

SAE In Dark To Broken Neck

Oakley George Parker, house manager of the SAE's, broke his neck Thanksgiving in Fort Bragg, but was not aware of it until he had returned to Reno.

Parker spent two weeks in the hospital at Fort Bragg before he returned to Reno. He discovered his neck was broken after a medical check up here.

The accident took place when Parker and some friends were hunting in a Model A Ford, which tipped over.

He is now attending classes with a cast on his neck, which is broken in two places.

Editor's note: It doesn't seem fair to send a man out with a cast that is broken in two places. You just can't buy decent plaster anymore.

JANULIS ADDRESSES SPARKS HIGH EDITORS

Keiste Janulis, associate professor of journalism, was the principal morning speaker at the high school editors' conference Saturday at Sparks high school.

School publications were discussed with thirty high school editors attending the conference. The afternoon speaker was Joe McDonald, publisher and editor of the Nevada State Journal.

Idaho State Is Tough Foe

Double Win for Wolf Pack Cagers Means Chance at National Title

By Ken Robbins

"If Nevada takes these two games, we stand a good chance of coming out national champs," said Glenn (Jake) Lawlor. The Wolf Pack faces its toughest competition tonight and tomorrow night in a double-header with Idaho State.

Midway in their 1954-55 basketball schedule the Pack traveled today to Pocatello after dropping two last weekend to San Francisco State.

The Idaho State team recently returned from New York where they participated in a holiday tournament. They were beaten in the semi-finals by Georgia Tech.

It took the Yellowjackets from Georgia an overtime period to gain a two-point win over the boys from Idaho. Georgia Tech is the only (Continued on Page 6)

Ski Team Places Fifth in Weekend Sugar Bowl Meet

University of Nevada's ski team took fifth place in a ski meet at the Sugarbowl last weekend. Nevada was defending its last year's championship. Other teams competing in the meet were University of California at Los Angeles, first place in the meet; Modesto junior college, second place; San Jose State college, third place; Sierra college, fourth place; University of Nevada, fifth place; Stanford, sixth place, and College of Pacific in last place.

Nevadans competing in the event were Bill Bulkeley, second in the cross-country race; Bob Jepsen, eleventh in the cross-country; Gardner Smith, first place in the cross-country, fifth in the jumping, and eighteenth in the downhill after two bad spills. Other skiers racing for Nevada were Lynn Johnson, who took second in the downhill, seventh in the slalom and placed in the jumping event, Jim Gilbert, eighth in the cross-country, fifteenth in the downhill and twelfth in jumping, (Gilbert is a freshman this year and was competing in his first meet with the Pack), and Brian Hall, who placed in the downhill, jumping and slalom.

Edwards Injured

Bill Edwards, one of the Nevada ski team, suffered a spiral break on his right leg while practicing the downhill run.

Chelton Leonard ski team coach, commented that "the ski team is capable of doing much better, but this was the first meet of the season and the team had not had much time for practice."

Edelweis and Bijou, California, will be the site of the next ski meet on January 28 and 29. The meet will be sponsored by College of Pacific and San Jose State. Downhill and slalom events will be run at Edelweis and the jumping and cross-country racing will be held at Bijou.

MANY EE JOBS OPEN

Fifty thousand engineering jobs are available, said D. R. Hoopes at the January 6 meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, student branch. Hoopes is the engineering manager of the west coast division of Westinghouse Corp.

The jobs may be broken up into three main types, he said, utilities, manufacturing, and government.

Each of these in turn may be broken up into application, sales, design, research, and service.

Robert Martin presided at the meeting. Forty-four members were present.

Four-Day Winter Carnival Features Parade, Ski Competition, Sno-Ball

The Winter Carnival will start with a downtown parade of skiers and queen candidates.

Students on the campus will be dressed in keeping with the time of year and the Winter Carnival, for Thursday, February 10, set as Ski Clothes day.

Georgia Meyers, secretary of the Winter Carnival committee, has released the following calendar.

