U. of N. Women Winners of Reno Table Contest

Anne Parkhurst and Deanna Woodliff were the winners of a table setting contest sponsored by a Reno furniture store last week.

Mrs. Parkhurst, a home economics major, won first prize with her table set for a formal dinner.

Thanksgiving was the theme of the table which won second prize. It was set by Deanna Woodliff, a home economics major and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

First prize was a four-place setting of china, and second place was a two-place setting.

A tea cup was awarded to the other contenders, Lorelee Smith, Carol McBain, Margie Miller and Myrna Howard.

The tables were judged by faculty women and wives Thursday through Saturday.

Model UN Club Studying Iran

University of Nevada students have an opportunity to participate in the United Nations through the Model United Nations club.

The University of Washington, which is the current headquarters for the Model United Nations, will host a mock United Nations meeting in the spring.

Each college or university that has a chapter of the Model United Nations is assigned a country to study. Iran is the country the University of Nevada is currently studying and will represent at next spring's meeting.

Dr. William C. Miller, professor of speech and drama, is the faculty advisor for the club.

The club meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Snack Bar.

Physics Club Plans Fraternity

The possibility of having a Nevada chapter of a national honorary physics fraternity, Sigma Pi Sigma, is being investigated by a committee appointed at the last meeting of the Physics club.

Eligibility for membership will include standing in the upper third of the class, high ability in physics, and a one semester course in upper division physics.

33 GRANTS AVAILABLE

Thirty-three grants of $3,000 each are available to college teachers carrying a normal teaching load. Fourteen $7,000 grants and ten special awards of $10,000 each are also available.

are also available. It is expected that a professor can take a year's leave in order to devote his entire time to research.

These grants are given four times a year by the American Council of Learned societies and are based on Ford Foundation gifts.

A national committee of scholars representing the American Council of Learned societies will judge the applications.

Two members of the University of Nevada faculty has shown a strong interest in applying for grants, said Dr. Austin E. Hutcheson, associate professor of history and political science. Dr. Hutcheson is the regional associate for the American Council of Learned Societies.

Fields include philosophy, languages, literature, art, music, the history of any field of natural science with a humanistic emphasis, or social science.

Consideration will be given to smaller states in awarding grants, Dr. Hutcheson said.

Journalism Dept. Obtains UP Wire

A loud clatter, ringing bells, and fresh news coming swiftly off the wire have become a part of the Journalism building.

A United Press teletype, which will bring on-the-spot releases of national and international news, will be in the Journalism building until April, 1958, with the exception of holidays and during finals.

Teletypes or teletypewriters are used by newspapers, radio, and television as the most timely news medium. All metropolitan newspapers have at least one teletype in operation.

The wire originates from the east and serves many newspapers on the west coast from Kansas City, a U. P. distribution center.

The teletype will be used for part of the education program in the journalism department.

Alfred L. Higginbotham, professor of journalism, hopes that students and faculty will feel free to visit the department and see the teletype, which is in the hall of the Journalism building.

Annual Christmas Assembly Thursday

The University Singers will set the holiday mood at a Christmas assembly Thursday.

Dr. William K. Macy, associate professor of music, will direct the chorus in three Christmas carols and three Negro spirituals. There are about fifty persons in the chorus.

Other singing entertainment will include Julia Robertson and Thelma Jackson.

Marilyn Ferrari and Kay Hicks will do a tap dance.

An added feature will be a mysterious Santa Claus. Santa will give gifts to some members of the faculty and student body.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the new gym. The general public is invited.

The opening prayer will be given by Ginger Ivers, a sophomore student.

December 14 Last Day for Pictures

Saturday, Dec. 14, will be the last day for individual pictures for the University of Nevada Artemisia, according to year-book editor Cynthia Heath.

Pictures are taken at Christensen Studio.

Four Frats Will Hold Annual Christmas Dances

Four fraternities are highlighting this weekend with Christmas social affairs.

Sigma Nu, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Sigma Kappa and Lambda Chi Alpha are all holding their Christmas dances.

Sigma Nu is holding its dance Saturday night in the Trocadero room of the El Cortez hotel. It is a semi-formal affair.

SAE's are also holding their dance tomorrow night at the Green Fox, lasting from 9-12. It will be a dinner-dance.

