Campus Competition Set For United Fund Drive

Monday, Oct. 2, signals the starting date for the University's participation in the United Fund campaign. The drive will last through Nov. 4.

The United Fund is an annual community civic project in the Reno area sponsored by a national agency. It combines 16 various national public interest services, including the Red Cross and the YMCA.

Nevada students will participate in the program through their fraternities, sororities, and dormitories.

Sagers, the sophomore honorary group, will head and organize the campaign, while the chairmen of the campus drive are Bill Adams and Bob Kersey.

The Sagers plan to run an individual drive in each building, with charts posted to show the progress of that building compared to the others.

The United Fund has three basic donation plans. They are payroll deduction, single donation, and a pledge amount.

In 1960, the University's quota was $1,800, with Nevada becoming one of the few groups to exceed the quota when it raised $2,000.

As an incentive to this year's drive, vice president Young and the various college deans will hash for the winning fraternities and sororities.

And the Student Union coffee shop will donate the proceeds from a full day's coffee and doughnut sales to the drive. It did the same last year.

Campus Figure At 2,793 Students

Registration for the University of Nevada's fall semester closed on Sept. 25. It was the eighth and final day of registration.

Both the Reno and Las Vegas campuses report increases over 1960, with 2,793 matriculated students on the Reno campus, and 615 at Nevada Southern.

Total enrollment on the Reno campus is 3,506 compared with a 1960 count of 3,252. Last year's matriculated count was 2,536.

Las Vegas had 539 matriculated students in 1960. Enrollment of those matriculated has increased by 76. The total number of students is 1,177. The 1960 figure was 954. There are now 223 new students on the Las Vegas campus.

Students on both Nevada campuses, both matriculated and other now number 4,633. There has been a total increase of 477 over the 1960 figures.

Evening division registration will continue through today, Sept. 29.

Southeastern Problems Topic Of Talk By Eugene Burdick Thursday

Problems of Southeast Asia will be presented to University students Thursday when Eugene Burdick, co-author of the best-seller "The Ugly American," speaks at 8 p.m. in the dining commons.

Burdick, who together with William J. Lederer wrote "The Ugly American," arrives in Reno the afternoon before his address Oct. 5.

Last spring he took a trip to the Far East where he studied the problems of Southeast Asia, and in particular the communist infiltration of Laos. On his return he wrote an article which appeared in many magazines and newspapers.

Burdick's talk on campus will be centered on the findings of this trip and their bearing on the struggle between democracy and communism.

"The Ugly American" is a novel about what really goes on behind the secret, red-tape curtain of American diplomacy and unmasks the blundering hypocrisy of some of our top-level diplomats.

In the novel, Burdick and Lederer explain why democracy is losing ground to communism, often through the fault of Americans sent to the Far East to sell our system of government.

In a note from the authors, the two men explain, "Our aim is not to embarrass individuals, but to stimulate thought—and, we hope, action."

"The Ugly American" is now on sale in the ASUN bookstore.

Pajama Rally Set Tonight

Pajama-clad students will wind their way down Virginia street tonight, serpentine-style, mustering spirit for the game tomorrow night with Portland State.

