Wolves Curtain to Rise at 8:30

Wolves' Frolic curtain will rise at 8:30 tonight.

Directing the production will be Asher B. Wilson Jr., assistant professor of speech and drama at the University of Nevada.

Miss Marjorie Mead, a University of Nevada student, is the assistant to the producer. She is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Her home is in Gardnerville, Nevada.

A local dance studio instructor, Miss Margie Warner, is supervising and directing the dancing in the Wolves' Frolic program.

Mr. Earl Hultberg, a Reno music instructor, is the Music conductor for the program.

Stage manager for the production is Larry Ball, a University of Nevada student.

Hours of practice put in between classes, between studies, before breakfast, after supper, and in the middle of the night—classes reached tardily, cut short, or just plan 'cut'—meals packed, skimmed, skipped—students making excuses, explanations, and promises to professors—to organize and produce this year's Wolves' Frolic program.

Over 200

Over 200 persons will perform in the 1956 Wolves' Frolic. (At least that many other persons have in some way contributed to the organization of the show by making costumes or helping the performers).

Eleven major groups and six variety groups will be in this year's Wolves' Frolic production.

"Looks good!" declares director Asher Wilson. He states, "More groups have entered and are participating this year than last."

SINGERS ELECT

The University Singers, a campus choral group, has recently elected officers for the 1956-57 school year.

Robert Stange was elected new president of the group. He succeeds Walter Anderson. Other officers are Peggy Cimijota, vice president; Marilyn Jensen, treasurer and Edith Rittenhouse, secretary.

11 Groups Prepare Skits

By Karen Knudson

Here it is! . . . the 36th Annual Homecoming celebration — and every year the Wolves' Frolic is one of its most outstanding features. Students work for many weeks preparing their skits and when the "opening night" arrives, they wait in the wings in anticipation. The show is on. With the passing of the stage lights and the closing of the curtains, it is over for another year. It is the intermingled challenge and the competition and the memories that make participating in the Wolves' Frolic a true pleasure.

Artemisia-Manzanita

Taking part in the Artemisia-Manzanita "Arabian Co-Eds" skit for this year were Marlon Davidson, Barstow, Calif.; Grace Pain, Berkeley, Calif.; Rita Maness, Detroit, Mich.; Gretjen Gumpertz, Los Pasos, Calif.; Anna Johns, Quincy, Calif.; Sheila Zail, Culver City, Calif.; Tippy Smith, Kathy Blackman, Joanne Allen, Jean Rivkin, and Versiellen Eberle, all of Las Vegas, Nev.; Barbara Houghton, Kaye Ann Rowland, and Delores Chambers of Boulder City, Nev.; Margaret Williams of Gardnerville, Nev.; and Betty Edmondson and Margo Purdy from Henderson, Nev. The chairman and director of the skit was Carol Stever of Pioche, Nev.

Tri-Delt

In the "Dixie Land Deltas" skit, presented by Delta Delta Delta sorority were Cynthia Robertson, Anglie Farros, Nedra Norton, Jani Kottinger, Barbara Swart, Diane Coate, Marion Coate, Joyce Lindsey and Vangie Smith, all of Reno; and Gwen Guinn, Simmie Cooper, and Carol Gardenswartz, all of Sparks, Nev.; Theresa Gibson and Mary Carol Jackson of Carson City, Nev.; Pat Lamoreaux, Carlin, Nev.; Diane Oldenburg, Ann Merryman and Jeanne Condrey of Klamath Falls, Ore.; Cynthia Heth, Compton, Calif.; Sherry Longero, Battle Mountain, Nev.; and Mary Frances Tucker, Arlington, Va.; This "Dixie Land" presentation was written and directed by Trudy Caddell of Roseville, Calif.

Pi Phi

The chairman of the Pi Beta Phi's Wolves' Frolic Skit was Suzie Kuypers of Las Vegas, Nev.; participating in "Flying Down to Reno" were Jean Best and Delores Phalen of Hawthorne, Nev.; Ann Dwyer, Marilyn Ferrari, Sandra Hesse, Sandra King, Theresa Mariani, Mary Morton, Barbara Ruark, Lillian Johnson, Roxanna Miller, Joanne Ortiz, Nancy Chandler, Marsha Jo Demorest, Gayle Shipley and Mynra Mack of Reno, Nev.; Beverly Ricketts, Louella

NOTICE

For many years the Sagebrush has carried a picture of the Homecoming queen on its front page. This was possible in past years because the queen was announced before the paper went to press, or if she was not, the Sagebrush was notified secretly, and could print the paper and later distribute it after the announcement. One year not long ago the Sagebrush had the honor of announcing the queen. The leaks mentioned below were not the fault of the Sagebrush staff itself. The AWS release below explains their reasons for this year's set-up.

The Associated Women Student's Council would like to issue the following statement regarding the queen contests which they are handling for the first time this year:

"It was brought to our attention at the time that we were asked to handle these contests, that in previous years the "results" leaked out prematurely.

Our hope is that AWS has found a means of keeping the winner's name a secret. The plan with this contest, and all queen contests handled by AWS in the future, is to let only the AWS ballot-counting committee know the results until the time of the formal announcement.

The council regrets that the adoption of this plan and the fact that the formal statement of the Homecoming Queen winner falls on a Friday night, makes it impossible for the Sagebrush to run the story in tonight's issue."

McHenry Report Released!

Yesterday afternoon the McHenry investigation report on the University of Nevada was released in Carson City. The report makes 36 recommendations, and proposes three amendments to the Nevada constitution and eight statutory changes.

Among the main recommendations, is an overhaul of the Board of Regents, organization of a faculty senate, changes in the financial setup, and a period of consolidation of the present university departments.

The summary of the report begins:

"Although the University of Nevada has experienced a full share of crises and investigations in the past, turbulence and dissatisfaction have been especially marled in the last four years.

"The hierarchical principle of organization cannot successfully be applied at the university," the re-

SKETCH, HOMECOMING '31, '46, '51 CLASSES

Memories are made of this. In '31 there was a dim hope for the future, but the country was in the depth of a depression. The class of '46 found a new, though temporary peace. In 1951, the class of that year walked-out to a world of trouble and war. All three graduation classes will be especially honored on this 1956 Homecoming.

The class of '51 saw the end of Nevada's big time football teams. Under coach Joe Sheeketski, a lone win was recorded in ten games.

President of the university was Malcolm A. Love, now at San Diego State college. ASUN president was the popular Ted Kimaszewski, Marnie Miller led the women students. Who's who on the campus included Mark Curtis, Jerry Wyness, Whitey Lund, Larry Ruie, John Gianotti, Don Harris.

The Wolves' Frolic awards were won by Phi Sigma Kappa's "Basin Street Blues." They also won the best float award.

Pretty Elise Valentine reigned as Homecoming queen only to see defeat come to the Wolfpack 35-7 at the hands of Loyola.

Ten Years Past

1946 was the year of short skirts, long hair, and boogie-woogie music. President of the university, John O. Moseley said, "God speed into a world of peace and tranquility." Nevada had given 67 gold stars to her country in World War II.

These were the days of the powerful Wolfpack grid teams. Buster McClure, and Max Dodge, All-Americans, led the wolves to seven wins in ten games. Jim Aiken saw his team take a Homecoming win from the strong Fresno State bulldogs, 7-4.

Tosca Masini, and Ginny Cole led the cheering sections.

Dick Taylor coached the boxing teams to their share of the glory. The Frolics skit winners were the Tri-Delts and the SAE's.

Joanne Berg was the choice for the Homecoming queen of '46.

Remember '31?

Do you grads of '31 remember that the University of Nevada was presided over by Walter E. Clark? The student leaders, of these hard depression years were Jack Walther, ASUN president; Jean Hughes, your vice-president; Margaret Walts, secretary, and Edwin Cantlon, treasurer. The 11th annual Wolves' Frolic was your production and a big success. William Collonan directed it. The hit of the show was the Nevada coed chorus with the modern doll dance.

The Homecoming committee was led by William Woodburn, chairman, with Robert Bankofier, Irvin Ayer, Beatrice Patterson, Margaret Purdy, Bill Ligon and Bruce Thompson.

Senior class president in the fall was George Vargas. The Spring semester was in the hands of Vernon Hirst. Familiar names on campus then and now are comptroller Perry W. Hayden, and Edward L. Randall, commissioner of foods and drugs.

The football team of this year was under a rebuilding program. Coach George W. Philbrook had two All-Conference players in Walther, at center, and Weaver, end. Other names on the squad that had a record of two wins, two ties, and four losses were Wally Rusk, Scott, Levi, Hill, Theis, Young, and Bill Backer.

The class of '31 said of itself in the Artemisia, "'31 has grown from insult to a dignified address."

SCHEDULE IS FULL FOR HOMECOMING

By William C. Brown

The thirty-sixth annual Homecoming celebration will be held at the University this year on October 27th. Plans for this year's full schedule are being formulated by Gary Brock, chairman from Sparks, Nevada, and his assistants on the Homecoming committee.

The events this year include the traditional open house on Wednesday, October 24, at 8:00 p.m. All sororities and dormitories on campus will participate. Thursday, October 25th, a pajama rally will be held at Mackay Stadium, and will feature a comic king contest and bonfire, finishing with a snake dance through downtown Reno. On Thursday a rally will be held at the Old Gym. This will feature student talent and is under the direction of Richard Bryan.

Friday, October 26th, the annual Wolves Frolic will be presented at the State Building. The Wolves Frolic is the yearly presentation of the students, and features skits from every living group on campus. During intermission, Gary Brock will announce the Queen.

Saturday, October 27, the cross country races will be run, with every fraternity house entering men. Sigma Nu has won the cross country race the last three years.