Phi Sig is holding a dinner-dance tonight at the Halfway House. The dance is the annual Christmas Formal dinner-dance.

Lambda Chi's dinner-dance will be held from 7:30 to 12 tonight at the Mesa. It is their social activity of the year since being placed on social probation.

Magic Show Put On For Faculty Club

Magic was in the air Tuesday night at the monthly University of Nevada Faculty club meeting.

Melvin Jepson, a local attorney and member of the Reno Magic Circle, a club of amateur magicians, put on a show for the faculty and their families in the Dining hall.

Handel's Messiah To Be Presented Sunday

The 23rd annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" will be held in the New Gymnasium Sunday, at 8:15 p.m.

The "Messiah," directed by Wm. Keith Macy, will be presented by the University-Community Symphonic choir and orchestra and the University Singers.

Rodney Mercado is the orchestra director and Mary Atcheson is the choir accompanist.

There are 150 singers in the choir and 30 musicians in the orchestra.

Five soloists will appear; Bonnie Foard and Betty Ohrman, sopranos; Evelyn Beal, alto; Joseph Battaglia, tenor; and Chalmers Musgrove, bass.

All of the soloists are local except Miss Beal, a professional concert singer from New York City. All are experienced musicians and have had extensive training.

Some choirs from Reno churches will participate.

Plan To Establish Bell System in Manzanita Hall

Manzanita Hall, for the first time this semester, will have a bell system connecting each room and the main desk.

The purpose is to eliminate the footwork and confusion involved in the present system of notifying the women of visitors or telephone calls.

Previously the woman on bell duty would have to climb as many as three flights of stairs to contact the women. This might occur as often as twice every five minutes.

The return-call bell system will eliminate all footwork as a buzzer has been placed in each room. The switchboard is located at the main desk downstairs.

Job Examination Information Available Here

University of Nevada junior and senior students are being offered an opportunity to take federal service entrance exams which can lead to opportunities to work on programs of national and international importance.

Information and guidance on the exams may be obtained at the snack bar on campus. December 10 and 12 between 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Mrs. Virginia Cubberness of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and Virgil Leigh, civilian personnel chief at Sierra Ordinance depot, will be on campus for information.

The jobs, offered with the federal government, should be particularly interesting to students in business administration, journalism, mining and agriculture.

Jobs filled last year by persons taking the exams include information personnel, park naturalists, geologists, education specialists, and realty personnel.

The world's largest employer of people, the U. S. government placed 477 persons from the western states between Sept. 1, 1956, and Aug. 31, 1957.

Arrascada Winner At Newman Dance

Leroy Arrascada, junior at the University of Nevada, was presented a portable radio at the recent Newman Club's "Turkey Trot" dance.

Held at the old gymnasium, the dance was attended by approximately one hundred persons. The music for the dance was provided by Earl Huttberg.

HOOORAY!

Temporary Buildings Finally On Way Out

The temporary buildings housing the University of Nevada English, art, and speech departments since 1947 are on their way out. Part of the English department is moving to the old Agriculture building. The rest of the department will move into the building when the Agriculture department moves into the new Max C. Fleischmann Agriculture building.

The department office will remain in the temporary buildings until there is room for all the classes in the new headquarters.

Professor Charlton G. Laird will be in room 201 in the Agriculture building.

New offices for the faculty members will be Professor Charlton G.

Laird, room 201, Professors Robert A. Hume and Paul Eldridge, room 206, and Assistant Professor Verna D. Wittrock and Barra Cano, English instructor, room 208.

Some classes have been held in the new quarters. In a few weeks the department expects to have the entire move finished.

Linguistics Will Be Offered Here By English Dept.

A new course in "Linguistics," the study of the structure of the English language, has been approved by the College of Arts and Science.

The course will be included in the English department schedule.

Dr. Charlton G. Laird has announced that the course will follow the plan set up by the National Council of Teachers of English.

Dr. Laird attended a convention of the group during Thanksgiving.

He reported that the course is being given in an attempt to improve spelling and language understanding and use.

It will be a three-hour course offering three credits.

More than eighty slides covering Professor John S. Winston's two-day tour of Canada will be shown to the Crucible Club early next semester.

