

Alpha Tau Omega leads in Kinnear race

With only one event left to be run off—the tennis doubles—the Alpha Tau Omega house has virtually cinched the annual Kinnear trophy.

The Taus have run up a total of 407.66 points, while their nearest competitor, the SAE's, managed to get 357.66. Even if the SAE's could manage to take the tennis doubles it would only add 40 points to their score making them still short 10 points.

The clincher came in baseball, when the Lambda Chi team won first place honors and 100 points, and the trophy, by beating the SAE team 2 to 1 in a hard fought duel. As a result, the SAE's Sigma Nu's, Phi Sig's, Taus, and Theta Chi teams were all thrown into a second place tie. The Delta Sigma Phi, Sigma Rho, and Independent teams were all dropped from the schedule after defaulting two games. As a result of the five team tie, each received 26 points, and this proved to be the determining factor in the race.

The race for this year's trophy was one of the closest in many years, and the final outcome was undecided up to the next to last event. The final standings, not counting tennis doubles, are listed below.

A T O	407.66
SAE	357.66
Sigma Nu	298.83
Lambda Chi	271
Theta Chi	226.33
Independents	60
Phi Sigs	47.99
Delta Sigma Phi	2.50
Sigma Rho	1

Dawn Pershall is being presented the outstanding creative art award by Craig Sheppard, head of the art department. Mrs. Helen Joslin, art instructor, is looking on. Dawn is the Gamma Phi Beta candidate for Miss Reno.

New observatory to be completed this summer

Construction of the long planned observatory on the university campus is expected to begin this week, according to Malcolm A. Love, president of the university.

The new building, to be built at a cost of over $5,000, will be located near the Victory Heights housing project, at the north end of Evans avenue.

The contract for the construction of the new observatory was awarded to the Walker-Boudwin Construction Company.

Donations To Be Used

Money to build the new structure was donated by the late Lilyan M. K. Darlington, long-time member of the Astronomical Society of Nevada.

A six-inch reflecting telescope has been given to the university by Dr. Radar J. Thompson, a Reno dentist. Attempts are being made to obtain a six-inch refractor lens.

Useful, Not Elaborate

An elaborate structure is not planned, according to President Love, but it will conform with the same building design of other university astronomy classrooms.

The building will be a two room frame structure which will have a sliding roof to accommodate the movement of the telescope.

The telescope instruments will be driven by a synchronized electrical mechanism which will allow the observer to set the instrument at a particular point in the sky and observe it continually without further adjustment. By this device the range of vision will follow the earth's rotation.

Art student wins magazine award

Dawn Pershall, junior art student, was this week awarded a certificate given to outstanding students in creative arts by the American Artist magazine. This is the first time a University of Nevada student has received such an award.

This award is made annually by the magazine to outstanding artists in the major art schools of the country.

Miss Pershall is a 19 year old student from Las Vegas. She is a member of Gamma Phi Beta and majors in business administration.

Owl drops pledge; Thetas not for him

Members of Kappa Alpha Theta pledged (and lost) a new member last week when three-day old Heathcliff Hergaman Hoot Owl, I, took the sacred vows.

Heathcliff was born in Fallon, Nevada, and sojourned shortly at the biology department before being taken to the Theta house by his three adopted mothers, Carol Oldham, Donna Burton and Beverly Poe. A twin and two unhatched brothers passed on before they could be christened.

With the help of two-hour feedings and a heating pad, however, Heathcliff thrived for ten days on warm egg yolks and milk toast fed from an eye dropper by his adopted parents.

Before the announcement of his pledgship could be made, unfortunately, Heathcliff took his last sip of egg yolk and quietly relinquished his brief honorary membership in Kappa Alpha Theta to meet his departed brothers.

Publication staffs for '51-'52 named

At a recent meeting of the Publications Board the editors and business managers for the Artemisia and Sagebrush for the next year were selected. Mary Kay Irwin will be editor of the 1952 Artemisia and Bill Engel will be the business manager. Frank Johnson was chosen editor of the Sagebrush and the business manager will be Lowell Miller.