Thursday, Feb. 10—The downtown parade will be held. Participating in the parade will be the various ski teams, the German band, and the queen candidates. After the parade, the Winter Carnival assembly will be held at the University.

Thursday has also been selected as Ski Clothes Day. The idea is that everyone will wear ski clothes to classes.

Open houses at the sororities and fraternities are to take place after the assembly.

Friday, Feb. 11—Registration for the ski teams is to take place in the morning. That afternoon the cross-country race will be held. A spaghetti feed is on the program for the evening.

No definite place has been set for the spaghetti feed. Georgia Meyers said a place may be chosen at Mt. Rose.

Saturday, February 12 — The downhill land slalom races at Slide Mountain will take place.

Saturday night the Winter Carnival dance and banquet are scheduled. Time and place have not been announced.

Final Day

Sunday, February 13 is the final day of the Winter Carnival and will begin with the ski jumping contest held at Sky Tavern.

Awards and trophies will be presented to the winning teams and individuals. The committee has approached Gov. Charles H. Russell to make these awards.

Twelve hosts and twelve hostesses are to be chosen to welcome the ski teams to the University of Nevada. Georgia Meyers expects to have the list complete for publication next week.

Wm. Wood Article Discusses Coming College Problem

The January issue of the National Educational Association magazine carries an article by Dr. William R. Wood on "the Community College."

The article discusses the approaching flood of college-age students and the problem it will create. Nevada's dean of statewide development points out the public junior college as the possible answer to anticipated increasing enrollment.

Decentralization in higher education is cited as a reasonable answer to overcrowding of main universities "whose optimum size will probably be reached by all existing institutions within the next dozen years."

Who Judges

One school of thought advocates the setting up of standards that would exclude all but the "best talent," says Dr. Wood in his article. "Just who is going to play Solomon and sit in judgment on this matter has not yet been determined," he comments.

Dr. Wood concludes that cooperative planning of universities and communities can provide the needed educational opportunities in the way of public junior colleges.

Not the first of his writings to get into print, this article is preceded by numerous magazine education articles. In addition, Dr. Wood has compiled and edited many short-story anthologies for national circulation.

Magazine Lauds State University

University activities and the campus in general are featured in the recently published Nevada Highways and Parks magazine.

The cover of the recent issue features a natural color photograph of Manzanita lake. The lead article about the university is written by Prof. A. L. Higginbotham, head of the journalism department.

Professor Higginbotham's article describes the services rendered to the state by the different colleges and departments of the university. He explains how the department of agriculture benefits the farmer and rancher, and how the bureau of mines, a part of the university, aids the miner and prospector. He goes on to explain how the college of arts and science, the engineering college, and others help the people of Nevada.

Horn Stumped By Power Break

The recent power cable break on the campus has proven elusive to Carl Horn and his crew of men.

Ditches have been dug to expose several hundred feet of the old cable and will remain open until the trouble is located. Meanwhile the temporary cable connected with the new gym transformer will continue to supply power to Lincoln hall and the Infirmary. The education building is being supplied power from the transformer in the agricultural building.

No Sliding

Crystals that are labeled "Sweep Clean" are being used on the walks and steps of the university campus by Mr. Horn and his crew of six men to make walking about the campus less hazardous. The crystals have proven better than salt, for they leave no residue to be tracked into the buildings.

MISS CARROLL DIES

Miss Virginia Carroll, associate professor of home economics, died in San Francisco yesterday morning following a two week illness.

Miss Carroll began teaching at the University in 1943. She specialized in the fields of child care and child guidance. It was through her efforts that the university initiated the nursery laboratory school in the home economics department.

Graduated from Columbia University in 1927, she also received her masters degree there in 1933. Since that time she has taught at several institutions throughout the United States.

After an accident which occurred on December 30 while Miss Carroll and Miss Mildred Swift, professor of home economics, were in San Francisco, she was taken to the Alta Bates hospital, and late last week was transferred to the University of California hospital. She underwent surgery Wednesday.