Saturday morning at 10:00, the Homecoming parade will take place, with float entries from the social groups on campus, various out-of-state marching units, and dignitaries. Children's stories will be the parade theme.

KICK-OFF for the Homecoming football game will be at 2:00 p.m. Saturday, with the Wolfpack meeting Pepperdine of Los Angeles. Governor Russell will crown the Queen during the half-time. Following the game, at 9:00, the Homecoming Dance will be held in the State Building.

The Homecoming committee consists of:

William Brown, Elko, Nevada, publicity; Earnest Sumbenotis, Ely, Nevada, coordinator; Cameron Samuels, Reno, secretary; John Darrach, Reno, parade; Mack Fry, Reno, rally; Bob Jones, Elko, cross country; Boz Costello, Oakland, floats; Susie Kuypers, Las Vegas, dance; Cathy Warner, Susanville, Wolves Frolic; Don Shuper, Reno, and Carol Gardenschwartz, Sparks, half-time activities, and Jan Chiatovich, Gabbs, floats.

Student Compares Innsbruck and UN

Student life at the University of Innsbruck, Austria, was compared with student life at the University of Nevada, in a talk on the campus this week.

Mrs. Carol Mueller, '54, made the talk to the German 103 class of Dr. C. W. F. Melz. Speaking in German, she outlined the Austrian school system, and told of differences between a typical European university and the University of Nevada.

Mrs. Mueller outlined the progress of an Austrian child of six, through the elementary schools to the University. She explained that even an elementary schooling is an expense to parents in that country, since the government does not provide free education.

Many differences were described between the University of Innsbruck and the University of Nevada. No campus, as Americans know it, exists at Innsbruck. University buildings there are located in different parts of the city.

Classes are held from 7:30 a.m. until 9 p.m., with a great deal of trouble with conflicting classes. A three credit hour course, for example, may be given at 9 a.m. Tuesday, 10 a.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. Thursday. Also, it is not unusual to find a student having his first class at 7:30 a.m., a second at 1 p.m., and the last class at 8 p.m.

Class periods are 50 minutes long—the same as here. However, a two credit course is likely to be given in a two-hour sitting, with no break.

Students must take many notes during a lecture, as there is usually no text book available. Asking questions during the lecture is not encouraged. Lectures are really what the word means, with little or no student participation.

Attendance is not taken in class. However, students are expected to attend regularly and keep up their assignments without supervision.

"Elsie's Knees" Remembers And Elsie Lost

The search is on for Elsie Crabtree, a drum-majorete at Nevada during the 1940's. Files have been searched, countless telephone calls made, letters written, and even tactics of the United Press have been used in the attempt to locate this alumnus.

Why all the fuss over one alum who only attended college for a year or two? It seems Elsie caused quite a furor in her short university career, which gained national publicity and coined the phrase, "Elsie's Knees," used throughout the country at that time.

Nicest Pair

According to the grads of the 40's, Elsie had the nicest pair of legs on the campus. And she saw nothing wrong with showing them off while twirling her baton. This did not conform with the then current views on proper dress. Her skirts became shorter and shorter until Margaret Mack, Dean of Women, forbade Elsie to make them any shorter. Elsie resisted this decree for some time, but, threatened with expulsion, at last gave in.

Setliffe Bourne, who was then a former journalism student at Nevada, working for the United Press, heard of the conflict and wrote a story which spread from paper to paper. Thus, "Elsie's Knees" became a topic for national consideration.

Members of the Alumni Association are anxious to see how time and age has affected the majorette.

Homecoming...

The 36th annual Homecoming again brings the annual student conflict of studying vs. Homecoming activities. The activities this year will come to a climax Friday and are slated to be bigger than ever, according to Gary Brock, Homecoming chairman.

The initial event which will kick off this year's homecoming are the open houses, by all the girl's living groups on campus. This annual event is to take place at 9:00 p.m., Wednesday, October 27.

Thursday, October 25 will bring to the campus a host of events including the assembly at 11:00 a.m. under the direction of Richard Bryan. An attempt has been made this year to have professional talent entertain the students at this assembly but nothing is definite at this time.

Thursday evening the gigantic rally will take place at Mackay stadium under the direction of Bill Eddelman, rally chairman. The rally this year will feature the crowning of a Comic King to be chosen from every male living group on campus.

Friday morning will see the voting of male students for their favorite candidates of queen. They are Beth Boyd from Elko representing Tri-Delt; Barbara Ruark, Reno Pi Phi; Nancy Arnold, Fresno, California representing Gamma Phi; Diane Ince, Las Vegas Artemisia-Manzanita representative,

To date, the search has been futile. If she does turn up in time, she is promised free transportation to Reno and free passes to all Homecoming activities.

and Kress Harris, Reno, representing KAT.

Friday night at 8:30 p.m. the Wolves Frolic will be presented and the show this year features skits from every living group on campus as well as specialty and novelty acts.

The queen will be announced during the intermission of the Wolves Frolic this year by chairman Brock. The queen will however, be crowned during the half-time festivities Saturday afternoon. The frolic this year is under the direction of Asher Wilson, Assistant Professor of Speech and Drama.

Saturday morning at 10:30, the colorful Homecoming parade will wind its way throughout the city of Reno. Appearing this year, the first time in many years will be the Alumni in several old auto entries.

The parade chairman this year is John Darrach, and he promises what appears to be one of the best parades in the state.

Two o'clock is the starting time for the football game with Pepperdine College of Los Angeles. During halftime of the game several marching units including the University band will participate in maneuvers. The chairmen of half-time are Don Schuper and Carol Gardenschwartz.

Mademoiselle Contest Closes

The annual Mademoiselle contest for women undergraduates under 26 closes at midnight, November 30.

The contest requires each woman to write a 1,500 word critique of the editorial section in Mademoiselle's August 156 College issue though you may take a later copy if you cannot obtain an August issue.

A good critique will tell the editors something about the contestant and how she expresses herself. The editors request first, your overall likes and dislikes, then suggested changes and additions, and finally concentrate on what interests you most fashion, illustration or fiction, for example. If you feel the critique isn't enough to indicate your particular ability, send in addition something you think will.

If your critique is accepted, you become a member of the College Board. As a College Board member, you are campus reporter for Mademoiselle. You will get two assignments (with choices according to your interest).

The top twenty winners will also be selected guest editors and will be the guest of Mademoiselle for a whole month in New York next June as a salaried member of Mademoiselle's working staff, helping to write and illustrate the August 1957 College issue.

The instructions are simply to enclose with your entry a separate sheet with your name, home and college address, college and graduation year. All entries, art work or manuscripts should be no longer than 8½" by 11". Manuscripts must be typewritten.

Seven Elected To Union Board

Seven representatives from various colleges and at large have been elected to the Student Board of directors and will take office at the next meeting.

Elected were: Ed Piper, College of Agriculture; John North, College of Engineering; Bob Hemphill, College of Education; Dick Deleissegues, Mackay School of Mines; Mike DeWees, representative at large, and Ed Olson, short term representative, and Roger Bremmer, long term representative, from the College of Business.

With the exception of Olson, who will serve on the board only until January, the new members will hold office for the remainder of this school year.

Some discussion concerning the selection of representatives to the board of directors was brought out in the meeting with the criticism being stressed that members elected were not necessarily representative of the various colleges. William D. Carlson, dean of student affairs, explained that in the future, when the new building is completed and in operation, only extremely interested persons should be selected for board membership, but that at the present the board is facing the task of organization with the inevitable difficulties.

Mary Carol Jackson, junior, was selected by members of the board to represent Nevada at the Western Regional convention of College Student Unions to be held in Eugene, Oregon, November 2 and 3.

Dean Carlson reported to the board on the progress made in securing a director for the new student union building. He stated that through Porter Butts, director of the Wisconsin student union who acts as placement agent for student union directors, several sets of credentials have been sent to his office concerning prospective directors. He said that inquiries are still being sent out and that investigation would continue in an effort to hire a good director with a good knowledge of student union operations plus a knowledge of student union programming.

SORORITIES TO HONOR ALUMNI AT LUNCHEONS

Luncheons honoring alumni will be held at each sorority house tomorrow immediately following the parade. Tri Delta and Pi Phi will serve box lunches. Buffet luncheons will be featured at the Theta and Gamma Phi houses.

It is possible that a director may be hired by next July, but Carlson assured members of the board that one would not be hired without an interview with administrative officials.

At the next meeting, which is as yet unscheduled, Robert Poolman, university engineer, who is presently investigating furniture prices for the new agricultural and classroom buildings, will meet with the board to present suggestions concerning the furnishing of the student union.

Here Again

Once again it is Homecoming, and the alumni are tramping in to relive old memories and acquire a few new ones to store away.

Some who have not been here for a while may be surprised that the campus is still here after all the explosions emanating from this area during the past few years. But here it is.

Some of the landmarks are changing, however. Three new buildings are rising, at a cost of nearly two and one-half million dollars. These are the Max C. Fleischmann College of Agriculture, next to the Journalism building; the Sarah Hamilton Fleischmann School of Home Economics, where the president's home used to be; and the Jot Travis Memorial Student Union building, between Lincoln Hall and the Manzanita Lake.

Manzanita Hall has been remodeled, and the old College of Agriculture building will soon house the English, speech, and drama departments. It's about time they got out of the hollow and the "temporary" classrooms down there.

There were many people who thought these buildings would never be built, particularly the student union. There still are some who doubt it, but a few sour individuals can be found anywhere.

Campus parking is also being regulated this year. Stickers on windshields are vital. Fines are assessed if students are caught parking illegally. Three time losers are likely to have their cars towed off campus. Oh, well.

But on the whole the campus is basically the same as it has been for many years—the grass still dips to Manzanita Lake, the quadrangle has not been grabbed for a parking lot, or some such use.