Mary Irwin is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and has worked on the Artemisia for the past two years, serving in the capacity of assistant editor this year. Along with her duties on the annual she took over the job as treasurer of the Ski Club during the spring semester.

Business manager Bill Engel has been on the business staff for the past three years and will be a senior next year. He is a member of Theta Chi fraternity and is on the ASUN senate. Mr. Engel is active in many of the organizations on campus.

Frank Johnson, new Sagebrush editor, has been on the staff of the Sagebrush for two years. He was photographer for both the Sagebrush and the Artemisia, and has been writing a column for the paper called "Sages in the Brush." His wife Joyce is also a student at the university. Frank Jr. is entered for the class of 1966.

Lowell Miller is not new to his job as business manager of the Sagebrush having served in that capacity for the past year. Miller is now president of Alpha Tau Omega. He is majoring in business administration.

The staffs of the paper and annual will be named next year when all of the freshmen interested have contacted the editor and business managers of both publications. The new staff heads will assume their activities this month.

The publications board and the old and new heads of the staffs are going to celebrate the end of the year this Tuesday evening at the Christmas Tree on the Mt. Rose highway. This is a traditional banquet for all the heads of the publications.

Vets to get help to pay charges

The charging of veterans for tuition over and above the $500 payed by the GI bill was the topic of a faculty-student meeting held this morning.

Dr. Love said that it would be impossible to rescind the charges, but that every effort would be made by the administration to help the student pay. If necessary, President Love said, the student can obtain a loan that would not have to be paid until after graduation.

Aggie committee holds confab

Better understanding between the students and professors of agriculture is the purpose of a recently established committee which will meet once a month during school periods. The committee, which includes four students and three professors, met for the first time last Monday.

"We want to give the students a possibility to utter their opinions, and to make suggestions concerning their school," said Dr. Eldon E. Wittwer, director of resident teaching in agriculture. Dr. E. W. Sheets, and Dr. L. E. Dunn are the other faculty members of the committee. Representatives of the students are Richard A. Reid, president of the Aggie club, Eyer H. Boies, Elbert W. Gardner, and Jim Hettinger.

The first meeting brought agreement between teachers and students on all points, according to Dr. Wittwer. Among other topics, the eventual sale of the University of Nevada farm on South Virginia road was discussed.

Entries needed for Navy queen

So far no entries have been made by girls who would like to be queen of the USS Comstock when it returns from Korean waters, according to Gene Empey, director of the university news service.

The crew of the Comstock, an LDS operating off the coast of North Korea, requested the university to supply them with a coed to act as queen when they return to their home port of San Diego early this fall. They have offered to pay all expenses for the girl and her chaperone.

Coeds wishing to enter this contest have been asked to submit an 8 by 10 inch photograph of themselves to student body president Ted Klimaszewski or to Mr. Empey before next Friday. The only requirement is that the coed must be returning to college next fall, although the crewmen would prefer a girl of Comstock background.

"This is a great honor for the university," said Empey, "and we should try to do our best to supply the men with candidates. However, if no one is interested, we will have to inform them immediately so that they can look elsewhere."

Nevada coeds blast article indicting college sororities

By Leila Rowson

An article appearing in the current issue of Look magazine indicting the college sorority system was met with mingled emotions on the campus.

"... Sororities have grown into a monstrous mockery of their original intent," said the article, which was entitled "The Great Sorority Swindle."

"The truth is," the article continues, "they are social distastefulships, abusing their power with malice, harboring prejudices of the most vicious sort, and dealing out heartbreak to thousands of girls each year who are excluded from membership."

The author, Rosanne Smith Robinson, is a graduate of Northwestern University. She resigned from her sorority because she believed sororities robbed a girl of the ability to think for herself.