Would you like to win $10 worth of records of your choice? Chuck Smith, campus representative for Hit Parade cigarettes, has a way for you to win these records.

All you have to do is collect as many empty packages of Hit Parade cigarettes as you can.

The contest closes on Wednesday, Dec. 11, at which time Smith must be contacted at 29 Keystone or at FAirview 9-1883.

Start collecting those Hit Parade packages now!

—Paid Advertisement—

The slides, some taken from the air, show many of the mining and metallurgical operations along with the modern housing built for the workers and their families. Professor Winston also took many pictures of the country itself, showing its cities and countryside.

The 6,700 mile tour began at Vancouver, British Columbia, and ended at Halifax, Nova Scotia, covering every major mining and metallurgical installation in Canada.

Winston pointed out that the many contacts that he made during the trip would help put the Mackay School of Mines on a more widely-known international standing.

BROWN KNOWS

By BILL BROWN

It is going to be interesting to see how long it takes the University Engineer to do something with the foundations left from the removal of the Quonset huts. These eye-sores have been sitting untouched since the buildings were silently folded up and moved away. Concrete chips are still lying where the workmen dropped them, and the tile that was laid on the floors of the structure is beginning to creep over the campus.

There have been several ideas advanced as to what to do with this space. One is to have Carl Horn's men sweep up the tile and convert it into an outdoor skating rink. Or possibly we could make it an outdoor basketball court for the P. E. department. Neither of these solutions seems practical, however.

At the present time, the Engineer's office has no plans for this space so it will probably be a time before anything is done. Meanwhile, I do not think it would hurt if the area was cleaned up and the tile removed. It may be necessary for us to have eye-sores but let's have neat eye-sores.

The city fire department is becoming a regular visitor to the University during the past weeks. The fire laddies have answered by a faulty fire alarm.

Many of the girls who have fled several false alarms at a girls' dorm after they were summoned into the night clad in pajamas or fancy negligees take a dim view of these proceedings. It is not that they complain that their best interests are not being considered by the fire department; it is just that they object to impromptu fire drills that always seem to take place during the coldest nights.

The Tri-Delts were the objects of an extremely unfunny joke the other night. It seems that a couple of "pranksters" dropped a live pig into their living room. The police were called to apprehend the pig who took a distinctly uncooperative stand and refused to be caught. After chasing the porker for a time he was finally caught and returned to the University farm.

Now, on the surface, this would seem to be a cute trick but when it is considered that the pig could have done a great deal of damage to the interior furnishings of the house, along with possibly injuring someone, the trick does not seem as cute.

This type of thing is considered very "collegiate" in some circles but seems damned unfunny to me.

Brown's plaudit this week goes to the University Band. This organization while few in number is long on spirit. They are called upon to play at almost every University function and do so without any griping or fuss. The cooperation extended by Felton Hickman, band director, is a great thing to see, and could be copied by many members of the staff.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

"I looked at all the angles"

Howard R. Winter, B.B.A., Texas A. & M., '51, is now a Commercial Manager with Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in Houston, Texas. He's in charge of 30,000 telephone accounts and a staff of 36 people.

Howard's interest in a telephone career dates from his first interview with a telephone company representative. "I looked at all the angles," he says. "We discussed pay and chances for advancement, which looked excellent because of the rapid growth of the Bell System. We talked about many different kinds of work, and about what would be expected of me."

After receiving his degree in business administration, Howard joined

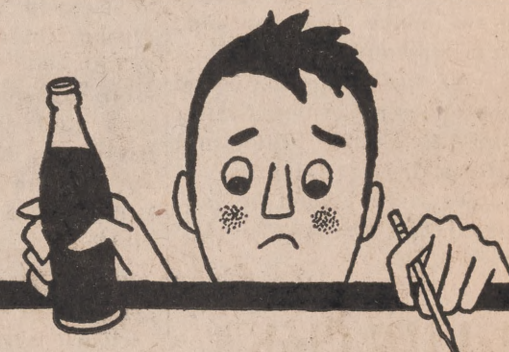

Southwestern Bell's Commercial Department. "It was natural for me," he says. "I have a business background, I like to sell and make contacts."

