27th Military Ball Set As Season Opener

The 27th Annual Military Ball will be held November 18 in the Fable Room of the Hotel Mapes. The dance will begin the formal season and is open to all university students.

The ball, which will begin at 9:00 p. m., will be climaxed with the crowning of a queen selected by guests attending the ball. Candidates for queen have been nominated by each sorority and the Artemisia-Manzanita Hall association.

According to custom, the queen will be presented beneath an arch of crossed sabers executed by members of Scabbard and Blade, honorary military society. Governor Charles Russell will then crown the chosen queen.

Bob Lewis, chairman of the Military Ball, has arranged for Ed Gomes' band to play. Lewis expects several high ranking civilian and military people to be present.

Candidates for the title of Military Ball Queen this year are Shirley Behymer, Delta Delta Delta; Katherine Currie, Pi Beta Phi; Janet Mae Dotson, Artemisia-Manzanita; Jo Ann Rogero, Gamma Phi Beta, and Bonnie Woods, Kappa Alpha Theta. All five candidates are sophomore students at the university.

Shirley

Shirley Behymer is 5'6", has light brown hair and brown eyes. She was born in Pasadena, Calif., where she lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Van Amersfoot. She attended John Muir high school where she was a flagtwirler, member of the aquacade, and vice-president of her senior class. While she was at John Muir college she was a songleader and served on several committees. Shirley is now enrolled in the college of Arts and Science and is majoring in commercial art. She is president of the Tri-Delt pledge class and is a member of the women's ski team, PEMS, and ski club.

Kathy

Kathy Currie is 5'4", has brown hair and brown eyes. Born in Los Angeles, she now lives in Reno with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Currie. Kathy attended Alexander Hamilton high school in Los Angeles where she was a member of the Senior Service Society, Lettergirls, and First Ladies. She was also senior class president and Girl's League treasurer. She came to the University

Waring Featured At Univer. Gym

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, currently making a trans-continental tour, will be featured at the university gym on Nov. 18. Exact time of the performance will be announced at a later date.

The famous radio and television group will be sponsored by the Reno Rotary club in the single appearance. Any profits after the $5000 guarantee will be donated to the Reno YMCA, currently under construction.

Tickets for the show went on sale recently, with the idea of "first come first served" on all seats in the gym.

The more than fifty entertainers in the group are coming to Reno from Portland, Ore. The show will consist of the usual two and a half hour show.

Assemblies Due Before Christmas

Three student assemblies will be presented before the Christmas holidays, it was announced recently by a spokesman for the assembly committee.

The Christmas assembly on Dec. 15 will close out activity for the year. The Inter-Faith Council will sponsor the Nov. 17 Thanksgiving show.

The "Wolves Follies," a presentation devoted entirely to humor, will be shown Dec. 8 under the direction of the assembly committee.

Walt Ryals Honored As Athlete of Month

Walt Ryals, sophomore center for the Wolf Pack, has been selected Athlete of the Month for October by the Sierra Nevada Sportswriters and Broadcasters Association.

Ryals has drawn high praise from the opposing coaches for his rugged play and uncanny defensive signal calling during this season.

This is Ryals second year in the Wolf Pack's football lineup. He attracted enough notice throughout the Far Western Conference last year to obtain a berth on the all-FWC team as a second string center.

A native of Marked Tree, Ark., Ryals became acquainted in the Reno area while he was stationed at Stead Air Force Base as a member of the Air Force.

Besides carrying good grades through school as a journalism

The Board of Directors of the Jot Travis Memorial Student Union voted unanimously Wednesday night to make structural adjustments in the proposed student union building rather than to do away with a ballroom.

The decision was made after an hour discussion with Prof. Robert Poolman, University engineer, and Dr. William D. Carlson, dean of student affairs, who explained the alternate possibilities to bring the proposed building construction within the budget figures available.