Miss Robinson thought that sororities should be abolished as hotbeds of snobbery, intellectual dishonesty, and racial discrimination.

The article was felt by many students to be grossly biased and not a true picture of college sorority life.

"I certainly don't think any of the indictments are true of the Nevada sororities and their girls," said Gloria Eddy of Kappa Alpha Theta.

"The article was maliciously biased and generalized," declared Maud Catherine Karl of Gamma Phi Beta.

Elaine Mobley, dean of women, stressed the part the Pan Hellenic played in controlling any abuses of the sorority system.

"Here at Nevada, through the Pan Hellenic council, we are striving to conduct sorority rushing, pledging, and social activities so that we will be above reproach," stated Dean Mobley. "The article appears to be biased and far from objective."

There was some feeling that the article was written as part of a publicity campaign for a newly released movie, "Take Care of My Little Girl." This picture deals with the supposed evils of sorority life.

Extension program to start in fall

A statewide university extension program is underway, according to Dr. Harold Brown, professor of education. The program, expected to start next fall, will consist of two courses to be given by several of the faculty at various communities in Nevada.

The faculty members participating in the program will travel, two each week, to five Nevada towns. At each town they will give two lectures apiece. Upon their return two more will make the trip.

The tentative schedule for the proposed lectures is: Mondays, Hawthorne; Tuesdays, Tonopah; Wednesdays, Las Vegas; Thursdays, Pioche; and Fridays, Ely.

The two courses to be offered are: Aspects of American Society and A Survey of Culture and Science in Nevada. Each course will consist of 20 lectures and will take ten weeks.

The courses will carry regular university credit. They will be on a college level and are not intended for high school students. High school students, however, will be admitted as auditors.

The courses are intended for adults, especially teachers, who desire either university credit or a well-rounded course in sociological aspects of American and Nevada culture.

Northern Nevada communities will be offered the same arrangement in the spring of next year, according to Dr. Brown.

The fee will be $15 for one course for credit, and $10 for auditors.

ASUN PRESIDENT ON TOUR

Student body president Ted Klimaszewski is attending a convention for Pacific coast student presidents at Salt Lake City. Accompanying Ted on the trip are Jim Ellades, newly elected student body president, and Mardelle Kornmayer, AWS president.

When the university was opened there was no charge made for room and tuition. What's more, students could eat for 15 bucks a month.

GI bill expires for vet teachers

Robert S. Griffin, dean of men, announced that GI bill of rights educational training benefits terminate on July 25 unless the individual is enrolled in school. He further announced that the governmental ruling applies also to veteran school teachers.

He said today that school teachers who are in training for the purpose of obtaining a graduate degree will be qualified for further GI benefits.

He stressed, however, that World War II veterans who have entered the teaching profession will not be eligible for benefits if they are attending the university for the sole purpose of obtaining teacher's credentials or for meeting in-service salary increases required by some school boards.

Veterans who complete their training and enter the teaching profession for the 1951-1952 school year must attend the first summer session after the completion of his regular school year, providing his goal is for a graduate degree.

A veteran student graduating from the University of Nevada in June of this year can continue his graduate work in September without attending summer school if he notified the veterans administration of his intent before graduation.

The overall GI bill of rights program comes to an end on July 25, 1956, regardless of qualifications and with few exceptions.

In 1900 Manzanita Hall was called "the cottage."

Verlita Johnson new Sagens head

Sagens, honorary women's service organization, recently elected their new officers for the coming year. Verlita Johnson was elected president of the group.

Vice president is Berlien McCray, Gamma Phi Beta, and secretary-treasurer is Joan Metzger, Pi Beta Phi. Outgoing officers are Anita Coates, Pi Phi, as president, and Par Jones, Gamma Phi, a secretary-treasurer.

