

Eugene Burdick Here Thursday

Author, Professor Gives 8 p.m. Talk In Dining Common

The author of the best-seller "The Ugly American" and associate professor in political theory at the University of California at Berkeley, Eugene Burdick, will be on campus Thursday night to speak to University students and the general public on the problems of Southeast Asia.

Burdick will give his address at 8 p. m. in the dining commons.

The noted political authority will base most of his talk Oct. 5 on a recent trip to the Far East where he studied the problems of Southeast Asia, concentrating especially on communist infiltration of Laos.

"The Ugly American," which he co-authored with William J. Lederer, shows the failings of American diplomacy in the Far East and especially points out why democracy is losing to communism.

"The Ugly American" will be seen in motion picture form when it is released in the spring of 1962. The movie version of the dynamic novel will feature Marlon Brando.

Burdick's first novel is entitled "The Ninth Wave" and was a Book-of-the-Month club choice. It, too, was recently published by Hollywood for filmign.

The California professor, being brought to the University by the student union board, is also the author of "American Voting Behavior" and has written extensively in political journals. On his return from the Far East last spring, he wrote an article on his findings which was published in many magazines and newspapers.

In addition, Burdick has written many short stories and articles which have been published in everything from the New Yorker to Argosy. His short stories have been included in various anthologies, including the noted O'Henry Prize Stories collection.

Burdick recently finished writing another book, "The Blue of Capricorn" which deals with the South Pacific and will be published Oct. 16 of this year. The author owns a small nipa hut in Tahiti and from there has sailed out to almost all of the archipelagoes and islands of the South Seas. Nipa is a type of palm, the branches of

Save Pennies For United Fund Drive

The annual collection for the United Fund started yesterday, Oct. 2, and will last approximately one month. At the University, Bob Kersey, student union director, will be the campus chairman, and Bill Adams assistant chairman.

A "captain" from each living group of the University has been appointed who will supervise the collection in his house or dorm, and report to the campus chairman at the end of the drive.

Fraternities, sororities, and dormitories' door-to-door collections also began yesterday. These groups are collecting money from people in the Reno-Sparks area who are interested in contributing to the fund.

Campus goal collection for this year is expected to be somewhere between $3500 and $4000. The group collecting the most money in the door-to-door collection will be honored by the dean of men, dean of students affairs, University president and vice president, who will "hash" at the winner's house for one night.

International Nevada Gets Underway Oct. 26

The University of Nevada will celebrate its forty-first annual Homecoming celebration with the theme, "Nevada Goes International".

The theme was chosen to emphasize the increasing importance international relations will have upon the world, and also to promote interest in the newly formed Collegiate Council for Homecoming chairman Lynn Gerow.

This year the Homecoming assembly has been eliminated, and the celebration will be a three-day affair beginning on Thursday, Oct. 26, with an international buffet dinner. The dinner will feature foreign foods, costumes, and music, and all students will be encouraged to attend.

That evening at 8 p. m. the student's night for Wolves Frolic will be presented. Wolves Frolic will feature skits from the different living groups on campus, and also at this time the homecoming queen and her court will be introduced.

The following night at 8 p. m. Wolves Frolic will be presented for the alumnae.

The many events scheduled for Saturday will start with the cross-country race at 9 a. m. The parade begins at 10:30 followed by the football game at 2 p. m. in Mackay stadium between Nevada and Cal-Poly. The traditional mass band consisting of many Nevada high school bands will entertain at half-time.

That evening at 9 p. m. the Homecoming dance will be held at the Swede Mathisen building. At the intermission the winners of the float and Wolves Frolic competition will be announced and awarded trophies.

Coeds Play With Matches

A hundred and fifty passersby gathered to watch at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon as five fire trucks roared up to the New Residence hall only to find 100 bewildered coeds standing outside the hall listening to a false fire alarm.

As the piercing sound of the fire alarm attracted spectators from all over the area, 14 firemen with hatches and hoses raced into the dorm to discover there was no fire.

Two residents of the hall, thinking that the circular seals in their ceiling were sprinklers, had held a match to a seal and set off an alarm that brought nearly every fire truck in the city to the scene.

Fire Chief Victor Marini later explained that each of the seals when penetrated by excessive heat sets off a massive alarm system that immediately buzzes the city fire department as well as four floors of the dorm.

