Saturday Evening Hello on the Hill Dance at Old Gym

A dance on Saturday evening, Sept. 26, will be a highlight of the traditional Hello on the Hill festivities which have been underway since the opening of the semester, Patsy Lewis, chairman, said today.

The dance, which will have music played by the Don Porter band, will be an all-school affair held in the old gym. It will start at 9 p.m. and end at midnight.

Feature of the evening will be the naming of Mr. Hello and Miss Hi. New rules for picking the official campus Hello on the Hill couple are being effected by this year's committee, Miss Lewis said.

The dignitaries will be picked through the means of a drawing. As each freshman enters the dance he or she will be given a name tag. The name tag will be marked with an "H," symbolizing the spirit of the affair. A number will also be on the tag.

During the intermission a drawing will be held and the woman student whose tag number corresponds to the winning number will be Miss Hi. Likewise, will Mr. Hello be chosen, Miss Lewis said.

"We felt that by using this means it would be a completely impartial contest," Miss Lewis said.

Hello on the Hill activities earlier this week were the Fall Roundup in Mackay Stadium and the Icebreaker Dance in the Jot Travis Student Union.

On Oct. 1, the Activities Parade will be held in the old gym, Miss Lewis said. Campus student organizations will have decorated booths from which they will advertise their activities and sponsor games.

Soph-Frosh Field Day Being Planned

The frosh-sophomore field day, a competitive effort by the two classes which decides whether freshmen must wear dinks and ribbons for the entire fall semester, will be discussed sometime within the next two weeks, Gary Bullis, sophomore class president, said today.

The wearing of dinks by men of the freshmen class and blue and white ribbons by frosh women has in the past been a tradition enforced by the men's and women's upperclass committees. Men students who failed to wear their dinks have been tossed in Manzanita lake.

Fall Roundup Is Very Successful

The Fall Roundup was acclaimed a giant success Tuesday evening when more than 600 students and faculty members huddled together against a cold wind in Mackay stadium.

A highlight of the University's first social activity was the presentation by Coach Dich Trachok, of members of the football team. Following introductions a light scrimmage was held. Larry Williams, a star quarterback in U. S. Marine Corps play, brought yells from the crowd when he completed several passes.

Dr. Charles Armstrong, University president, addressed the crowd. He outlined the importance of higher education in respect with the present world situation.

Chelton Leonard, ski coach and official for the 1960 Winter Olympic Games, explained briefly the present state of readiness for the event at Squaw Valley.

Other dignitaries introduced were Patsy Lewis, Hello on the Hill chairman, who outlined this fall's activity; Mayor Bud Baker, and Pat Reynolds, AWS president. Dan Sobrio, student-body president, made the introductions.

As the rally neared completion the crowd lit matches which cast an eerie glow over the stadium. Entertainment for the evening was performed by Dr. James Roberts, the University band and the Theta Chi Singers.

Roberts played a guitar and sang several ballads. He was joined in a community sing by the crowd. The Theta Chi Singers offered several western ballads and the University band played marches and college-spirit songs.

As the football team was being introduced blue balloons were released in honor of each player.

Early spirit at the Fall Roundup was stimulated when a truck carrying a load of singing students circled the field and stopped in front of the grandstand.

REGISTRATION MALL—More than 1,200 new students flocked to the campus Tuesday to register for classes for the fall semester. Arts and Science registration was held in the new gym and other colleges set up headquarters in individual buildings. As usual the longest lines were for physical education, ROTC and English.

New Construction Being Studied

Four new buildings for the University of Nevada campus will be finished during the spring semester of 1960, reports James Rogers, University engineer.

Rogers also commented that the dining hall addition to the Student Union building has protruded into the area near Manzanita lake. Forty housing units for married students are under construction on the northeast end of the campus above Clark Field. Approximately 22 percent of the University student body is married, so it is hoped that the housing will be ready by spring semester.

Those students of the Fine Arts who have been buried in the temporary buildings will have a new building some time next spring. The new building will be located on the south side of the new gym, and will be parallel to Virginia street.

The construction of a new library building will begin in 1960. The state legislature has moved the date up from 1961. The new library will be built where the infirmary is now located. The old library building will not be torn down, but used for classrooms, offices, reading rooms, and for a film library.