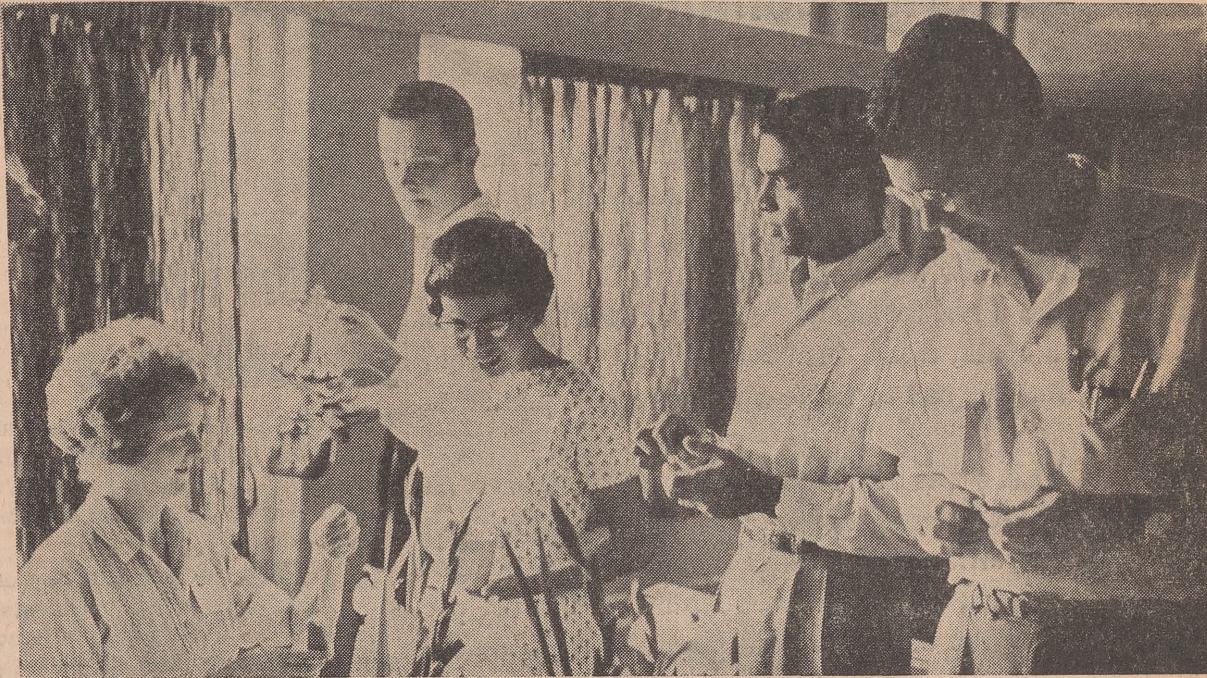

Meeting place for the pajama rally is Mackay stadium at 7:30 where a bonfire will precede the long trek downtown.

In addition, members of the Wolf Pack and the coaching staff will be introduced to the student body and cheerleaders will direct the crowd in a few yells.

The Balladeres, Jim Durham and Bill Shilling, will be on hand for entertainment in the stadium.

After the serpentine in downtown Reno, an all-school pajama dance will be held in the dining commons. The dance will be free for all students.

Bob Backus, assemblies and rallies chairman, said the serpentine downtown has been approved by Reno police.

CCUN Dinner Welcomes Nevada's Foreign Students

A group of 65 students, faculty and administration turned out Wednesday night for a dinner in the faculty room of the dining commons to welcome foreign students attending the University of Nevada.

The dinner was sponsored by the Collegiate Council for the United Nations and the student union. An informal tea in the student union lounge Wednesday afternoon provided those not able to attend the dinner with an opportunity to get acquainted with students from foreign countries.

Sundowners Host Girls; Boost Spirit

It will be "ladies free" today at Horseman park when the Sundowners, good fellowship group on campus, sponsor an all-school beer bust starting at 2:30 p.m.

Bill Daniels, president of the "black hat club," said the Sundowners have planned today's party as their part in promoting spirit for Nevada's first home game, tomorrow night.

He said the bust will continue into the afternoon until the beer or money run out.

Lincoln Men Host After Game Dance

All University students are invited to attend an after-the-game dance tomorrow night in the dining commons.

Lincoln hall is sponsoring the all-school affair which will begin immediately after the Nevada-Portland State football game. Admission will be 75 cents per person.

Dancing to the music of a local dance band will continue until 12 p.m. Refreshments will be served during the evening. In overall charge of the dance is Lewis Reece.

This will be the first after-game dance of the year and all students are urged to attend.

Pick Up Cards Today

Those who were late to face the lens of the ID photo camera can pick up their cards today in the Office of Student Affairs.

Sam Vaughan, vice president of CCUN, said the newly-formed group felt "the dinner was a tremendous success. We were very pleased with the turnout for the dinner and the friendly, relaxed atmosphere between American and foreign students."

He said the foreign students were anxious to tell about life in their respective countries and eager to learn more about the American way of life.

Regarding foreign aid to their countries, Vaughan said the foreign students "backed up 'The Ugly American' one hundred per cent, emphasizing the need for technical assistance so that the common man in underdeveloped countries can help himself."

Vaughan added that the faculty members and administration who attended the dinner and the informal tea are very interested in improving foreign student relations on campus.

He said various faculty members are interested in encouraging students from foreign countries to come to the University of Nevada. They are especially interested in having students come to major in departments in which there is now a student shortage, such as in the Orvis school of nursing.

A special committee, formed by University President Charles J. Armstrong and headed by Dr. Fred Anderson, member of the University board of regents, will hold a second meeting Oct. 11 to discuss various ways of improving life on campus for foreign students.

Cecelia Molini, president of CCUN, and Vaughan, are student representatives on this committee which held its first meeting with Dr. Anderson Monday.

The committee is studying better housing conditions and social activities for foreign students.

Full Ph.D. Work Starts This Fall

One of the University of Nevada's first moves in joining the ranks to higher schools is its first full graduate programs leading to doctorate degrees, which are being instituted on campus this fall semester.

The first degree offered will be a Ph. D. in geology and a Ph. D. in physics.

In addition, the journalism department is expanding its curriculum to offer an M. A. in journalism for the first time in history.

Final approval for the programs came from the board of regents after careful screening of each department's recommendation for the advanced degree. In each case, the recommendations were channeled through several University committees, President Charles J. Armstrong's office, and then to the board of regents for final approval.

