

ONLY VAGUELY RESEMBLING the Great Debates of the Lincoln-Douglas era and the more recent verbal encounters between U. S. presidential candidates Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy was another classic argument which took place in the student union Wednesday afternoon between ASUN First Vice President Bob VanLydegraf and ASUN President Paul Bible. The two student leaders debated the merits of the new proposed ASUN constitution before assembled students, some of whom later added their own comments. Veep VanLydegraf, who together with a few other student leaders, framed the controversial constitution, spoke in its defense and attempted to explain its flexibility and why it appeared on campus so suddenly. Prexy Bible, in rebuttal, said he saw worth in the constitution, but that in its present form it could be used by power-hungry individuals for their own gains. As a result of this "Great Debate," the constitution will be distributed on campus and will go to Senate for changes and discussion. The proposed constitution has encountered heated opposition from many other student leaders. Senate will determine whether this constitution will reach the student body for an acceptance or rejection vote.

The Great Debate

Bible Off To Alaska, Trip On Tau Pledges

ASUN president and ATO pledge trainer Paul Bible was kidnaped from his office by ATO pledges yesterday at 1:45 p.m. It is traditional for the ATO pledges to try to keep their pledge trainer from attending the annual Bowery dance. This year's dance will be held tomorrow night.

Allegedly in possession of a ticket on a salmon boat whose destination is Alaska, eight pledges dragged Bible from his office into the lobby and then carried him to a waiting car. The salmon boat is scheduled to leave San Francisco for Alaska tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Bible, who had advance warning of the planned kidnap, has spent two days either hiding from the ATO pledges or in the company of several ATO actives who functioned as bodyguards. Yesterday the bodyguards were gone and Bible's office door was open and occupied by Phi Sig senator Don O'Donnel and the pledges got in.

Should Bible be put on the salmon boat, he will either have to find his way back from Alaska or his fraternity brothers will have to enlist the aid of the Coast Guard to have him removed from the boat.

According to information received by the Sagebrush Thursday morning, Bible had taped a credit card to the bottom of one foot and had several dimes in the sock on the other foot.

Panty Raid Staged; No Rewards Gained

Sounds of shouting, running, sirens, and laughter accompanied a vain attempt at a panty raid in both women's dormitories Wednesday night.

The panty raid was designed to coincide with the cutting off of all lights on campus when some electrical repair work was being done.

Germany Is Topic of Talk By Captain

What a second lieutenant might encounter if assigned to overseas duty was the topic of a lecture by Captain Raymond H. Miller at the University of Nevada Cadet Officers meeting Thursday, Oct. 5.

The Captain's talk dealt mainly with Germany and the problems an Army officer could expect there.

He spoke on the posts that could possibly be assigned to the army officer, the schools he might attend, and the educational facilities that would be offered to the officer's children in that country. He also pointed out that the officer would have the chance to further his own education by attending the various German universities or the German branch of the University of Maryland during the time he was off duty.

The officer would also be instructed in the advancement of German - American relations and would be encouraged to engage in various German sports, such as soccer, skiing, and German hunting, which has more ritual than hunting in America.

The Captain concluded his talk with color slides taken during his own three-year tour of duty in Europe.

Men students ran crunching through the gravel like guerilla fighters, flashing flashlights and dodging cruising police cars. Some managed to jump, catch the mesh railings on the second floor of the new residence hall. "Men on the landings," girls clad in night clothes yelled.

Before they subsided, the men sang a discordant chorus of "Hey Li Dee Li Dee Lo."

Resident assistants in the dormitories demanded that all girls get back inside the rooms. Finally a three-week campus had to be threatened to force the women students off the landings.

Police had been called and the "raiders" scurried about calling to one another. One was heard to say, "Don't yell my name, you idiot."

Sirens announced the arrival of several fire trucks. Police stopped traffic from both directions on Virginia street.

Editorial Comment

A POLL TO DETERMINE how much students know about the proposed new ASUN constitution might prove interesting. The whole constitution controversy has been one of confusion and contradictions. Sensible planning was sacrificed for expediency.

AND THE ONE ATTEMPT to clear the air and shed a little light onto the nature of the new constitution, the "Great Debate" staged Wednesday afternoon in the student union, did nothing more than add further confusion to the issue and ridicule a few student leaders. Ironically, a discussion of the Berlin Crisis gave way to the "Constitution Crisis."