Other buildings slated to begin construction in 1960 are the women's dormitory, two greenhouses, and a farm mechanics and shop building.

The new women's dormitory will be built where "Gow" hall is now located. The two greenhouses will be constructed on the east side of

Heavy Registration As Semester Opens

More than 1200 new students registered at the University of Nevada Tuesday to boost the enrollment to a record-breaking number of over 2500 students.

Exact figures were not available at Sagebrush press time, because the registrar's office was still processing data.

Because there were so many students and the lines were so long, many of the Freshmen did not complete the registration process Tuesday. A late registration fee of $1 per day is levied against any student who registered late.

A change was made this semester in the registration. All students were required to have approval of their program of classes by their advisor prior to registration day. In previous years, students did not receive the official 'OK' from their advisor until the day of registration.

All freshmen and new students completed a week of placement tests, medical examinations, in-

Wolves Frolic Has Changed Format

Disagreement over this fall's Wolves Frolic at the annual Leadership Conference seems to have died down this week as skit chairmen prepared for the earliest Frolic in recent Homecoming history.

Newly appointed director Charles Metten outlined his concept of suspended stage props and a single back drop for all acts. This would be a departure from past years, when each living group had a separate and often elaborate full-stage backdrop.

The director told a group of some 40 students at the Lake Tahoe held conference that he was attempting to achieve a program which would stress imagination and simplicity. He stated that suspended props have been popular on television and in the theater lately.

Jud Samon, Sigma Nu, told the director that his organization had already spent a considerable sum of money and completed extensive plans on a skit of the type seen at last year's Frolic. He felt that the change in plans for the Frolic would cause his house to lose its investment in its skit.

Metten stated that it was unfortunate that he had been unable to discuss the 1959 version of the Frolic with the individuals concerned at an earlier date, but that he would extend every effort in helping those organizations which had already worked out a theme to adapt themselves to the new idea.

Pat Reynolds, Gamma Phi, asked the director if there would be any props besides the suspended set pieces. Metten stated that each act would be allowed the use of three tall stools, three half stools, and two small waist high tables which could be joined together to make a single table.

"The props can be moved into place by six attractive coeds, who

Acute Housing Shortage Is Faced

A housing crises hit the University community this week as over 1200 new students thronged the campus to register for classes.

University officials have appealed to Reno residents to take students into their homes, Robert Kersey, housing director, said this week. Appeals through press media, radio and television have been favorably accepted, with some students finding lodging in Reno homes, Kersey said.

Dorm conditions have been reported as being overcrowded with three students living in rooms formerly used by only two. As a temporary measure some fifteen new students are being housed in the basement at Lincoln Hall. The hall has 30 more residents than it did last year, Kersey said. Hartman Hall is filled to capacity.

Manzanita Hall has 35 more and Artemisia Hall's residents have increased by 12 over last year.

Over a million and a half dollars is being spent in the construction of a married students' dorm and a new men's dorm, according to Jim Rogers, University engineer. He predicted, however, that with the expected rise in enrollment at the University these buildings would not stop the acute housing problem.

Rogers is planning a trip to San Francisco where he will attempt to augment the University's present building loan. If the loan is increased, he said, a new women's dorm will be built.

New Band Leader Is Planning Improvements

Newly appointed bandmaster Dr. John Carrico presented the University band at the Fall Roundup Tuesday evening when the group played several marches and college songs.

"The band is always the showcase of the University," said Dr. Carrico, "and I would like to encourage any and all members of the student body to assist us with suggestions and talent."

Dr. Carrico, who replaces Felton Hickman at the baton, is planning to initiate new marching techniques and systems which he developed during the eight years he conducted the Texas Western College band.

He also plans to introduce more props including neon tubing, spotlights, and fireworks. Dr. Carrico will also change the marching formation from the block band to a company front.

A Firm Policy

WITH THE SEMESTER NOW ENDING its first week, it is a late but warm welcome that this newspaper wishes to extend to the more than twelve hundred new students, and a "welcome back" to those who have been on the campus in days past.