Recently, the Sagens gave a luncheon for their 21 new initiates at the Riverside Hotel. The new members are: Greta Reuter, Mae Gregory, Bev Poe, Joyce Cranor, and Marion Cordes from Kappa Alpha Theta; Leila Rowson, Jennilee Gibson, Mardelle Kornmeyer, Barbara Carruth, and Alice Shelly from Delta Delta Delta; Berlien McCray, Joan Foster, Pat Welty, and Robyn Forsyth from Gamma Phi Beta; Donna Batt and Joan Lundy from Pi Beta Phi; Verlita Johnson, Mary Getto, Bev Harris, Phyllis Carpenter, and Evelyn Rhodelhamel from the Independents.

Membership in Sagens is limited to five girls from each sorority and five from the Independents. Outstanding coeds from the campus are chosen for membership in Sagens on the basis of their participation in school activities.

Student art works to be exhibited here next week

Some of the works of every student taking practical art courses this year are now on display at the annual student exhibit in the art classrooms in the temporary buildings. Opened Monday, the exhibit will display student work daily from 1:00 p.m. to 4 p.m. until June 1.

The exhibit includes samples of all kinds of work done in the department. Freehand drawings in pen and ink, pencil, and charcoal, oil paintings, water colors, clay models, finger paints and similar works from the education course, drawings from the engineers freehand course, and special projects of the commercial and designing courses are on display.

Commercial Art

The commercial art class has contributed book jackets, record album covers, ad layouts, and redesigning packages for commercial products. Also on display are the Brushfire cover designs and illustrations which were done by the class, and the new nameplate design of the Sagebrush, for which they held a competition.

The designing course students have three-dimensional illustrations of modern furniture designs in black and white and in color. They are also responsible for one of the most unique displays in the exhibit. These are collages, two and three dimensional designs composed of various pieces of flat materials pasted on a painting surface to form very original patterns. Materials used include wire, net, cardboard and similar objects.

Hostesses Uniforms

Another project of the class was the designing of new uniforms for Bonanza Air Lines hostesses. James McDaniel's design won the competition in which the Nevada students and art students from two Arizona universities participated.

More of the students' work is on exhibit at the Reno Little Theater, where it is displayed each year in connection with the presentation of the last play of the season. Other samples are being taken on a publicity tour by Dr. William Miller to various high schools throughout the state.

"The exhibit is the outstanding display of the department in the four years I have been here," said Prof. Craig Sheppard, chairman of the art department.

It compares favorably with two student shows put on recently at Arizona universities, according to Mrs. F. M. Young, local artist who attended the three displays.

Inter-faith picnic on Memorial day

The Inter-faith Council of the University of Nevada will hold its annual picnic on Memorial Day, May 30, at the 4-H Club camp at Lake Tahoe.

The picnic will last all day. Participants may go up to the lake for breakfast and lunch, or may go later and attend lunch only. Cars will be leaving at different times of the day from Stewart Hall. More detailed information about transportation will be posted on the bulletin board in the YWCA lounge, basement of Stewart Hall.

Alice Facha, Shirley Kershner and Marvin Jahn are in charge of the preparations. Any person interested may contact Marvin Jahn at Hartman Hall.

The maximum cost for the picnic, including both breakfast and lunch will be $1.25. Reservations should be made as soon as possible.

President Theodore Roosevelt, standing on the steps of Stewart Hall, addressed students and townspeople on May 17, 1903.

P. A. McCarran, United States senator from Nevada, was a member of the first debating team at the university. Practicing already then.

Two benefits aid DP students

Two events for the benefit of displaced persons students were planned by the YWCA for this week.

An evening of opera and ballet was presented at the education auditorium last night. Marjorie Dickin-son, secretary of the campus YWCA, and Joseph Battaglia, who sang for several school events before this one, performed the first act of Puccini's "La Boheme."

The Reno Ballet School, under the direction of Rene Jean de Bray, presented a number of ballets, among them "Les Etudes" by Frederick Chopin, and many short selections.

Cooked Food Sale
Tomorrow, on Saturday, May 26, the campus Y will have a cooked food sale at the Sewell Bros. department store, North Virginia St.