To prevent further incidents of this type Chief Marini will explain the system to the residents of the hall tonight in the education auditorium.

Club Parade Tomorrow

Eighteen organizations met the Sept. 27 deadline for registering for the annual activities parade, to be held tomorrow, Oct. 4 in the student union lounge.

Soliciting members will be the Young Republicans, SNEA, Pep Club, Artemisia, CCUN, Young Democrats, Wesley Club, Ski Club, Lutheran Students, Lambda Delta Sigma, YWCA, Aggie Club, Sagers, Newman Club, Chess Club, Philosophy Club, Chemistry Club, and Campus Players. Sagers is open to sophomore men only.

Groups entering the parade will have their booths set up by 10:30, with some decoration or means of attraction, and will have available information on the first or next meeting.

The main objectives of the activities parade is to publicize the various organizations on campus and to gain membership. All freshmen and new students are especially urged to acquaint themselves with the opportunities for membership.

ASUN second vice - president Marlene Ferrari explained that the parade has not been very well supported in previous years.

"Unless more interest and enthusiasm is shown by the students," she said, "this may be its last year on campus."

Beauty Judgment Back To Men For Homecoming

Back to the male population on campus goes choice of all University queens, following a recent decision by AWS.

Men students, who last year had to watch helplessly as the Homecoming queen was judged and determined winner by citizens from off campus, will be restored to their rightful position as campus beauty judges.

The last Homecoming queen was selected by a board of judges, eliminating the male vote and causing a good deal of controversy. But AWS council, sensing the wounded male egos, reverted back to the old tradition.

Names of queen candidates must be in no later than 5 p. m. tomorrow, Oct. 4. Competition is open to sophomore, junior, and senior women only.

In carrying out the overall Homecoming theme "Nevada Goes International," candidates will be photographed in native costumes of various foreign countries.

On Monday, Oct. 23, the candidates will be voted upon in male living groups on campus. Each candidate will also eat one meal at each living group sometime before voting closes, Wednesday, Oct. 25. Men students not voting in the various living groups may vote on that day in the student union.

Bev Roberson, AWS president, says the council hopes to get as many men as possible to vote for 1961 Homecoming queen.

Freshmen Paint Peavine Saturday

The traditional 'N' on Peavine mountain will be boasting a new coat of white after freshmen students make the annual trek up the mountain as a mild form of initiation on Frosh-Soph field day, Saturday, Oct. 7.

According to sophomore class president Jim Rowe who is in charge of the activities this Saturday, underclassmen will meet around 8:30 a. m. at the new gym.

After the 'N' painting, the group will return to Clark field for obstacles races and refreshments. Rowe says the activities on campus should start around noon or shortly thereafter.

Rockefeller

Governor Makes Stop Here Thur.

New York's governor Nelson D. Rockefeller will be on campus to talk to University students for about ten or 15 minutes this Thursday around 9:45 a. m.

According to Dave Short, student union board president, Rockefeller will drop by the campus just before he addresses a legislators' conference in Reno at 10 a. m.

Short has been trying to get Rockefeller on campus for the past several weeks after he learned the eastern governor was coming to Reno. He received news this weekend that Rockefeller would be able to give a few minutes from his tight schedule to talk to Nevada students.

Short said the governor will be just outside the union building for his short stop on campus.

Sophomore Prexy Names Committee

Long Climb Up

IT'S HEARD ALL OVER: The University of Nevada is going "big time." In the various areas of campus life, students, faculty, and administration stress their opinions that Nevada is climbing over that hump from a small school to a large university.

THE UNIVERSITY NOW HAS an honors program which is designed to encourage superior students to attend this school. A sabbatical leave program is in effect for the first time starting this year, offering greater benefits to present professors and attracting prospective professors who might otherwise go elsewhere. Student government is working on a plan to present to the Board of Regents to raise the University of Nevada's academic standards.

THESE ARE ALL LONG OVERDUE improvements in the University as a whole and should be supported by the entire campus community.

BUT THERE IS ANOTHER AREA of recent improvement which made great gains before these other programs got off the ground. Still there is little comment on campus about the programs sponsored by the Student Union which bring authoritative opinions from specialists in fields not always covered in college courses. Speakers, such as the Student Union has produced in bringing Vance Packard, Harry S. Truman, William F. Knowland, Erskine Caldwell, and this week Nelson D. Rockefeller and Eugene Burdick, play a major part in fulfilling the basic tenet of a university: learning.