THE SAGEBRUSH IS THE OFFICIAL student newspaper, edited and staffed by University students, and published by the Associated Students. Because it serves what has been described as a captive audience, past student government figures have recommended that the newspaper should take a middle-of-the-road editorial policy. They have said that because the University students have but one newspaper, the Sagebrush should not take stands on issues which pertain to the University, its faculty or student body.

THE SAGEBRUSH this year will not follow such an editorial policy because to do so would be unfair to readers and a general discredit to American journalism. A middle-of-the-road editorial policy would not inform readers of unfavorable facts.

ISSUES WILL BE STUDIED and then opinions will be aired in editorial columns. If an issue confronting the University would create an unfavorable situation the campus community should be fully informed. Because of this, after study of any issue, the newspaper will take a definite stand.

THE SAGEBRUSH WILL BE COMPOSED OF objective news columns, signed columns, letters to the editor and editorials. The objective news columns will, as will all the articles, delve into affairs pertaining to the University, its students and faculty. News columns will be factual and will not include the opinions of the reporters. The signed columns will express the opinions of the writers and not necessarily those of the newspaper. The letters to the editor will also express the opinions of the writers and will be printed in their entirety, except in cases where there is libelous material or space limitations. Unsigned letters will not be printed, but writers' names will be withheld on request. It is hoped that students and faculty members will express their views on University affairs through this medium.

THE OFFICIAL VOICE of the newspaper will be brought forth in the editorial columns.

THE SAGEBRUSH WILL NOT strive for sensational news stories which would tend to create controversy, but if a controversial issue confronts the University it will be presented in the news columns and the newspaper will offer its opinions in editorial columns.

THERE HAS BEEN SOME speculation on the attitude of the newspaper toward student government. Student government is a healthy endeavor. However, like all governments, a student government will commit errors. These errors will be published as will governmental acts which are favorable for the University.

ALTHOUGH MOST of the present Sagebrush staff is composed of students majoring in journalism this is not a prerequisite for working on the newspaper.

THE DEPARTMENT OF JOURNALISM has in no way any official connection with the Sagebrush and is responsible for nothing that is published in the newspaper.

ANY STUDENT AT THE UNIVERSITY is welcome to become a staff member of the newspaper. Those interested may contact members of the staff in the editorial and business offices in the old student union building south of the campus on Center Street.

Zim's Zymes

by CATHY ZIMMERMAN

"The honeymoon is over," an early patron of the Little Wal told me over a beer. I immediately asked if he was married during the summer. He halfway blushed and said, "No, I have a lot of good years left." By "Honeymoon," I guess he meant summer.

Well, the summer is definitely over as proved by the recent cold wave, and the excitement of another school year at the old "U" is ahead. For some industrious student-type souls it means a year of lectures, dim-lights over the left shoulder, books with small print, and ultimate eye-strain.

For most, the year will be a mixture of studies, activities, classes, coffee, dances, socials and just about everything extra-curricular college has to offer.

Homecoming is early in October and plans for floats and Wolves Frolic skits are feverishly in progress already.

Freshmen, barely recovering from the wonderment of orientation week, have almost completed rushing. Men on campus are getting a good look at the freshmen girls, but just a look, as rushees are not allowed to date this week. Lines seemed to be the rule, not the exception Tuesday. Due to the popularity of Nevada this fall, the dorms are completely full. New paths being worn into the grass will probably be cemented soon for the student's convenience.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

EDITOR, THE SAGEBRUSH:

As we begin another University year I am happy to extend, on behalf of the Regents, Faculty and administration, a warm greeting to all students both returning and new. We are very pleased to see you coming to the University in such numbers, which will give us the largest enrollment in our history.

This year promises to be an outstanding one in the life of the University, one of growth and progress in every way. With the addition of approximately forty new faculty positions, our instructional and research program has reached its greatest strength in diversity and depth. The material growth of the University is very evident, with four major building projects under construction and six more in the planning stages. We are particularly pleased to know that during the present year we shall break ground for the new library, for which approximately $2,700,000 has been appropriated by the legislature. The library is the key to our future intellectual growth and educational development. A wide variety of new equipment for teaching and research has been provided in generous quantity.