The YWCA will sell cakes, pies and salads, prepared by members of the organization. Arlene Freedman is chairman of the committee in charge of the preparations.

Proceeds for DP's

The proceeds of the opera and ballet program and the food sale will go to the DP student fund which was set up to help such students to come to the University of Nevada.

SAE ELECTIONS

Bill Jager was elected president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity last Monday night.

Other officers elected by the SAEs are Bill Lanahan, vice president; Wally Burnett, treasurer; and Jack Allen, secretary.

EDITORIAL

In past years University of Nevada coeds took over the Sagebrush for the Mackay Day edition and, occasionally for the Homecoming edition. Currently, members and pledges of Sigma Delta Chi take over the Mackay issue.

A fill-in staff has always enjoyed the work. Customarily, whoever takes over an edition assumes the responsibility of selling all of the advertising, writing the stories, and seeing that the paper gets printed the way they want it. They also see that it gets folded and delivered after being run off the presses.

Here is an idea for the senior class. I could take over the Brush for the last edition of the year. There are few seniors who, at the end of a long four years, don't have a lot of things they want to say, ideas they would like to bring into the open, reminiscences they would like to share. There are few who wouldn't like to dabble at least once in the editing game. And, there is always some money connected with taking over an edition. It would be a fine way to get a little cash for a senior blowout.

There it is—how about it?

Freshman wins progress award

Ralph E. Boardman, freshman engineer, won the achievement award by the department of mathematics of the University of Nevada. The prize awarded is a desk copy and a pocket copy of Mathematical Tables from the Handbook of Chemistry and Physics. The books were donated by the publishing company which has set up similar awards on other campuses.

Doctor E. M. Beasley, chairman of the department of mathematics, states further that the volumes have been on display in the Mackay Science Hall for the past few weeks and are considered valuable assets to the serious student of mathematics, chemistry and physics.

Mr. Boardman is presently in Mr. Chamberlin's section of Mathematics 152.

"Mr. Boardman was selected by the members of the department of mathematics who have carefully reviewed the records of several eligible students. According to the stipulation of the donor, the award is to be given for 'Achievement in Freshman Mathematics.' The department has interpreted this to mean that the award should go to a student who is currently doing high quality work and who has shown progressive improvement over a considerable period of time."

To paint 'N'

The Block N will hold its second painting of the N on Peavine Mountain Saturday, at 8 a.m., according to Burt Larkins, president-elect of the organization.

All freshmen will be required to be present at the ASUN building where transportation will be provided for them to the mountain.

Non-participants in the affair will be subject to punishment by the Block N and the upperclass committee.

Forensic clubs elect officers

Two forensic organizations have recently elected officers and announced their new members.

Delta Sigma Rho, national forensic honorary fraternity, elected Jerome Marks as president; Robert Ballard, vice president; and William Engle, secretary-treasurer.

The new members, who will be initiated Friday, June 1, will be: Proctor Hug, Gordon Hayes, Ted Lokke, Arlene Allen and Joan Foster.

To qualify for membership in the organization, the oldest forensic honorary in the United States, a student must be at least a sophomore, have a passing grade, and have successfully competed in several debate or speech events.

Forensic Key Reactivated

The Forensic Key organization, whose membership is made up of those students who hold keys for merit in debate and other speech activities, will be formally reinstated as an active student organization this spring, according to Professor Gale Richards, director of forensics.

Students holding keys for activities are: Gordon Hayes, Robert Ballard, William Engel, Ted Lokke, Jerome Marks and Ralph Brown.

Awards will be given to the following students who have been active in forensics this season: Arlene Allen, Proctor Hug, Clinton Wooster, Louis Cannon, John Coleman and Joan Foster.

This organization will sponsor the intramural forensics program, which includes a revival of debating among the various fraternities on the campus for the rotating trophy.