As usual, a lot of work has gone into the planning and realization of Homecoming, 1956. Floats have been built. Skits for Wolves' Frolic have been polished through tedious nights that often ended with loud shouts and somebody hitting somebody else over the head with a hammer, because the show wouldn't come out quite right.

The Homecoming committee has worked for many weeks planning the parade and all the other numerous activities that are traditional with Nevada Homecoming. The football team will be trying very hard to win their first game of the season.

In conclusion, about all that can be said is to have a good time, alumni, and catch up on that homework next week, students!

Dear Ed:
The following poem was read at a recent Brushfire meeting and although it was agreed that the material confirmed to Brushfire's "new look" policy, the members felt that to keep this rousing poem of social protest from the student body any longer was a crime against the literature of the English language.

Martin Mumbles

By Diane Martin

Good to see you back again . . . alumni! Maybe you don't believe the phrase "bigger and better than ever," but that's just what this Homecoming is . . . thanks to a very good job on the part of a terrific Homecoming committee, plus some six hundred other peasant laborers . . .

And do you think that we (the peasant laborers) mind putting in some 4,000 man-hours on floats, skits, ad infinitum? Not at all . . . love every minute of the grueling labor—you bet we do!

Actually, not much has changed here on the hill . . . for instance! Walt McKenzie, SAE, has returned . . . he was here in '48 . . . taking over where Etcheto left off . . . and do you remember when the class of 1929 bought bricks for the Student Union? Well, after fourteen ground-breakings, Don Travis (SU Chairman) swears we'll have one come spring . . . we've seen this act come and go!

But generally speaking, the university goes on, essentially unchanging . . . in fact, the gossip sounds pretty much the same as when SAE Goldie Holmes pinned Tri-Delt Mary Baird in 1931 . . .

On the social front this week:

Cynthia Robertson gets credit for the only pinning during the past week . . . Bob "Mumbles" Smith should actually get the credit, however, for hanging his Snake pin on one very sharp Tri-Delt.

And for other names in the news, we have to fall back on "who-was-with-whom" over the weekend: ATO George Nelson and Gamma Phi Nancy Arnold were at the Tau pledge dance . . . Pi Phi Bobbie Ruark and Tau Pledge President Johnny Miller were also enjoying the ATO dance.

Polite request: whoever accidentally picked up $4,000 off the bookstore counter last year, please call the District Attorney . . . he has a prize waiting for you . . .

More names: Sigma Nu Tom Burns and Tri-Delt Malrene Belli . . . Bill Devereaux and Theta Mary Reckers . . . Don Rasmussen and Carol Gardenswartz . . . Bill Witt and Carol Gardenswartz . . . Steve Dollinger and Carol Garlenswartz . . . must be nice.

At the Phi Sig dance: Charlie Harper and Tri-Delt Gwenn Guinn . . . Ed Oleson and Gamma Phi Waunita Combs . . . Brian Ramsey and Tri-Delt Nedra Norton . . . to name but a few . . .

ATO Jim Hart, young up-and-coming politico on campus, seems to be getting along quite well with Pi Phi pledge Joan Gallagher . . . both from Virginia City . . . never realized home-town ties were so strong . . .

Dixie Simonsen Crook looks happy . . . can't understand why unless it's because husband Rusty is in town . . . good to see him back . . .

A few of the more privileged people were admitted to the Ed Aud last Friday night to see and un-censored, un-cut, true-to-life, adults-only version of the Sun-downers skit . . .

More couples seen last weekend: ATO Chuck Coyle and Pi Phi Nora Kellogg . . . Theta Caroline Chappelle and Sigma Nu

Sideline Glances

by Ken Robbins

"Old editor's never die (from natural causes) . . . "they just write columns until they're stoned to death.

This column, familiar to several enemies and totally ignored by good friends, is being revived this week in order to discuss a situation which is presently outstanding on the University of Nevada campus.

During the general election which was held on campus last spring, students voted by a large majority to accept a revised constitution governing the Associated Students of the University of Nevada.

A particular section in that revised edition promises for Independent representatives from the various colleges in the ASUN senate.

To date, not one such representative has taken office.

The stigma of indifference and inertia has long marked the Independent on this campus, and it is about time that it stopped.

Last year this column crusaded very briefly for the recognition of the Independent in campus affairs, and now that such recognition has been granted, it is up to the Independent to take advantage of it.

The task of representing as large a group as the College of Arts and Science, for instance, is monumental, but it appears that even the task of selecting such a representative is too much for the inert.

The problem of providing Independent representation was solved in the senate itself, with the insertion of the constitutional change, and to date, the attempt to organize the various colleges has been the senate's also, but it is not its problem.

It is up to the individual in the college and the small organization in the college to provide the necessary organization.

Such organization has been outlined briefly by Chuck Coyle, ASUN president.

The proposal is that the various clubs which dwell within each college select a representative to represent them at a central meeting for the purpose of selecting a senator from that college, and it is the only feasible way of accomplishing the task.

A letter to this effect has been

Dave Necco . . . Tri-Delt Pat Lamoreaux and Al "Twitch" Creel from Lambda Chi Alpha . . . Theta Kress Harris and ATO Dick Bryan . . . Kay Ann Rowland and Dean Kine . . . ATO Jim Santini and Gamma Phi Jan Chiatovich . . . Theta pledge Elsie Glenn and SAE Braden Stauts . . . Tri-Delt Mary Frances Tucker and Sigma Nu Dave Cutler . . .

The Sigma Nu pledges went on the war-path last Monday night with one of their annual sneaks . . . the Thetas were the recipients of a lovely porch decoration from the Snakes . . . the Tri-Delt actives sympathetic to the cause of Sigma Nu Bill Eddelman hauled him in from the boondocks, while other Snake actives hid in sorority basements . . .

sent to all clubs within each college. In the College of Agriculture, Eta Epsilon and the Aggie club have the responsibility of providing a senator. The Commerce club represents the College of Business Administration, Future Teachers represents the College of Education, the Crucible club, which supposedly has a senator already selected, represents the Mackay School of Mines, and the College of Engineering will be represented by the Civil, Mechanical, Electrical and Associated engineering clubs.

Selecting a senator from each of those colleges should be no more than amere formality, if there is any interest in student affairs at all.

Arts and Science, however, is another matter. Representative clubs are: Alpha Epsilon Delta, Band, Campus Players, Chemistry club, Forensic Key, French club, Math club, Orchesis, Paniwallis, Pem's, Pi Alpha Theta, Press club, Rifle club, Scabbard and Blade, Sierra Guardsmen, and Sigma Delta Chi.

It remains for each of these clubs to select one member and then select one senator from that group, the only requirement being that the senate selection meet the approval of the executive board. The only big difference here is that sixteen people as compared to four or less in the other colleges are required to make the initial step.

Once this initial group of representatives is established, it may remain established so that their senators may report back to them, and they in turn to their respective organizations.

The plan is simple enough, but overcoming laziness, indifference, or inertia is the core of the problem.

Representatives from the colleges have been requested by October 30, four days from now.

In the interests of a more unified student body and a better University, a student body in which every one of us has an active part and a University where students will be capable of running their own affairs through cooperation and mutual understanding, it is hoped that one person from each college can be selected by Tuesday who is capable of overcoming mass indifference.

JUNIORS GET FAMILIAR WITH BIG BORE

The junior class of the Advanced Military course have gone "Big Bore" range tomorrow to fire the M-I rifle to familiarize the men with this weapon. The firing will start at 7:30 a.m. Saturday morning, and end at noon of the same day.

The range is located on the road to Stead Air Force base and is operated by Washoe county. The students are expected to provide their own transportation.

The firing is done in preparation of the annual "summer camp," which the Army uses as a part of the students training. The marksmanship of the men goes to form part of the grade for the two unit course.

UN PARADE TOMORROW

Between 375 and 400 persons will take part in this year's University of Nevada Homecoming parade Saturday. Several hundred other persons, working behind the scenes, have organized forty parade entries — floats, marching units, bands, and cars.

University officials, Nevada state officials, and members of university student organizations will take part in the 1956 Homecoming parade. The parade will begin at the intersection of Virginia and First streets at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, October 27. It will move up Virginia street and continue to the University of Nevada.

Governor Charles Russell, Lieutenant Governor Rex Bell, and senators Alan Bible and George Malone will ride in the retinue of cars. Reno mayor Len Harris will also be in the parade.

University officials riding in the procession will be president Minard W. Stout, Miss Elaine Mobley, dean of women; Mr. William Carlson, dean of men; Mr. William Parrish, alumni president; and the regents of the University of Nevada.

The Homecoming queen, Mr. Chuck Coyle, president of the Associated Students of the University of Nevada, Miss Barbara Cavanaugh, president of the Associated Women Students, and student representatives of Nevada Southern will also take part in the parade.

Four sororities and six fraternities of the University of Nevada have built floats for the parade. The independents are not entering one this year.

Five University of Nevada campus organizations will be represented in the parade Saturday: Sundowners, the Rifle Club, Crucible Club, Young Democrats, and Young Republicans.

Four bands will play and march for the Homecoming parade this year. The University of Nevada, ROTC, Reno High School, and White Pine High School bands are entered.

The Alameda Naval Station drill team will march in the procession this year, as will the Sierra Guardsmen.

Parade of Nursery Rhymes in Floats

The Homelcoming parade floats, using nursery rhymes for their themes this year, will look like a page from Mother Goose.

Fraternity entries are: Sigma Nu, "The Old Lady in the Shoe"; Alpha Tau Omega, "Little Red Riding Hood"; Phi Sigma Kappa, "The Ugly Duckling"; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, "Rub-a-Dub-Dub, Three Men in a Tub"; Lambda Chi Alpha, "Cinderella and her Coach"; and Theta Chi, "Peter and the Wolf."