Student Union Sets New Hours

Starting this Sunday the student union lounge will be open from 5 to 8 in the evening and the snack bar from 5 to 7:30 p.m., according to Bob Kersey, director of student services.

Continuation of this policy will depend on student response to the service.

Charles "Bud" Olson, the student union's newest addition to the Tub's evening concerts, will be on hand to entertain snack bar customers with his piano renditions.

Safety First?

RENO MAYOR BUD BAKER came through in his typical manner of closing the barn door after the horse has gotten away when he issued a directive Tuesday that the "No Jaywalking" law will be enforced.

THIS MARKS THE SECOND TIME in less than a year that it took a death, rather than foresight and a little common sense, for city hall to make a move toward pedestrian safety.

ON OCTOBER 7 OF LAST YEAR, University of Nevada students started circulating a petition for the stop light which now regulates traffic at the corner of North Virginia and Ninth streets. Their action followed a traffic death the preceding month at the dangerous and poorly-lighted intersection.

OUR RENO MAYOR WAS NOT UNAWARE of the perils at this corner. At Leadership conference September 6, 1960, Dean of Student Affairs Sam Basta pointed out the danger to students of the University as well as children attending nearby schools and other pedestrians using the intersection. Dean Basta made his statement after Baker, guest speaker at the conference, called for suggestions from students for improving the city of Reno.

AND THIS WAS NOT THE FIRST TIME city hall's attention had been drawn to the "death corner." Last fall Dean Basta made the statement that during his three years as dean of students at this University, each ASUN president had written a letter to the city of Reno, as well as to the state highway authorities, regarding the intersection. He added that last fall's petition was not the first which sought action on making the corner safe for crossing.

BUT IT WAS NOT UNTIL A TRAGEDY occurred on the corner before any action came, despite the years of pointing out the obvious need for some sort of signalling device at the intersection.

AND CITY HALL AGAIN did not see fit to make the same city street safe until death struck a second time. This time it was a seven-year-old boy who lost his life on Virginia street last Saturday.

NOW, RENO CITIZENS ARE BEING made aware of Section 10-77 under pedestrians' rights and duties in the Reno Municipal Code which makes jaywalking an offense. They now know it is a law because every few feet, from Commercial Row on North Virginia street to State street to the south, there are large letters stenciled in white paint saying "No Jaywalking." Up until today, Baker had police on the streets with microphones to be sure that 10-77 is firmly impressed in the minds of Reno citizens.

BUT WHY HASN'T THIS LAW, which has been a part of the Reno Municipal Code for many years, been enforced before this week? Again, another Virginia street problem was ignored until a life was lost.

COMMENTS ON RENO'S LIBERAL jaywalking have come from various agencies and groups from the National Safety Council in 1958 to a service group on the local scene in 1959 which went so far as to do the very same thing the city administration did this week: stencil "No Jaywalking" notices on the sidewalks.

THE GROUP'S EFFORTS WERE THWARTED when city hall had the notices removed, reportedly in favor of casino interests. Business seems to be more prosperous for the downtown clubs if customers can cross streets at any point rather than by way of designated crosswalks.

BUT A LITTLE BOY LOST HIS LIFE, gaming interests are temporarily pushed aside, and Reno is being reintroduced to an old law.

Letters To The Editor

Because life under Communist rule is so "wonderful," it makes one wonder why millions of people flee and escape from Tibet and North Viet Nam and Hungary and Red China and Cuba and East Germany, etc.; why the Kremlin must keep armed guards and barbed wire around their borders; why the Russians are not allowed free elections; why the government disseminates the only news; why 22 captive nations are held as prisoners?

Ah, communist "paradise" must be beautiful!

Student Prexys Set Conference

If you can still find your old high school jacket, better haul it out of the mothballs. You won't want to feel out of place on campus next Monday.

Monday will be the final day of a two-day high school presidents' conference to be held on the Reno campus. Student body presidents, vice presidents, secretaries, and treasurers from every Nevada high school will attend.

Two changes mark this year's conference. It has been shifted to the fall semester, and it has been taken out of the auspices of the freshman class.

Cal Wilson is chairman of the conference.

The meeting starts Sunday with a banquet, entertainment, and recreation activities. Monday will be devoted to a workshop and discussion of the problems of respective high schools.

The student prexies will be counseled by Nevada students who are themselves past student body presidents. One activity will be the proposal of a uniform statewide student body constitution for all Nevada high schools, said Paul Bible, ASUN president.

Wolf Pack Coach Floyd Edsall coached at Lovelock, Elko and Sparks high schools.

New Philosophy Prof Rates Nevada Students Up With Illinois, Indiana

Another new faculty member from the East has joined the University of Nevada. Dr. Richard P. Haynes, assistant professor of philosophy, has an appointment with the university for the academic year 1961-62. He comes from the University of Illinois.