THE DEBATE MIGHT HAVE BEEN successful if the students who went to hear both sides of the controversy had anything closer than a vague idea of what the new constitution involves. But with only ten copies of the document available, and then only to certain people, the whole issue continued to be very cloudy.

ASUN PRESIDENT PAUL BIBLE and his First Vice President Bob Van Lydegraf both added to the confusion by drawing on extremes as Bible spoke against the constitution and Van Lydegraf in its defense. Together with these rather shaky arguments pro and con, it was impossible for students to learn anything about the constitution without a copy before them to refer to.

AND WHEN A QUESTION-AND-ANSWER period got going, during which students might have had a chance to clear up some of the many discrepancies regarding the constitution, it was abruptly cut off after only a few questions.

AND WHAT CAME OUT OF THIS DEBATE? A decision to make changes in the new constitution and take it to Senate for discussion, something its framers wanted to avoid. Now the controversy is more confusing as it is not known what changes are being made. But copies of the new constitution will be available to all students Monday.

AS VAN LYDEGRAF POINTED out, the ASUN constitution affects every student, either directly or indirectly. And as another student remarked, "Student politics is just a game, a stepping-stone to law school and the big times." Also, although not often heard on campus, student government is nothing more than an extension of the administration and the duties it exercises are privileges, not rights.

KEEPING THESE THREE VIEWS IN MIND, the intelligent student (providing intelligent students are interested in the goings-on of student government) will forget the politics and game-playing involved in this issue and will focus his attention on his rights as a student and in what ways this new constitution may or may not insure them.

EDITOR, THE SAGEBRUSH:

At Dr. Eugene Burdick's lecture in the dining commons last Thursday evening, we were rather disappointed when, during the question and answer session following the address, a University professor seemingly questioned Dr. Burdick's authority to write "The Ugly American" and the validity of his experiences as a basis for his proposals.

We certainly hope that such an attitude does not prevail among other professors or the students of this University.

Anti-Federalists

EDITOR, THE SAGEBRUSH

An undercover attempt to radically change the entire structure of student government has finally been forced into the open. At this point there is still question as to when and if copies of this constitution will be made available to the student body. The original attempt to railroad this constitution through in the October 18 election has been abandoned. Since this unethical attempt failed, a new plan of action has been set. The proposed constitution will now be presented to Senate.

The constitution in question dissolves the present structure of the ASUN and places complete, unchecked control in the hands of a 20-member Senate, which has no requirement for a quorum. This constitution is being proposed with the intent of creating a flexible student government, the fallacy being that the Senate has been granted unlimited powers.

Since only ten copies of this constitution have been available, there is a probability that the one presented next week in Senate may be a revision of the current controversial proposal. If this revision should correct the existing fallacies, we would see a constitution far different than that being presently proposed.

Wednesday afternoon a "public forum" was held at which time the pros and cons of the proposed constitution were hedged. The moderator of this discussion, who is supposed to be an impartial figure, was, in actuality, an active advocator of this proposal. When things grew hot for the proponents of this constitution, discussion was closed. In addition, how can an "open forum" be conducted for the purpose of discussion when most of the students present had never had the opportunity to read that which was being discussed? If this is the "democratic process" to which the participants refer, we want no part of it.

The need for a more flexible constitution is recognized; however, this proposed constitution will not fulfill this need properly. We do not support this constitution, nor do we condone the methods used to pursue its adoption.

Hammarskjold

EDITOR, THE SAGEBRUSH:

We, as students of the University of Nevada, feel that it is necessary to respond to the letter by Dr. John H. DeTar that appeared in the Sagebrush on Oct. 10. We totally dispute the points that the good doctor made in reference to Dag Hammarskjold, the United Nations and the memorial services which were held on this campus in honor of the late Secretary-General of the United Nations.

We seriously question Dr. DeTar's wisdom—or common sense, for that matter—when he says that "... the use of public property for the Hammarskjold memorial services is contrary to the conscience of Americans dedicated to liberty under constitutional government." We would remind our noble critic that not only did the United States government send official messages of grievance concerning Hammarskjold's death but also that President John F. Kennedy personally sent a delegation of leading Americans to represent this country at the funeral of the late secretary-general. This delegation was headed by the vice-president of our great land. We submit that this hardly would provide the basis of any sorts for charges of un-Americanism to be tossed at any individual or group that saw fit to hold memorial services or show any other sign of grievance over the death of Dag Hammarskjold.

