Mackay Day Ends As Beards Vanish

Beards are gone, trophies presented, and the 44th Mackay Day celebration is over.

Festivities officially ended at the costume ball Saturday night with the presentation of trophies to the winning songs teams by Mackay Day Chairman Ron Logar.

Song Winners

Gamma Phi Beta, presenting Walt Disney's "Happiest Kingdom of Them All," won the sorority song team title. Songs such as "Wish Upon a Star," and "Zip-A-Deedo Dah" were presented by the winners. Co-chairmen Waunita Combs and Suzanne Schwartz accepted the trophy.

Singers on the team included Pat Boland, Suzanne Schwartz, Jan Chiatovich, Emmy Hanf, Edrie Schwake, Sharon Workman, Jan Phalen, and Judy Vasconcelos.

Sigma Nu took first prize in the fraternity competition, singing such favorites as "S'Wonderful," "Fascinating Rhythm," and "A Foggy Day," under the theme of "Gershwin Goes Modern." Jim DePriest, director of the group, and Carl Shaft were featured soloists. Other members of the Sigma Nu team were Clay Darrow, Joe Ortiz, George Hellerich, Louis Porta and John Madriaga.

Ron Logar master of ceremonies at the luncheon Saturday, said, "The song teams this year were outstanding."

Trophies also went to the SAEs and the Pi Phi's for dance attendance.

Simmie Cooper, Delta Delta Delta and Max Botz, Theta Chi, wore the outstanding costumes.

Singing her theme song, "The Wayward Wind," Gogi Grant entertained at the assembly Thursday night. Carl Shaff, Sigma Nu, gave a satirical rendition of "Laura," De De Colton, Theta, entertained the group with two songs. Bob Stanch, Phi Sig, and his combo entertained.

Margie Orr was crowned Mackay Day Queen, and was presented with a dozen red roses.

Featured in Mackay School of Mines activities Friday was the uranium hunt, won by Phi Beta Phi and Lincoln Hall.

First in the brunton-compass contest for fraternities was Lambda Chi Alpha, with Theta Chi taking a second.

Displays included numerous metallurgy processes, geology field equipment, and fossils.

Beards

Judges in the beard growing contest were the four sorority housemothers, Mrs. Corle, Mrs. housemothers.

Joyce Elected Editor Of U of N Sagebrush

Jim Joyce, sophomore transfer from Nevada Southern, was elected to serve as next year's editor of the University of Nevada Sagebrush.

In a heated session of the publications board, Joyce was named over two other candidates by a plurality vote. The other candidates were David Lowe, this year's assistant editor, and Nora Kellog, junior journalism student.

Joyce was nominated by Braden Stauts, men's senator-at-large and member of the publications board. The sophomore student's nomination was opposed by the current Sagebrush editor, Bruce Bledsoe, and the paper's business manager, Henry Rilling.

The election marks the first time a fraternity member has held the editorship of the student newspaper since World War II. Joyce is a member of Alpha Tau Omega.

"I will not let fraternal ties with next year's ASUN president effect the editorial policies of the Sagebrush," stated Joyce. Don Travis, ASUN president-elect, is also a member of ATO.

Nedra Norton, a sophomore journalism student and member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, was named assistant editor.

The publications board also named Jim DePriest, Sigma Nu, Sagebrush business manager; Cynthia Heth Delta Delta Delta, editor of the Artemisia, and Bill Edleman, Sigma Nu, business manager of the Artemisia.

Members of the publications board are Chuck Coyle, ASUN president; Bruce Bledsoe, editor of the Sagebrush; Hank Rilling, business manager; Braden Stauts, men's senator-at-large; Myram Borders Artemisia editor; Margie Orr, woman's senator-at-large, and Pat Cordes, chairman of the nomination committee.

Dr. John Morrison of the English department is the publications board chairman.

Out of the 150 entrants these beards were chosen as outstanding: Louis Porta, blackest; Bill MacDonald, best trimmed; Gary Lundergreen, reddest, and Paul Langhams, fullest. John Darrah was in charge of the beard judging contest.

Guest speaker at the Mackay Day luncheon was author Lucius Beebe, editor of the Territorial Enterprise. Queen Margie Orr introduced the song teams, which produced the entertainment for the luncheon.