This is not the first time Dr. Haynes has ever been in the West. Immediately upon graduating from high school he worked his way west working for a carnival and as a ranch hand in New Mexico. His main complaint about the school is in regard to the library. Dr. Haynes says that it is difficult to do research here due to the limited number of volumes. The school is small, he adds but "it has the spirit of growth".

Dr. Haynes thinks that the students here are as intelligent as any in the University of Illinois or Indiana.

The philosophy professor was born in Wilmington, Delaware in 1931. He received a B. A. in philosophy from Pennsylvania State University in 1956 and his M. A. in philosophy from the University of Illinois in 1958.

He taught at the University of Illinois from 1956 to 1960, and held an appointment as visiting lecturer in philosophy at the University of Indiana.

Dr. Haynes is married and is the father of three children.

Today Last Chance To Add Courses

Noon today is the last day for adding classes to student schedules, but persons who decide they want to get out of a class have until Oct. 27 to do that.

Any student who withdraws after Oct. 27 will receive a grade of withdrawn passing or withdrawn failing.

Military Nurses Speak

Military nursing in all its phases will be discussed in the home economics building on Wednesday, Oct. 4.

Uniformed nurses from all branches of the service will be present from 4 to 6 p. m. The program is to take place in room 103. Films will be shown.

Lectures Plug Understanding

Broadcasting the scope of foreign understanding is the main objective of this year's AWS lecture series, which commences Oct. 12.

AWS has arranged a schedule of speakers who are experts in their field, or have recently visited foreign territories, to give students and local citizens a concept of areas generally left out of everyday curriculum.

Top on this list of orators is Dr. Joseph Lintz, who returned this fall from a two-year stay in Indonesia. Dr. Lintz, who was sponsored by the University of Kentucky, the U. S. State Department, and the ministry of education in Indonesia, will talk on this small Asian land at 8 p.m., Oct. 12, in the fine arts building.

Such speakers as Dr. Lintz will design their programs to give a personal outlook. In this way, he and others will be able to offer points of everyday information, which would be of more interest to students and the general public.

Through its lecture series, AWS hopes to make up for lacking sources concerning these smaller areas, and other underdeveloped, trouble spots which should be vitally important to the American life.

Last year's series contained a variety of themes, but this year AWS feels that it can accomplish more by concentrating on this one scope. The members of the organization urge any recommendations for speakers who are familiar with related subjects revolving around foreign life.

Talk Outlines Job Chances

"Women's Career Opportunities" will be the subject of a speech to be given to University of Nevada women Monday, Oct. 2, at 4 p. m. in the fine arts building.

The speaker is Mrs. Maxine Hill, director of federation promotions for the American Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Mrs. Hill is here in conjunction with Business Women's Week, which is next week. She will make various appearances in this area for the AFBPW.

Beverly Roberson, AWS President, urges all interested University women and town women to hear Mrs. Hill's talk.

Top Frosh Job Is Up For Grabs

Primary elections for freshman class president will be held Wednesday, Oct. 11, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., upstairs in the Student Union building.

Any freshman interested in running for this office must file for candidacy with Paul Bible, ASUN president, no later than this Wednesday, Oct. 4. All such applicants will be approved by the ASUN president and must fill out a form and make a $5 deposit before they can begin campaigning.

Candidates for freshman class president this year can have a campaign expense account of $40. These accounts must be submitted along with receipts to the president by noon Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Hall Will Hit Hay, Wagonride Set Soon

The men of Lincoln Hall and their invited guests are looking forward to a hayride on Friday, Oct. 6. This event, the first of its kind in recent years, is to begin at the Aggie farm at 7 p. m.

The haywagons will wind their way out Peckham lane to a pre-designated area where a dance will be held by firelight. Refreshments will be served.

In charge of the hayride is the Lincoln hall social director, Louis Reece. His committee consists of Mike Broer, Robert Parker, and Ramon Arrizabalaga.

54 Students Teach In Local Schools

Twenty-one university students have been assigned ten different elementary schools in the Reno area for practice in student teaching, according to an education department announcement this week.

The College of Education is employing 21 elementary school teachers to supervise student teachers in their own classes.

In the secondary education field, the education department is using Reno high school, Sparks high school, Traner Jr. high school, E. Otis Vaughn Jr. high school, B. D. Billingshurst Jr. high school, and Central Jr. high school. Thirty-three student teachers have received assignments in these schools of secondary education.

These students will be under the supervision of fifty-four junior and senior high school teachers in Washoe county, employed by the College of Education, and will also be observed by staff members of the College of Education, and professors from the College of Business and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Leonard Pourchot of the College of Education reports a greater proportion of secondary student teachers in the field of science, mathematics, and social studies than in previous years.

Books Cast Aside, Profs Get Gym

It will be faculty night at the new gym next Monday, when pudgy profs and others in need of exercise can turn out for a recreation session starting at 7 p. m.