We feel also that the good work of the UN, of which Dag Hammarskjold was secretary-general from 1953 until his unfortunate death, should be mentioned. We can hardly believe that the work of UNESCO, WHO and the FAO is the work of an organization which has shown "contempt of liberty."

It seems absurd to us that Dr. DeTar should baldly state that, "A detailing of the oppressive measures used by the United Nations during Hammarskjold's reign would take volumes..." We doubt if there could be any documentation whatsoever of Dr. DeTar's greatly exaggerated statement.

We are in sympathy with the "captive nations" of the world and are sure that their populous mourned the passing of Dag Hammarskjold as much as all thinking Americans did.

Prof Notes Change

EDITOR, THE SAGEBRUSH:

There appears to be new interest in contemporary affairs on the campus this fall.

This, indeed, is good news. If students are not interested in what is going on around them in these very exciting days, they can hardly be said to be alive.

Many students may not know that a course in the news of the day is available to them.

It is Journalism 101 and 102, Interpreting the Days News. It is open to any students in any college. It is designed to enable them to lay a sound foundation in following the news, both in college and after graduation.

Three sections are being offered as well as one advanced class.

And the subject matter of these courses is just what is stirring the campus so deeply these days.

Very truly yours,
A. L. HIGGINBOTHAM
Chairman, Department of Journalism

Prexy Thanks Help

EDITOR, THE SAGEBRUSH:

On behalf of the Sophomore Class Committee, I would like to take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks to those individuals who helped with the Frosh-Soph Field Day.

I want to thank the handful of people who, in spite of the cold weather, went up to Peavine Mountain with buckets and brooms. Without these individuals, school functions would disappear. Our school needs more people like this in order to make our school year more interesting and enjoyable. Too bad there aren't more like them; if there were, our school would undoubtedly be one of the finest institutions.

Sincerely yours,
JIM ROWE

Biology Offered Over KOLO-TV

University of Nevada's statewide services has announced that a course in general biology will be given in conjunction with the "College of the Air" television program on station KOLO-TV, Reno, beginning Monday, Oct. 16.

Students enrolling in the course will view the 78 half-hour lectures Monday through Friday, from 7:30 to 8 a. m. They will submit their assignments and take their mid-term and final examinations as they would in a regular correspondence course. Dr. Ira La Rivers, chairman of the biology department at the University of Nevada, will be the correspondence instructor. Three college credits may be earned by those completing the studies.

The course is a nationwide program presented by the Learning Resources Institute over the CBS television network and a number of educational television stations. It is supported financially by private industry and the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Ray Koppelman, University of Chicago, has prepared the series, assisted by an advisory committee of prominent biology educators nominated by the American Institute of Biological Sciences. Entitled, "The New Biology," it is under the direction of Dr. Koppelman.

Students wishing to enroll in the University of Nevada course may contact Statewide Services, correspondence division.

Heating Plant Is A Giant Kitchen

Pneumatic tubes, heat exchangers, circuit breakers, PSI, and superheated water — how can a would be journalist tell of anything new and different on this campus when nobody knows what he is talking about, save a few engineers?

To the average sorority pledge superheated water comes out of a Silex coffeepot, and pneumatic implies a lung ailment. This is written in a coed's language.

Faces Of Eve Sunday Movie

"The Three Faces of Eve" starring Joanne Woodward will be shown in the education auditorium this Sunday at 7 p. m.

Based on a true case-history, this is the provocative story of a woman whose psychosis caused her to take on first one personality, then a second, and finally a third — a triple "split personality." (Joanne Woodward's portrayal of the three phases has been widely praised by critics and won her an academy award in 1958.)

Written, produced and directed by Nunnally Johnson, "The Three Faces of Eve" also stars David Wayne and Lee J. Cobb. It is narrated by Allistair Cooke.

Education College Sponsors Meeting

The College of Education will sponsor a meeting of junior high school principals and supervisors and representatives of the State Department of Education tomorrow, Oct. 14.

Factors that will contribute to a more effective preparation of the teacher and administrator for the junior high school grades seven to nine will be discussed.

New factors in academic and professional preparation, and all changes in curriculum requirements and courses will be discussed in order that they may be printed in the 1962-63 University catalogue.