"My training gave me a really solid foundation in the business. Two years in the Army interrupted it, by the way, but the two years were credited to my telephone company records and count toward all benefits. After I'd returned and finished my training, I was made a business office supervisor. And since February, 1956, I've been a Commercial Manager in Houston. Each assignment I've had has been a real challenge and has presented a tremendous opportunity to contribute to and advance in the business."

Be sure to investigate the career opportunities for you in the 17 Bell Telephone Companies serving all 48 states. On your campus the local company represents the others. For more information about these career opportunities, read the Bell Telephone booklet on file in your Placement Office, or write for "Challenge and Opportunity" to: College Employment Supervisor, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., 195 Broadway, New York 7, New York.

Alvarez to Speak At Press Meeting

A University of Nevada student from Mexico will compare Mexican and American journalism at the California Press Association annual meeting Dec. 6 at the Clift hotel in San Francisco.

Edward Alvarez is the grandson of J. Alvarez del Castillo, publisher and editor of El Informador of Guadalajara, Mexico. Last year El Informador received the Moors Cabot award from Columbia university for outstanding promotion of inter-American relations.

Alvarez will speak under the invitation of Justus Craemer, president of the CPA, and editor of the San Rafael Independent-Journal.

In his talk he will review the position of Mexican and Latin American journalism as compared to that of the United States.

The foreign student will emphasize the relative freedom of the press in some countries in Latin America.

He will also discuss some of the problems his country has experienced because of the restrictions some governments have placed on the freedom of expression.

Financial difficulties Mexican editors face because of the devaluation of the peso, will also be a topic for his talk.

Alvarez has attended the University of Nevada for four years, and expects to return and work in his native Mexico.

Sorority Formals Begin Tonight

Seniors Deserve Final Examination Break During Crowded Last Days

Members of the student Senate have studied and approved a resolution which would give seniors who have a strong C or better going in any course a choice of taking the final in that course in the spring semester.

The measure will now go to the deans of all the colleges on campus and then to the University's academic vice president for final approval.

Basically, this resolution has much of merit. It is in these final few days of school that a senior has the heaviest schedule.

It is also necessary that a senior's grades be filed early with the registrar so that final preparations for graduation can be made.

Other colleges have used this method, and seemingly, with success. If the student feels that he can improve his grade by taking the final examination, he may do so. It is also felt that the measure would provide an incentive for seniors to keep their grades above average.

The proposition was introduced into the Senate by Bill Eddleman, senior class president, and Cynthia Heath, member of the senior class committee, and deserves high consideration by the deans and academic council.

PAINTING BY HARLAN HOLLADAY WINS FIRST PLACE AT ART ROUNDUP

A painting by Harlan Holladay of the University of Nevada art department has won a first prize in the National Art Roundup exhibit sponsored by the Las Vegas Art League.

Holladay's "Portrait of Robert Stites" was given a $25 first place award in the "other media" competition of the exhibit. More than 160 works by artists from eleven states were entered in the Art Roundup. First, second, third, and fourth place awards were made in three categories, oil paintings, water colors, and other media.

Also accepted for the exhibit was a landscape of Truckee Canyon by Holladay. This work and the artist's prize-winning portrait were both done in casein.

Paintings by the 12 prize winners will be exhibited at the Las Vegas city library until Dec. 6. The Art Roundup was held there from Nov. 2 to 22.

Works for the Las Vegas League's exhibit were accepted from artists in Nevada, California, Illinois, New York, Michigan, Colorado, Texas, Washington, Montana, New Mexico, and Oregon. Only two Reno artists, Holladay and Delight Cowles, were represented among the exhibitors. Two water color scenes of the Colorado Valley by Cowles were accepted for the show.

The Las Vegas Art League was founded in 1950, and has since affiliated with the Clark County adult education program to offer classes in art. The November exhibit was the second National Art Roundup the league has sponsored.

Holladay's works have been exhibited throughout the midwestern and eastern United States, including the 22nd biennial Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D. C.; Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts; Whitney Museum in New York; the 59th Annual of Western Art in Denver, Colo.; last year's annual Birmingham Museum of Art exhibit in Alabama; and are a part of a number of private and institutional collections. He has been a Nevada faculty member since 1955.