Dr. Art Broten, chairman of the physical education department, says the purpose of the night will be to get faculty members "away from books for awhile and keep them in shape."

Besides volleyball, basketball, badminton, and apparatus, will be offered. Women faculty and wives of the faculty are also invited to attend the Monday night sessions. Dr. Broten says that the department will do everything to keep the ladies busy, but requests no one asks him for baby-sitting jobs.

PEMS Will Sell Football Programs

The women selling football programs at all home games are members of PEM's, the physical education mayor's club on campus. They will be dressed in black skirts and white blouses to facilitate recognition. The money earned from the sale of programs will support the scholarship fund the organization maintains.

The next meeting will be largely a get-acquainted activity for freshmen and new students. A panel discussion will be featured, and members will consist of three teachers from high schools in western Nevada. One of the participants will be Miss Carol S. Kelly, the new graduate assistant to the P. E. department.

Home Economics Club Seeking More Members

Eta Epsilon, an organization for girls interested in home economics, is open for membership.

Activity schedule planned for this semester starts with initiation Oct. 4 and continues with a foods program, Nov. 16; a Christmas workshop, Dec. 6; an interior design program, Feb. 7.

Students interested in obtaining further information about Eta Epsilon should inquire at the home economics office, room 102, H. Ec.

Dr. T. T. Tucker, Jr., placement director in the College of Education, says that the "state of Nevada needs more people to fill vacancies and take care of expanding classroom requirements than we, the College of Education, can hope to fill. Normally, superintendents have to hire from 500 to 700 teachers per year, and even with the present rapid growth of college students enrolling in the College of Education, it will be a number of years before we can come close to supplying the needs of the state."

Booms, Blasts In Drill Team

A new addition has been made to the ROTC drill team in the form of a drum and bugle corp. The corp has ten cadets who will work directly with the drill team during all of their maneuvers and at all of the showings. This brings the total number of cadets in the precision unit to 50.

The new addition was made after the ROTC band was combined with the University Band under the direction of Dr. John Carrico of the music department.

The combined team will make its first appearance at the Nevada Day celebration in Carson City on Oct. 31.

Positions are still open for any cadet interested in trying out for the drum and bugle corp. People interested should contact Captain Miller or Master Sergeant Lawson in the ROTC department.

Actors Set Trip

One of the biggest playtimes for the Campus Players this year will be the annual trip to San Francisco.

The purpose will be to see plays, of course, says Sara Pederson, president of the group.

Miss Pederson has also announced plans for the organization to present cuttings and scenes from some of their plays to such groups as Veteran's Hospital patients.

They are also promoting better attendance of this year's fine film series and theater productions. All such activities will be held in the University Theater in the fine arts building. The first featured film was "Mr. Hulot's Holiday", shown last Monday.

Contrary to campus opinion, this group is not a departmental club, but is open to anyone who has participated in two theater productions.

Renault Crashes Mattress Dance

The surprise preview of a 1959 Renault was the highlight of the annual "Mattress Dance," held last Friday night at the Sun Valley social hall. The event was sponsored by Tau Epsilon, a national junior men's honorary fraternity.

Due to lack of seating facilities, members were asked to supply their own, hence the title of the dance. The mattresses were in lieu of admission costs.

The high-performance sports car, driven by one of the members, was brought into the building through a specially widened door and was parked in a prominent place on the dance floor.

Tau Epsilon came onto the Nevada campus early last year. Since then it has carried on many activities in service to the University.

Present members, also known as the "Unbecomings," include George Wade, Tom Case, Andy McKenzie, Dick Armuth, DeRay Lombardi, Ken Clayton, Bob Blair, Lynn Gerow, Ted Stoeber, Karl Breckenridge, Darel Shea, Tim Griffin, Bruce Pendleton, Rusty Nasha, Bob Barengo, Tim Grant, Jim Colgan, Bill Mortensen, Bill Lohse, Buzz Trainor, Dave Small, Harry Walters, Larry Beal, and John Doyle.

Film Depicts Man In Suit and Dilemma

"The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit", starring Gregory Peck and Jennifer Jones, will be shown in the education auditorium Sunday evening at 7 p. m.

Directed by Nunnally Johnson, who also wrote the screenplay, the movie is an adaptation of the novel by the same name written by Sloan Wilson. It is produced by 20th Century-Fox.

The story is a mature, well-rounded portrait of a present-day white-collar worker on Madison avenue who is trying to get ahead without compromising his integrity and principles. Conflict arises when he is offered the opportunity of "ghost writing" for the president of a broadcasting company and must choose between this and the opposing attractions of a highly-paid but also highly-pressured job and his home life.

Admission Tests

Medical college admission tests will be given on campus Oct. 21.

Students planning to take this examination must have completed application by Oct. 6. Application forms are available in room 105 Ross hall.