Construction of the building was originally scheduled to begin this fall. However, when bids were advertised during the summer, the lowest sum submitted was approximately one hundred-sixty thousand dollars more than is available.

Consequently, adjustments had to be made to fit within the budget. The board of directors conferred with the state planning board, the administration, the architects, the university engineer and others in getting the suggestions as to where the proposed plans could be altered.

The final outcome of the plan, as voted Wednesday night, is that the ballroom will be built, and that cuts made in various other places. Such cuts include doing away with the brick facing on the exterior; 30 per cent will be cut from the proposed amount to be used for ventilation; plumbing facilities will be of a more inexpensive quality than was originally planned; the proposed terrace will be cut in size.

Poolman pointed out that all of these cuts will make it possible to let bids again and to begin construction of the building in February. Allowances will be made in the construction so that things that are now depleted may be added later when additional funds are available. For example, the foundation of the building will be extended so that a brick facing may be added later.

Phil Hannifan, president of the board, pointed out that the window frontage of the building will remain intact.

student and practicing football, he holds down a full time job to support his wife and their one daughter while he continues his education.

He is the fifth person to receive this award. Alex Cushing of Squaw Valley, received the first such honor in January after landing the 1960 Winter Olympic Games for that nearby resort area. Winners since then have been: July, Paul Walters, for returning the Reno Silver Sox to organized baseball; August, Jim Metrovich, champion golfer; and September, Miss Barbara Bradley, for her accomplishments in tennis.

We go along with Paul Harvey. We've living in a generation that seems determined to drink it's way to posterity, war it's way to peace, stamp it's way to wealth, and enjoy it's way to Heaven.

SUNDOWNERS

"The University of Nevada may well have a volunteer fire department on campus before the school year is over." These were the words of Ralph Britton, president of the Sundowners, campus service organization.

"Our organization is working on purchase of a 1917 LaFrance fire engine from a prominent citizen downtown. If we can secure it, we plan to renovate it and offer it to the school."

The members of the Sundowners will act as firemen to man the engine if any fire should break out on campus. Regular fire drills will be scheduled in order to ensure maximum efficiency of the fire fighters."

The idea was formed, Britton added, when club members noted the distance of the nearest firehouse and the condition of some of the campus buildings.

RELIGIOUS WEEK TO BEGIN

November 13-20 has been designated Religious Emphasis week on the campus. This is the second year that the Interfaith Council has sponsored the program.

Morning devotions are planned for the week, and three films from the Moody Bible Institute will be shown.

Donna Holstine is chairman. Officers of Inter-Faith Council are Dwight Powell, president; Simmie Cooper, vice-president; Ida Tout, secretary; Jack Scott, treasurer, and Joe Cooper, program chairman.

Schedule

The schedule for the week is as follows:

Ross-Burke Co.

FUNERAL SERVICE

101 W. Fourth St. Ph. 3-4154

Monday—Morning devotions at the Institute of Religion, located one block west of Artemisia Hall. The Latter Day Saint group will be in charge.

Tuesday—Morning devotions at the Institute of Religion. A film entitled "God of Creation" will be shown at 4 and 7 p. m. in the education auditorium.

Wednesday—Morning devotions at the Institute of Religion. St. Johns Presbyterian group will be in charge. The film, "Dust or Destiny" will be shown at 4 and 7 p. m. in the education auditorium.

Thursday—Morning devotions at the Institute of Religion. The Baptist group will be in charge. At 11:00 in the auditorium, Chaplain Engell from Stead Air Force Base will speak on "The place of religion in the life of young people." At 7 the film "God of the Atom" will be shown in the Education auditorium.

TIME OUT FOR LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS?

For solution, see paragraph below.

EVERY ONE OF THE PEOPLE in the Doodle above (titled: Lucky smokers playing poker) has a good deal. Because they all smoke Luckies, they all enjoy better taste. Luckies taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then that tobacco is toasted to taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So light up a Lucky yourself. You'll rate it aces high for smoking enjoyment.