Obstacle Races

Streaking across the finish-line, Marge Hartman won the Mackay day obstacle race for Artemisia-Manzanita team with an 80-yard sprint to victory. Trailing was second place Diane Pahor of the Tri Deltas.

Lambda Chi Alpha won the men's race when Al Creel galloped to the finish line wearing one high heel and carrying the other. The last obstacle in the race required that the men don an entire women's outfit before completing the contest. Appearing to be experienced in the art of running in high heels, Carl Rountree raced in to give SAE second place.

During the lawn party the same afternoon put on jointly by SAE and ATO, Artemisia-Manzanita took another first, defeating the Theta's by one point in the run-off in the volleyball games. ATO won the men's contest over the SAEs.

Debaters Conclude Their Season

Debaters from the University of Nevada didn't win any trophies at the Tau Kappa Alpha tournament in Missoula, Montana last week, but they competed "very satisfactorily" reported Dr. Robert S. Griffin, Nevada debate director.

Dr. Griffin said the Nevada students, who are mostly unexperienced in inter-collegiate debating, did a commendable job and he added that his team will be a threat to other schools next year. Over all, the Nevada students won approximately half of their debates. The woman's team lost out only in the semi-finals.

The woman's team made up of Ginger Ivers and Helen Lenz, had four wins and one loss when they met a girl's team from Utah with the same win-loss record for the semi-finals.

Dr. Griffin stated that the critical debate was very "complex and hard to follow."

He noted that his woman's team had previously defeated Utah women's teams on three occasions. Ivers and Lenz won over Utah women at Stockton, Calif., last fall and then beat two Utah teams in the Montana tourney before losing a fourth match with the eastern neighbors.

An Editor Is "Elected"

A new Sagebrush editor was elected last week.

The assistant editor of the Sagebrush, Dave Lowe, although recommended by the present editor and business manager of the paper, did not get the editorship. James Joyce, a sophomore transfer student from Nevada Southern who had worked out three times on the paper, did.

Principal force behind the choice was outgoing ASUN President Chuck Coyle.

This is not Coyle's first contact with the appointment of new editors. He was on the Publications Board last year when the assistant editor of the Artemisia was by-passed and another candidate named editor. In this case however, the by-passing was with the approval of the editor; but Coyle has not forgotten the experience.

Coyle also had a hand in changing the ASUN constitution last year. One of the changes, concerning the Sagebrush, said that to be eligible for editor, a candidate should (not must as the previous constitution required) have served on the editorial staff of the paper for at least two semesters.

But these matters are only a sidelight on the recent appointment. The main fact is that Coyle did not want Lowe to be editor next year.

Coyle said he believed Lowe to be unqualified for the job. In order to make this judgment, Coyle must have had some knowledge of journalism and the qualifications required. Aside from his interest in journalism (he has often confided that if he were starting college again, he would seriously consider a career in journalism), there is little to back up this assumption. He is, it is true, currently taking beginning journalism 101, but he is getting a "D" in it.

As for Lowe it may be said he made two mistakes this year. The first, and a rather minor one, was an editorial he wrote for the Sagebrush saying that Coyle took too lightly the wrecking of a visiting Sacramento State car by Nevada students during the FWC championship basketball series. The article said that Coyle, "while not condoning the actions... did present excuses for them." This writer, who was not present at the senate meeting in question, took it upon himself to inquire about the editorial. Former Sagebrush editor Ken Robbins, now Arts and Science senator, approved of it. Coyle did not.

The editorial was not Lowe's biggest mistake however, and this in itself would not have cost him the job. His fatal error was in opposing Braden Stauts for ASUN president. It is fairly safe to assume that if he had not run he would now be editor of the Sagebrush.

It is no secret that Coyle favored Stauts, and that he was badly disappointed when Stauts was defeated by write-in candidate Don Travis.

When it looked as if Stauts would win, however (and it did for a long time) Coyle found another reason for opposing Lowe. Lowe, he said, would hold a grudge against Stauts, and cause him undue trouble, if Lowe became editor.

Lowe told Coyle that he had no grudge against Stauts, that he was running because he had been asked to run by the Nominating Committee, because no one was running against Stauts. Others told Coyle the same thing.

But Coyle evidently was not convinced. He had to find a replacement for Lowe. He approached fellow ATO James Joyce (at whose home in Las Vegas Coyle spent a weekend recently), and asked him if he would like the job. Joyce, after considering the matter carefully, said yes, if offered the job he would take it.