Antigone Production Reviewed in Detail

(Editor's Note: Barney Mergen now presents another review of a play produced by the University of Nevada Campus Players.)

By BARNEY MERGEN

Although by this date, any remarks on the Campus Players production of "Antigone" may be superfluous, it may be well to serve the purposes of criticism, whatever they may be, by recording here what was obvious to the small number of students who attended the play.

Set on an almost bare stage, and combining elements of the ancient and the modern, the effect was what may, in the popular sense be termed "arty." The immediate visual effect, however, was spoiled somewhat by the unsuccessful attempt to illuminate the cast behind the transparent curtain while the chorus introduced them.

Surviving this the drama swung into full stride (this is particularly true of Bob Moran as Creon who paced wildly about the stage throughout the performance) with numerous brief scenes between the principals and the minor characters, building toward the climax which the audience had previously been prepared for by the Chorus. This continuance of the play without a single break made the production artificially long, since there were many natural divisions throughout.

Generally, the actors were superior to the play, although they had some difficulty with diction and cues. George Mross as the Chorus, because the major burden of speaking fell upon him, can be singled out for both the most criticism and the most praise. Although he possesses the annoying habit of dropping his voice on the final syllables of words it would be arbitrary to demand "Public Speaking III" perfection when it was obvious that it was solely through Mross' efforts that the play had any unity at all.

Despite his violent movements which sometimes carried him out of the range of the lights (another inadequacy of our theater) Bob Moran dominated the cast. How interesting it is to see how, through characterization, our sympathies can be captured, even when Anouihl so deliberately made Creon a foolish, brutish character and Antigone a righteous heroine.

Whatever other attributes Trudy Brock brought to the stage she was neither the fated heroine of Sophocles, nor the innocent France of Anouihl (indeed even her beauty seemed more classically Irish than Greek), but perhaps her interpretation was the most modern of all, a wiser Antigone ready to match Creon's cunning with her own to demonstrate what no amount of logic can ever prove concerning right and wrong.

One final comment concerns the three guards played by Dan Hulse, Dean Kapsalis, and Buzz Foster. At first the humor of their lines seems incongruous with the mood of the play, but on second thought the relief they provide from the tedium of the melodrama is essential, and in some strange way their brief scenes are the best.

The remainder of the cast which included Gaye Lane, Herman Marnston, Pat Reynolds, Rodger Joseph, Asher Wilson Jr., and Marian Burleson, was uniformly excellent and I only regret that I do not have enough space to enumerate their individual talents.

The efforts of Director Asher Wilson and his technical crew of Bilbo Helms, Rita Maness, Don Jones, Sandra Smith, and Bob Rolo, helped make this production of Campus Players a worthy successor to the achievements of past seasons.

I would rather sit on a pumpkin and have it all to myself than to be crowded on a velvet cushion.

May Prexy of Crucible Club; Meeting Thursday

Methods of mining copper will be discussed by John Kinnear Jr., at the next meeting of the Crucible club. Mr. Kinnear is the general manager of the Nevada mine division of Kennecott Copper Corporation, Ely.

The club will meet at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday in room 200, Mackay School of Mines building.

Officers of the club are Lester May, president; Dave Mathews, vice-president; Leal Kimrey, secretary; and Robert Neushafer, treasurer.

Faculty advisor of the club, Dr. Joseph Lintz, assistant professor of geology, says that the public is invited to attend Crucible club meetings.

Plan Formation Of Commerce Club

Plans for a Commerce Club are being formulated by students and faculty members of the College of Business Administration.

For several years there has been no Commerce club, Dean Robert C. Weems said, but recently a rough draft of a constitution has been submitted for consideration. Although no action has been taken on this proposed constitution, Dean Weems thinks that the new club will soon be organized.

This will be the first attempt at such an organization since 1955, when under the College of Arts and Science, a Commerce club was organized.

The main objectives of such a club are to stimulate interest in business, and bring the students closer together.

Where do you get the extra $100,000?

“Some critics of business still maintain that profits are too high.

“I wonder if they have any idea of how much more it costs to do business today than it used to? Union Oil is a fairly typical example.

BOB DALBECK: “WITHOUT PROFITS, YOU AND I WOULDN’T HAVE A JOB.”