Memorial Set Up To Honor Senator

As a memorial to the late Sen. Patrick A. McCarran's work in the U. S. Senate to benefit aviation, a $500 a year perpetual scholarship has been established at the University of Nevada by the American Association of Airport Executives.

Reno Airport Manager Joe Hicks, as a member of the scholarship committee of the association presented the first $500 check to University of Nevada President Minard W. Stout.

The money is to be given to a senior at the university who in the opinion of the university administration is studying subjects which could logically lead to a position in the airport executive field.

Both men and women students are to be considered on an equal footing, according to benefit by the scholarship.

The first student to benefit by the scholarship, is to be named before April of 1956, so that his or her name may be announced at the association's annual meeting in Cleveland, April 22 to 26.

One reason for this, the association states, is so that further aid may be given to the chosen student, perhaps in the way of a Summer airport job.

Frosh To Learn Of Student Gov.

One freshman will be chosen by each of the six fraternities, four sororities, and two dormitories on the campus to learn the procedures of student government.

This is the newest in a series of A.S.U.N. Senate plans to orient the freshman class, according to Senator-at-Large Margie Orr.

The freshman representative student candidates are to be set by the university administration.

President Stout said the scholarship dovetails with university plans to expand business administration courses, and will give some student each year a chance to enter a brand new field of business.

from each organization will be an official representative, but will not be able to vote on Senate issues.

For the next Senate meeting, delegates from Artemisia hall, Gamma Phi Beta, Lambda Chi Alpha, Lincoln hall, Pi Beta Phi, and Theta Chi will be on hand to represent their class. These representatives will alternate meetings with freshmen from Alpha Tau Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Nu.

"Besides learning about the government of the student body, we hope that this will create interest from the freshman class in the workings of the Senate," said Miss Orr.

ADDRESSES FEATURED

Both a student's university address and his or her home address is the feature of the new student directory. On sale at the YWCA, in the basement of Stewart hall, the directory costs 50 cents.

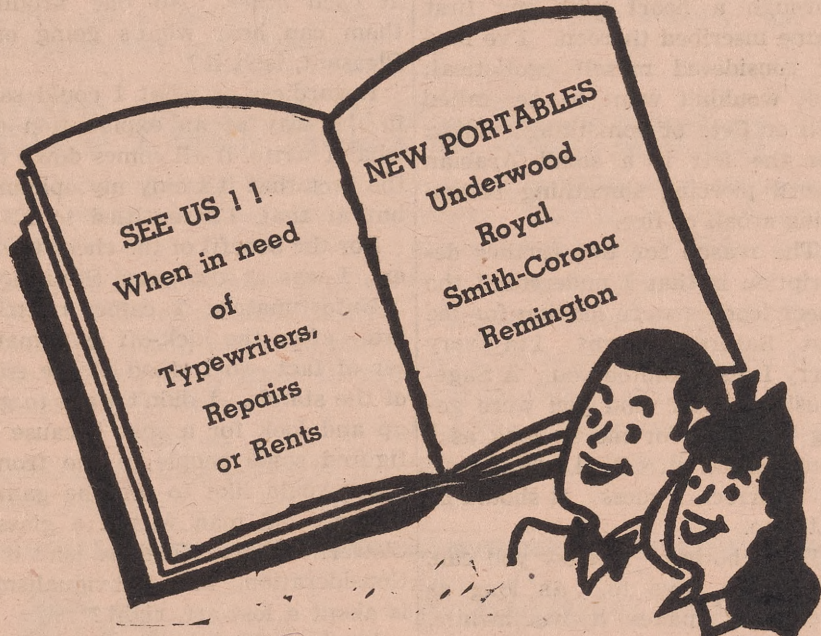

The addition of the home address in this year's book was brought about at the request of many students.

The students feel that they want this addition, said Miss Alice Terry, the president's secretary, for Christmas cards and correspondence during the summer.