The fact that Stauts did not win the election did not change matters much, as Lowe was still a defeated candidate.

The only real surprise of the Publications Board meeting, was the fact that Stauts nominated Joyce. But it does not seem too much to assume that Joyce was suggested to Stauts. Also, Coyle himself would have looked bad politically if he had nominated a fellow ATO.

All that remains are two statements made by Coyle after the election of Joyce as editor.

One of them was made to this writer in the Little Waldorf immediately after the election, where Coyle, Stauts, and Diane Martin, his secretary, were having a nightcap or two. The statements are:

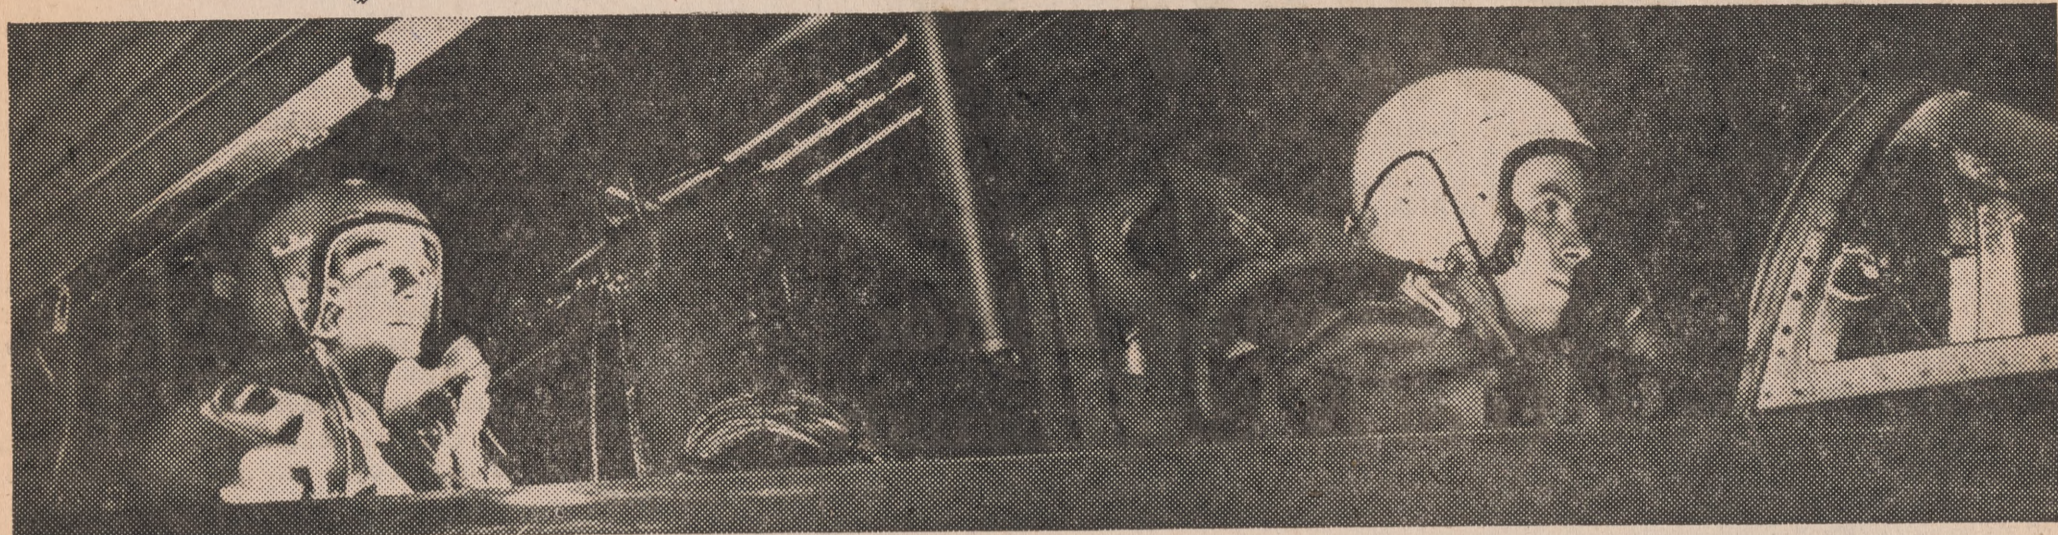

1. Would Lowe consider the post of News Editor (now held by Joyce?) What prompted this offer, perhaps a pang of conscience, if unimportant. What is important is this: If, in Coyle's mind, Lowe was not qualified for the editorship of the Sagebrush, how could he be qualified in Coyle's mind for the position of News Editor, which is no simple job either? The two do not add up.

