

Sigma Nu's retain softball title; SAEs take cross country

Sigma Nu fraternity retained its intra-mural softball title and Sigma Alpha Epsilon gained top points in the cross country race in the latest Kinnear trophy races.

The Snakes took the baseball title with a perfect record of six wins and no losses, the nearest competitors being Theta Chi and SAE with four wins and two losses each.

In the cross country, the SAE's took the team title, followed by Sigma Nu, with Lambda Chi Alpha getting points for individual first place.

Intra-mural volleyball and co-rec badminton are in progress now.

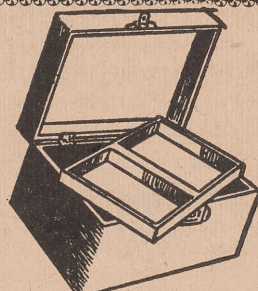

The final standings of these two sports are as follows:

Nevada trips Montana 19-14 for first win

The Wolf Pack turned back a favored Montana University squad 19-14 in Mackay Stadium last Saturday for their first win of the season.

Trailing 19-7 in the third quarter, the Pack suddenly caught fire and punched over two quick TD's to win. Timely interceptions of Tom Kingsford's passes by Wally Graf and Herm Fisher helped to prevent any late scores by the Grizzlies.

Seniors Last Home Game

For Herm Fisher and Gordon Surber, co-captains of the game, and Carmel "Crusher" Caruso the only three seniors on the Nevada team, it was their last appearance in Mackay Stadium. Fisher was instrumental in the win, scoring two touchdowns and preventing a possible Grizzly score in the final minutes of the game by intercepting a pass in the end zone. Surber and Caruso turned in excellent performances in the line.

Nevada moved on the ground for the first time this season, mainly through the efforts of Buddy Brooks, sophomore fullback, and the veteran Fisher. In the air the Pack did not match Montana's air attack, but still gained 109 yards.

Two ends, switched by coach Sheeketski to defensive backs, along with Fisher kept the highly publicized Tommy Kingsford below par in his passing.

Montana scored first on a 30 yard pass from Kingsford to halfback Bob Byrnes. The Grizzlies followed this up with another score in the second period when Neil Garrett's sideline pass was intercepted and run for a TD. Nevada scored just before the end of the half when Fisher plunged over from the one. Kalmanir kicked the extra point, making the score 14-7.

In the second half the Pack came back stronger with Brooks carrying the ball 40 yards on two tries down to the 13 yard strip. Tom Massey, Kalmanir, and Brooks took the ball to the one, where Brady scored on a quarterback sneak. The try for the conversion was no good, the score, 14-13.

A touchdown on a pass from Brady to Jerry Wyness was nullified, but Nevada came back to score again in the first quarter, when Brady threw 44 yards to Myron Leavitt, who caught it on the Grizzlies' 30 yard line. Brady passed to Graf on the nine, where Fisher took it over for the last tally.

Hoopsters play; football bows out

Wolf Pack football players will wind up the pigskin season on Thanksgiving Day at Wichita, Kansas. Here at home, however, Coach Jake Lawlor and his basketball artists will be polishing up their game for the beginning contest of the year.

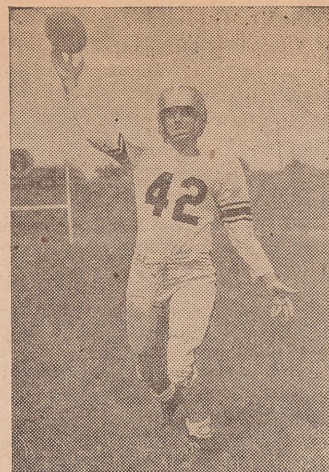

The Wolf Pack eleven will barely have had time to shed their shoulder pads before basketball gets underway with the opener here on December 1. Nevada's cagers will go into their initial game against Chico State College. Five games will follow in rapid fire succession with the last of the series to be played on the ninth of December with COP. All of the six contests will be played in Reno.