All this is indicative of an increasing emphasis upon the intellectual aspects of our program, a new seriousness of purpose in which we hope that all of you will share.

University life will continue to have a healthy amount of social and extra-curricular activity, with many elements of fun and relaxation; yet I believe that now, more than ever, it is important for us to give major concern to the basic purposes of our University. Above all the University is a community of scholars—students and faculty—who join mutually in an adventure of the mind. At this particular moment of history, when the fundamental concepts of freedom

EDITOR, THE SAGEBRUSH:

Dear Fellow Students:

I would like to take this opportunity to again welcome each and everyone of you to the University, whether it be for the first time or for a return semester. By now I have had an opportunity to talk to, and meet many of you; and I would also like to say that from this point of view that I am extremely impressed with the possibilities that present themselves with regard to academic enthusiasm, school spirit, and to a degree, the frigid possibility that there will be plenty of snow for the Olympics.

Campus life is only now beginning to take on the busy complexion that is characteristic here at the University, and it won't be long before we are busy with elections, Homecoming, and many activities.

May I urge each and everyone of you to participate in these activities for the reason that it is only your participation that can make these activities the success that they can be.

Finally, and by no means least, may I extend the sincere wish that your academic success is complete in order that your stay at the University is enlightening and rewarding.

DAN SOBRIO, ASUN President and human dignity are in crisis, we in the University can best do our part to strengthen America and the free world by a renewed devotion to learning and human understanding. Let us make the most of every opportunity to broaden the outreach of the human mind, to advance the frontiers of knowledge through study and research.

As we stand on the threshold of a new year in the life of the University, I wish for each of you good fortune and high success in our mutual adventure.

CHARLES J. ARMSTRONG, President

Trachok Unveils '59 Wolf Pack Eleven Against Colorado Western at Mackay

Pennant fever may be running high with San Francisco Giant fans, but local grid addicts are hotter yet to see the lid kicked off the 1959 football season tomorrow night at Mackay stadium. Brand new head coach Dick Trachok unveils the latest edition of the University of Nevada Wolf Pack at 8 p.m. Colorado Western will supply the opposition and the Mountaineers will find themselves one touchdown underdogs according to the "know-boys" downtown.

"We're in condition, that I know," Trachok says. "We expect to make a good showing but then, anything can happen in football." Trachok, a fine running halfback during the Stan Heath era at Nevada, has been working his troops hard in two-a-day sessions since the first of September.

A sparkling array of freshman talent has found its way to the Nevada campus this fall and with a bundle of veterans back from 1958, the Pack should improve on its 3-3 record of last season.

Nevada will be running out of a T-formation tomorrow evening with some split and winged-T variations thrown in for good measure.

Veteran Bobby Peck will be in the driver's seat at quarterback for the Silver and Blue. The heady little senior will have a strong-armed, ex-marine, Larry Williams, for relief. Williams, a 200 pounder out of Tucson, Ariz., looked sharp in a brief exhibition at Mackay stadium Tuesday night.

Another tough little veteran, Jerry "Road Runner" Tobin will be in the right halfback spot. His running mate on the left will be Clyde Sanders, a hard driving freshman from Las Vegas. In addition to his running talents, Sanders has been an eye-opener with his place kicking. Junior Rod Cook will get the call at fullback after understudying big Mike Lommori for the past two seasons. Lommori's power will be sorely missed this year, but Cook may have better speed. This ball-packing combination averages 178 pounds to the man and can really scoot.

Up front is where the Wolf Pack really shines in both size and depth. And depth has been a real problem the past few years. At left end is senior Tom Whitaker who is going for his fourth varsity letter. Two years All-Far Western Conference, he led the nation's small college pass receivers two years ago. Sophomore Bob Hunter will open on the opposite flank.

Opening at the tackle positions will be 230 pound Dick Ripley, a junior letterman, and Bill Daniel, a sophomore from Reno. At one guard will be another ex-Marine, Frank Nenzel who was an all-starter under new line coach Floyd Edsall, when both were at Elko High. Big Martin Murphy will start at the same position on the opposite side of the line. Anchoring the forward wall will be senior center Chuck Walker. The 230 pound Walker is in his fourth season with the Pack and is considered by Edsall as one of the fastest linemen on the squad. This offensive line will average 206 pounds.