The chairmen of their respective groups are Jack Basta, Jerry Cobb, Tom Richardson, Jim Laport, Dick Hamilton and Cris Cufflin.

Sorority themes are: Gamma Phi Beta, "The Wizard of Oz"; Kappa Alpha Theta, "Humpty Dumpty"; Delta Delta Delta, "The Frog Prince," and Pi Beta Phi, "Little Toot."

Chairmen of the respective sororities are Mary Jane Garrett, Mary Lee Metzker, Marva Edwards and Lil Johnson.

Bob Costello, chairman of the float committee for the parade, announced the rules governing the cost of the floats. Each entry is limited to a maximum cost of one hundred fifty dollars. A committee has been chosen by the float chairman to inspect the floats and appraise them for valuation.

Poetry Group

The National Poetry Association is currently holding its thirteenth annual college poetry competition.

All regularly enrolled college students are invited to submit manuscripts for consideration for the annual Anthology of College Poetry.

Rules for the submission of manuscripts are: every effort must be on a separate sheet and every manuscript must bear the following: name of author, home address, city, state, and college attended.

Closing date for submission of material is November 5, 1956. Those entries selected will be published in the National Anthology of College Poetry, December 10, 1956.

Mail all entries to 3210 Selby Avenue, Los Angeles 34, Calif

Fellowships To Be Given By Foundation

The National Science Foundation has announced its plans to award approximately 800 graduate and 175 postdoctoral fellowships for scientific study during the 1957-58 academic year. These fellowships will be awarded to citizens of the United States, selected solely on the basis of ability. They are offered in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering, and other sciences including anthropology, psychology other than clinical, geography, certain interdisciplinary fields, and fields of convergence between the natural and social sciences.

Graduate fellowships are available to those who are working toward the masters' or doctoral degrees in the first, intermediate or terminal year of graduate study. College seniors who expect to receive a baccalaureate degree during the 1956-57 academic year are also eligible to apply. Post-doctorial fellowships are available to individuals who, as of the beginning of their fellowships, have a Ph. D. in one of the fields listed above, or who have had research training and experience equivalent to that represented by such a degree. In addition, holders of the M.D., D.D.S., or D.V.M. degree, who wish to obtain further training for a career in research, are eligible.

All applicants for graduate (post-doctoral) awards will be required to take an examination designed to test scientific aptitude and achievement. This examination, administered by the Educational Testing Service, will be given on January 19, 1957, (at designated centers throughout the United States and certain foreign countries. The evaluation of each candidate's application is made by the appropriate Academy-Research Council selection panels and boards and the final selection of Fellows will be made by the National Science Foundation. Fellowship awards will be announced on the 5th of March, 1957.

The annual stipends for graduate Fellows are as follows: $1600 for the first year; $1800 for the intermediate year; and $2000 for the terminal year. The annual stipend for postdoctoral Fellows is $3800. Dependency allowances will be made to married Fellows. Tuition, laboratory fees and limited travel allowances will also be provided.

Further information and application materials may be secured from the Fellowship Office, National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N. W., Washington 25, D. C., The deadline for the receipt of applications for post-doctoral fellowships is December 24, 1956; for graduate fellowships January 7, 1957.

30 Works of Art Now on Display

Works of contemporary artists of three nations are being displayed in the University of Nevada art gallery on the lower campus.

Thirty original drawings, paintings, block prints, water colors, lithographs, etchings, and serigraphs are being shown in the exhibit. These are the works of French, German, and United States artists.

The artists represented at the University of Nevada have works displayed in every major gallery in the world. "Most of them, particularly in the Europeans, are included in every textbook on contemporary modern art," Craig Sheppard, art department chairman, said.

All of the contemporary schools of modern art are represented. The works are examples of most of today's trends in realism and surrealism and various degrees of expressionism.

This exhibit is part of a permanent art collection of Miss College in California. Prof. Sheppard states "The Mills College collection is as remarkable as the artists it includes. It has been chosen with great care and understanding, for the works by the various artists are typical of their individual styles."

Among the American artists are California's Dong Kingman, Rico LeBrun, and Millard Sheets; Peter Hurd of New Mexico; Eastern American Reginald Marsh, Eugene Berman, and Lynol Feininger.

French artists represented in the exhibit are Pablo Picasso, Henri Matisse, George Braque, Jules Pascin, and Ferdinand Lager.

The German artists, who are especially noted in the field of expressionisms, include Kathy Kollowitz, George Kolbe, Ernst Barlach, and Emil Nolde.

Vic. Hgts. End Marks Housing Need

Nevada veterans of the armed forces are often unable to take advantage of the educational opportunities at the University.

Dr. William D. Carlson, dean of student affairs, indicated that many persons applied, stating that unless low cost housing was assured, they could not attend. He explained that while there is housing on campus, it is not available to anyone except those students now living there.

These buildings were declared sub-standard last year because of maintenance difficulties, fire hazard, and generally poor condition, and the decision was made to close them. The present system was established to minimize the hardship to the students.

Those students actually registered for classes and in regular attendance are allowed to remain. They are eligible to stay in the units until their class graduates, or no longer than July of 1958. The original eight buildings housing 240 families have dwindled which have 29 families.

Ciark Field Veterans' Housing Project, commonly called Victory Heights, is located on the northeast edge of the campus. The original eight buildings were abandoned military barracks transported here by the General Services Administration from Vanport, Oregon in 1945 and first occupied in February, 1946.

They were given to the University with the understanding that they were only temporary and would be removed in two years. At the end of the two year period, the housing situation had not improved to the extent that it was feasible to clear them out. The time limit was extended to January of 1949. At this time, the federal government turned all units over to the University with the stipulation that veterans would be given preference.

In the course of five years of operation, the buildings had become sub-standard in many respects. School authorities, with the State Planning Board and local contractors, ran a survey on the cost of remodeling these units in respect to wiring, plumbing and heating. It was soon seen that the cost would be prohibitive.

An alternate course of action was taken. Dr. Minard W. Stout, president of the University, representing the Board of Regents, offered two proposals to the 1955 session of the Nevada State legislature. The first was for the state to appropriate the necessary funds to build adequate housing for married students. The second was for "permissive legislation" enabling the university to float a bond issue. The bonds, issued by the college housing program of the federal housing agency, would be self amortizing loan over a forty-year period. Both requests were denied by the Legislature.

Dr. Stout again plans to present the two proposals to the 1957 legislative session.

"The university recognizes," Dean Carlson says, "that the married student is a major part of our educational future and we plan to do everything in our power to offer means of advancement."

"Campus Camera" TV Series Starts

"Campus Camera," a series of television shows, will be presented by the University of Nevada each Thursday afternoon from 4:00 to 4:30.

Faculty members and students are expected to produce and appear in these shows. The series will probably extend throughout the school year. Tentative dates for the first 13 shows are: November 8, 15, 29; December 6, 13, 20, 27; January 3, 10, 17, 24, 31; and February 7.

Additional information may be obtained by calling FA 2-0459 or inquiring in Room 305, Morrill hall.

Scout Leaders To Be Trained Here

Scout leaders will be trained on the University of Nevada campus for the first time. The course will be sponsored jointly by the University of Nevada and the Nevada area Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Faculty members of the University of Nevada, assisted by professional and volunteer leaders, will conduct the course. The program will be held Nov. 9, 10, 11, under the direction of Dean Garold Holstine of the College of Education.

The program is designed to prepare outstanding scout leaders for future leadership training in scout activities. Classes will be held in the Education building and new gym.

Instruction will start Friday afternoon, Nov. 11, and will end noon Sunday. University students are invited to attend the program. No fee will be charged for the course.

According to James L. Gwilliam, assistant scout executive of the Nevada Area Council, this is the biggest step that has been taken by the council toward providing adequate leadership training for the Nevada area.

NEVADA SOUTHERN BUS ARRIVES FRIDAY MORNING

Thirty students from Nevada Southern arrived on campus Friday morning to participate in Homecoming activities. The delegation is headed by Barton Jacka, student body president of the southern campus.

Festival Awards At Final Dance

Trophies for the outstanding sorority and fraternity float, skit, and dance attendance will be presented by the newly-elected queen at the Homecoming dance. The dance will be held at the State building Saturday night, beginning at nine o'clock.

The Homecoming queen will be introduced again midway in the evening by Gary Brock, Homecoming chairman, and at that time she will present the trophies to the sorority and fraternity displaying the best float in the parade Saturday morning and the most talent in the Wolves Frolic Friday night. A special trophy will also be presented to the sorority and fraternity with the largest percentage of the house in attendance.

"Story Book Land" has been chosen as the theme for decorations by the dance committee. The theme was chosen to carry out the parade theme, "Children's Stories," according to Suzanne Kuypers and Bruce Rossman, co-chairmen of the affair.

The music that will fill the story book land from nine to midnight will be furnished by the orchestra of Nello Gonfiantini.

"Dress for the dance will be semi-formal. Dark suits for the men and dressy frocks for the women," according to Suzanne Kuypers.

The alumni are welcomed to the dance to take part in the wind-up of the Homecoming activities.

There is even sex in "Smart Money." We were fascinated by a voluptuous young woman who makes $150 an hour posing in the nude. When you get a look you'll be fascinated too.

Geology Profs In Mexican Class

Over three thousand geologists and earth scientists from nearly every country in the world, gathered in Mexico City last September for the 20th International Geological Congress. Three faculty members of the University of Nevada attended and participated in the Congress.

The purpose of these international gatherings is to extend geological knowledge. This is accomplished by a twofold program. First, the Congress sponsors extensive field trips throughout the country in which the congress is being held. Secondly, papers on previous geological research are presented to the Congress.