You Softies, You

Senator George W. (Molly) Malone, himself a University of Nevada graduate, touched on the topic of political toughness in his talk before the ASUN senate and earlier mentioned it on a TV show in which the editor was privileged to have a minor part.

Before the ASUN senate he said the Russians were tough and, as the cliché goes, the Americans soft. He said American students are becoming too soft to tackle the more difficult engineering studies and consequently the nation is suffering a lack of technicians.

During his trip to Russia he said a good many things about the Russians which he now ignores. But, apparently, he is sticking to the tough Russian idea.

Perhaps he has a point concerning the lack of engineers although one would suspect that the supply is not declining; the demand is increasing. And the implication is that the arts and science people are a batch of pansies. This, in defense of the arts and sciences, we will stoutly deny.

On the TV show last week he told the Sagebrush editor, who was trying to be as inconspicuous as possible, that his generation "had grown up during the time when foreign giveaways, socialism" and the like were quite the thing. Therefore, he added, "people like me surprise your generation."

He referred to a budding friendship with Marshal Zhukov. "He is about my size. He is tough behind his grin, like me."

Again, Senator Malone mentioned the value of toughness at a speech in Sacramento (a trip to Russia is the best speech topic ever devised since the abolishment of slavery) indicating that we need "more diplomats who can talk tough at the conference table."

The senator, incidentally, was an AAU Pacific coast boxing champion in his youth.

Eisenhower went down for the count in the Geneva bout, said the senator. Ike simply is not tough enough.

Well, not having the facilities for taking polls, it is difficult to say whether the Senator surprises our generation as a whole. He is not so rare as he may feel. Many agree with some of his statements although they will shun the bicep treatment of them.

But it is probably safe to assume that surprises such as the senator make even the solid Republicans of our generation a little dubious about their party. (The senator, perhaps facetiously, told the ASUN that his party should take a tip from the communist party and require a fee and a waiting period for prospective members.)

And while being tough is an important characteristic of a politician and a diplomat it is as equally important that he be a statesman.

NEVADA'S Senator George "Molly" Malone, as he addresses members of the student senate at the university. Malone recently returned from a tour of Russia.

Sideline Glances

by Ken Robbins

In my first column I mentioned where and when I could be reached but maybe I should go a little further and describe myself.

I'm 5'11" tall, weigh 175 pounds, sport a new pair of partially horn-rimmed glasses—these so my blue green eyes can see what's going on—am on the medium-thin side, and have about a quarter of an inch of reddish-brown hair.

The next time someone's looking for me, at a football game, etc., and I'm there, just ask. I'm not much, but what there is, I'm not ashamed of.

I've got a tattoo on each forearm. On the left one, a dagger through a heart with my first name inscribed thereon. I've never considered myself egotistical; just wouldn't want to be called Bill or Pete or something similar. On the left is a small Arabian sword piercing something resembling a ball of fire.

The reason for this further description is that I understand the cheer leaders were looking for me last Saturday night. I'm very sorry I disappointed you. A Sagebrush reporter said you were going to cheer for me as long as I could stand it. Well, "for me," isn't correct, I guess. It should be "at" me.

Don't bother. I know you can, when you have to. As long as everybody makes it worthwhile, anyway.

Maybe we'd better get a couple of things straight before I go any further.

I said in my first column that I'm no authority on human nature, nor a reformer, and I meant just that. The editor of this paper suggested I write a column. It's supposed to be training for me, nothing else.

I call it Sideline Glances because it's as good a name as any. I'm an independent, as I've said, and consequently the sidelines is about my dish of tea, isn't it?

If you will read this column carefully, you'll see that no names are printed therein, and that no facts are manufactured or distorted.

As far as the drinkers go, that's actually their business. But if I choose to say something about 'em to my wife, to my friends, or to any one I choose, that's mine. Nobody is hurt by my comment. How could they be, unless they got mad about it and admit who they are?