IF THE UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA is really going "big time," student support of such programs will be proof that this school is ready for the big jump. There is an altogether too prevalent tendency on campus to shy away from discussion of events which are not immediately related to campus life. Students are too content with the security found within the mental and physical confines of the University. Nearly anyone can pass on the score of Saturday night's game, but few can discuss the "Berlin crisis" or debate if there is such a thing. Everyone has an opinion on the worth of the Greek system, but few have well-founded opinions on such things on the national scene as American foreign policy, defense spending, the New Frontier, or the John Birch society.

THESE THINGS AREN'T DISCUSSED because very few students take the time to find out what they're all about. But the measure of our up-and-coming University is going to be shown when students look beyond the entrance gate on Ninth street to the Brandenburg gate, but keeping an eye on both.

THE HONORS PROGRAM and elevated academic standards are good starts, and the boola-boola business that is a part of any college must have its part; but there's still a pretty big world outside, and it's doing more than studying from books and going to football games.

Letters To The Editor

Editor:

The United Fund campaign of Washoe County started on Monday, October 2 and will continue through November 4.

This campaign takes the place of previous Community Chest efforts and is Washoe County's one big drive of the year.

The University of Nevada is proud to be included as a chapter plan member of the United Fund and as such to be recognized as a leader in contributing to our community's betterment.

During the next few weeks a campus representative of the United Fund will call on students for their contributions. There will be no house-to-house canvass this year, so student participation will be the one and only contribution requested.

I hope that we may continue to have our University family known throughout the county and state as

Student Opinion Hits New Level; Three Committees to Have Members

It appears that the realm of student influences is widening, and committees which formerly involved just faculty, administration, and regents, will now have student representatives sitting on them.

Now student views will be heard in regard to the new Noble H. Getchell library, the recently-inaugurated honors program, and foreign students on campus.

A student honors committee, as yet with no members, is being formed by ASUN President Paul Bible. When appointments to this committee are made, the student group will work with the University committee on honors studies, headed by Dr. Robert T. Roelofs.

"Student regents," Cecelia Molini and Sam Vaughan, are now a generous supporter of all phases of civic life.

working with regent Dr. Fred Anderson, in studying orientation procedure and activities for foreign students on campus, especially in the areas of housing and social activities.

A third committee, the student library committee, is being chaired by Fred Miller with Jeff Hebert and Rosemary Gain as two additional members. This committee was formed upon request of David Heron, new University librarian, and will be a student version of the faculty library committee of previous years.

Learn Steps; Charm Coeds

In response to student demand, two University students will begin instruction in modern dance early next week. A meeting will be held in the student union this afternoon at four o'clock.

The student instructors, Derek Yoder and Glen Bates, realized the need for the course when numerous students approached them at a sorority function, asking "How do you do that step?"

"If we can recruit enough men and women students, I am sure we can bring some of these dances to the Nevada campus. We are expecting a very good turnout," Yoder stated last week.

Bates, a senior student in civil engineering, will concentrate mainly on the Scottish fling, popular on large campuses. Yoder, a freshman basketball scholarship holder, emphasizes the need for all men to know the "Twist", since most coeds already know the dance, but have difficulty finding men who do.

Interested persons are urged to contact these men on campus or call FA 3-7830 for further information.

Young Blood Good In GOP—Goldwater

"The most encouraging thing in the Republican party in the last three years is the more and more young faces in the crowd."

That was part of the message directed by Zarry F. Goldwater, junior senator from Arizona and staunch conservative, when he addressed a large gathering at Tahoe Harrah's Southshore room Sundry as main speaker for the annual Douglas county Republican dinner.

Bigger, Better Directory Due

The new campus student directory is scheduled to appear sometime between now and mid-October.

The directory will contain many features that it has not contained in the past. This year it will include the names of campus, fraternity, and sorority officers and handy tips for University of Nevada students.

The directory, put out by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, and the ASUN, will be larger than it has been in the past because information about 2800 students is in the book along with the new features.

John Firpo, editor, said that it will be a "bigger and better directory."