A Congress is held every four years, each time in a different country. This one was held in the modern buildings of the University of Mexico, during last Sept. 4 to 11.

Faculty members of this University attending were: Dr. Vernon E. Scheid, Dean of the Mackay School of Mines, Dr. E. Richard Larson, Associate Professor of Geology, and Dr. Vincent P. Gianella, Professor of Geology, Emeritus.

Inaugurated in 1890, the meetings were held in the United States in 1894, and again in 1933. At that time Dr. Scheid acted as a guide on a field trip covering the Eastern United States.

Not all those attending are faculty members of Universities however. Government geologists and also representatives of mining companies go to the meetings.

HOLSTINE RETURNS FROM MINNEAPOLIS

Dean Gerald Holstine, college of education, returned recently from a national meeting in Minneapolis, Minn. He was invited as a special consultant on a family life education program. The program was inaugurated in colleges preparing teachers and in public schools in the mid-western and eastern states.

Dean Holstine was a member of the committee which originated the plan for teaching personal and family living in 1953. Funds for the project are provided by a private foundation.

Holstine returned to the campus Monday.

Down Lovers Lane we'll wander to the poor house.

Control Free birth.

Among the foreign scientists represented at Mexico City were approximately sixty Russian geologists. This year they were not accompanied by the Soviet secret police, as were the Russians at the Congress four years ago.

In the course of his field trip, Dr. Larson went into the rugged and beautiful Sierra Madre Mountains of Mexico. He found the people friendly and cooperative.

Both Dr. Larson and Dr. Scheid took a short course in Spanish before leaving for Mexico. Neither one reported having too much difficulty with the language.

There was some time available for sightseeing and recreation. The bull fights in Mexico City were seen, as well as native dances.

Copying Device Here in Library

A machine capable of copying printed pages, pictures, and maps within minutes is available to students and faculty members at the campus library.

James J. Hill, director of libraries, states that copies can be made for only 11 cents a page and they are particularly useful in research work.

The photo machine is also of value when several copies of material are needed, as it saves the time necessary to proof-read type-written material.

Picture copies are less clear than printed words or maps since the negative paper is dull, but if the pictures have exceptionally clear contrast a fair picture can be obtained. No color is reproduced but since the emulsion is sensitive to red such as red lines on maps, these lines photo in sharp black. Blue reproduces as gray and not too clearly.

Available

Mr. Hill pointed out that there are other similar machines on the campus but this one is available to any one from any department or school.

The Contoura machine is one of a dozen different kinds of copiers which really produces a "blue-print" in black and white. Simple to use, the negative paper is placed upon the printed page to be copied, the photo-box placed on the paper and the timer set. When the timer rings, the negative paper and a sheet of positive paper are inserted into the Constat which acts as the developer. With a twist of the crank a positive copy comes out and the operator has a clear copy of material to take with him for use as reference in his work.

Reproduction is made by reflected light. The machine makes better and clearer copies when used in a dark room. Daylight gives the copy a blurred, grayish cast and it also requires a longer time exposure than is necessary in the dark. Exposure time also varies with the strength of the paper and the strength of the solution used to develop the copy, but ordinarily under favorable conditions it takes eight seconds to make a photo.

Nev. Journalists Meet in 'Frisco

It must have seemed like homecoming at the recent Republican convention in San Francisco for the University of Nevada journalism alumni.

Prof. A. L. Higginbotham, chairman of the department of journalism, stated that five former students, a remarkable number for any one school, were on hand for their various newspapers and news agencies to report on the nomination of the presidential and vice-presidential candidates.

Hazel Johnson, '56, reported for the United Press bureau in San Francisco before her recent transfer to the bureau office in Helena, Montana.

Murray Moler, '38 intermountain manager for the United Press bureau in Salt Lake City, was one of the representatives for his agency.

Joseph Jackson, '32, managing editor of the Reno Evening Gazette, was on hand in San Francisco to help record the proceedings.

Former student, Bob Bennyhoff,

Or how to paint your way up the ladder

“You hear a lot of talk these days about the danger of big companies getting bigger.

“What people overlook is that every big company creates opportunity for small ones to start and grow strong. I’m a good example.

“I quit school at 15 and went to work as an apprentice painter. When I was 22 I started a little decorating business in Santa Barbara, California.

“In 1930—when I was 33—I had an idea I could do better by specializing. So I bid on painting a Union Oil service station. I got the contract, gave my decorating business to my superintendent, and started to specialize.

DARRELL STUART, PAINTING & DECORATING, 1919

“I had a truck, a hired hand, and $1000 I’d borrowed from the bank. I did a better paint job on that first station than Union had ever been able to get for the money—and still made $40. As a result, I kept getting more contracts—and borrowing more money. Profits I put back into the business for equipment.

“Today, Darrell Stuart Inc. gets most of the paint work for Union Oil’s marketing department, and a sizeable amount from other departments, too. We still bid competitively on every job—and still do a better one than Union itself can do any other way.

“We employ over 200 people, work 92 trucks and own our own building, mortgage-free. Last year we grossed over a million dollars.

“But the point is: if Union Oil hadn’t given me the chance, I’d never have had the incentive to come this far. In my book, big business is the best friend—and customer—small business has!”

* * * *

Last year our customers paid us a record $368,760,900. That’s strictly big business.

But when you take a closer look, you find we spent 72% of that $368,760,900 with more than fifteen thousand other companies and individuals with whom we do business.

Many of these companies—like Stuart’s—have grown with us. As long as we continue to do a better job, there’s a good chance some of those small companies will be the big ones of tomorrow.

M/Sgt. McKindley New ROTC Clerk

A veteran of the Japanese prison camps is the newest member of the University of Nevada ROTC staff.

Master Sergeant Ellis L. McKindley, chief clerk of the Military department, first enlisted in the Army during the quiet pre-war days in 1937. He was stationed in Schofield barracks at Hawaii until 1940, when he was transferred to Corregidor.

He was with the 60th Coast artillery, an anti-aircraft outfit, when he was taken prisoner by the Japanese on May 6, 1942. Sgt. McKindley remained a prisoner through a series of detention camps on the Philippines, Formosa, and the main island of Japan.

A Navy rescue squad liberated them in Sendai, Japan, and they were sent to the United States.

After Japan

After the war, Sgt. McKindley served in a series of state-side jobs in Ft. Bliss, Texas, Camp Hanford, Washington, and Ft. Lewis, Washington. In 1953 he was sent to Germany with the 12th anti-aircraft

What Cleopatra taught Caesar

or... She asped for it

Once upon a time there was a snazzy squab named Cleopatra living in Egypt. She came from a very good family and had a figure like a million bucks.

One day she met Julius Caesar, who was Roamin' Egypt on a very liberal expense account.

"Ah ha," thinks Cleo, "here is where I create about six pages for The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. When I'm through with this boy, I'll be Queen of Egypt and he'll be selling his memoirs in drugstores for two-bits a copy."

So she went for the full count at a high-priced beauty saloon and bought several quarts of Midnight on the Pyramids.

But Caesar wasn't buying the pitch. "Hmmm," thinks Cleo, "I'll finesse the Queenship with my ace."

Whereupon she sauntered in with several tankards of the fine beer that Egyptians had been brewing for thousands of years. (Let's face it—here comes the commercial.)

"By Jupiter," said Julie, "this is good! Such clear, sparkling brilliance! Such refreshing flavor! Such creamy foam! Be mine . . . be Queen . . . but above all be generous with this delightful brew! Wherever did you learn to make it?"

"Why . . . my mummy taught me," she answered coyly, passing him a pretzel.

And from then on, Cleo clung to Caesar; even in Rome where she heard a soothsayer mutter something about the Ides of March.

"Ah, the Ides of March," exclaimed Cleo, "that's Bock Beer time in Egypt."

Not long after, Caesar got rubbed out, and Cleo got herself back to Egypt where she carried on with Marc Anthony until Augustus upped and fixed his wagon. Anthony did himself in and Cleo did likewise when her charms failed to awe Augustus.

"I'll take a short bier," said Cleo as she lay dying from the asp's sting.

And so ended the career of one of the best salesmen that beer ever had.

MORAL: You, too, can make social conquests with the help of fine beer. Treat a friend to a bottle of Budweiser. And (unless he's a tightwad) he's sure to return the compliment.

Bev Wiseman Sees Ike in Wash., D. C.

Beverly Wiseman, senior student at the University of Nevada, represented Nevada's youth at President Eisenhower's birthday party last week in Washington, D. C.

Flying back to Washington, she participated in a parade down Constitution avenue in honor of the president's 66th birthday. The president spoke to all the representatives on the lawn of the White House before the parade.

During the evening of the president's birthday, Oct. 13, Mrs. Wiseman attended a giant show which featured Eddie Fisher, Helen Hayes, Fred Waring and his Penesylvanians, and other stars from Hollywood.

Mrs. Wiseman, State Youth chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower and Nixon, carried the Nevada Youth's pledge, which reads as follows:

"In appreciation of your dedication to our nation and the example you have set of devotion to God, family, and your fellow man . . . you have asked that the coming election be 'the decision of America, not the decision of the minority', therefore I pledge to vote, and to do all I can between now and election day to encourage my friends and neighbors to vote."

NEVADA HOSTS PEPPERDINE IN HOMECOMING CONTEST

The winless Wolfpack will try to break into the win column this Saturday at the expense of Coach Gordon McEachron's alma mater. The Pack meets the Pepperdine Waves in the annual Homecoming football game.

McEachron graduated from Pepperdine in 1942 but returned in 1953 to coach the football team. He coached at Pepperdine in the 1953 and 1954 seasons. Some of the seniors on the Pepperdine club played under McEachron as sophomores.

The Waves from Los Angeles haven't fared much better than the Wolfpack this season, so the game is figured to be a toss-up. The Waves have won only one game this season, while dropping three.