Pederson's Mountaineers have twelve lettermen back to form on. Reports from the Gunnison, Colo., school say he will be depending heavily on his newly acquired junior college transfers to make things go. The club supposedly will rely on teams peed to counter-balance the lack of size and experience. No starting line-up was available for Colorado Western at press time.

The University will submit to the 1960 Nevada State Legislature plans for the construction of seven buildings. If approved, the University will have a new Engineering building, Social Science building, Physical Science building, Student Health and Nursing building, Home Management residence, a Life Science addition to the Agriculture building, and a central heating plant, Rogers said.

A Lot of Hustle . . . And A Little Luck

by GIB LANDELL

Tomorrow night the University of Nevada opens a new era of football history and popular opinion has it that it will begin on a sweet note. With a new coaching staff (excepting Dick Dankworth, backfield-end coach held over from the Gordon McEachron regime) and a wealth of new talent to go with a tough bunch of returning veterans, people close to the Wolf Pack are predicting pleasant things for the 1959 grid season. From this angle I must say that I go along with the optimists. New head coach Dick Trachok and his able line assistant, Floyd Edsall, should enjoy a successful year. Some observers say it will be the best club since the last of the "fabulous forties" era bowed out in 1950. This may be stretching hopes too far. It would be foolhardy to fly off the handle and predict great things for the Wolf Pack at this stage of the game. Without the benefit of spring practice it is hard to formulate an opinion of a college football team in this day and age.

Experts Probably Wrong

A good number of the nation's pre-season football forecasters are going to be rudely shocked when the Pack rolls into gear this season. Few of them have had any nice words to say about the University of Nevada's grid fortunes. Trachok should welcome this type of pre-season publicity as a means to fire up the troops.

The Southern California Grid Index wrote to us soliciting a subscription and enclosed a note stating they had selected Nevada for the cellar in the Far Western Conference. Williamson's Football Ratings, a Houston Texas, concern, picks San Francisco State to win the conference with Nevada battling Sacramento State for the bottom rung on the ladder. Best shot of all came from the pages of Street and Smith's 1959 Football Yearbook. They also tabbed the Golden Gators for the top spot in the conference, but failed to even recognize Nevada as a member of the league.

Shawhan Optimistic

Among the few pleasant words written about the coming season come from the pen of Compton college publicist Bill Shawhan who does the Pacific Coast column for Coach and Athlete magazine. Following his predictions for the Rose Bowl race, he wrote: "Look out for Nevada," can well be the warning repeated from the days when the Wolf Pack used to fight it out with St. Mary's, Santa Clara, and USF for the west coast's independent pigskin supremacy.

"As opposed to its three California neighbors, however, Nevada has never been happy with "ivy-league" play, and with a new president, Dr. Charles Armstrong; a new athletic director, Glenn J. Lawlor; and a new head football coach, Dick Trachok, calling the signals on the Reno campus, all signs in the "Biggest Little City in the World" indicate the Wolf Pack is preparing to go on the prowl again.

"No one is talking on the hill, but one has only to recall that Athletic Director Lawlor is a product of the Lawrence "Buck" Shaw days at Nevada, and that head coach Trachok played in the Joe Sheeketski era following World War II, when the Pack was riding high with the likes of Marion Motley and Stan Heath, and their "teachers" were not known to depend on "students" to carry the ball. (Motley was a bit before the Sheeketski regin).

"The Wolf Pack raids may be small this fall, but look out for things to come out of the Silver State, and don't be surprised if future slates take on an intersectional flavor both on the gridiron and hardwood that will see the Wolves playing from coast to coast as in the "good-old-days" that Nevada grads like to remember."

Letters Welcome

In closing this first column of the year I would like to say that letters to the editor will be welcomed. It's your sports page, tell me what you want. Please sign your name or my boss won't let me print them.

Best three bets on the card this week are Pittsburgh, 14 over Marquette; San Jose State, 6 over Denver; and Oregon, 6 over Stanford. This will probably be my first and only week of advice. I'm always wrong.

formation on how to register and an orientation on campus life before registration day.