Goldwater aimed his comments on the younger generation in the Republican party, particularly to around 50 Young Republicans from the University of Nevada. In acknowledging this group, he went on to "place a wager that more young Republicans will be voting in 1962 than young Democrats."

The senator, who willed in as the main speaker when GOP national president William Miller was unable to fill the scheduled spot, said he is most encouraged by the tremendous enthusiasm shown by the young people in the party.

He said this generation is an unusual one; one that has seen no wars nor depressions, and that it realizes that gigantic spending is not the answer and that if it continues, the young generation will be paying for it.

Goldwater stressed the importance of party unity on the state and local level and said, "Forget 1964. The way to stop the Democratic party in 1964 is to take the House of Representatives for the Republican party in 1962."

For a Republican victory in 1964, Goldwater said the work must come at the state and local levels, and he urged those in the audience to get together and bury their differences. He added that "it is better to have someone in the White House you can talk to, rather than someone you can't get through the front door to see."

He continued to stress 1962, saying "either we win big in '62 or we won't have a chance in 1964."

In a reference to President John F. Kennedy, Goldwater said that without victory in 1962, "we can't stop the New Deal legislation."

In touching on the 86th Congress which just ended last week, Senator Goldwater termed it "the longest, most watesful, and in my opinion, the most harmful session."

He said every piece of legislation passed puts more power in the federal government and creates more extensive bureaucracy. Goldwater said the New Frontier, Kennedy's administration, and its policies, is just "a warmed-over Madison avenue version of the New Deal, but not so successful."

The leader of conservatives all over the nation continued to comment on Keddendy's administration in saying that "All it takes to be a New Frontiersman is to have been a failure somewhere else." The senator pointed out that before Kennedy took office he said he would have successful people in his administration for a successful government.

In his usual light, off-the-cuff manner, Goldwater recalled for the audience Kennedy's pledge to put the American people out of jobs back to work. The Arizona senator said employment is still unsatisfactory "because Kennedy's administration doesn't know what it is to earn a dollar."

He said the only new jobs Kennedy has created have been 73 new federal government jobs. With a smile, Goldwater said "Kennedy talks like Churchill and acts like Chamberlain."

With more of his serious-but-humorous remarks, Goldwater told the audience which filled the Southshore room that Kennedy can still maintain one of his campaign statements that "Rebuilding the prestige of America should be the primary objective of the next President of the United States."

New Civil Engineering Professor No Stranger To Nevada

Newest addition to the faculty of the civil engineering department this fall is Prof. Arnold DeAngelis. A native of New Jersey, Professor DeAngelis received his B. S. degree in civil engineering at Rutgers university and his M. S. degree, also in civil engineering, at Lehigh university.

Professor DeAngelis spent the last 12 years on the west coast, in California and Washington, making frequent trips to the Sierra-Nevada area where he broke his leg skiing on Mt. Rose eight years ago.

On his impressions of the University of Nevada, Professor DeAngelis stated, "I am extremely happy with my job and I like the people I work with. I expect I shall be here for a long time."

StereoStuff

By PAT BOURNE

Remember when the record people were looking for a "new sound?" The search wen on wildly and weirdly and then the Ahmad Jamal Trio appeared and the sound, new and good, had been found.

Ahmad Jamal sold millions of LP's as the piano-playing head of a trio that also included Israel Crosby on bass and Bernell Founier on drums.

Ahmad Jamal has again created a new sound by adding the violin of Joe Kennedy and the guitar of Ray Crawford to his ensemble. "Jamal devotees may find Ahmad has put more impact and a richer flavor than usual into this first record session with a fivesoce, and they're likely to agree that the added strings are a worthwhile experiment. The youthful veteran continues to be a musician who speaks softly but carries a subtle wallop," says William Leonard of the Chicago Tribune about the LP "Listen to the Ahmad Jamal Quintet".

Nine Simone was born 25 years ago into a family of eight children who all sang or played an instrument. She was singing and playing the piano by the time she was four and a half and soon the local church rang with the voices of the Simone sisters (Nina and two of her sisters).

When she graduated at 17 she left home for Philadelphia where she continued her piano studies and made a living by teaching piano and accompanying singers of the popular idiom. After studying piano at New York's famous Juilliard School of Music, she decided to give vent to her subdued vocal talents and appeared at the Mid-Town Club in Atlantic City. This was only the beginning of her fantastic career as a jazz musician.