The Waves are led by Tom, "Tom the Tank" Davis, a 230-lb. fullback. Davis in addition to fullbacking the Waves is a sprinter on their track team. He is one of the fastest men on the Pepperdine squad. "Tom the Tank" is currently sporting an eight yard per carry average. Davis was also an outstanding player while in high school. He was selected as an all-American.

Davis enrolled at USC when he was a freshman and was a regular on the Trojan frosh team.

Marv Sampson, the Waves quarterback, also poses a threat to the Wolfpack, with his passing. The Waves have completed 43 out of 89 passes so far this season.

Wixie Robinson, who is Sampson's favorite target is the Waves best lineman. Robinson was selected on the Little All-American team last season as a guard.

Meanwhile Coach Gordon McEachron has announced several changes in the Wolfpack lineup for Saturday's game. The injury-riddled Pack has not used the same starting lineup in any game this year. Only tackle Dave Adams has started in every Pack game this season.

Changes in the line-up listed by McEachron will find O'Neil Sanders, who is normally a halfback, starting at center. George Ball moved into, starting center when

WOLF BOXERS BEGIN WORK

The Wolfpack boxers begin workouts next week, launching what promises to be one of the best Nevada squads ever. The nucleus of the Wolfpack team will be formed around ten lettermen from last year's team. There is a letterman returning in every division except 139-pound.

Among the returning lettermen is Sammy Macias, runner-up in last year's National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. Sammy lost a split decision to Choken Maekawa of Michigan State, who was voted the tournament's outstanding boxer. Maekawa will be the bantamweight (119-lbs.) on the United States Olympic team.

Macias was also a finalist in the West Coast regional Olympic elimination tournament. Sammy was beaten by Dave Abeyta of Idaho State. Abeyta went on to the finals of the National tournament and will be the alternate bantamweight on the U. S. Olympic team.

Ted Contri, who was a semi-finalist in the NCAA tournament last season is back for his fourth year as the Wolfpack welterweight (147-pounds). Contri was NCAA runner-up in 1955. He lost a split decision to Herb Odem of Michigan State in the finals. Contri was named "Athlete of the Year" by the Sierra Nevada Sportswriters and Broadcasters Association, for his performance in the 1955 NCAA tournament.

Contri was further honored this year when his picture was selected to be cover picture for the 1957 official NCAA Boxing Guide.

Two year letterman Larry Damon is returning as the Wolfpack's middleweight (165-pounds). Last season Damon fought in both the middleweight and light-heavyweight (178-pound) divisions.

Damon boxed in both the PCC and NCAA tournaments last season, turning in a creditable performance in both. He was eliminated from both tournaments by Roger Rouse of Idaho State. Rouse went on to win both the PCC and NCAA titles in the 165-pound class. Rouse will also represent the U. S. at Melbourne, Australia, in the Olympics.

Heavyweight Bob Genasci is not in school this semester, but is expected back in the Spring. Genasci was the winner of the Jamie Dominici Memorial Trophy given to the "most improved" boxer on the squad, for the year. Genasci started slow but finished strong. This season he is expected to be in contention for national honors.

Southpaw Jim Wittenberg will return for his third season. Wittenberg, a light-heavyweight, has earned two letters in boxing.

Don Kitts, who is also a two-year letterman, is returning in the featherweight (126-pound)

Other returning lettermen include Dick Short, 132 pounds, Bill Short, 157 pounds, Mike Marfisi, 156 pounds, and Mike Smith, 132 pounds.

Varsity Hoopsters Work Out in Gym

Twelve varsity-experienced players answered hoop coach Jake Lawlor's call for opening workouts. This call was for everybody but freshmen and football players. The frosh workouts will begin about Nov. 12. Several football players will probably try-out for the team following the completion of the grid schedule.

The Wolf Pack has six weeks to prepare for their opening game against College of Idaho on the weekend of Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 in Winnemucca.

Two starters from last year's Far Western Conference co-championship team were on hand for the workout. Jim Lyon, 6'4" forward, who led the league in scoring last season; and Dan Sullivan, 6' guard, who was team runner-up last season also attended the practice session. Sullivan has three letters in varsity basketball at Nevada.

Other veterans included Johnny Legarza, a starter on the Wolf Pack three seasons ago. He has returned from a hitch in the service and is a two-year letterman. Two-year letterman George Nelson is back after sitting out last season because of scholastic difficulties. Nelson was a starter two years ago.

Additional lettermen include: Dean Smith, 5'10" forward, who is a two year letter winner; Brian Whalen, 5'10" senior forward; Dale Porter, 6'4", junior center; Martin Johnson, 6'4" junior forward; Bobby Ferrari, 5" junior forward, and Bob Scott, 6'5" senior center. Leading the non-lettermen who are trying out for the Wolf Pack squad is 6'7" Stan Summers. Summers played two years at St. Marys before transferring to Nevada last year. He sat out last season because of the transfer rule.

Up from last year's junior varsity team are Mack Fry, 6'1" forward; Gary Wilson, 6' forward, and Johnny Borda, 5'7" forward.

PERKEY, RENO WIN HANDBALL

Two University of Nevada students won top spots in a Reno YMCA handball tournament recently. Lewis Perkey battled Harry Reno for the novice championship play.

Both are Nevada sophomore students. They ended one-two in the first tourney held at the new YMCA.

Three games were played to determine the championship, after both men had moved to the finals. Scores of the series were Perkey 21-16 in the first game, Reno 21-13 in the second contest, and Perkey 21-14 in the final.

Reno led throughout the early parts of all games, but rallies by the tall Perkey brought him from behind.

Leading 6-1 in the first game, Reno faded and the score was tied four times before Perkey won.

In the second contest, Reno controlled play from the beginning, and won 21-13.

The final game was all Reno, as the score went 8-0. With this disadvantage, Perkey battled uphill to tie the score at 11 points for both. The lead switched twice, and remained tied at 13-13 for one half hour. A variety of well placed shots and serves pulled Perkey up to the championship. It took over two hours to play the three games.

Both students will receive medals for their play. Perkey as the champion, Reno as the runner-up. The tourney started October 1, and continued all month. Each player in the tourney met the other once in the best out of three games. There were six other entrants.

military student award to ten

Ten University of Nevada students have been designated "Distinguished Military Students." Lt. Col. Robert L. Bereuter, head of the Military Department announced this week that the students honored were Cadet Lt. Col. George W. Ball, Reno; Cadet Lt. Col. Terrance L. Katzer, Tahoe Valley, Calif.; Cadet Major Ted E. Contri, Elko; Cadet Major James A. Lusk, Cedar Ridge, Calif.; Cadet Major Richard L. Mills, Fallon; Cadet Captain Howard E. Espin Jr., Hawthorne; Cadet Captain Charles H. Handley, Las Vegas; Cadet Captain Howard G. Timmons, Winnemucca; Cadet Captain George W. Wilkinson, Las Vegas; Cadet Captain Darrel M. Waite, Logandale, Nevada.

Presenting the badges to the students, Lt. Col. Bereuter said that many high-ranking army officers were commissioned in the regular army from the Distinguished Student program. He cited Lt. Gen. Robert N. Young, commander of the Sixth Army, as an example.

The designation authorizes the student to apply for a regular army commission upon graduation. If the student declines, he will be offered a commission as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army Reserves at graduation. A student who enters the service with a Regular Army commission is entitled to the same rights and privileges as a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

The Army obtains about half its officers through this program, since West Point cannot produce enough officers to meet the demands of the service.

FIRST YOUTH CONCERT GIVEN

The first Youth Concert of the season was given by the University of Nevada Community Symphony Orchestra Sunday afternoon in the Old Gymnasium. Rodney Mercado, director of the symphony, said the Youth Concert is designed for children of this area. The program features stories and descriptions of musical selections for them.

Children are permitted to observe at close range the various musical instruments while the concert is on.

"Such observation is a rare opportunity," Mercado said, "for there is only one Community Symphony in western Nevada."

The concert was first in a series of five such Youth Concerts for the 1956-57 season. It was held at 2:00 p.m. in the Old Gymnasium on the University of Nevada campus. No admission fee was charged.

Mr. Mercado, conductor of the orchestra, is a new faculty member at the University of Nevada music department. He has founded and directed several symphony orchestras.

Dates and programs of the other Youth Concerts will be announced later. This Sunday's program included Bach's Symphony No. 3, first-movement from Beethoven's Symphony in G, Dream and Pantomime from Humperdinck's opera "Hansel and Gretel," and the Meistersinger Overture from Wagner's opera "Meistersingers."

SUSIE LOVES GEORGE

"Do you love me?" asked Susie. "Why, sure," said George. The triangle tightened. Love was a cloudy ecstasy.

"I'm going to have a baby," said Susie.

"You're kidding," cried George. The triangle choked. Panic flooded the universe.

"If you leave me, you never loved me," said Susie.

"I hate you!" yelled George. The triangle pin-pointed. Darkness sprinted through the hole in Georgie's head.

Prof. Smith Retires

The retirement of Dr. Claude C. Smith, professor in the political science department, was made official last week. He retired because of poor health. The College of Arts and Science is finding a replacement, but until that time, Drs. Wilbur S. Shepperson, Don W. Driggs and James S. Roberts are taking the classes.

The 61-year-old professor was raised in Corryton, Tenn. He served with the field artillery from 1917 to 1919, and was a second lieutenant in the reserves from 1925 to 1935.

He obtained his Bachelor of Arts Degree from Carson-Newman college in 1921, and went on to get his masters degree in history and political science at the University of Oklahoma in 1924.

Dr. Smith studied a year at the University of North Carolina before going on to the University of Chicago in 1927. After two terms there, he became an instructor of social science at Kansas City university from 1927 to 1929.