Biggest Little Campus

By DOUG SALTER

BLC VIEWS "BIGGEST LITTLE CITY"

There are probably a few of us among the throngs here on the BLC who are destined to have their names scribed on the annals of the future as civic leaders. It might perhaps prove very educating to fix our gaze down from the hill upon our fair mother city.

There is an interesting phenomena in Reno, one which I take the opportunity of dubbing "Sierra Gorge." As one walks down this comb, the buildings actually can give the impression of brown, water-carved sandstone rising from the banks of the south flowing current. Fewer and fewer names and signs are breaking the monotony of these walls, except for those saying "Clearance Sale" or "This Building for Rent or Lease" or "Moved to New Address" splashed across soapy windows. I would speculate that this is only the beginning.

It becomes evident if she is the "Biggest LITTLE City," her main livelihood consists of essentially one and a half city blocks plus three hotels (Cal-Neva might be down the tubes).

This summer a faction presented to our city council a plan which would greatly beautify, color and enliven the walls of the gorge. This project was to be well in excess of a million-dollar investment with a showroom capable of handling entertainment on the level of Harrah's at the Lake (long gone from the Reno scene), provide jobs for 150 people, and, of course, provide a sizeable source of income for many contractors and workers in this area.

The plan would also open the door for an eventual rejuvenation of the dying street by increasing the entertainment area of an out-strided city. It had the endorsement of better than two-thirds of the businesses remaining on that street in the area to be re-zoned or immediately affected, and, as was later discovered at the county fair, the support of seven out of eight people who voted there.

The re-zoning was rejected by the city council. Most interesting, eh, students? They could possibly want to make that part of town another among one of Nevada's famous types of tourist attractions . . . a ghost town!

TO THE OFFENSIVE

Along with the rumble that the rezoning plea was to be re-submitted to the council came another peculiar occurrence in Reno.

The sidewalks of Virginia Street were riddled with "NO JAYWALKING" manifestoes in white pain. These were accompanied by a troupe of policemen whose armament included microphones and citation tablets.

Oddly enough this was thus enforced only in the immediate club area and not down the street where public parking still exists and little boys can dart from between parked cars and surprise motorists.

Why must one of Reno's traditions and conveniences be suddenly forbidden? It is causing quite a disturbance and is a real inhospitable atmosphere for both new and consistent entertainment patrons from many places.

Is a sign on a sidewalk ever going to have much affect on an energetic young lad?

Mr. Ness, where art thou?

THE WOLF PACK IS READY FOR PORTLAND

Wolf Pack - Vikings Clash In Opener

Still fuming after a stinging defeat at the hands of Redlands University last weekend in a non-conference battle, the University of Nevada will be out for their first season win and will be after revenge against Portland State College this Saturday in another non-conference gridiron tussle. The Vikings topped the Wolf Pack last year, 14-7. The scene of action will be Mackay Stadium here at 8 p.m.

Portland is reported to have their entire starting backfield returning from last year's squad. Quarterbacking for the visiting Vikings will probably be 205-pound senior Bob Grant with 220-pound fullback Frank McCormack, another senior, filling in beside Grant.

Weight on the line and in the backfield will again be an obstacle for the Wolf Pack Saturday as it was against Redlands. The Vikings are coached by former Nevada assistant, Hugh Smithwick.

Coach Dick Trachok for Nevada feels that the Pack is in for a tough encounter this weekend. An obvious fact is that Portland should be as good as they were in 1960, especially with their lettermen returning in the backfield.

Against Redlands last weekend Trachok commented that the Pack couldn't get started and that our boys made many mistakes at crucial and timely moments. Mainly hurting Nevada in the Redlands game were intercepted passes, penalties and a blocked punt. Trachok said, "Once the team jells, the fans will see that the Pack can do some scoring."

Trachok, in an effort to perk up the team, said he will make a few changes on both offense and defense.

To be counted heavily on Saturday will be Nevada quarterbacks Bob Alfred and Jim Cawiezell, along with halfbacks Bob Herron, Gary Sullivan and Cal Campbell. Fullback Jock Echave is slated for heavy duty behind the line.

Gridders expected to see action on the line will be Max Culp, center, Frank Nenzel, guard, and end Jim Whittaker. The last three men mentioned were voted captains of the 1961 Wolf Pack eleven. The Pack will have tri-captains this year and they were chosen by their fellow teammates.

Nevada plays at home again next weekend hosting Chico State Oct. 7 in the Wolf Pack's first conference game in the Far Western League.

University of Nevada coaches and players will be out for a big victory over Portland State tomorrow night when the Wolf Pack opens its 1961 home football season at Mackay Stadium.

Nevada's team hasn't forgotten the stunning 14-7 upset defeat suffered at the hands of the lightly-regarded Vikings last year at Portland and want to prove which is really the better football school.