Kappa Tau Alpha elects Hulse

James Hulse, University of Nevada journalism student, has been elected to Kappa Tau Alpha, national journalistic honor society. He is the only student to be so honored this year.

A student must be in the upper tenth of the junior or senior class in journalism to qualify for election to the fraternity. The election is based on scholarship in journalism and on character.

Hulse was elected by faculty and alumni members of the organization. He will be initiated before the end of the semester.

AWS chooses ten outstanding coeds

Ten of the most outstanding women on campus for this school year have been chosen to the Associated Women Students scroll of honor.

The women chosen were: Elaine Alldredge, Delta Delta Delta; Lois Bates, Pi Beta Phi; Gloria Eddy, Kappa Alpha Theta; Odile Frost, Pi Beta Phi; Mae Gregory, Kappa Alpha Theta; Marnie Miller, Delta Delta Delta; Bebe Moore, Independent; Darlene Stucki, Independent; Norma Walsh, Gamma Phi Beta; and Pat DeWalt, Gamma Phi Beta.

The honor scroll traditionally contains the name of the outstanding women students who contributed most to the school and to AWS each year. The scroll was discontinued a few years ago, but was revived this year.

The women are chosen by the council from a list of candidates submitted by the women's organizations on the basis of their campus activity and their general contribution to the university.

The ten women will be presented with certificates at the final award assembly in June. Their names will also be inscribed on a permanent AWS scroll.

Not one, but four MacArthurs seen

Not once, but four facsimiles of General Douglas MacArthur were seen parading through the streets of campus the Thursday following the ASUN elections.

"Old Soliers Never Die" was the slogan attached to the black convertible in which the four defeated Sigma Alpha Epsilon candidates were riding. At the end of the motorcade was a station wagon with a similar slogan . . . "Old candidates never die."

The four MacArthurs, all resplendent in army uniforms, dark glasses, and pipes, were Jerry Wyness, Bill Jager, Frank Schradrack and George Williams.

Preceding the MacArthurs, was a four piece ensemble, consisting of the SAE flag carrier, a snare drummer, a bass drummer and a trumpeter who played "Taps" throughout the parade.

In 1889 the state legislature said that all new buildings erected on the campus should be made of stone from the Nevada state prison. Note Ag. Exten. Bldg.

There is only one more week until finals. Let's get at those books.

Governor's medal to James Skinner at ROTC review

Governor Charles Russell presented the annual Governor's Medal to an ROTC cadet last Tuesday at the military review in honor of Governor's Day.

Other honors and awards were made at this time for military excellence. The affair took place at 4 o'clock in Mackay Stadium.

James Skinner, the recipient of the medal, is the second basic cadet to receive this honor since it was first presented back in 1929, according to Lt. Col. J. C. Smee, military department head. Ted Klimaszewski, student body president, was runner-up.

The award, made by the State of Nevada through the governor, is given to the cadet who is considered by the military department to be proficient in military training, observant of the rules of military courtesy, and attention to duty.

In the past more advanced students have received this award than basic cadets. Last year the medal was won by Howard McKissick, a cadet lieutenant colonel. The only other basic student to receive this award was Gordon Hayes.

The President's Trophy, awarded for the season's best individual record in ROTC rifle competition, went to Roger Ineson, a freshman.

The Reserve Officers Association Award for best second year cadet was won by Kenneth Yenter. His name will be engraved on a permanent trophy retained in the military department.

The Combat Forces Medal, which was awarded for the first time, will go to Paul Stimac. This award is made by the Combat Forces Journal for leadership.

Scabbard and Blade Medals, gold, silver and bronze, were given to the three best drilled second year cadets. They are Kenneth Yenter, gold; James Stubbins, silver; Jack Crowell, bronze. A fourth award, a ribbon, will be given to Richard Gould.

The three best drilled first year cadets received the gold, silver and bronze Kerak Temple Awards. They are Merl Zmack, gold; Kim Choy, silver; Art Davies, bronze. Buddy Fuzii will receive the fourth place ribbon.