27 Years

In 1929 Dr. Smith joined the staff of the political science department at the University of Nevada as an assistant professor. He became an associated professor in 1935, after earning more credits that summer at the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Smith was a special representative for the United States Employment service in 1937, the supervisor of the state board of revenue unemployment compensation division, and a member of the state advisory council employment service from 1937-40.

He received his doctor's degree from Stanford university in 1948.

He was chairman of the state merit examination board, a member of the Political Science Associated academy and the Western Political Science association. Dr. Smith also contributed much work to the Social Science Municipal Yearbook, and worked on numerous committees here.

UN ATTENDS FTA CONFAB

Rosalind Weyant represented the University of Nevada at the first convention of Nevada Future Teachers of America convention. The meeting was held at the Churchill county high school in Fallon Oct. 20.

Doctors Lloyd Drury and Burton Newbry also attended the convention.

David Guhl, national president of the Classroom Teachers' association, delivered the keynote speech. Following the speech FTA programs, state organization and membership were discussed.

Delegates and sponsors from eight Nevada high schools and from the University of Nevada were welcomed to Fallon by Mayor Hobart Wray.

The convention ended with a dinner served at 6:30 at the LDS hall in Fallon.

SIGMA DELTA CHI President Hank Rilling welcomes Senator Alan Bible (left) and Congressman Cliff Young (right) to the SDX Government Dinner held last Sunday. Bible and Young are contending for the Nevada senatorial post. They both answered reporter's questions in an off-the-record discussion.

Polio Vaccine To be Available

Salk polio vaccine will be made available to all university students at a nominal cost during the next few weeks.

The Student Health service has announced that the vaccine can be obtained by students at a cost of $1.00 for each of three injections.

The vaccination must be taken in a series of three shots. The second shot is to be taken two to four weeks after the first, and the final one seven months after the second.

The program will begin Tuesday, Nov. 6, when the first series of shots will be given at the University Infirmary between the hours of one and five in the afternoon. Thereafter the initial or subsequent vaccinations will be provided at the Medical Arts Laboratory, 505 Arlington avenue, Reno.

Students under 21 must obtain a signed statement from their parents authorizing the use of the vaccine. These forms are to be available next week at the office of the Dean of Student Affairs, the Department of Physical Education, and the University Infirmary. The signed statement must be taken to the University Infirmary which will provide the student with an authorization slip for his vaccination series.

Because of Federal restrictions this program is intended primarily for students under the age of 21. However, older students may participate by contacting the University Infirmary.

The supply of vaccine for students has been obtained through the cooperation of the Student Health Service, the State Health Department, and the Federal Public Health Service.

Spiders Lurk in Biology Department

By Elsie Natani

Do you know there are such items as a mammoth skeleton, an aquarium filled with tropical fish, a large egg collection, hundreds of animal and bird mounts, and thousands of fishes, reptiles, and other creatures in the museum and rooms of the biology department?

The basement and the top floor of the Agriculture building have closets and shelves and corners filled with everything from fossils to stuffed birds to "pickled" insects. There are drawers full of animal pelts and preserved creatures.

These specimens in the biology department are mostly Nevada animals, birds, and insects. A few, such as the egg collection, a set of African Antelope horns, and assortments of insects, fishes, and frogs, are from all over the world. These "foreign" items have been donated to the biology department by interested persons.

The biology department staff, students, the Fish and Game commission, and the biology laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley have gathered nearly all the creatures in the collections.

Lack of Skill

Only some of all the specimens are prepared for exhibition. According to Dr. Ira La Rivers, associate professor of biology, no more pelts have been prepared lately because the department lacks a person skilled in such work.

A number of animals and birds are mounted in displays in the upper floor hall of the Agriculture building. These are mostly game birds and animals, interesting especially to sportsmen and hunters.

The "pelican scene," a life-like display case built by Dr. R. H. Miller, assistant professor of biology, is also in the upper hall.

Of all the collections in the biology rooms, only a small per cent are over fifteen years old. Many of them date from 1940. The majority of specimens have been collected since 1950.

Fire!

A fire in the 1900's burned early bird and animal skins. Handling by students had destroyed remaining old ones. So until recent years the biology department had few organized collections.

The biology staff and students have "canned" about 5000 fishes, snakes, frogs, lizards, and others. These are in formaldehyde and alcohol-filled jars. Except for some lizards found in the Marshall Islands, all these creatures were discovered in Nevada and the Sierra Mountain area.

Then there are drawers filled with insects—looking almost like row of bayonet soldiers. Thousands of these are pinned to boards or are lined up in alcohol-filled tubes. These specimens have been brought in by students for class projects, by members of the biology staff, and by curious Reno people wondering what 'bugs' are in their gardens now. Among the insects is an exhibit of colorful butterflies found in Borneo by a Reno man.

Spiders

Several thousand other specimens such as spiders, scorpions, snails, crawfish, sponges, and shelled creatures have been brought to the biology rooms. These are stored the same way as the insects.

The egg collection, donated to the department, was gathered during field trips all over the world by a California family.

The mammoth skeleton, fragments of other fossil animals, and prehistoric frogs and fish have been collected by staff members. These relics were dug up here in Nevada.

The assorted specimens are used for classroom study and for research. Often interested persons come to examine the collections and to get information about them. The University of Nevada biology department loans and exchanges many of the items with other colleges and organizations.

The Awakening

By G. Alexander Mross

Laura is the face in the misty light, footsteps that you hear down the hall, the lamp that floats on a summer's night . . .

The room faintly lived in the masked yellow light that gave it a smell of dreams and moods. Eugene was sprawled in an easy chair with his legs hanging over the arm. His mind played with the past as the music from the record sealed the room with memories of a distant Laura.

Eugene ate sparingly of his supper that evening, for it was Frank's birthday and he wanted to leave room for all the ice cream, cake, and soda-pop at the party. He had lived next door to Frank as long as he could remember, and had gone to all his parties since he was four and Frank was six; but this was the first time that girls were invited.

As the hour drew nearer to seven, Eugene was mixed with fright and nervousness. He had never been with girls before, he thought. Oh, the girls at school, but not real close. And these girls were older than he, and so much taller, and silly, and laughing all the time. He wished he weren't so fat, then maybe he wouldn't feel so funny in front of them. Why do people have to be fat? It was time to go.

"I'm going now, Mom," he called from the front room.

"OK dear, but let Mother have one last look at you."

She came through the dining room from the kitchen where she had been drying dishes. A small heavy-set woman who seemed to overflow with love, she fixed the collar of Eugene's shirt and stepped back to inspect him.

"Do you have everything now?"

"Yes, Mom."

"The present?"

"Yes, Mom."

"Now, you be a good little boy, understand? And don't let too many of those girls get a hold of my little Genie, all right?"

"Oh, Mom."

"All right, run along then."

"Good-bye," he said and left.

He was at Frank's house before he knew it. His heart was pounding wildly. He thought he was going to wet his pants. All those girls!

Frank answered his ring.

"Hiya, Frankie."

"Hiya, Fatty, come on in."

The sound of his nickname rung in his head, and his face burned. blushing. He heard the giggle of girls in the background and that they were laughing at him. Sweat ran out from under his arms. He gave the present to Frank and his jacket to Frank's mother. She hugged him and talked to him, but he still couldn't hear for the lingering laughter.

Frank took him into the living room where he was introduced to all the people. They looked and smiled and he hated them. Then he sat down among them, not knowing what to say. The long minutes that passed before all the guests arrived were total agony for Eugene. He drowned in giggles and voices. He was uncomfortable beyond endurance.

"Let's eat gang," were the most relieving words he had ever heard.

Everyone made a noisy rush toward the dining room. Eugene sat between two boys. He relaxed from the escape of the nearness of the girls. Frank's mother brought a cake with fourteen lighted candles upon it. They sang the happy birthday song, and Frank blew out all the candles and they clapped.

Eugene ate his ice cream and cake, enjoying himself for the first time and beginning to notice the dark haired girl across the table. She was always laughing and flirting. And so pretty, he thought. He remembered her name was Laura. And while Frank opened his presents, Eugene constantly looked her way. But if ever she looked back, he turned away quickly. His little game excited him. Maybe girls weren't so bad after all. Then Frank opened Eugene's present and thanked him personally. He blushed from the weight of the eyes upon him before the weight moved to someone else.

After all the presents were open and they had eaten their second helpings of ice cream and cake, the party moved back into the living room. Eugene was uncomfortable again, but when Frank suggested they play kissing games, the fear was unbreakable. His thoughts crowded with fantastic visions of kissing Laura. He heard her approval above that of the other girls. It was all too maddening, too unknown. And he sat there nauseated.

They decided to play post office. Eugene watched with mixed feelings as different boys and girls went into the bedroom when their number was called, and how they laughed a knowing laugh when someone returned. He didn't know what he would do if . . . He heard his number and everyone laugh. There was a rock in the pit of his stomach. He held back from wetting his pants.

"Come on, Genie, come on, Fatty," the other boys called.

"No. No. I don't want to."

Hands were upon him and his body was lifted. He fought their efforts as they dragged him toward the bedroom. They were all laughing and shouting and he hated them, hated them! hated them! In the dim light he saw Laura, and in panic he began to cry convulsively and swung at the hands on him.

"Leave me alone! leave me alone!"

He heard the voice of Frank's mother say, "Frank, don't force Eugene to play if he doesn't want to."

"Ah, Ma, come on."

"Frank."

"Oh. All right."

The boys released him. His face burned and his eyes were hot in his head. They stopped laughing, but they were all looking at him. He was sick inside and said he wanted to go home.

He dried his tears in the silence of the night pricked only by the faint laughter of a far off party. Why? he asked himself, why? His mother was reading when he went in.