Cremation services will be held at N. Gray and Company, 1545 Divisadero, San Francisco, and memorial services will be held in Reno later at the Ross-Burke home.

Miss Carroll had no known survivors.

Democrats Elect New President

Chuck Coyle, sophomore, was elected president of the Young Democrats at a meeting Wednesday in the basement of the Wolf Den.

George Evans was elected vice president, Annette Dickson, secretary and Julie Stavros, treasurer. The outgoing president is Bill McDonald.

The Young Democrats also planned to hold a joint party with the Young Republicans sometime in February. The Young Democrats are a group of university men and women interested in the Democratic party.

Liberty, equality, fraternity, sorority.

UN Enrollment Gains Recorded

More men and women are studying education and engineering this school year than last. Although enrollment has increased in all colleges this year, including Nevada Southern in Las Vegas, the highest percentage gains go to the education and engineering departments.

In the combined colleges of arts and science and education, the number of students has climbed from 769 last semester to 970, a sharp increase of 201 students. The newly created College of Education has enrolled a total of 242 men and women, with Arts and Science students majoring in education, boosting this almost to the 300 mark.

Regular university enrollment of undergraduates and graduates is 1417 this year as compared to 1096 last year.

The College of Engineering now has 251 students, 81 more than last semester 170, marking an increase in civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering.

Agriculture

There are 19 more students in the College of Agriculture than last year, making a total of 104.

Of this total, 62 are studying agriculture and 42 home economics.

Registering an increase of 21 over last semester's 71 students, the Mackay School of Mines has 38 studying geology, 35 mining, 19 metallurgy.

Expanding Nevada Southern in Las Vegas enrolled 278 students this year as compared to only 36 last year. Evening and Saturday enrollment on the Reno campus is 259; correspondence courses, 216.

PHOTOGRAPHY COURSE TO BE OFFERED SOON

News photography will be taught for the first time at the University, it was announced by Professor Higginbotham, head of the journalism department. The class will start the second semester, Feb. 3.

Jimmy Nickell, former photographer for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, will teach the course. Journalism 201 will be the official name of the course and it is worth two hours of credit. The tentative time for the class will be Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 p. m.

Romance is so square.

WRA ELECTIONS

Election of Women's Recreational Association officers will be held in the equipment room of the new gym Wednesday, January 19th from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Candidates for president are Lois DeRuchia and Dorothy Hill. Miss De Ruchia holds the title of president of Saddle and Spurs and Dorothy Hill has been vice president of WRA for the past year. Both are active in women's athletics.

Helen Meader and Dixie Sturgess are candidates for WRA vice president. Inez Davis and Marsha Towner are nominees for the office of secretary and Louise Harrison and Lucille Nelson will compete for treasurer.

Women Elected To Aggie Offices

For the first time in the history of the Aggie club, two women officers were elected.

On Tuesday, Jan. 11 a meeting and election of officers was held in the Agriculture building. Penny Molineux was elected secretary-treasurer and Gail Wooster historian. New president is Bob Genasci and vice president is Gail Munk.

Bill Dunning, past president of the group, announced that Frank Stewart will not be able to manage the horse show this year because of a knee injury. Niel West will replace him and Mike Mansfield will assist. Stewart was assistant manager of the show last year.

Members of the Aggie club handled some of the details surrounding the National Cattlemen's Association convention held in Reno.

NEWMAN CLUB PLAYS BASKETBALL

Members of the Newman club, Catholic youth organization, have entered a basketball team in the City league.

The team won its initial game on January 5. The second game is scheduled for January 12.

Pack Drops Two With S. F. State

The University of Nevada basketball squad lost its opening games of the 1955 Far Western Conference schedule to a strong San Francisco State quintet, 79-74 and 83-72.

The two game series, played last Friday and Saturday, resulted in a scoring duel between two ace sophomores, Nevada's Chuck Handley and the Gator's Henry Forte.

Tops Handley

Handley poured in 28 points in the first tilt but was edged for scoring honors by the fast breaking Forte, who tallied 30.