“In 1927, the company bought an 80,000 barrel storage tank for $25,000. Under Federal Income Tax laws, we were permitted to recover our investment over 30 years, the life of the tank.

“By 1957, when it’s time to replace the tank, the company has set aside $25,000. But what has happened? Due mainly to inflation, higher wages and material costs, the tank now costs $125,000.

“Where do you get the extra $100,000? Union Oil gets it out of profits, and by increasing indebtedness from time to time. Out of profit? The fact is, we have to sell $1,250,000 worth of products to clear the $100,000.

“Put another way, the company’s entire profit for one day, the total earnings that day on $400,000,000 invested by share owners, and the efforts of over 8,000 people—all went to replace one 80,000 barrel tank, of which we now have over 150.

“Without profits, Union Oil couldn’t afford to replace that tank. And without the new tanks and other equipment we have to replace to stay in business, there’d be no jobs for any of us!”

Bob Dalbeck is something of an authority on profits. He is an Assistant Comptroller for the company.

He estimates that only about 19 minutes in the average company’s 8-hour working day go to earn a profit. The rest is spent paying off the cost of doing business.

And less than half of those 19 minutes result in dividends to share holders. The other 9½ minutes are reinvested in the business to keep it up to date and competitive.

Sigma Delta Chi To Celebrate Nation's Highest Award Sunday

Students Will Produce Reno Television Show

A half-hour Reno television program, entirely produced by University students, is tentatively set for next January 18.

The students are enrolled in a University of Nevada education course, "Educational Uses of Radio and Television." Fourteen are enrolled in the class, including a Sparks school principal, Reno and Sparks teachers, a university professor, and a banker, as well as regular full-time university students.

The class meets Saturday mornings from 8 to 11 at the KOLO television studios, at 770 East 5th Street. Mr. J. Patrick Kelley, director of the university evening division and an expert in audio-visual aids in education, is directing the course with the help of Edward Cardinal, operations manager of KOLO, and other members of the station's staff.

"Educational Uses of Radio and Television" is an analysis of trends in radio and television for educational use. It includes program production, script writing, directing, evaluation of radio and television, and methods of teaching with these media.

Kelly says that if interest is again high next semester, the course will be offered in the spring. He will announce the decision by December 15.

A University journalism organization which has won highest national honors will celebrate the event at a dinner Sunday evening. Undergraduate chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, will be awarded the Beckman Efficiency Trophy, which is given to the best undergraduate chapter each year, at a 6 o'clock meeting of the professional and undergraduate chapter at the Holiday hotel.

Robert Cavagnaro, the national president of the fraternity, will present the award to Robert Mount, the Nevada undergraduate president.

Cavagnaro, a top executive in the Associated Press west coast office in San Francisco, will give the plaque that makes Nevada the top chapter in the United States.

The award is given for chapter efficiency in chapter activities. These include finance and records, membership, national relations and exhibits.

The Nevada chapter has never rate below eighth since its beginning in 1947. Last year it tied for second.

Holladay Works Now On Display

The University of Nevada's art gallery is now showing an exhibit of Harlan Holladay's work. Holladay, an instructor of art at the University, has been painting for eleven years.

The exhibit includes oil and water color paintings of landscapes and still-lives.

The galleries are open every day except Sunday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. The general public is invited.

Holladay has paintings hanging in museums in Springfield, Missouri, and Des Moines and Sioux City, Iowa. His work has been selected for national exhibit in New York, Washington, D. C., and San Francisco.

He studied art at Southeast Missouri State College, Washington University in St. Louis, and the University of Iowa.

Exhibits in Nevada of his work were at the University in 1955 and the Reno Little Theater in 1956.

Dr. George Barnes, associate professor of physics, faculty advisor to the present Physics club, says that all students interested in physics may attend the next meeting of the group. It will be held on Dec. 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the Physics building.

Home Economics Christmas Party

Home Economics students will hold a Christmas party in the new Sarah Hamilton School of Home Economics building Wednesday at 8:00 p.m.

The party will include all home economics students and their dates.

Decorating a Christmas tree and singing Christmas carols will be the entertainment for the evening. Refreshments will be served.