Portland State, coached by ex-Nevada athletic aid Hugh Smithwick, has experienced poor seasons for the last two years and started the ball rolling in the same direction last week with a one-sided 39-6 loss to Lewis and Clark.

The Wolf Pack freshman (junior varsity) team opens its second season since the rejuvenation of the program today against the Sacramento State jayvees at Sacramento in the lid-lifter of a four-game schedule.

John Genasci, defensive grid specialist and heavyweight boxer for the Wolf Pack, who has used up his eligibility, is handling this year's Nevada frosh.

Several former Wolf Pack athletes and PE graduates are now coaching at various high schools around Nevada. John Legarza has returned to Elko, Jerry Tobin is coaching six-man football at Gabbs, little Mike Thompson and Bob Prida are assisting Chuck Walker with football at Winnemucca, Dave Brady is a six-man football mentor at Tonopah, Bob Peck is at Rancho (Las Vegas), and Chris Nenzel is teaching junior high school in Reno.

Pack Jayvees To Sacramento

After their first victory of the season the University of Nevada freshman football squad, under the supervision of assistant varsity football coach Bill Ireland, will travel to California's capital city to play the Sacramento State junior varsity this afternoon.

Carrying a three-game winning streak into today's fracas the coaching staff expects to take about 28 of the 30 freshmen on the trip, Nevada's 1960 frosh team racked up the three-game win streak as they went undefeated for the season.

Other assistants backing up Ireland on the yearling coaching staff are John Genasci, a former Nevada griddier, and Don Ward. Ward is a senior at the University this year and a former member of the 1961 Wolf Pack varsity, but injuries forced him out for the season.

The coaches said frosh that have shown potential so far are linemen Alden Hesterlee, an end from Lovelock; Ron Worthington, tackle from Elko; Jim Barratte, guard from Petaluma, Calif.; Tim Farrel, end from Reno; including backs Frank Echave of Winnemucca and Bill Lavielle of Smith Valley.

Wolf Pack Cross Country Squad Is Busily Preparing for Distance Grinds

Preparing for dual cross country college meets are nine long-distance men of the University of Nevada who have been training under the direction of Coach Bill Joyner of the University coaching staff for two weeks. The Wolfpack will be host to Chico State here in Reno October 7 as both distance squads make their debut in the 1961 cross country season for the Far Western Conference.

YWCA Names New Director

Mrs. Louise McIntyre has been appointed the new executive director of the YWCA to replace Mrs. Ruthe Talcott, who resigned last June. In addition, the YWCA office has moved from the student union building to an office in the USO, 1021 No. Virginia, across the street from Manzanita hall.

Active in YM-YW work all her life, Mrs. McIntyre was Y-Teen director in Reno during 1949-50. Last year she was the faculty advisor to the Cal Aggie Christian association at Davis. She also attended the Asilomar conference, the YM-YW conference for the Pacific region, as a representative of Davis.

Tentative office hours, says Mrs. McIntyre, are 11 a.m. through 3 p.m. "We are here," she said, "as a service to the students."

Coach Joyner said this week that the men are working out on their own time and whenever they get the chance. He said that some of the men are working part time while in school. The group as a whole has not been able to schedule a training session together.

Joyner said, "If the boys have the time to work out efficiently and often, Nevada should be able to hold its own in the five scheduled meets with opponents this season."

Nevada cross-country competition starts with Chico State, Sacramento Invitational Oct. 14, a triangler meet with Sacramento State and San Francisco State Oct. 21, Humboldt State in a dual meet Nov. 11 and the Far Western Conference meet here Nov. 18.

Of Chico State Joyner said, "Chico is undoubtedly in shape now and if we are going to be ready we're subject to many diligent workouts before the seventh."

Commenting on the individuals in training for the distance team Joyner said there were valuable runners with experience on this season's squad.

Doug Ketron, a junior and conference record holder in the two-mile run last year with a track time of 9:16, is back this year putting bulk into thenine man team. John Barney, second in the mile for the conference and presently holding the school record in the mile at 4:17, will be running along side of teammate Ketron.

Ronald Lee, a freshman from Fallon and record holder for the mile and half mile in high school, is expected to be one of the younger workhorses for the squad. Le-land Sheppard, a transfer from Bakersfield, Calif., Junior College, has had cross-country experience and will be counted on for extra duty by Joyner.

Others in training are Mike Andrews, Joel Borstad, Truce Truman, Al Mayer and another freshman, Frank Egenhoff.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA PLEDGES

Everything Is 90%

By RICHARD MORRIS

Sturgeon's Law states: "Everything is 90% crud." This is an immutable, universal law; there are no exceptions. Before proceeding further, it might be well to discuss how this great insight came to be propounded.