The new and different thing is sort of like that Silex — it is a big coffeepot at the South end of Mackay stadium.

The nucleus of the new thing is shaped something like a toaster, but is roughly the size of a broad truck. Water comes into this big toaster and enters little tubes, which circle in and out of a fire. The water in the tubes gets hot — about 409 degrees. Well, girls, water boils at 212 degrees. But this water doesn't boil, because there is no place for the vapor (steam) to go, so it stays water.

This hot water goes into a great big tank, until a thermostat in the new library, for instance, says "send more heat". This message is sent through a little pipe, called a pneumatic tube. Air in the pipe expands or contracts, operating what's called a switch in a box. The technical name for the box is "computer". The box opens a valve to the corresponding room in the library, and hot water goes to that room. It moves through a series of pipes inside the wall, warming the wall, warming the air, hence warming the room.

The water comes back to the plant, and thermometers measure the temperature as it goes through the boiler. Naturally, the water is cooler. The aforementioned box decides how big the fire under the pipes has to be to bring the water to 409 degrees again.

Thus the water in the big tank is kept to an even temperature, economically. It is interesting to note that the water can be brought under sidewalks adjoining buildings, to remove snow and ice in winter.

U of N Alumnus Is Keyman at Meeting

Among the key-men representing companies from all over the nation at the recent Nevada engineering conference was a former University student, Scott Hill, who is now manager of engineering recruiting for General Electric company.

Hill graduated with the class of 1923 with a B. S. in electrical engineering. While attending the University he was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, was active in student government, and worked on both the Sagebrush and Artemisia staffs.

Hill's home office is now in New York City.

Nevada Frosh To 4-H Conference

Carole Sharp, 17, a freshman student from Tonopah, will travel to Chicago Nov. 26 for the National 4-H Club Congress.

Miss Sharp will be one of Nevada's representatives after she won state honors for her work in home economics.

This is not the first time that Miss Sharp has received 4-H honors. She was the Nevada winner in grounds beautification in 1959 and dairy foods in 1960.

Montgomery Ward in Chicago donated the expense paid trip to Carole for her work.

Other work in 4-H for Carole includes two years as district club president and four years on Nevada's club camp council.

Planetary Exploration Headed By New DRI Atmospheric Physicist

Atmospheric physicist Dr. Lewis D. Kaplan will head the planetary exploration studies leading to the US Venus and Mars space probe experiments, President Charles J. Armstrong has announced.

Dr. Kaplan, formerly with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, joined the staff of the University's Desert Research Institute this fall. The request to head the planetary studies work came from the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, which has been chosen by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to handle the Venus and Mars exploration project.

In his new capacity, Dr. Kaplan will help formulate the research program for the space probes, including the design of instruments and the specification of measurements to be made in the experiments. While this will take up the larger portion of his time, he will remain on the staff of the Desert Research Institute as research professor of atmospheric physics on a part-time basis, Dr. Armstrong said.

Dr. Kaplan gained international recognition as an expert in atmospheric radiation with his studies of the effect of the sun's rays on the temperature distribution in the earth's atmosphere. He served as an advisor in the earth satellite program in meteorology and has contributed much toward the eventual use of satellites in weather prediction.

He studied philosophy and history at Oxford university, graduating with a B. A. In 1946 he returned to Germany where he did graduate work at the University of Freiburg, obtaining his Ph. D. He then worked for the Evangelical Relief Office and also taught at a high school at Stuttgart, 1949-1952.

In 1952 Dr. Schweitzer joined the "Bundeszentrale fuer Heimatdienst," roughly corresponding to the United States Information Administration, in various capacities where he is at present chief of the division for mass media. His specialty is recent German history.

Dr. Schweitzer is also Vice President of "Aktion Gemeinsinn," corresponding to the Advertising Council of America. Dr. Schweitzer has a thorough command of the English language.

Doten Collection Will Make Move

When the University library moves into its new building, the historic Alfred Doten book collection will move in with it.

The collection comprises about 70 small manuscript journals dating from the Civil War to around 1900. They were written by Alfred Doten, a journalist associated with Mark Twain on the Territorial Enterprise.

The collection, purchased from a San Francisco firm last spring, includes old mining stock shares, newspapers, and photographs. It cost the library a cool $55,000. The state donated 20,000, while the Fleischmann Foundation contributed $25,000.

Director of Libraries David Heron says the University will publish the journals as soon as possible.