Tops Him Again

Forte repeated the second night by hitting for 37 as the consistent Handley contributed 34 to the losing effort.

The Wolf Pack, rated as underdogs at the offset of the series, pressed hard in the first game and held a commanding 36-25 halftime lead.

Center Duel

Nevada's sophomore center, Bob Scott, and the Gator's highly experienced Bob Liebe vied for control of the backboard in the nip and tuck second half, which ended in a 67-67 deadlock when Liebe missed a potential game winning gift toss.

Foul Play

Shortly after the start of the five minute overtime period, Handley joined his teammate, Dan Sullivan on the sidelines, both via the foul route.

The final buzzer found the stubborn Pack on the short end of a 79-74 final tally.

In Saturday's clash, the Gators were again hard pressed by the hustling Wolves and at the half had Nevada at only a one point disadvantage, 38-37.

Too Much

In the second half the Golden Gators slowly widened the gap to 11 digits to sweep the series with a 83-72 victory.

Outstanding floor games were turned in by Handley, Scott and Trounday in both games. In the second tilt Scott held the seasoned Liebe scoreless in the first half of play.

Liebe is a veteran of several years playing basketball at Sacramento JC, with the Oakland Bittners in the AAU loop, as a regular on the 1951 Gator squad before entering the service, and also in service competition.

This week end the Nevada Wolf Pack travels north to Pocatello to play two non-conference games with Idaho State.

Language Students May Win Money

The French government has sent an offer of $100 to three students of the University of Nevada who have "more than average interest in French and other classical languages."

The offer sparked the formation of a French club at the university with all students taking any language invited to join. The first meeting of the club was held on December 15 when officers were elected and plans made for future meetings.

The newly elected officers are Lorraine Meunier, president; Peggy Folks, vice president; Joan Williams, secretary; Chad P. Combs, treasurer; and Prof. Betty J. Eilertsen, advisor.

The following lecture and meeting schedule for the French club will be in effect this year: Jan. 11, Geography of France; Feb. 8, History of France; March 8, Great Men of France; April 12, Art and Music of France; May 10, The

To be eligible for the $100 prize money students must attend the remaining five meetings of the year. The language department faculty will judge the winners according to how much the candidates have benefitted by attending the meetings of the club. France of Today.

FTA TO ELECT OFFICERS AT TUESDAY MEETING

The first meeting of the Future Teachers of America for 1955 will be held Tuesday, January 18 at 7 p. m. in the Snack Bar. The main business will be the election and installation of new officers.

Present officers are Peggy Jackson, president; Fay Fotos, vice president; Simmie Cooper, secretary, and Joanne Seaberry, treasurer. FTA has 53 members.

Independents

One of the saddest things on this campus is the lack of a well organized and politically powerful Independent group. It is sad because it is a waste of talent among both men and women who could assert themselves in every phase of campus life.

The Independents are weak because they do not have any sort of vigorous organization. This fault is due to the fact that many of their most promising people are snapped up by fraternities and sororities. Other Independent leaders, or potential leaders become discouraged when they are unable to secure support from their own kind. And far too often, the Independents choose mediocre leaders, or simply follow mediocre leaders from their own inertia. Independents feel that they have never been powerful and that they can never be powerful.

The Independent group on campus could become extremely powerful. With proper organization and enough work, it could take its place in power beside the fraternities and sororities. This would be a boon to campus politics as well as to the Independent group for it would put more snap into campus competition for all offices. It would and could be a source of stimulation to the entire student body. At many other schools, the Independent vote often carries campus elections. It could happen here.

Building a strong Independent organization would be a tremendous job. The men and women who did it would have to be dedicated to their task. Independent leaders in the past have too often been personal axe-grinders whose motive was to establish themselves in readiness for a fraternity or sorority bid.

Establishing an Independent organization that means more than just a name—means more than just a plan. It will require work and it would involve plenty of setbacks and disappointments. It is not the kind of thing that can be done overnight by one or two fly-by-night personalities.