Most of the courses, including all of the Arts and Science classes, were registered in the new gymnasium. The fees were assessed in the registrar's office and were paid in the old gym.

The other colleges held their headquarters for registration in their respective buildings.

A student may not add additional courses to his schedule after the second week of the semester, except in special cases approved by the dean of the student's college. A change of registration card, the signature of the instructor of the course he wishes to add, and the approval of his advisor and dean of the college are needed to add a course before the two-week limit.

A student may withdraw from a course, without failure, at any time up to midsemester. Except in special cases, such as accident or illness, no withdrawals will be permitted after midsemester.

A change of registration card, the approval of the Dean of Student Affairs, the student's instructor, his advisor, and the dean of his college are necessary to drop a course before midsemester.

The Blue Key fraternity, a national service organization on campus, assisted with the registration by giving information to students.

would be part of the show," Metten stated. Try-outs for the girls will be held.

He then said that all participants would be seated in bleachers either on the stage or in an arena immediately off stage, but in front of the audience. He said that this was much the same style that was used in the minstrel shows where the actors could always be seen by the audience. An important consideration in choosing this arrangement was the cramped conditions back stage in the State Building where the production will be staged.

Alex Rynecki, Phi Sigma Kappa, asked the director if it would be permissible to play musical instruments on stage. Metten decided that they may be included if they are a necessary part of the routine. However, he ruled that in keeping with the idea of imagination and simplicity the actors should use pantomime if possible.

Because of the early production date of October 16, Metten announced that it would be necessary to have completed scripts approved by him before 5 p.m., Friday, Sept. 18. Also it will be necessary to present the sketches in at least rough form on Sept. 24, 25, or 26.

After Metten concluded his announcement of the arrangement of the Frolic, Robert S. Griffin, chairman of the speech and drama department, urged that all the organizations cooperate with the new director. Dr. Griffin said that his department had received several hundred applications for the job of drama professor at the University and that Metten was the one selected who best met the qualifications and standards that the University desired. Metten had directed the equivalent to Nevada's Frolic at both UCLA and University of Iowa. Griffin hoped that the students and the director could work in unity and understanding.

After the meeting, house leaders met separately and agreed to work within the framework set up by the directors.

Jot Travis Student Union Prepares for Second Year

Entering its second year of operation the Jot Travis Student Union, sometimes known as the "living room of the campus," is preparing for a successful year, Bill Adams, student union board president, announced today.

The student union, which houses a coffee shop and the ASUN bookstore, is planning a series of dances, movies, games and music sessions, Adams said.

"Several committees are now being formed," he said. "We would like any student interested in serving on a student union committee to contact our offices." Committees open to students for membership are music, dance, movies, games, publicity, house, art and hospitality. Each committee is composed of ten persons, Adams said.

A series of foreign classics is being planned by the movie committee. The movies will be shown in the education auditorium or in the main lounge of the student union, Adams said. Definite times and places will be announced later.

"In order to return to the students some of the profit from the snack bar," Adams said, "once a week there will be a free coffee hour. Each coffee hour will have a different theme.

The dance committee is planning several "after-the-game-get-togethers," Adams announced. Two costume parties are planned for the year.

"Last year's Aloha Luau was a tremendous success," Adams said. It was a Hawaiian-attire affair held shortly before the spring semester ended.

Also available in the Jot Travis Student Union, which is a member of the Association of College Unions, is the lounge area on the first floor. It provides television, reading material and a general social area for students, Adams said.

Dr. Jerry Wulk Has Student Affairs Post

Dr. Jerry Wulk, new assistant to the dean of student affairs, has his work already cut out for him the first week of his first semester at Nevada. His first major duty is that of supervising the Interfraternity Council's rushing program.

Coming from the University of Southern California, where he had been dean of men, has some four years of experience at U.S.C. and at California State Polytechnic college.

Previous to his college administrative positions, Dr. Wulk taught in Wisconsin and California for six years.

He held positions of assistant director or admissions and assistant to the dean of men at U.S.C. before coming dean of men there two years ago.

The new dean received his bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin, where he was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. He received his master's degree and Ph.D at U.S.C. He has also Veteran's Administration.