Also notable among additions to the library is a collection of books by Robert Burns, the Scottish poet.

They were acquired as a gift of Harry and Lelah Gray of Reno through Professor Charlton G. Laird of the English department.

There will also be room in the new library for other small collections stored in various places, including about 20,000 volumes now in the basement of the journalism building.

Everything Is 90%

By RICHARD MORRIS

Last week, Governor Rockefeller got on a "Give me liberty or give me death" kick while trying to convince a number of students that he would rather be dead than Red. For some reason, I cannot convince myself that he really anticipates having to make the choice.

Anyone who sees any similarity between these words and the fact that most of the people who were saying that we should go into Cuba, in the not too distant past, were old men who would not have to go themselves, is either a communist, or does not have the proper respect for "great men."

Anyone who wins an election is automatically a "great man," regardless of whether or not the electorate manages to surmount the difficulties of procuring booze on election day. (It really makes very little difference.)

I hope that no one will get the erroneous impression that I do not respect politicians. I realize that politics is a very difficult, and often unrewarding, profession. Anyone entering into that vocation must master the art of making speeches containing phrases of great emotional content, while saying nothing. Indeed, their everyday speech is of this sort; however, formal addresses usually require some degree of literacy on the part of the politician so that he may repeat what the speech writer has to say.

Since the advent of the disease known as television, we have been able to gain greater insight into the views of men running for office. During election years, there are many interviews, most of which run something like this:

Interviewer: Sir, would you give your views on the coming election?

Politician: I am definitely not a candidate.

I: Excuse me, but weren't you nominated just last week?

P: Oh yes, that's right. I'm very sorry.

I: That's quite all right.

I: Could you express your views on the Berlin crisis?

P: I believe that Berlin presents a very serious problem, very serious. We must take forceful action. We cannot be caught sleeping. We must show the world that we mean to take forceful action.

I: Just what type of action do you believe that we should take?

P: We will make speeches.

I: Sir, I believe that you were chairman of a commission on education. Would you care to comment on your findings?

P: We are for education.

I: Will you elaborate on that?

P: We are for the American public school, nonpartisan, nonsectarian, efficient, democratic, for all the children of all the people.

I seem to have strayed somewhat from the subject of Governor Rockefeller's speech. I must admit that he did make several good points. Many persons may not have previously realized that if we cannot think of anything to do about Communism, we can always say, "I would rather be dead than Red."

This suggests a solution of all of today's world problems. It will only be necessary to convince the majority of the American people that death is preferable to communism, and that all Russians consider death better than living under capitalism. Next, each side can free the population of the other side of the world from the evils of their respective systems by means of a few H-bombs. This plan has the added advantage that the neutrals will be spared having to live under either system.

Female Shooters Reactivate Club

The Women's Rifle club has been revived after several years of inactivity, and is now meeting weekly. Under the direction of Sergeant Roy Lindquist, a group of ten or eleven women has been occupying the rifle range on Monday nights at 7 p. m.

Sergeant Lindquist says the organization is just getting started, and so far no meets with other schools have been arranged. But, he added, if enough interest is shown, the group will receive and accept challenges from other clubs.

Library Staff Adds Five New Members

To meet the demands of a growing student body and to prepare for the move to the new Noble H. Getchell library, five persons have been added to the library staff.

David Heron

David Heron, new director of libraries, is replacing James J. Hill who retired last year. Heron is faced with the task of re-organizing the library in its new building, scheduled to be in use early next year.

Heron comes to Nevada from Stanford University by way of the Far East, where he spent the past year. He was on the library staff at Stanford from 1955 to 1959. He spent the past year at the University of Ryukyus, located on an island south of Japan, where he was an advisor to the librarian at that school.

The new director attended Pomona college and graduated from the University of California at Berkeley. Heron holds an MA degree from the University of California at Los Angeles.

Imogen Ficklen

Imogen Ficklen is now working in the old Clark memorial library in her post as new assistant order librarian. She comes from the New York city area where she was on the staffs of the Brooklyn public library and Hunter college library.

Before receiving her MS in library science at the University of North Carolina, Miss Ficklin spent 12 years in the foreign service. Her home is in Washington, D. C., and she earned her BA in French at American University there.

Harold G. Morehouse

Assistant social science librarian, Harold G. Morehouse is a University of California graduate and holds an MA in library science. Before coming to the University of Nevada, Morehouse was on the staff of the California State library and Areojet corporation in Sacramento.