WRA Badminton Tourney Begins December Ninth

The Women's Recreation Association badminton tournament will start during the week of December 9-13, and will continue until the end of the semester.

Forty-two women signed up for the singles games, and 12 signed up for the doubles games.

Plans Launched For Women's Rifle Squad

The women's rifle club will meet on Wednesdays, from 7 until 9 p.m. Miss Marjorie Price of the Physical Education department, urges all women interested to attend.

Free instruction will be given by Major Homer Owsley of the University of Nevada military department, who is in charge of the women's rifle club and team.

A five dollar a year fee will provide club members with membership in the National Rifle Association and with free ammunition.

There will be matches with other colleges throughout the year.

Fashion experts state that women dress to express themselves. Apparently some have very little to say.

Officials Clinic Held for Women Phys. Ed. Majors

Eleven women physical education majors have been attending a basketball clinic for the past few weeks in order to obtain national rating which will enable them to officiate basketball games.

The women will be obtaining rating from the Women's National Official Rating committee, and will enable them to officiate intra-mural, interscholastic, local and national games.

The clinic, taught by Dr. Ruth Russell, professor of health, physical education, and athletics, meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and will continue until the Christmas holidays.

Nobody keeps both feet on the ground better than little brother learning to dance.

WORKOUTS BEGIN FOR U. OF NEVADA VARSITY SKI SQUAD

Skiing is the next sport to capture the spotlight in the intramural sports program. Chet Scranton, director of intramural sports, will announce the exact dates of the competition early this month.

The meets will be open to all participants, but an organization must have three members finish the course in order to score points.

The events will consist of the two-mile cross-country slalom, and the down-hill race.

First place is worth 60 points, second place 40, third place 20, fourth place 10, and fifth place 5. The points are used in the race for the Kinnear trophy, which is awarded to the organization with the most outstanding record in intramural sports.

Dates for Intramural Ski Meet Will Be Announced This Month

Prospective members of the University ski team have been undergoing rigorous physical workouts for several weeks. Workouts include calisthenics, running up and down the Mackay stadium stairs, and a game of soccer every evening.

Besides daily training workouts, several of the prospective ski team members have been practicing slalom for several weeks. Bob Autry, Dick Dorworth, and Dick Ankers competed in the Turkey trophy slalom at Squaw Valley.

Five University skiers, Harry Erickson, Ankers, Dave Pruett, Dorworth, and Tom Trabert, worked on their cross-country technique by climbing 10,500 foot Monument peak near Lake Tahoe Nov. 29.

Harry Ericson will leave for McCall, Idaho, when Christmas vacation lets out for a month cross-country training camp that will conclude with the FIS cross-country and jumping tryouts. The FIS, or world championships, will be held in Finland early next year.

Many other ski team prospects will go to Heavenly Valley, at the south end of Lake Tahoe, Dec. 2, for two weeks of cross-country and jumping training. This training camp will conclude with the Far West Ski association relay cross-country and jumping championships of which Nevada is the defending champion.

Thetas Defeat Independents In Volleyball

The Women's Recreation association volleyball tournament ended on Dec. 3 when the active members of Kappa Alpha Theta beat the upperclass Independent women. The Delta Delta Delta pledges also defeated the freshmen Independent team.

The winners will receive revolving plaques.

The two games were play-offs between the four teams that had won the most games in the round-robin tournament between the four sororities and the Independent women on the University of Nevada campus. Each living group was represented by two teams.

Award Taus Kinnear Trophy at Bean Feed

The Kinnear Trophy for 1956-1957 was awarded to Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at the annual bean feed held recently in the University dining hall.

More than 350 fraternity men were present at the affair and enjoyed a special feature on the menu. Spaghetti was the main dish instead of beans. The function of the bean feed is to present the fraternities with athletic trophies they won during the previous year, and to bring fraternity men into closer union through the athletic contests.

The winners of trophies are:

Professor E. Martie, former head of physical education and athletics, presented the trophies to the winners.

SPECIAL GUEST

The Sigma Nu's brought along a special guest to the affair, Karen Decker, this year's University of Nevada Homecoming Queen.

Karen was not the first woman to enjoy the bean feed. During World War II the bean feed was a female endeavor for buying war bonds.