Team Hits Road

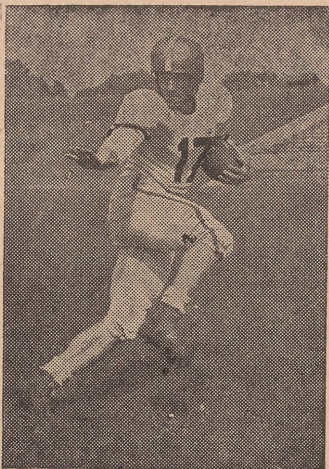

The team will take to the road on December 15 for an outing against Portland University at Portland.

Four lettermen, Ted Johnson, six foot seven inch center, Burt Larkin, busy guard, Ed Hancock, a rustler at forward, and Dick Truman, experienced center, provide the nucleus for this year's squad. Bob Knudsen and Bob Larson, a former letterman, are showing well in practice sessions and will probably rate starting positions. The five men who are likely to get the call to start are Burt Larkin and Bob Larsen, at guards, Ed Hancock and Bob Knudsen at forwards and Ted Johnson at center.

Jerry Wyness and Bruno Benna are slated to see plenty of action at the forward position while Chuck Leading the University of Wichita against the Wolf Pack Thanksgiving Day, will be Eddie Kriwiel, versatile left half-back. Kriwiel, a former Chicago, Ill., prep school star, punts, passes and runs with equal ease.

Jimmy Nutter, No. 1 ground gainer of the University of Wichita football squad, will be among the several dangerous scatbacks that the Kansas eleven will throw at the Wolf Pack Thursday.

Ryerse, Jerry Jarrett, John Buccambuso, and Giles Altenburg are other candidates for the forward slots.

Working at guard position are Elmo Derrico and Doug Douglass both veterans, and Dan Vidovich. Jock Michienzi and Roger Bissett are filling in both at forward and guard.

Nevada ends season on road; North Texas, Wichita foes

The Wolf Pack will be after their second win tomorrow, when they take on the Eagles from North Texas State in the first game of a two-game road trip.

The Pack holds an edge over the Texans, having beaten them in the three previous tilts. In 1947, the Pack was the winner 13-6 in the Salad Bowl at Phoenix. In 1948, behind the passing of Stan Heath, they rolled over the Eagles 48-7, and last year the Pack grounded out a 28-7 victory.

The Texans will be led by Zeke Martin, the only remaining letterman from the '49 squad. Martin is an able passer and may cause the Pack some trouble tomorrow.

Big Losses Big Wins

The Eagles have a puzzling record this year, having won games by large scores, and lost them by big margins. The Texans have won over Southwest Tech 76-6; Chattanooga 19-14; East Texas State, 42-20; Trinity 35-6; Houston 16-13; tied by Midwestern, 7-7; and has lost to Kentucky 25-0 and Arkansas 50-6.

After the game with North Texas, 20.

At 9 p.m. Thursday the Wolf Pack will board a United Air Lines chartered plane in Wichita, and arrive in Reno at 3 a.m. Friday morning. The Pack will travel by bus to Wichita, Kansas, where they will take on the University of Wichita Wheatshockers in a Turkey Day contest.

In two previous encounters with the Shockers, the Pack won, beating them in '48, 42-12 and 20-7 last year. But this year the Shockers are led by their passing ace, Eddie Kriwiel, and Jimmy Nutter, all-Missouri Valley Conference stars. Eleven lettermen bolster the squad that has a season record of four wins and three losses. The Shockers started the season by winning over Utah State, 49-20; Detroit 21-13; Bradley 34-6; and Drake 17-14. They then lost three straight to Houston (beaten by North Texas State) 46-6; Miami 39-13, and Oklahoma A&M 32-

One night of noise closes library

"If the students behave like high school children, the library will be closed to them," said Mr. James J. Hill, director of the university library. The statement was made when the library was closed half an hour early on Tuesday night because students there were making too much noise.