Today Nina Simone combines her inspired love for progressive jazz and her classical training to give her fans some of the most interesting instrumental and vocal sounds of modern music.

Intramural softball competition ends today as Alpha Tau Omega plays the winner of the game of Sept. 29, which is still in play at press time.

One of the final games was played last Friday between Sigma Nu and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The game was carried from Thursday night to Friday on account of darkness when the score was 9 to 4 in favor of the Sigma Nus. The remaining inning that was played Friday favored the men of SAE when the fourth batter, Bill Nelson, hit a home-run having the bases loaded and giving his team a total of four runs.

Then single hits by Duncan Knowles and Bill Converse loaded first and third bases, and finally a double hit by Don Leahy gave the SAE's the chance to break the close tie, ending the game with a score of 13 to 12 in favor of the SAE's.

The pre-final scores stand as follows:

	GW	GL	PT

Most Points in Decade For Pack

Behind 7-0 with only 12 seconds gone in the game, the Nevada Wolf Pack stormed from behind with three touchdowns in both the second and final periods to grind out a 41-20 win over the Portland State Vikings in the home game opener at Mackay stadium Saturday night.

Fleet Portland halfback Bill White, a 5-8, 163-pound sophomore, stunned Nevada players and fans on the opening kickoff when he streaked right through the middle for an 85-yard touchdown jaunt.

Nevada back Bobby Herron finished as the game's workhorse with 23 carries for 160 net yards, while another Pack back, Calvin Campbell toted 14 times for 86 yards, including three touchdowns.

With eight carries for 47 yards, White provided Coach Hugh Smithwick's Vikings with their best show of the game on offense, but the little man turned in his best performance on defense. Apparently the fastest man on the field, White several times hauled down Nevada's fleet backs after long runs and delayed Pack scoring attempts.

Left-footed kicker Frank McCormack booted Portland's extra-point after White's dazzling run making the score 7-0, Portland. The two clubs then settled down for a scoreless battle for the remainder of the period.

In their first offensive effort, the Wolf Pack could only move to their own 34 yard line before Bob Alfred boomed a 61 yard punt. The visitors moved to their own 32 before their drive stalled, and White punted out. When Nevada crossed into Viking land, the busy McCormack stopped the show with an interception of Jack Renwick's pass on his own 36 and returned it to midfield.

The first quarter ended with Portland on the move, but a major penalty for an ineligible receiver downfield stalled the march at the Nevada 46. On Nevada's first play of the second period, Renwick hit end Jim Whitaker on the Pack 35, and the hard running Pack letterman rambled to the Portland 10 before he was overhauled by White.

Herron carried twice for two and eight yards, leaving the ball six inches short of the goal. Renwick then went it on a quarterback sneak for the TD. His pass for the two-point conversion was broken up by Scott Crenhaw and Nevada trailed by 7-6.

Nevada held the Vikings for downs at the Pack 14 to start its next drive. After Campbell and Herron got Nevada a first down at the 24, Herron dynamited for 62 yards to the Viking's 14, where the jet-propelled White again stopped the play.

On fourth down, Campbell boomed to the left and dived into the end zone for the go-ahead TD. Herron's attempt for the two-pointer was stopped, and Nevada led, 12-7.

Just before the first half ended, Renwick's keeper play resulted in another six points. This score was set up by a 21-yard pass play from Renwick to end Rick Miles. Renwick booted the extra point for a 19-7 halftime advantage.

In the opening minutes of the third quarter, White shortstopped a Renwick pass at the Pack 45 and returned it for a touchdown to cut the deficit to 19-13. Neither team scored again in the third period, but with less than two minutes into the final quarter, White scored again, this time going over guard from 12 yards out. McCormack's lefty kick put the visitors on top again, 20-19.

With Herron and Campbell doing most of the running, Nevada staged a 64-yard drive climaxed by Campbell's seven yard TD run. Jim Cawiezell got the two-point conversion on a keeper, making it 27-20, Nevada.

The next time the Pack got possession, Campbell went over from the two, setting up his own TD with a 27-yard run. Cawiezell again got the two-point conversion to make the count 35-20 with a little more than a minute to play.