Seated at the head of the tables were the members of the Interfraternity Council, Prof. Martie, and Capt. Louis Spitz of the Reno police force, who commended the company on their behavior downtown, and Dean Sam Shasta, head of student affairs.

SPORTS

Eleven Turkeys Awarded at UN Rifle Shoot

Eleven Turkeys were given away at a turkey shoot held at the rifle range last November 26. It was sponsored by the University Rifle and Pistol club.

Alex Sobrio, father of Dan Sobrio, president of the club, was awarded a turkey as a door prize, and won one of the ten turkeys awarded for firing.

The Block family went home with three turkeys, with Father Bill and sons Elwood and Clinton winning a turkey apiece. Bill recently won eleven turkeys at a National Guard turkey shoot.

Stan Hill won his 19th turkey this season at the University turkey shoot.

Others to win turkeys were Captain Jay Burch, a Reno High school military instructor; Dyke Kaufman, a high school sophomore; Bill Whalen, T. L. Meiss, and Lou Meiss.

Sigma Nu Tops ATO 39-38 For Basketball Lead

Unofficial results of the intramural basketball competition place Sigma Nu in first place, Independents second, and Alpha Tau Omega third.

Sigma Nu defeated the ATO team in a 39-38 game this year, giving them a clean record of wins for the season. They will be awarded the first place trophy and 100 points towards the Kinnear Trophy, an annual award made to the outstanding campus organization in intramural sports.

Lawlor Cuts Squad To 12 For Opener

The University of Nevada basketball team has traveled to Lagrange, Ore., for their season opener tonight against Eastern Oregon. Basketball Coach Jake Lawlor has cut the team to 12 men. The players are Chuck Walker, Don Bankofier, John Borda, Dean Smith, Paul Rutherford, Jim Lyons, John Legarza, Frank Kendricks, Bernie Fumagalli, John Flynn, Bob Ferrari, and George Nelson.

Lawlor is also planning to use occasionally three members of the junior varsity team, Chet Wood, Val York, and Tom O'Carroll.

The Nevada Wolf Pack which last year won the Far Western Conference championship, will display completely different type of court action, according to Lawlor. They will play a much faster game and concentrate on ball control because of their lack of height.

Following the opening game against Oregon, the Wolf Pack will start the season in full swing, traveling to Moscow, Idaho, Dec. 13 and 14 for games against University of Idaho.

During the Christmas recess the team will be kept busy defending its FWC championship crown at the Far Western Conference tournament in Sacramento Dec. 26-28.

Ring Workouts Start; First Bout in January

The creation of two new divisions, novice and freshman, has attracted a large boxing turnout at the University of Nevada this season.

With these two new divisions, participants will have a chance to get experience without the risk of being overmatched.

Several veterans and a large and promising group of newcomers are now in training.

Fifteen Named To Nevada Junior Varsity Squad

Fifteen men will comprise the junior varsity basketball squad this season, announced Coach Bob Laughter. Two sophomores and thirteen freshmen are on the team.

Players will be Ed Allison, Robert Del Carlo, Steve Lane, Gerald Eggers, John Hancock, Paul Kautz, John Kleppe, Barney Lujan, Jim Murphy, Tom O'Carroll, Bob Perchetti, Stan Smith, Ronny Sparks, Chet Woods, and Val York.

The junior varsity squad will play a game before each varsity squad game when the games are played in Reno.

About 15 games will be played this season by the J.V.'s.

Among the veterans who have been working out are Carl Looney, Norman Zunino, Jerry Tobin, Mike Smith, Jack Batchelder and Carl Schaff.

Expected later in the season are veterans Joe Bliss and Bill and Dick Short.

Some of the newcomers who have looked good in practice sessions are John Genasci, brother of Bob, last year's heavyweight runner-up in the NCAA tourney, Dick Griffin, and Angus McLeod.

The discovery of a 112-pound ex-jockey will give the team its first fighter of this weight. He is Clyde Riggan of Fallon.

Jimmy Olivas, taskmaster of college fighters, is ready to start his seventh year as boxing mentor at the University of Nevada. Olivas, who can rely on the knowledge gained as a onetime fighter himself, has built Nevada into one of the West Coast's most formidable boxing powers.

This year's first fight card is scheduled for the first week in January.