Mrs. Fred Stephen, reference librarian, said that the library staff does not like to enforce rules of discipline in the library but it has been the tradition of the librarians to close the library when the students fail to consider the purpose of the library, namely quiet study.

In former years there was a system of warnings which culminated in cancellation of library privileges for offending students.

On Tuesday night about 100 students were without lights in the library because of general noise and disturbance. It is the first time this semester that the library had to be closed.

Kinnear trophy still missing; Greek houses complain of thefts

Last February the Kinnear trophy, intramural athletic award, was stolen from the Sigma Nu house.

In October, Kappa Alpha Theta girls discovered that all of their trophies were missing and Alpha Tau Omega lost trophies, pictures and other possessions.

Last week Phi Sigma Kappa trophies were missing and the Sigma Nu house lost clothing, pictures, and fraternity pins.

Monday the door mat from the Tri-Delt house was moved to the basement of Stewart Hall.

Most of the missing articles have been found. A number of trophies are still missing.

The Kinnear trophy, donated in 1934 as an award in intramural athletics by J. E. Kinnear, manager of the Nevada Consolidated Copper Corporation, was awarded last year, however, it still has not been found.

Phi Sigma Kappa received a telephone call Monday night telling them that their trophies were on the campus tram. This theft was the most original for the thief was a poet. Regularly, from the time of the disappearance of the trophies until they were found, Phi Sigs received short poems containing clues concerning the whereabouts of the missing possessions.

Some of the Theta trophies just "disappeared" and some are still missing. The Tau's say that they have all of their trophies back.

Sigma Nu's recovered their possessions last night by serving dinner at the Theta chapter.

There seems to be no connection between the different thefts. Fraternities and sororities both say "It was fun to begin with, but it's getting rather tiresome."

Ski club plans season's program

Officers for the 1950-51 season were elected at the second meeting of the University Ski Club this week. They are Ted Lokke, president; John Cowley, vice-president; Joan Metzger, secretary; and Cory Jorgenson, treasurer.

Plans for the ski club's participation in the staging of the annual Winter Carnival will get under way at the next meeting, with John Cowley in charge of arrangements. Don Thompson, social chairman for the group, outlined plans for the club's social program, promising "parties, parties, parties."

An immediate project for the group, clearing brush from the jumps at Galena Creek and Mt. Rose, was also outlined by Thompson. Members will begin clearing the jumps on Friday, December 1, from one to five o'clock in the afternoon. A weiner roast is planned for the workers Friday evening. The next meeting of the club will be Wednesday, November 29, in the Aggie building at 7:30 p.m.

A tornado is a storm along a path seldom more than a few hundred yards in width and of 20 to 30 miles in length. It is generally accompanied by a funnel shaped cloud revolving counter-clock wise.

Three costume dances scheduled this weekend

Costume dances will hold the spotlight in this week's social activities among the Greek. Three fraternities on the social calendar for tonight and tomorrow are planning traditional costume functions, while one will hold a pledge dance.

Delta Sigma Phi, Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon have scheduled their functions for tonight. Lambda Chi Alpha will present its dance tomorrow night.

An Indian dance is to be the theme of SAE's affair at the Sunflower. ATO will engage the Sunflower stone barn at the same time for its Coconut dance.

Delta Sigma Phi's pledge dance will be held at the new fraternity's house on University Terrace.

Lambda Chi will hold its "baby dance" at the Nevada State Game Farm, and will offer a prize to the "best baby girl and boy."

Germans write 'thank you' to Nevada

Students who contributed to the clothing collection on campus last spring were thanked this week in a letter from German families in the American zone of Germany.

"Everything arrived here in good condition and was distributed among our four families," one man wrote. He explained that the clothing was given to refugee families who had fled to the American zone from Russian controlled territory.

"We are most pleased and grateful," the letter continued, "and we would like to express our thanks to everyone. Please make the contents of this letter known to everyone who helped us."

Clothing collection on campus was made last spring by the campus YWCA and Reno church groups packaged and mailed the contributions.