Nevadan Myron Carpenter intercepted a Bob Grant pass on the 50 and darted half the length of the field for another insurance touchdown with only 13 seconds left.

Nevada dominated the game, statistic wise, with 17 first downs to nine for Portland State and with a net total of 424 yards compared with 187 for the Vikings.

Nevada, who evened up its record at 1-1, meet Chico State next week at Mackay Stadium in the first conference game for the Pack.

ARCHIE SAYS:

My cousin Archie—he thought the electric razor his gal gave him last Christmas was o.k. Then he tried Old Spice Pro-Electric, the before shave lotion. Now the guy won't stop talking, he thinks electric shaving is so great.

ARCHIE SAYS Pro-Electric improves electric shaving even more than lather improves blade shaving. ARCHIE SAYS Pro-Electric sets up your beard by drying perspiration and whisker oils so you shave blade-close without irritation. ARCHIE SAYS Pro-Electric gives you the closest, cleanest, fastest shave.

If Archie ever stops talking, I'll tell him I use Old Spice Pro-Electric myself.

SO DO I.

P. S. There's a .60 size but Archie gets the 1.00 bottle. (He always was a sport).

Softball Over, Race Continues

The first phase of intramural athletics is coming to a close with that end of softball season.

The rest of the year will see competition in cross-country, volleyball, badminton, basketball, bowling, baseball, track and tennis.

Each fraternity fields a team, along with both dormitories.

All teams vie for the Kinnear trophy, donated by the Kennecott Copper corporation. During the history of the trophy, the chief competition has been between Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Nu. The Lambda Chi's have won it, and it went to the Independents last year.

Pat McCarran's Repaired Statue Is Moved From Fine Arts Building

A recently-repaired plaster model of a statue of the late Senator Pat McCarran was removed a short time ago from the University of Nevada's fine arts building to the Nevada state museum in Carson City.

The clay model was used to pattern the bronze statue of the eminent Nevada senator, which is now in the statuary hall in the national capitol in Washington, D. C.

This model was made last year by Mrs. J. Craig Sheppard, Reno sculptress. The bronze casting in Washington was made in the New York foundry of Sculpture House.

While being shipped from New York to Reno, the 600-pound-plus statue became damaged at some point east of Denver, Colo.

Mrs. Sheppard received 20,000 for her work and approximately $1,000 was expended for incidentals, including a reception in the national capitol following the unveiling ceremonies. This ceremony was attended by nearly 1,000 people.

The eight-foot statue was moved from the University to the state museum Thursday, Sept. 27, by a crew of four men. There were no incidents in the moving of the bulky work, but it was necessary to hand-carry it up to the second-floor McCarran room as it was too large for the elevator.

"We are very happy that our statue project has been completed successfully" said Joseph F. McDonald Sr., chairman of the McCarran Statue Committee. This committee was created by the 1955 state legislature. The state of Nevada appropriated $10,500 for the statue, and this was matched by contributions from friends of the senator and his family.

An unveiling ceremony is now being planned.

The men of two Nevada fraternities and their dates held after-game dances in their fraternity houses Saturday night. The Sig Eps held a "Fireside" dance at their house, while the SAE's finished off the evening at their Evans Avenue residence.

Frolic Cost Up; Metten Predicts $1,000 Profit

This year's Wolves Frolic cost has been set at $2,480 as compared to last year's figure of $2,220. The Frolic budget was submitted by director Dr. Charles Metten to the ASUN finance control board last week.

Although the budget has been increased by $260 over last year's figure, the profit is expected to be $1,100, and may be as much as $1,500. This makes Wolves Frolic one of the few University of Nevada activities that actually pays for itself.

Last year the Frolic made a profit of $1,319, which was the highest mark reached in Homecoming history. This was reached, according to Dr. Metten, because of the two-night showing.

"They said I was crazy to even try and run it two nights," exclaimed Metten, "but I can see now that it's the only way."

He also stated that the two-night stand was better for participants as "it hardly seems right to work so hard and long to have the whole thing over so quickly."

Some of the more expensive items on the budget list were director's salary, $450; orchestra fee, $400; and an estimated $500 for equipment, scenery, and a public address system.