When someone goes to a public dance, theater, or football game, believe it or not, they are supposed to be considered a part of an orderly crowd. It's something like going to see a show you've waited a long time to see, and then having a bunch of jokers yelling at each other. No one around them can hear what's going on. Pleasant, isn't it?

Regardless of what I could say in the way of an explanation of what I write, it all comes down to the fact that it's only my opinion, but at that, I'm entitled to it.

For the benefit of the cheer leaders, I was at the game Saturday.

Unfortunately, I came a little late—after the kick-off as a matter of fact—so I stood at the end of the stands. I didn't want to go up and look for a seat because I figured some people in the front rows would like to see the game and my old man wasn't a glass-blower. That's ridiculous, isn't it? Consideration, like individualism, is about a lost art, right?

Maybe if I'd gone up and looked for a seat someone might have told me to turn myself into the Dean of Women for getting in someone's way.

Let's face it. Nobody is picking on nobody around here. This column isn't designed to be a barb in anybody's side. If it is, you stuck it there, not me.

RIFLE CLUB

Rifle club members met recently to elect officers, discuss a turkey shoot, and decide on the new equipment to be purchased.

Dick Mills was elected president; Gene Espin, vice president; Jan Chism, secretary; and Joan Sawle, treasurer.

One of my Profs asked me why I am always angry in this column. I'm not mad at nobody. I have no cause to be.

What I've written so far, I've seen and heard, and I've presented the facts, including my opinion. If anybody has a kick coming, let's hear it.

Nobody has been slandered, libeled, or anything similar. And no one individual has been made an example of. But the fact remains that these things have happened. Whether or not you think it's smart to drink, that's your business. I don't think it is, and I've said so.

Whether or not you think a man deserves a hand because of the kind of ball he played, again that's your business. I think he does. I understand that a claim is in that backs were turned at the time of the happening and a cheer was being led. I don't recall a cheer, and I distinctly heard this rooster ask for a yell. Maybe that wasn't heard either.

This column is based on what I see and what I hear. There are also a few concepts that go along with that. I believe in freedom of speech and the right to an opinion. And I'm not a firm believer in the infallibility of man. If I'm wrong, we'll hash it out. If you don't like being openly criticized, that's another matter. Prove the facts wrong and you have a case. Make excuses, and you change nothing.

Library Obtains 2000 New Books

Nearly two thousand books have been bought or given to the University of Nevada library since July.

Two hundred volumes of the Charles Haseman Collection were presented by regent chairman Silas Ross. Seven hundred volumes of the "Doten Collection" were given by Mrs. George G. Schweis, and Dr. James J. McCormick of San Francisco gave the library a copy of "The Sutro Tunnel."

The library now contains approximately 150,000 volumes, many of which are not yet catalogued. Ten to fifteen thousand maps are also available to students. Included in this number are five thousand bound volumes, of congressional records since 1817.