Fraternities and sororities run the Nevada student body. This is neither fortunate nor unfortunate. It is merely the system, and it has worked well. If the Independents could organize, their competition could change the systems so that new students would not be confined in their choice of paths to advancement in campus activities. It would do this campus a lot of good.

Grad Addresses Civil Engineers

Former ASUN president, Paul O. Reimer, '50, spoke to the Civil Engineers at their January 12 meeting. Reimer spoke on light-weight aggregate for use in Portland cement concrete.

The Civil Engineers also discussed final plans for a trip to San Diego in February. Civil engineers from Nevada, California, Utah and Arizona will meet there.

Reimer received the Fleischman scholarship and was one of 19 University of Nevada students to make the College Who's Who.

Reimer originated the idea of a president's council representing the sororities, fraternities, and hall groups, and the creation of a publicity committee to promote university interest among Nevada high schools.

Reimer also initiated the showing of old movies at the university.

He is now working for the Ready-Mix Concrete company.

Remain sane. Avoid over-exposure to the Sagebrush.

Out Of The Brush

By P. FINCH

Seeing not-so-sure-stepping students slipping on the snow-slick stairs stemming from the several storms, I would be reminded of a Mack Sennet silent comedy. I would if I had ever seen a Mack Sennet comedy, anyhow.

It is difficult to slip down a flight of concrete steps with dignity. It is difficult on any kind of steps. The closest one can come to it is by simply relaxing until one stops rolling at the landing.

One morning recently a man who had been proceeding cautiously down the stairs leading to Skunk hollow lost his footing despite all precautions. This particular man refused to relax, however, and his gyrations would have put any Charleston dancer to shame. His rapid and intricate footwork belittled the efforts of a chipmunk on a treadmill.

Of course, he finally fell ignominiously. Ruffled and suffering from loss of composure, he minced down the remaining steps muttering about a needed ski-lift.

After a spill or a near spill on ice some glance behind furtively to check on possible spectators. They fret over ridicule. To a witness this type will emit a high-pitched nervous giggle and say "slippery, isn't it?" One of the more inhibited breed might pretend he didn't fall at all and continue his descent with a false air of bravado. Yet others are relatively unaffected. After this type falls he may only curse violently.

But for the gentle ones who are easily embarrassed a maxim of courtesy should be observed. When a dinner guest pulls a faux pas by dropping his olive fork it is proper for his neighbors to do likewise, thereby covering his guest's discomfiture. The same goes when somebody slips on the ice and hits the deck.

For the past week whenever someone near me is obviously embarrassed by a fall on the stairs, I have been throwing my feet out and falling also.

This is rough on the southern extremity but gives me a great sense of being neighborly.

With all this talk of the "right-to-work" bill, it might be germane to mention that the University of Nevada is a closed shop. The ASUN does not have voluntary membership. The student either joins or he is not admitted to the university. Now no one is knocking the ASUN. It is a great outfit even though only a handful of people take an interest in it. There is something to be said for the optional membership but on the other hand a very few students would shell out the fee if they didn't have to. Then the same small group would be doing all the work which benefits all the students. But there wouldn't be any money.

Rifle Team to Host Marksmen From Two Western Schools in Match

Nevada's ROTC Rifle team will play host to out-of-state teams in a match to be held February 5.

Arizona State college and Texas Tech. will each send a ten-man team to compete in a shoulder to shoulder match with the University of Nevada's squad.

The three top sharpshooters on the Arizona team are Paul Jaromscak with a probable average of 385, Stuart Hood firing 381 and Kenneth Palmer also with 381.

Top shots on Nevada's team are Terry Katzer with a 383 average, Charles Taylor shooting a 382 and John Middlebrook firing 380.

Max Botz's score will probably make the difference if the Nevada team wins this match, says Sgt. J. C. Cantrell, team coach. Although Max doesn't always fire in the top three, he is continually firing in the 380's, and will probably make the difference between a Nevada win or loss, Cantrell said.

First Loss

The rifle team placed second in a recently fired postal match with Arizona State college.