Manzanita Project Could Waste Money

Nine thousand dollars may go down the drain if Blue Key reaches the goal it set to have Manzanita Lake cleaned and spends it to do so. Right now they have $815.11 collected to do a job which Dr. Hugh N. Mazingo, associate professor of botany says "would be a waste of money."

"The sensible thing to do is just learn to enjoy it," he added.

DGWS Names Felshin To Sports Post

Dr. Janet R. Felshin, assistant professor of health, physical education, and recreation at the University of Nevada, has been named publications chairman of the Division of Girl's and Women's Sports.

The DGWS is a branch of the national organization, American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

As Publications chairman, Dr. Felshin will be responsible for the final editing of the ten rule guides that are published every two years.

As chairman, Dr. Felshin has a seat on the executive committee and another on the policy committee. Any woman PE teacher in American high schools or colleges is eligible for the position.

In addition to her editing activities, Dr. Felshin will attend two national meetings. At Christmas, she will attend the executive committee meeting in Chicago, and in March she will go to the national conference.

Pep Club Makes Plans

A Pep club meeting was held Sept. 28 to give the women in the club an idea of a tentative schedule for the coming year. The women met members of the football team, and the song and yell leaders, and were shown several cheers.

Marilyn Madsen, chairman, said that the women will wear small artificial chrysanthemums or 'pom-pom flowers' to distinguish them as members.

It is hoped that the club will be able to sponsor after-game dances as a fund-raising project. The money will enable the group to attend several of the out-of-town games.

The red plant covering the surface of the lake is Azolla, an aquatic fern. The green plants mixed with it are referred to as duckweed. The Azolla has been common for years throughout this area, but conditions have to be just right for it to grow. The botany department does not know what these conditions are, but they think they are due to some combination of mineral salts in the water. Dr. Mazingo thinks the plant may not occur next year at all. He also said that the plant will die during the winter and sink to the bottom.

Azolla drops spores which will grow under the perfect conditions. Dr. Mazingo explained that "such conditions could occur next year, but probably not." Botanists do not know when the plant will re-occur. Sometimes Azolla may not grow at all for at least three or four years, if at all.

There is also valuable animal life in the lake. Dr. Ira La Rivers, chairman of the biology department says the lake contains black-mouth bass, suckers, two or three muskrats and ducks. He added that "cleaning and draining the lake will destroy all wildlife." Some of this wildlife is hydra and protozoa species which are needed for the proper instruction in many biology courses.

Dr. La Rivers pointed out that the biology department likes the lake the way it is, as it is a "healthy environment".

The campaign by Blue Key is called "Project Mud", and the most students have tried to have the lake cleaned because it was dirty, full of weeds, beer cans, and broken glass.

The campaign by Blue Key, upperclassmen's service organization, is called "Project Mud". But this is not the first attempt by students to have the lake cleaned, although it is the most extensive. Many students in past years have tried to have the lake cleaned because it was dirty, and full of weeds, beer cans, and broken glass.

The biology department claims, however, that none of the plants or animals in the lake is harmful.

New Chaplain Is Student

Father James R. McNally, newly-assigned chaplain of the local club, was introduced at the first meeting held on Sept. 27. He presented a tentative schedule for future lectures and social activities of the club.

The regular bi-monthly meetings will include lectures on such subjects as "the Sacraments", "the Ten Commandments", and "the Four Last Things". Social activities will fill the remaining two weeks of each month.

The Newman club hopes to sponsor guest speakers and personalities on campus at the University dining commons.

Election of officers will be held Oct. 11, and Dr. T. R. Martin, professor of marketing in the college of business, will again serve as faculty advisor.

Father McNally is a student at the University of Nevada, in the school of administration, and is teaching at Bishop Manogue high school. He is planning visits to each of the fraternity and sorority houses to promote interest in Newman club and religion in general.

Mike Cannon, manager of the Newman House, has welcomed Catholic and non-Catholic students as well to visit the center, at 829 North Virginia street. It is open daily until midnight and has available a chapel, a library and reading room, and a T. V. room.

New Actives on Campus

Five new Delta Delta Delta actives have been seen on campus since Friday morning wearing the Tri-Delta pin, the crescent and the trident.

Initiation for Judy Berger, Lorraine Pirda, Jo Ann McCloud, Susie Nichol, and Betty Whalen began on Wednesday, Sept. 27, and was concluded Thursday evening.