Student Help

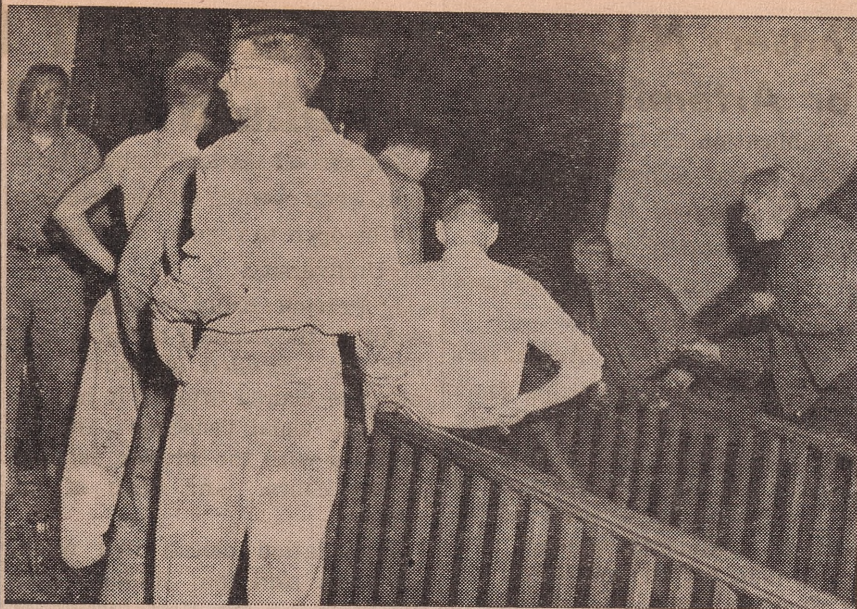

Students working in the University library this semester are Wynona Bromley, Denise Dwyer, Lois Enders, Julie Stavros, Greg Jeanbart, Janet Mathews, Marjorie Mead, Lee Mortensen, Bernie Mergen, Dolly Montgomery, Beverlee Pomin, Caryl Starr, Carol Tollefson, and Marguerite Vindrola.

SKULL AND CROSSBONES FLY TOMORROW

The skull-and-crossbones flag will be flying high over the Moana Steak House tomorrow night, as the Theta Chi fraternity puts on its annual costume dance, with a pirate theme.

According to social chairman Gene Kilianey, more than fifty couples are expected to attend the affair. Nello Gonfiantini's band will play from nine till twelve.

Guests will be Capt. and Mrs. Harry Clark and Capt. and Mrs. Jack Singleton.

ROTC Plans Roll For Next Spring

Application for next Spring's advanced course must be submitted by Nov. 16.

Students not currently enrolled in ROTC who will become juniors during the spring semester must apply if they wish to enroll in the advanced ROTC course.

Veterans

Qualified veterans may take the course and receive a commission as a second lieutenant in the Army reserve. They are not required to to serve two years of active duty after being commissioned.

Advanced course students receive a uniform and are paid about $27 a month. They are required to attend one summer training camp session, usually held at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Custodian Prevents Serious Fire Damage

Custodian John Fletcher prevented serious damage in a fire in a closet of the museum of the Mackay School of Mines last Friday when he seized a fire hose just outside the museum entrance and controlled the fire until the Reno fire department arrived.

Cause of the fire is undetermined, said Carl Horn, superintendent of buildings and grounds. The possibility exists, stated Horn, that it could have been spontaneous combustion, that is a flammation from internal causes.

Baffled

The fire department, along with adjuster B. E. Whitby & Company, are completely baffled by the cause of the fire, since all parts of the closet were equally burned. Horn also said that no spot in the closet was more deeply burnt than others. Only the usual janitor supplies and nothing especially inflammable were in the closet, said Horn.

A fire adjuster expert, stated Horn, is coming from San Francisco to examine the case, and nothing will be touched until the adjuster has had a look.

All the contents of the closet were burned. The blaze charred the doorway and wall of the museum, and peeled chunks of plaster from the ceiling.

Leaflet Published By Administration

"Highlights of Progress" is the name of the four-page leaflet published recently by the university administration.

It is the first in a series of reports to alumni and the general public on university activities.

New programs were emphasized in the first report, including the creation of new colleges and schools, statewide expansion, and pending construction of new buildings.

Second Report

Progress and changes in the existing colleges and schools of the university will be emphasized in the second report which is tentatively scheduled for January or February.

A future report will be based on the needs of the university.

The leaflet was prepared by the University news service.

Chasers Needed For Artemisia Ads

"Publication of this year's Artemisia is the responsibility of all students, because it's everyone's yearbook," stated business manager Janet Quilici in her request for ad-chasers this week.

She outlined the Artemisia's plan for getting advertising from Nevada business establishments, and requested that university students aid the business staff of the year-book in getting advertisement. Students who are willing to help get the year-book out on time can contact merchants in their home-towns in Nevada during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Janet said that the advertising section will have an early deadline this year, and that assistance in this field is needed immediately.