Dr. Wulk has been given a post as Associate Professor here by the College of Education. In his previous posts no professional rank was given to administrators.

"The confusion and noise of a large city and that of a metropolitan university is what most of all drove me out of the Los Angeles area," said Dr. Wulk when asked why he chose to leave U.S.C.

Sam Basta, Dean of Student Affairs, Tells Students To Bring Their Problems

"Student's problems are our problems," says Sam Basta, dean of student affairs at the University of Nevada, "and with 1,000 new students expected to enroll this September, we've really got problems."

According to Dean Basta, his office acts as a "clearing house" for every conceivable personal problem that the students may come up with. They all fall in three general categories, social, academic and financial.

"At registration time alone, we get about 250 requests for loans and deferment of payment; this would keep the staff of a major bank busy," said Basta.

In addition, the office is also responsible for conducting orientation week. This is a program designed to expedite the registration of new students. It includes college placement testing, housing assignments, and personal counseling. There are also special sessions for the purpose of acquainting newcomers with campus facilities, customs and traditions.

To assist Dean Basta with the chore of student problems and orientation week are a staff of five which include: Miss Elaine Mobley, dean of women; Dr. Gerald Wulk, head counselor and assistant to the dean of student affairs; Jack Shirley, director of the newly-established student employment service; Miss Roberta Barnes, women's counselor and assistant to the dean of women, and Robert L. Kersey, director of student services. According to Dean Basta, the two biggest headaches this year are going to be that of administering and processing placement examinations and locating housing.

Only 30 per cent of the incoming arrivals have taken their examinations and the remainder must be tested and counseled on the results before they are enrolled.

The housing shortage problem for men and married students is one of great concern. Due to the increased enrollment over the past few years, University housing is bulging at the seams. Robert Kersey, who is responsible for housing, conducted a survey this summer of off-campus housing in both Reno and Sparks to help ease the situation. A limited amount of off-campus rental listings are available in this office.

The student employment service, which was added this summer to the Office of Student Affairs, is designed to find part-time employment for students. Shirley has been contacting employers in the Reno area and compiling lists of part-time jobs for students.

"We like to treat students and their problems individually," said Dean Basta. "I estimate that each student on the campus visits our office on the average of four times each school year. By handling the students and their problems individually, we can maintain the atmosphere of a small university regardless of how large we grow."

Leadership Conference Held at Lake Tahoe; Many Innovations In Making

More than seventy students attended this year's A. S. U. N. Leadership Conference last weekend. The three-day meeting was held at the University camp at the south shore of Lake Tahoe.

Under the direction of Dan Sobrio, student body president, and Georgia Teskey, conference secretary, the students discussed and planned campus activities of Homecoming, queen elections, Mackay Day, and rallies and assemblies.

The conference opened Friday afternoon and continued until Sunday morning.

Discussion of queen elections had not been scheduled, but the subject was brought up by several students who felt that certain revisions in the election procedure were needed. Most of the ideas presented were on the nomination of queen candidates.

No changes in the election procedure were made during the conference, but a committee was formed to present possible changes to the A. W. S. council. In accordance with the A. S. U. N. constitution the A. W. S. council is given a free rein in running the queen contests.

Plans for putting the student court into operation were discussed by a group that was predominantly composed of members of the Senate nominating committee, the group that has the job of presenting to senate a list of candidates for positions as justices on the student court.

DISCUSSION GROUPS—Typical groups of students last weekend discussed problems confronting the University at the annual Leadership Conference. It was held at the south shore of Lake Tahoe at the 4-H Camp. About 70 students representing campus social and academic organizations attended the conference.

to the dean of student affairs, was at the discussion of the student court and commented on his experiences with student-run judicial councils at the University of Southern California.

If the court is put into operation, Dr. Wulck will be serving as an adviser to the group.

Lieutenant-Governor Bell addressed the group Saturday evening and stressed the state's need for qualified leadership in the future.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS—Dr. Charles Armstrong addressed about 600 students and faculty members in Mackay stadium Tuesday evening at the Fall

Roundup. The University president spoke on the importance of higher education in regards to the world situation.