Circle N's, minor sport awards, went to the following varsity rifle team members: Roger Ineson, Kim Choy, Bill Becker, Jim Etcheto, George Schindler, Lowell Miller, and Mel Guerrero.

New officers hear leadership lectures

A series of leadership and inauguration lectures were held last Thursday, Friday and Monday for new student body officers and members of next year's student senate.

The newly adopted ASUN constitution was discussed. Outgoing student body president, Ted Klimaszewski, pointed out and explained the new phases of the constitution to the group.

Other subjects covered in the lectures included: publications, Jim McNabney, assistant graduate manager; public relations, Professor A. L. Higginbotham, head of the journalism department; and university finances by Colonel James Smee, head of the Finance Control Board.

All incoming ASUN officers were required to attend the lectures, which were under the direction of president Ted Klimaszewski.

Bill Engel, received shoulder patches for competition in the 1951 intercollegiate meets sponsored by the National Rifle Association. At present the recipient of the Major General George S. Simmonds trophy for attendance and discipline, is unknown. Best squad and platoon drill competition took place.

Pershing Rifles conquer Vegas

The University of Nevada Pershing rifle team's showing in Las Vegas Helldorado day competition was termed successful by Lieutenant Colonel James C. Smee, professor of military science and tactics. The military department hopes to make the trip annually.

Under the command of cadet Captain Paul Stimac, the team marched in the "beauty parade" Sunday, May 13. The parade was the last of many for the celebration and was made up mainly of contestants for the title of Miss Helldorado.

The group was accompanied by the Nellis Air Force marching band during the parade.

They flew from Reno to Las Vegas in transports furnished by the Las Vegas Air Force base. The members of the team stayed at the air base during their brief visit. After the celebration, the team was flown back to Reno.

Invitation to the event was sent to the military department by the chairman of the Helldorado parade committee. Accompanying the group was Lieutenant Brambilla, faculty member of the military department.

Last Friday the Pershing riflemen formed the guard of honor for Major General Ford, chief of military ordinance, as he arrived in Reno on his way to Herlong for Armed Service Day programs. General Ford met most of the military officers in the Reno vicinity during his brief stop-over.

In order to have an extra special printing job, the Artemisia of 1906 was sent to San Francisco to be printed. It never came back, just another item lost in the famous "quake."

WSSF thanks UN for gift

Appreciation for the contribution of the University of Nevada to the 1951 drive for the World Student Service Fund were expressed in a letter to the campus YWCA recently, according to Marjorie Dickinson, executive secretary of the Y.

The drive, which was held on March 16, netted over $500, which was sent to the WSSF without special earmarking. In sponsoring the drive, the YWCA on the campus had organized a carnival last March in which 25 university organizations participated.

W. J. Kitchen, executive secretary of the World Student Service Fund, wrote:

"Your generous contribution will help to relieve the distress of thousands of students in many parts of the world . . . who are struggling against handicaps in their efforts to continue study."

"What are you doing to save our oil resources?"

People are concerned these days about America's supply of crude oil. They say, "If petroleum resources are beginning to run out, we ought to be careful to make them go as far as possible. What are you big companies doing to save our oil resources?"

Here's the answer to that question. Known crude oil reserves are actually 30% greater today than in 1940. And in addition to making new discoveries, the oil industry—Standard Oil Company of California along with others—is making each well and each barrel of oil yield more and more. Competition makes us produce and refine efficiently. Here are some of the ways we do it:

I'd Like to Know...

You may have heard that a suit has been filed by the Antitrust Division in Washington to break up Standard of California as well as six other West Coast oil companies. Many people have written us protesting this action, and many have asked pertinent questions about our activities. We answer all letters individually, but some points seem of general interest. We take this way of discussing them for everyone. If you have a question, we urge you to write:

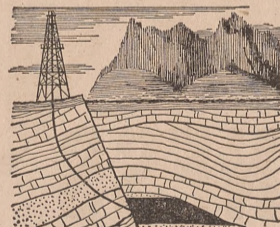

"I'D LIKE TO KNOW"
Standard Oil Company of California
225 Bush Street
San Francisco 20, Calif.