"Hello, Mom," he said, holding back from crying again. He stayed in the hall so she couldn't see him.

"Hi dear, how was the party?"

"Oh, real good. They had lots of ice cream and cake and every-

Coyle-Cavanaugh Welcome Alumni

University of Nevada classes of 1951, 1946, and 1931, are to be especially honored at the annual Alumni Homecoming dance at the Nevada room of the Mapes hotel on October 27. Each honored class is planning a special activity of its own, but definite plans have not yet been announced.

William D. Parish, president of the Alumni Association, invites all former students of Nevada and all alumni to attend the various activities over the weekend.

The get-together dance will begin at 8 p.m. Newly elected executive committee members and the panel of officers will be presented by the nomination committee and the current officers. Assisting in the presentation will be Mr. Parish, Lee DeLauer, vice-president, Bernard J. Smith, chairman of the Alumni Homecoming committee, and Adele McLain, secretary.

A free buffet will also be offered at the dance. Music for dancing is to be provided by Paul Jones and his orchestra.

The alumni group will have an entry in the Homecoming parade for the first time in many years.

Alumni of fraternities and sororities have also been invited to attend open houses and luncheons at their respective houses on Saturday, in addition to the afternoon football game held in their honor.

Barbara Cavanaugh, AWS president, and Chuck Coyle, ASUN president, wish to extend the following welcome to the alumni:

"We would like to take this opportunity to welcome all members of the University of Nevada Alumni Association back to the hill for a weekend of events which we hope will be reminiscent of your college days.

"The student body is most honored to act as your host for this occasion. We can fully appreciate the good times and fond memories which will be brought to life during this holiday for our Alumni."

thing."

"I'm glad you had a good time. Now, kiss your mommy and you can go to bed."

"Ah, Mom, do I have to?"

"Oh," she sighed. "Well, I guess you are getting to be a big boy. Good-night, darling."

"Good-night," he said, and ran to his room.

He lay there not able to sleep. He tried to grasp that something that only comes with time. Laura was always standing there, and he saw himself go into the room. He kissed his pillow, making it wet, pretending it was her, and saying "Laura, Laura, Laura . . ." over and over again. But he didn't understand what tore at him and kissed himself into an uneasy sleep.

She gave your very first kiss to you.

That was Laura, but she's only a dream.

The record ended and another began. The door chimes sung through the cottage. Eugene lifted his muscular body from the chair. He opened the door. It was the girl he met at the Corner Bar. She would probably stay the night, he thought.

McHenry Report Released

port says. "Shared responsibility" is the keynote of educational policy.

"Since the University was established in the Constitution of 1864, its Board of Regents has been ex officio for four years, elected by the Legislature for eighteen, and elected by the people for nearly seventy."

The report proposes a change in the Board of Regents which would increase the number of members, and make some of them appointive.

Recommendation No. 4 reads:

"Until a constitution amendment can be proposed by the Legislature and adopted by the people, legislation should be enacted (a) enlarging the board from five to nine members, of whom five would be elected by the people to definite numbered 'offices', three would be elected by the legislature, and one would be the Governor." The regents would still have a four-year term.

Recommendation No. 5 goes further in revision of the board. It reads:

"A constitutional amendment should be adopted," and the University of Nevada shall be governed by a board of Regents consisting of the Governor, state superintendent of public instruction, and not less than seven members appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate, and serving for terms of not less than seven years, one expiring each year."

The amendment should also provide that the Board shall have power to determine all matters of policy and internal management.

The two other constitutional amendments proposed are:

One: to make the university a body corporate. This means it shall have the title to all real property and personal property now or hereafter set aside for it. The property shall be administered according to law.

Two: The state should be able "by law" to authorize borrowing for the University's needs for periods up to fifty years.

This second amendment will remove the debt limitation of the university. The full credit of the state or the revenues of the facilities financed would be pledged.

Recommendation 16 proposes organization of a faculty Senate. It suggests that the Board of Regents establish "a faculty senate or similar organization" and give it the power to either act for itself or recommend action by others in these areas: admission of students, courses of instruction, educational policy, curricula and majors, research, graduate study, tenure, academic salaries, promotions, appointments, degree requirements, and the organization of departments, schools, and colleges. This move would decidedly limit the president's powers.

A faculty advisor is recommended for the student senate, in order to give the senate more "mature guidance."

The report calls the creation of the office of Dean of Student Affairs "ambitious." If this "elaborate" setup is to continue, a dean of men is needed, in addition to the Dean of Student Affairs, or an associate dean of men, it says.

Last year's demonstration by the students, with mock hangings, is also mentioned. The report says that this demonstration shows that serious tensions exist.

The expulsion of students following the riots is condemned.

The abrupt expulsion of several students was a 'fast trigger' reaction that has no place in a good student personnel program," the report summary says.

Nevada Southern was praised by the committee report, but further steps are needed there.

The Las Vegas branch should be directly authorized by law, officially named, and developed into a community college offering high-grade instruction on the lower-division level," states recommendation No. 30.

The report looks disapprovingly at the College of Business Administration, which it says "was launched without the benefit of general faculty and legislative criticism." It appears too late to reconsider this now, however, the report states.

The report notes that the new School of Nursing "can probably be justified."

"But the University should now enter a period of consolidation," the report says, "in which existing programs are supported adequately, faculties are strengthened, and standards are checked."

Junior President Crashes in Jet

Second Lt. William C. Thornton, University of Nevada student and pilot in the Nevada Air National Guard, escaped serious injury Saturday when his F-86 Sabrejet crashed at Reno municipal airport.

Although the aircraft was damaged beyond repair, Lt. Thornton received only minor scratches and bruises.

Lt. Thornton, president of the junior class and a member of Sigma Nu fraternity, returning from a routine aerial gunnery mission, was in the landing pattern when the aircraft dived into the ground. The aircraft struck in a shallow dive.

The impact caused considerable damage and a small fire broke out. The crash crew put the fire out almost immediately, but the airplane was a total loss.

Somewhat shaken, Lt. Thornton was given a complete physical checkup and pronounced able for flying again.

The cause of the accident has not been determined. A staff of experts will investigate the crash.

Campus Officer FBI School Grad

Parking tickets tucked under windshield wipers are a familiar sight on campus this semester. These slips are the stock in trade of State Highway Patrolman Norman L. Bryant, who serves as one of our campus police.

Patrolman Bryant comes to the University campus by way of Honesville, Nebraska, the United States Army and Beatrice, Nebraska. He received his elementary and secondary education in Honesville, then his first experience with law enforcement came while serving with the military police.

After being mustered out of the Army, he returned to his home in Nebraska and became a patrolman on the city police force of Beatrice, a city of 13,000 population. While working here he acquired the knowledge necessary to coordinate auto movement in relation to parking which is very necessary here on campus. He feels that the University parking problem is being solved with the cooperation of students and feels that it is the only way it can be solved.

FBI Academy

In June of 1952, Bryant was promoted to chief of police in Beatrice and served in this capacity until May 15, 1956. During this time, he took time out to attend the FBI National Academy in Washington, D. C., where he specialized in investigation and disarming methods.

Having refused an appointment to serve as chief of police for another two years in Beatrice, he then came to Reno and began working for the Nevada Highway Patrol. He was assigned to the University on May 16, 1956, and has remained here since.

Bryant, the father of two children, 12 and 11 years of age, claims hunting and fishing as hobbies.

AWS Council Discusses All

Homecoming open houses, the military ball queen, and plans for an inter-state meet on campus in which more than a hundred girls may participate next month, were included among the topics discussed at the regular meeting of the Associated Women Students council.

Kathy Warner, senator-at-large, reported that the Northern California-Nevada state meet will be held on November 17, here at the University. Nevada will host representatives of AWS councils from all the colleges and universities north of Fresno, Calif. All the schools have submitted questions for discussion at the convention. Some problems proposed are scholarship problems, women's hours, and social codes. Miss Warner, chairman of the meet, has tenta-

WOMEN GET "FROLIC" 2 'OCLOCK DEADLINE

Women students are permitted to stay out until 2 a.m. tomorrow night. This is the latest "deadline" given to the entire body of women students during the school year.

Regular "dance night" hours will be in effect tonight in honor of the Wolves' Frolic. Freshmen and sophomore students will be allowed to stay out until 1 a.m. The hours for the upperclass women are set at 2 a.m.

These lenient "late" hours were a result of a special meeting of the Associated Women's Student council Monday. The main purpose of the meeting was to decide on Homecoming "hours" that would seem suitable and fair to the women students.

Executive committee members lined-up and will complete her committee next week.

TOO LATE THE WAKING

By the gaping window I sat,
Staring beyond into the wide nothing;
And the wind blew the coming of winter through the room.

The day was gray of dying autumn,
The gray of sadness and the seeking heart.
How I hate the lack of light in the prime,
For it brings foremost to my rambling mind
The thought of aloneness,
The terror of turning and finding no one there.

The wind brought the rumble and the rain,
And in between the frightening silence
That only the rain makes, walking upon the earth.
At the bell I escaped the classroom,
And ran down the cobblestone walks in the thickening dampness,
Passed the meaningless-familiar faces,
Then I saw you, the one bond to actuality.

You were with a companion
That left you when she saw me;
For she sees me not as you do
But with extreme loathing that is pride spent.
And it hurts you that she left, I saw it in you,
And the dim waning faded into the void.
At that moment I knew we would never stand
On the plan of eternity alone,
And feel the nearness of just you and I.

We walked silent in the quiet rain
That wept from the loss of you
And in the panic of losing you
I wanted to kiss your wet hair, and cheeks, and mouth,
But we departed as always,
Not knowing the other.

This was the day then, gray and nondescript.
How I hate the lack of light in the prime.