Interested students may contact Janet Quilici at 3-0781 or assistant business manager Don Travis at 2-1462.

8-WEEK NIGHT CLASSES TO BEGIN NOVEMBER 14

The second session of short-term eight-week evening division courses will be open to regular students of the University.

J. Patrick Kelly, assistant director of the evening division, said that any enrolled students may take the course offered if he follows the usual procedure, that is checking with the adviser, teacher of the course, and dean of his college.

Registration closed this week, but Kelly said that students may enroll during the first session of the class. Classes will begin Monday, Nov. 14, and the last day for registration is Saturday Nov. 19.

Fees for the term will be $10 per credit and $5 per credit for auditors who do not want credit for the course.

Visit Journalists

The University of Nevada journalism department was one of the features of a field trip by the journalism class of Lassen Union High School in Susanville, California.

The students, two boys and five girls, accompanied by their advisor, Cyril H. Cope, visited the Reno High School journalism classes, radio station KOH, The Reno Evening Gazette, and the Nevada State Journal.

Washington Hand Press

Sandra Mitts, president of the University Press club, and Professor Keiste Janulis showed the young journalists through the Journalism building.

The Washington hand press, the ratio of men to women in the journalism department, and the news reporting class were the main attractions on this campus, according to the visiting students.

Optimistic Pack Ready for Game With Tough Humboldt Lumberjacks

LA GAME MARKS SECOND PACK VICTORY

The Wolf Pack will be looking forward to its second victory in the Far Western Conference as they play the Humboldt Lumberjacks at Arcata tonight. The first victory was against Sacramento State, 28-7.

Although the Lumberjacks have a tough team, Coach Gordon McEachron's hopes are high after the Pack defeated favored Los Angeles State, 13-12 last Friday night in a non-conference game.

Probable starters for Nevada are Larry Fritz and George Ball at the ends; Marv Baker and Clay Darrow, tackles; Mike Leslie and Joe Viani, guards; Walt Ryals, center, and Jan Peters, Bill Bowser and Jerry Tobin in the backfield.

Mario (Mike) Lommori, who broke his collar bone in play against Sacramento State, will be back in the game. He will be alternating at fullback with Frank Sullivan.

Concluding Nevada's grid schedule, the game is scheduled to be played at 8 p. m., in the Redwood Bowl at Arcata.

Victory

The Nevada Wolf Pack came from behind twice in the first half to gain a one-point victory over the Los Angeles State Devils in their final home appearance of the season. The game was played on Saturday night of last week before more than one thousand fans.

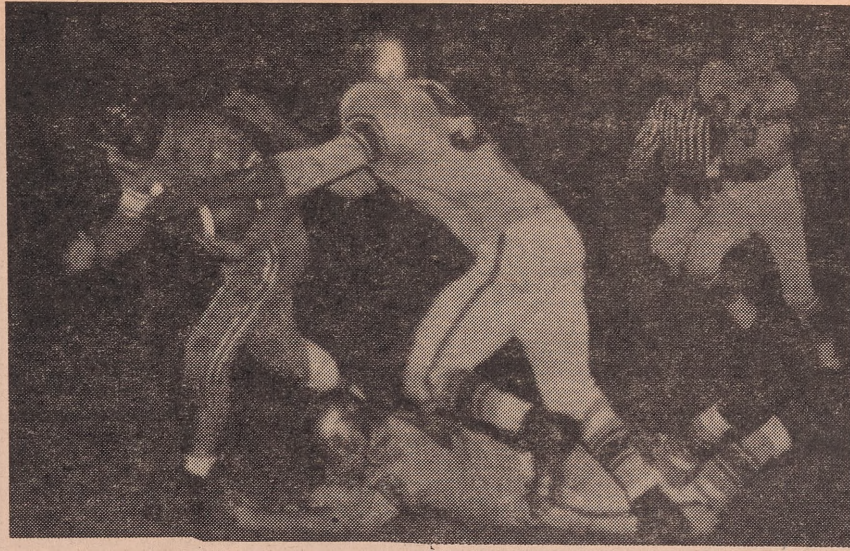

Bill Bowser scored both of Nevada's touchdowns, one on a five-yard plunge, and the other on an 11-yard pass from quarterback Ken Fujii. Al Creel, Nevada's place-kicking specialist, kicked what proved to be the winning tally after Nevada's first touchdown. Both of Los Angeles State's conversion attempts were blocked.