Beaten by only seven points, the Nevada team experienced its first loss this season in this type of match. After tallying the scores Arizona state had 1,885 points and Nevada had 1,878 points.

Postal matches are fired on the home range and the scores are sent to the respective schools participating in the match. When all scores are received they are compared and the winner announced.

Brushfire Printed After Semester

Brushfire, the campus student literary magazine, will go to press between semesters, states Nancy Anderson, editor.

The staff expects to be able to begin sales on the magazine about February 15.

This year's publication will be approximately the same size as that of last year, except that there will probably be more advertisements.

It will contain a variety of short stories, ranging from western to fantasy themes. Also, there will be a number of poems and a few essays.

John Hall, winner of the Rhodes Scholarship this year, has submitted a poem. In addition, Barney Childs, '49, past winner of the Rhodes scholarship, is expected to have one or two pieces of his work available for publication.

Staff

Staff members included Nancy Anderson, editor; Yvonne Larty, business manager; Bob Stites, art editor, and members of the editorial staff were John Hall, Bruce Bledsoe, Sandra Newell and George Mross.

Ad and business staff members are: Sharon Utley, Betty Landers, Mardelle Capriotti, Mary Lee Metzker, Jack Manoukian, Rose Lazovitch and Jeannie Meyers.

Peabody Report Subject Of Talk By Dean Holstine

University students and faculty will have an opportunity to promote the growth and betterment of Nevada if the recommendations from the Peabody report are accepted.

This was the theme of Garold D. Holstine's talk at the meeting of the University faculty club on Tuesday night.

Dr. Holstine, Dean of the College of Education, pointed out how each department at the university will be able to help modernize the state education system.

Since Nevada and the university are comparatively small, the people are more familiar with existing problems and better qualified to work together, he said. Not only will the native Nevadans produce more and better things, but high-calibre citizens will be attracted from out-of-state.

See editor's note below.

The recommendations mentioned by Holstine are contained in a gubernatorial committee's report, which will be submitted to the 1955 legislature.

This report is based on the findings of a group which was brought from Peabody College in Tennessee, to survey the Nevada school system.

The committee in charge of the faculty club meeting and program were: Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hayden, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. John Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ryser, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Richardson, and Miss Virginia Carroll.

Editor's note: The editor is from out-of-state and feels that this high-calibre idea might have something.

LOOK! LOOK! LOOK! LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS?
For solution see paragraph below.

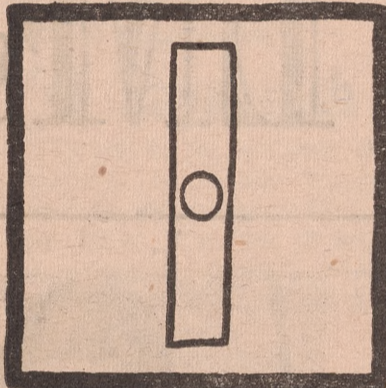

OBVIOUSLY, THE TITLE of the above Droodle is: 47 insectology students enjoying better-tasting Luckies while studying 3 fireflies. All kinds of students are bugs about Luckies. Matter of fact, college smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands—and by a wide margin—according to the latest and greatest of all college surveys. Once again, the No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

Tall Men

According to Lawlor, Nevada faces a team of considerable height and speed. He stated that the first battery places men of 6' 7", 6' 5", and 6' 3" on the floor. "We can always resort to the stepladders," commented Lawlor.

Nevada traveled to Idaho with an overall record of 5 wins and 6 losses to date. They have gathered wins from Eastern Oregon, Sacramento State and Humboldt State, while losing to Fresno State, San Francisco State, and Chico State. The Pack split a pair with the College of Idaho.

Only two of the games, both losses, have been in conference play.

Decorations

Donna Fisher, chairman of the campus decorations, and her committee have made plans for welcoming the out-of-state teams with posters and banners around the campus. One of their plans is to have a display of signs around the cannon area in front of Stewart hall. These signs will represent the mascots of the schools which each ski team represents.