Someone once told Sturgeon that his work was 90% crud. Sturgeon thought about this, and realized that this accusation was entirely true. This bothered him very much, until, in a moment of supreme inspiration, he saw that EVERYTHING WAS 90% CRUD. He realized that this was not something which he could keep to himself; the world had to be told. This great message was given to Man, who, until this time, had lived in the squalor of ignorance.

Anyone who meditates upon the subject must realize that Sturgeon's Law is indeed valid, and that there is nothing worthwhile but sex and drinking, in spite of the fact that our society tries to convince us that the Great American Rat Race is sacred, and that the American people are near-perfect. (provided that they are white Christians).

I do not wish to philosophize in too deep a manner, but perhaps a few examples will help to demonstrate the Futility Of It All:

Li ("I raise my cup and invite the moon to drink with me.") Po was a very great ancient Chinese poet and philosopher who devoted his life to extolling the virtues of drinking. Chinese scholars insist that his poems have "the quality of lightning". One time, I was wandering through Chinatown in San Francisco when I received the pleasant surprise of seeing a cocktail lounge named "Li Po". I immediately went inside and ordered a drink. I said to the bartender, "After reading so much of Li Po's poetry, I think that it's wonderful to find a place named after him. But tell me, do they generally name bars after Chinese poets, or does Li Po alone have that honor?"

The little Chinese bartender replied, "Let's see your ID."

One night, after photographing a toy sailboat that had been floating on the water sheild of the physics department's nuclear reactor, I stopped at the Little Wal, and after I had been there for a while, scribbled "Morris photo" on the wall of the men's room. Now a lawyer friend of mine informs me that they can charge me for advertising space.

Another time, I saw someone walking down the street dressed like Jesus Christ. Naturally, I followed him, hoping that he would preach a sermon.

Jesus turned into a bar and ordered a beer.

Some people may not agree with my outlook on life, but then, they probably suffer from being normal. A psychologist tells me that I am schizophrenic; the psychoanalysts say that people who attempt to write satire are really trying to give vent to their sadistic tendencies, and that photographers are really frustrated voyeurs. Until I heard all this, I never knew how screwed up I really was.

But then, the psychoanalysts do not tell us why pepole become psychoanalysts.

(Someone has been trying to tell me that there are other things besides sex. Now, she couldn't think of anything, and I couldn't think of anything. But if I can think of something by next week, I fully intend to wrote on it.)

FSE Exams Open To Upperclassmen

University of Nevada juniors, seniors, and graduate students are among those eligible to take the 1962 Federal Service Entrance examination. Under the direction of the United States Civil Service Commission, the examination is an essential step for those seeking employment opportunities with the federal government.

Applications are now being accepted for examinations being held from Oct. 14, 1961 through May 12, 1962.

Successful completion of the FSEE can mean employment opportunity in 60 occupational fields throughout the United States.

Interested students should see William E. Rasmussen, director of student employment, for applications to take the examination and for further information.

English Prof Warns

Dr. Charlton G. Laird, chairman of the department of English, warns students to be wary of poetry associations which sponsor contests or ask for manuscripts to be submitted for consideration.

Dr. Laird says there are usually two types of these associations. The first is formed to bilk college students by asking for large sums of money to have poetry printed. The second type is worthwhile and interested in college poetry.

The trademark of the two is usually the amount of money they want for publication of a poem. The more honest firms may ask the student to purchase the book, but the student is under no obligation to do so.

Army Medic Officer Interviews Students

Captain Marilyn J. Anderson, Army medical specialist corps representative from the Presidio of San Francisco, will be on the University of Nevada campus Oct. 23 to interview students and faculty and to acquaint them with opportunities offered by the Army medical service in the fields of occupational therapy, physical therapy and dietetics.

The Army medical service conducts a one-year program in physical therapy for women who have a baccalaureate degree and the necessary prerequisites in the biological and physical sciences. It also offers a dietetic internship and an occupational therapy clinical affiliation to qualified women. Applicants selected for these programs are commissioned as second lieutenants in the Army medical specialist corps.

Undergraduates in home economics, majoring in foods and nutrition or institution management, who have completed the sophomore or junior year, may secure financial aid of over $200 a month through participation in the Army student dietitian program. Upon graduation students are appointed second lieutenants and selected for the Army dietetic internship.

Students who will soon complete their junior year in foods and nutrition or institution management may apply for the dietetic summer practicum as temporary civil service "student employees." This six-week program is offered at several of the Army's teaching hospitals throughout the country.

Captain Anderson, who is a physical therapist and a graduate of the University of Washington, will be available for interviews at room 104D Ross hall.

Appointments for interviews can be made with Miss Roberta Barnes, assistant dean of women.

of departmental qualifications. Qualifications were judged on the department's staff, library facilities, demand for the program, and the present teaching load in the department.

Chairmen of the departments offering the new programs are Dr. E. R. Larson, geology; Dr. S. W. Liefson, physics; Prof. A. L. Higginbotham, journalism.