Remember the gusher? Years ago new wells were allowed to erupt. But oil men found ways to stop this waste. And now they extract three new fuels from the gas mixture.

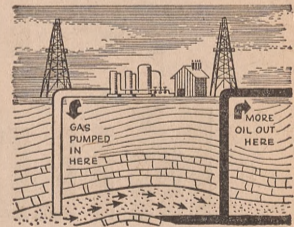

Latest techniques help us in warring on waste. Standard uses a new "electronic brain" to compute best way to drill oil fields for greatest yield 25 years or more into the future.

We also prevent waste by tapping oil pools which used to be out of reach. Through research into drilling techniques we make holes curve, under mountains, for example.

Natural gas, a by-product of oil production, was once merely wasted. But oil companies long ago learned how to capture it, put this energy to work, and conserve natural oil resources.

Time was when only natural pressure lifted oil to the surface. Wells often "went flat." We now use huge systems to pump pressure back in, recovering much oil formerly lost.

And research in refining helps. In 1920, Western refineries were getting less than 7 gallons of gasoline from each barrel of crude. They now get 20 gallons of far better gas.

Into the valley of death

Death Valley trip for biology majors

A summer course in biological survey and animal geographics with a two weeks field trip into the Death Valley region is offered to qualified students by Doctors Frank Richardson and Ira La-Rivers, professors of biology at the University of Nevada.

The course is something entirely new and unique. The instructors and their students will travel into the Ash Meadows area to find and study animal life in the areas where isolation and unusual conditions have either held evolution in check or accelerated it to provide species able and capable of perpetuating themselves in such areas.

In hot springs where the waters remain at or above 90 degrees Fahrenheit, tiny fish are expected to be found and studied carefully. These fish are not known to exist anywhere else in the world.

Insects on Agenda Too

Doctor La-Rivers says that there are many unusual forms of insect life to be found in the same area. These and others, perhaps now unknown, may be found and studied on this field trip.

The Ash Meadows thermal well has been isolated in the area for thousands of years. Its waters rise and remain in Death Valley and the fish and insects do not move from the habitat where they have developed.

Course May Be Annual

Doctor La-Rivers adds that collecting new and unusual species to be added to present collections at the university will add to the prestige of the university and to facilities for teaching.

The course may be offered annually if enough students are interested.

There are enough other areas in Nevada to supply new materials for the course for many years, according to Doctor La-Rivers.

Five enrollees are already planning to take the course. The party will probably be small due to the nature of the study.

Pinnings

Janis Grodrian, Kappa Alpha Theta, announced her pinning to Bill Jansen, Sigma Alpha Epsilon at the Theta house Monday evening.

Sally Lou McKissick, Tri-Delt announced her pinning to Dick Nannini, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, at the Tri-Delt house Monday evening.

Patricia Anne Annand, Kappa Alpha Theta, announced that she will marry Jarvis Bastion on June 17. Both are junior students at the university.

Fulbright award

Competition for Fulbright scholarships, given by the United States department as a method of using foreign currency realized from sale of war surplus material, will run from May 1 through October 15, according to Dr. William Miller, Fulbright program advisor for Nevada.

The scholarships are available for almost all fields of study, and may be taken in any of 19 foreign countries. This year's winner was Patricia L. Kirksey, who will study English literature at St. Andrews College, Scotland.

CAN YOU COMPLETE THIS REBUS?

The answer is an "often quoted" saying by a famous American.

Rebus puzzle: I + [die] - ICE + [comb] - KE + T + [goose] - ON + [bell] - LL + [ring] - NG + GHT + [cup] - IMBLE + AN + [box] - ENT + I + [bird] - COY + NT =