2. The second statement is a trifle puzzling. Coyle and Travis are not particularly friendly. Perhaps it was the elation of the election. Perhaps it was because Coyle, despite his decade more of experience than most of the University students, has not learned to keep his mouth shut.

At any rate, the statement, which Don Travis says Coyle made to him, was this:

Coyle said Travis would have it easier now that Joyce was editor.

The fact that this is not true, that Joyce will probably give Travis a harder time than Lowe would have, and that Travis does not want a captive paper because he has to, is not too important. The important thing is what Coyle thought.

TWO ENGLISH TEACHERS PUBLISH ARTICLES

Two members of the University of Nevada English department faculty have made contributions to the field of literature recently. They are Mrs. Edith Henrich and Dr. Charlton Laird.

Mrs. Henrich's recent book of poetry, "Person in the World," has been reviewed in the Spring Arizona Quarterly. Reviewer Norreys Jephson O'Connor calls her poems "distinctive and satisfying—establishes her in the forefront of contemporary poetry." O'Connor also states that "she surpasses even William Wordsworth in understanding the human mind and emotions."

Mrs. Henrich's many literary achievements have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, New Yorker, Saturday Review of Literature, and other publications.

Dr. Charlton Laird is the author of an article appearing in the April issue of College English. The article, "The Parts, or Vestigial Remnants, of Speech," questions the merits of parts of speech instruction. It is one of three discussions on a broader topic, "Parts of Speech: A Symposium," that includes articles by Sumner Ives and Ralph B. Long.

Dr. Laird is nationally known for his work in the field of language, and has published many articles and textbooks on composition and grammar.

Alumnus Printed With 'New Look'

By Bob Faiss

The Alumnus, publication of the University of Nevada Alumnus Association, is off the press. This edition has many "firsts" and features a modern, six-page tabloid "new look."

Among the "firsts" for this issue are a new name plate in Antique Gothic type; no advertisements; no fillers; off-center balance makeup; two-page sports section; and no column rules, making the paper more readable and attractive.

Published twice each semester, the paper contains news and pictures of university and alumni activities. Advisor for the periodical is Harry Spencer, publicity director for the Mapes Hotel and member of the alumni association. Members of the Nevada chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, made up the editorial staff. Bob Faiss acted as editor.

The Alumnus is now financed entirely by the Alumni association. In the past, Sigma Delta Chi paid for the paper through sale of advertisements and presented the paper, free of charge, as a service to the Association.

JOURNALISM PROF TO ATTEND MEET

Keiste Janulis, associate professor of journalism, will represent the University of Nevada at a faculty-management seminar in San Francisco from June 16 to June 28.

Eighteen universities have been invited to send a representative to the meetings. The Standard Oil Company of California sponsors the seminar between their executives and the educators in the hope that new ideas will be presented to both sides.

The educators will be shown the workings of a large business operation and then discuss the various phases of the operations.

Professor Janulis' main area of study will be the press and public relations department of the company.

Other faculty members expected to attend will be from Arizona State Brigham Young University, U. C. L. A., Fresno State, University of Idaho, Long Beach State, Rutgers, Seattle Pacific, Seattle University, U.S. F., U.S.S., Texas Western College, and Utah State.

Student Art Show Now in Progress

University of Nevada's annual student art exhibit, which is being displayed at the campus art gallery from 1 to 5 p.m. daily, will remain open for students and the public through commencement week, ending June 3.

The exhibit, which opened last weekend, displays nearly 250 paintings, drawings and ceramic works by more than 75 students, according to Prof. Craig Sheppard, art department chairman.

The exhibit includes landscapes, portraits and still-life in oil and water color paintings; charcoal, pencil and crayon drawings, a variety of ceramics, and silver and copper jewelry and metal items.

Letter to the Editor

Editor of the Sagebrush:

Re the recent appointment of the editor of next year's Sagebrush.