Los Angeles State scored first on a 19-yard run by Tom Morgan. The touchdown was set up by the recovery of a Nevada fumble. Leo Hufford made the Devil's other touchdown on a 17-yard jaunt. The halftime score read 13-12 in favor of Nevada. Neither team was able to score in the second half.

Box Scores

Heads-up defense play and cold weather hampered the offensive efforts of both teams. Nevada fumbled six times and lost possession of the ball on five occasions. Los Angeles State also fumbled six times, losing the ball three times. Nevada had four passes intercepted while LA State lost the ball via interceptions three times.

Several Nevada men turned in notable performances, especially linebackers Frank Sullivan and Walt Ryals, who with their smashing tackles made their presence known all evening. Other Nevada players who were outstanding were tackles Tom Friberg, Marv Baker and Clay Darrow, and guards Joe Viani and Mike Leslie.

BILL BOWSER, consistent Nevada ground-gainer, carries the ball into the end zone as the Wolf Pack noses LA, 13-12.

SOCCER MEN ORGANIZE

Wood, Bertrand Recommend Action In Creating Institution in Libya

Deans William R. Wood and John R. Bertrand have recommended that prompt action be taken to create an institution of higher learning in Libya by the fall of 1956. The recommendation was made when the two men returned from a tour of the African nation last summer.

The University of Nevada was one of 32 universities selected by the Foreign Operations Administration to participate in a program of aid to foreign nations. Dean Wood and Dean Bertrand were appointed by the administration here, to tour Libya and make a survey.

Primary Goals

In their report, Dean Wood and Dean Bertrand pointed out that the primary goals of the proposed educational program are economic independence, productive employment of Libyan people, and development of a spirit of national unity. The report cited the progress Libya has made since it became free in 1951, but said that the desert nation was in a "serious economic condition," with extremely acute health conditions and a very high rate of illiteracy.

The report emphasized that any plan for higher education must be Libyan in character and "specifically tailored to fit Libya's particular economic and social problems." As such, the report continued, the institution best suited to the nation's needs would be patterned after a U. S. land grant university or agriculture and mechanical arts college.

Libyan and American officials seemed to be agreed upon early development of a system of higher education, it was pointed out in the report. At present, there are a number of secondary and vocational schools from which a beginning university enrollment could be gleaned. It also said that the Libyan people should assume complete responsibility for the educational program as soon as possible.

Report Under Study

Presently, the report is under study of the Foreign Operations Administration. Upon mutual acceptance of the program by the Libyan government, the FOA, and the University of Nevada, contracts will be let to start the program.

Tentative plans are to present the report to the board of regents during the next meeting.

In making their survey, Dean Wood and Dean Bertrand traveled by auto and airplane over much of the African nation.

CONVENTION PLANS HIGHLIGHT ACTIVITIES

Convention plans for the meeting of Chem club members from colleges and universities throughout Northern California and Nevada will highlight activities of the university Chem club this year, according to Harry Pacini, club vice-president and program chairman.

Program for the convention, as well as a film on glass making will be presented and discussed by club members at their meeting Tuesday. Other activities for the year, including the annual Christmas party and the January field trip to the local Standard Oil bulk plant will also be considered by the club.

Newly elected officers for this year are: Ernest Brown, president; Harry Pacini, vice-president; Dick Gillette, secretary; John Jepson, treasurer; and Don Nelson and Ray Ferrari, co-chairman for the