Simon P. J. Chen

Another new library staff member is Simon P. J. Chen from Formosa, a graduate student in history as well as a cataloguer. Chen came to the United States in 1955 and received his MS degree in library science from the Catholic University of American, Washington, D. C.

Chen earned his BA degree at the National Taiwan University on the island of Formosa. He has a sister living in Los Angeles and a brother who is a chemist at the University of Maryland.

Sam Wood

A librarian for ten years, Sam Wood graduated from the University of Oklahoma in 1951 and worked for the Missouri State historical society as a cataloguer. He holds a similar post now at the University of Nevada.

Wood raises Pekingese dogs as a hobby and entered one of his pets in a show held last week in Reno.

Slave Sale, Songs On Sorority Row

Monday evening was a busy one along "sorority row." In addition to the usual Monday night meetings, three fraternities visited each of the four sororities.

Sigma Nu dropped by each house selling Sigma Nu "salves." These men may be "bought" for a minimum of $2 and will work for an hour doing various odd jobs.

The men of Alpha Tau Omega serenaded each sorority, introduced their candidate for freshman class president, and met each sorority's candidate for AWS representative.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon also serenaded the four sororities and two women's dormitories Monday night. They introduced their candidates for freshmen class president and senator from Arts and Sciences.

Law School Test Given On Campus Next Month

The Law School Admission test will be given on campus the morning of Nov. 18, 1961. The test is a requirement for admission to over eighty American law schools.

During 1960 and 1961 more than twenty-thousand applicants took the test.

A candidate should make separate application for admission to the law school of his choice. He should inquire if and when the school wishes him to take the test.

Admission to next year's freshman class is determined by the November and February test results.

The Law School Admission test features objective questions that measure verbal aptitude and reasoning ability rather than acquired information. The test cannot be "crammed" for.

Sample questions and information concerning the test and its administration are given in a bulletin of information which also includes an application for the test.

It may be obtained four to six weeks in advance of the desired testing date from Law School Admission Service, Princeton, New Jersey. The completed applications must be received at least two weeks before the testing date.

Candidates must obtain their bulletins and applications by Oct. 21, 1961, for the test given on Nov. 18, 1961. Applications for the Feb. 10, 1962 test must be obtained by Jan. 13, 1962.

Nurses Train On The Job

"We're Working Our Way Through College" could certainly be the theme song of the sophomore students in the Orvis School of Nursing.

Seven sophomore nursing students will begin their clinical practice Thursday, Oct. 19, at St. Mary's hospital. The girls will participate in four hours of actual basic nursing practice including administering bed baths and injections. Practice will continue for one day each week through the remaining weeks of the semester.

Student nurses taking part in the clinical practice are Virginia Backus, Madeline Cherry, Muree Drummond, JoAnn Elkins, Ann Prida, Jeannette Snyder, and Sharon Stark.

Much of what is greatest in human achievement involves some element of intoxication.

LDS Group Up Eleven Members

Eleven women and nine men were pledged by Lambda Delta Sigma at a ceremony held Oct. 5. They will be initiated into the organization next semester.

Under the advisorship of Dr. Charles Metten, assistant professor of speech and drama, the group has planned many cultural and religious activities.

Members are now participating in money-raising activities, one of which will be an auction of "people, talents and time." Each member will contribute something to be auctioned to the group on Wed., Oct. 18. They are also selling ball-point pens with the organization's name and address inscribed.

Hartman Heads Manzanita Hall

Marjorit J. Hartman will serve as president of the Manzanita hall association for the fall semester.

Recently elected to serve with her were Rose Moore, vice president; Marianne Frade, secretary; Sarah Pedersen, treasurer; Dawn Starr, corresponding secretary; Susan Hall, ASUN representative; Beverle Roden, AWS representative; Virginia Warner, sports director; Diane McGihon, social chairman; Minnie Hulse, freshman representative; Joyce Burr, inter-dorm representative.

Beverly Seher was elected director of Manzanita hall's Wolves Frolic skit.

By ROYCE FEOUR

University of Nevada's football warriors, inspired by two straight home victories, should pick up their easiest win of the season against the Cal Aggies Saturday afternoon at Mackay Stadium.