Has the editorship of the student newspaper, the Sagebrush, become a political plum to be used for the purpose of patronage by the ASUN president and the Publications Board? If so, we, the students, are being deprived of the type of newspaper we deserve. Students are obligated to subscribe to the paper. The Publications Board should see that the publication is produced by the persons on campus who are most qualified.

The ASUN Constitution sets down certain requirements for the editorship of the Sagebrush. Article IV, Section I states that "to be eligible for editor of the Sagebrush, a candidate should have upperclass standing and should have served on the editorial staff of the Sagebrush at least two semesters, which should be immediately prior to his election." The recently appointed editor as yet is not in upperclass standing, and has never served on the editorial staff of the Sagebrush. One candidate who was overlooked in the appointment does have these qualifications.

If the Publications Board determines its appointments on personal friendship and fraternal affiliation, then it is not of real service to all students on campus. The Publications Board should reconsider the recent appointment. If not, the ASUN Constitution should be amended so as to insure that the office is filled with a qualified and experienced candidate.

Richard J. Griffin.

Stories you won't believe.

In 1953, while on a trip across the Atlantic, Prof. J. Redeman raised his hand to point at a multi-colored fish. In doing so, a valuable diamond ring slipped off into the sea.

Last week the professor attended a dinner at which fish were served. While eating, he bit down on something hard. Upon examination, he saw that it was a fish-bone.

This is dedicated to . . .

. . . the underdog who, no matter the odds against him, goes on to lose.

. . . those who know the truth about men, and still live among them.

. . . the arrogant, who must have something, for the meek will inherit the earth.

Advice to the Young. If you're going to be a bear—be a grizzly, not a teddy.

The election of Jim Joyce to the position of editor of the Sagebrush will leave his position of Editor of the newly-created Student News Service up for grabs. Ironic that Dave Lowe, one of the most highly rated for the latter job, should have withdrawn his name because he wanted to concentrate on the Sagebrush. Lowe was then pushed aside in favor of Joyce.

Many students are critical of the election by the Student Publications Board. Some think that the selection was "rigged" to enable next year's student government to run free from journalistic criticism, something that it has not enjoyed this year. The charge may, or may not, be true.

Be that as it may, if there is any danger or distate concerning the election, it should be directed at the people who elected him, not Joyce. Jim is a fully-qualified newspaperman and has the benefit of several years of practical experience on Las Vegas and Reno newspapers. He has weathered a lot of unjust criticism since the board meeting. If there was any rigging on the board, it wasn't the work of the new editor. He is sincere in his efforts to make next year's paper one which will give each student the space he deserves. Jim's statement that he does not intend to favor or be a tool of anyone, rings true to those who know him.

On the other hand, his experiences with the Sagebrush is, to say the least, scanty. Lowe was assistant-editor during most of the year and worked hard to prepare himself for the top position. The Sagebrush is unique in a lot of respects and it takes time to learn about its eccentricities. Lowe learned them. And so the action of the board was a hard thing for him to swallow. But he did, and is now working with Joyce, as is Bruce Bledsoe, to enable the new editor to do a good job next year. A person working only for himself doesn't do things like that.

Certain authorities blame Lowe's defeat on his entrance into the ASUN president's race. He was nominated by the Nominating committee to run against Braden Stauts, member of the Publications Board. His running, and subsequent loss, might have had some small part to do with his second defeat but the forces against his election were working long before that time. The ASUN prexy race was simply used as one of many excuses that he did not qualify for the editor's desk.

The matter is over. Perhaps some can find a moral in it, somewhere.

For our nature study today, we shall look at the grizzly bear. He builds his den in the Rocky Mountains, where he sits and grizzlies all day.

Old Man and the Youngster.

Ten Are Initiated Into Sundowners

Ten university men became members of the Sundowners organization last weekend.

The initiation held Friday night lasted through the next morning. The ten initiates are: Neil Romero, and Leroy Arrascada, both of Lambda Chi fraternity; Tom Hardester and Jim Hooper, both Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Ron Wilson and Dick Ankers, both of Sigma Nu; Jerry Cobb and Art Shipley, both of Alpha Tau Omega; and Paul Rutherford and John Legarza, Independents.

With chickens under their arms the ten men were directed through many downtown business establishments to appear and be treated to refreshments by wellwishers, says Louis Porta, organization president.

An early morning visit to the sorority houses for breakfast ended the all-night event.

The Sundowners is an organization that "promotes good fellowship" on campus.

Election of officers will take place tonight. The place of the meeting was not made public.

JOURNALISTS PLAY BALL AT BOWERS MANSION

About thirty-five journalism students and their guests attended the annual Press club picnic at Bower's Mansion recently.

Dave Lowe, chairman for the get-together, who was assisted by Bruce Bledsoe, Jim De Priest and Buster Sewell, termed the affair "a tremendous success."

Highlight of the picnic was a softball game between the Press club and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity. The game featured a mound duel between Bruce Bledsoe, for Sigma Delta Chi, and Cliff Clay for the Press club.

Accompanying the students were Professor and Mrs. A. L. Higginbotham and Associate Professor Keiste Janulis.

Those who attended were Buster Sewell, Pat Kelly, Jim Joyce, Cathy Zimmerman, Bob Brown, Nedra Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Berscheid, Bob Faiss, Dave Lowe, Rita Woods, Dave Cutler, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Clay and son, Jim De Priest, John Regnell, Mr. and Mrs. James Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jesse, Nora Kellogg, Steve Dollinger, Manfred Nickoley, Diane Coate, Jack Manhire, Anita Taylor, Sid Muck, Martha Reckers, Mary Reckers, Bruce Bledsoe, and Bill Devereux.

Karen Knudsen is president of the club, Buster Sewell is vice president, and Nedra Norton is secretary-treasurer.

The schedule of events for the weekend will include a pre-dance party at the home of Steve Dollinger, the formal and an excursion to Lake Tahoe Sunday.

Dinner will be served at eight p.m. and dancing to the music of Jack Reimer's band is scheduled to begin at nine.

Diamond Nine To End Season

The Wolf Pack left this morning for San Francisco to play their final baseball games of the 1957 season. The Nevada team will play a double header with the Golden Aitors this afternoon.

Nevada's Wolf Pack now has a record of four wins and four losses in the Far Western conference. The games this afternoon are conference games.

"It should be a pretty close game," stated Jake Lawlor, Nevada's coach. "The team that starts hitting first will probably walk away with the wins."

Young Elephants Elect Officers

New officers were elected at a meeting of the Young Republicans May 7. Committee chairmen were also appointed at the meeting.

New president for the organization is John Carlson. Bob Hemphill was elected vice president. Elaine Steiner is the new secretary, and Alura Nason was voted as the organization's new treasurer.

Bob Scott, Theta Chi, and Elaine Zeitleman, Pi Phi, were appointed as chairmen for the activities parade booth next fall.

The Nevada chapter boasts the largest paid-up membership of all Young Republican organizations on U.S. campuses. They have a membership of 130, largest in the club's history.

Wolf Pack Takes Twin Win Here

The University of Nevada Wolf Pack evened their win loss record in the Far Western Conference, winning both games of a double-header with the Lumberjacks of Humboldt State. The scores of the games played at Threlkel's park last Saturday were identical, 8-7, 8-7.

John "Slug" Flynn of the Wolf Pack saw a variety of action as he relieved pitchers in both games, assisted in two double plays and connected for four hits, one an inside-park home run.

The two wins left the Wolf Pack with a record of four wins and four losses in FWC play, and dropped the Lumberjacks to a season's mark of 3-3 with two games left to play.

The Humboldt team had big final innings in both games. In the first game the Lumberjacks hit in three runs in the seventh inning to tie the game at 7-7. Nevada came to bat and brought in their eighth run to take the game.

The Lumberjacks almost repeated this performance in the second game. In the last inning they trailed 8-2 and brought in five runs before being stopped.

FOOTBALL MEETING IN NEW GYM

Gordon McEachron, head football coach, has issued a call for all of last year's players and all those interested in trying out for the team this year, to attend the meeting in the new gymnasium on Monday, May 13, at 12:30.

Life is a bowl of cherries until the bowl splatters on your head.

Compton Wins Baseball Game

Walks and errors proved to be costly to the Nevada Wolf Pack in their baseball game with Compton Junior College played at Threlkel's Park Wednesday. The non-conference, practice game ended with Compton leading 8-2.

Compton scored all its runs in the second and third innings. Nevada got six hits in the game compared with only four by the victors.

Brian Whalen came on in the third to relieve pitcher Del Driver for the Wolf Pack, but the damage had been done. Compton had already picked up eight runs. Whalen allowed only one hit in six and two thirds innings of relief pitching.

Nevada picked up its two runs in the sixth inning as Nevada Coach Jake Lawlor put in his regular team. Lawlor had started the game with a team of freshmen and sophomores, giving the younger players to get some experience before the season closed.

OUR LAWLESS LANGUAGE*

The laws that govern plural words I think are strictly for the birds.
If goose in plural comes out geese
Why are not two of moose then meese?
If two of mouse comes out as mice
Should not the plural house be hice?
If we say he, and his, and him
Then why not she, and shis, and shim?
No wonder kids flunk out of schools
. . . English doesn't follow rules!

MORAL: The singularly plural pleasures of Chesterfield King make a man feel tall as a hice. So don't be a geese! Take your pleasure BIG. Take Chesterfield King. Big length . . . big flavor . . . the smoothest natural tobacco filter. Try 'em.

Chesterfield King gives you more of what you're smoking for!

ASUN OFFICERS-ELECT "SWORN-IN" WEDNESDAY

Out-going student presidents, Chuck Coyle and Barbara Cavanaugh, urge all students to attend the recognition assembly next Wednesday at 7:15 p.m., at which the new student body officers will be "sworn in."

Coyle, out-going ASUN president, will swear in Don Travis, recently elected by a majority of votes on a "write in" ballot. Travis will in turn administer the oath to Leroy Arrascada and Karen Knudson, newly elected senators-at-large, and the class presidents, Barbara Ruark, sophomore; Leslie "Mac" Fry, junior, and Bill Eddleman, senior.

Myram Borders, recently elected Associated Women Students' president and automatically vice president of the student body, will be sworn in by Barbara Cavanaugh, out-going AWS president. Myram will also announce the ten outstanding senior women on campus, chosen by the AWS council.

Dean

Dean Elaine Mobley will distribute the "Who's Who in American Universities" certificates. Bob Lewis, president of the Interfraternity Council, will announce the "all round" athlete of the year.

Associate professor of physical education, Ruth Russell, will present the physical education awards for women students under the Women's Recreational Association program.

Students Urged To Respect Lawn

Students who cut corners of the campus lawns and trample through the grass are on the black list of Carl M. Horn superintendent of buildings and grounds.

"Students should not make extra work for the grounds people who have more to do than to keep grass on the paths formed by unthinking people," he said.

John Rosasco, grounds foreman, said he has seen students wade through mud rather than take five extra steps around a corner on the sidewalk.

Horn asks that students take more pride in the campus appearance by staying on the walks, and thereby giving the late spring grass a chance to grow.

Marine Six-Month Program Enlarged

Under the provisions of a broadening of the Marine Corps Reserve six-month active duty program, organized Marine Reserve Units are now authorized to enlist young men between the ages of 18½ and 21 and assign them to six months active duty for training, according to the Marine Public Information Office.

On completion of the active duty service, the reservists complete the balance of their obligated services as members of their local Marine Corps reserve unit.

The new program also carries with it a total military service obligation of only six years.

Full information on this new broadened program is available at the Reno Reserve Unit, 1303 Evans Ave., FAirview 2-5618.

PIPER PREXY OF PHI SIG; DANCE MAY 11

The Phi Sig's, who have been without a "place to call home" for two months now, are winding up the year with plans to buy a new house, spring elections, and a formal dance.

Bob Hemphill, outgoing president, said that earlier plans to buy a home on Evans Avenue "fell flat" because of apparent opposition to a fraternity house in that location. The fraternity is still looking for a home, although they have some leads, Hemphill said. The house burned Nov. 4.

The Benefit Dance, sponsored by the Phi Sig's April 27, with all proceeds going toward the new house, brought in a profit of $160. Tim Burke, alumni secretary, and Hemphill were in charge of the dance.

Ed Piper, a sophomore student from Reno, was elected president of Phi Sigma Kappa Monday night. Piper is succeeding Hemphill, who will serve as senator next year. Other officers are: Leon Wells, vice president; Lynn Peterson, secretary; Harvey Gordon, treasurer; Dave Hansen, inductor; Pat Lavin, sentinel; and Danny Winters, social chairman.

The Phi Sig Spring formal will be held Saturday, May 11, at the Supper Club. Dr. and Mrs. Burton Newbry will chaperone the affair. Dave Hansen, past social chairman is in charge of arrangements.