The Mustangs from Davis, doormat of the Far Western Conference for the past few seasons, are probably the weakest opponent on the 1961 Wolf Pack schedule, which includes such formidable outfits as Humboldt State, San Francisco State, Cal Poly (Pomona) and Colorado State College.

The Cal Aggie contest comes at a good time on the schedule for Nevada which must play tough San Francisco State next week in the Bay city. The Gators lost a narrow 7-6 verdict to defending champion Humboldt State last week.

The Aggies, who finished in the FWC cellar with an 0-5 record last season, will take a surprising 2-1 record in Saturday afternoon's game. The Mustangs hold victories over Santa Clara (14-12), which is returning to football on a "small time" basis and University of California at Riverside (40-12), while losing to Whittier 20-8.

The 40-point total the Aggies racked up against lackluster Riverside is a school high for the past several seasons on the farm and the Mustangs may make things easier for the Wolf Pack by being overcome with posterity.

Nevada's impressive 27-6 triumph over over-rated Chico State was the best team effort a Wolf Pack team had displayed in the three years Dick Trachok has been head coach of the Silver and Blue.

The Wolf Pack will join the ranks of most other state university football teams in playing its games on Saturday afternoons this week. It's getting a bit nippish in Reno for any more home night contests.

Prep flash Ron Lee of Fallon served notice as a top contender for distance honors in the spring FWC track competition when he edged conference two-miler record holder and teammate Doug Ketron in the Nevada cross-country team's dual victory over Chico State last Saturday.

The New York Yankees proved that there is at least some semblance of strength in the "weaker" American league by handily taking four games out of five from the National League champ Cincinnati Reds for their 19th World Series crown.

The two new teams in the expanded 10-club National League for next baseball season—the Houston Colts and New York Mets—received some talent for their money at this week's draft to stock the new teams. At least the stockpile of ballplayers was somewhat better than the Los Angeles Angels and Washington Senators had to work with.

Aerials Are Stressed For Cal Aggie Game

Having had their four-game winning streak snapped by Shasta College last weekend, 6-0, the University of Nevada junior varsity will host the California Aggies frosh Saturday at 11 a.m. in Mackay stadium. This will be the junior Pack's last home game of the season as it tries to start a new win skein.

The Aggie frosh were also beaten by Shasta, and the Nevada yearlings are hoping the Aggie game will be win number two for the Pack.

In the defeat Nevada suffered at the hands of Shasta College, the Nevada eleven threatened Shasta's goal three times but were unable to push the ball over for a TD. Shasta scored in the final period on an 81-yard touchdown pass play after both squads had battled evenly throughout the well-matched contest.

Drill on passing and a strong offensive attack was the key assignment for the Wolf Pack frosh in practice this week, according to the coaching staff, with offensive work inside the opponent's 20-yard line getting the most attention.

Aggies Considered Pack's Tough Test

An afternoon tussle this Saturday will have the University of Nevada eleven entertaining the Cal Aggies from Davis in Mackay stadium at 2 p.m. The Nevada varsity Wolf Pack will be after their third season win and victory number two for the Far Western Conference.

Coach Dick Trachok considers the game Saturday with the California Aggies as a "tough test."

The coach said that the Aggies are much improved over last year.

The Pack defeated the Mustangs, 40-22, in last season's play.

Santa Clara and the University of California at Riverside have been beaten by this weekend's visiting Aggies. The Aggies have lost only to Whittier this season, 20-8. Sophomore quarterback Dick Carriere leads the Davis team against Nevada in Saturday's encounter. According to the Pack coaching staff, Carriere is a talented passer. Coaching the Aggies is Will Lotter.

While Nevada racked up win number one for the conference, injuries now plague the squad. Three regulars are presently being withheld from active practice due to leg injuries. They are Max Culp, center; Rick Miles, end, and Calvin Campbell, halfback. Nevada line coach Floyd Edsall will decide between Dave Lundy, Tom Cook and Jim Bronson as fill-ins for the injured top offense and defense man, Culp.

Lundy is a 213-pound junior from Davenport, Iowa, who is playing his first year as offensive center for the Pack. Another junior, Cook, who is from Inglewood, Calif., weighing 265 and standing 6-4, played on the 1960 Nevada junior varsity at defensive guard and offensive center. Bronson, also slated to possibly fill Culp's position, is from Susanville and a junior. He was a member of the varsity in 1959-60 and is considered as a dependable lineman at 205-pounds and 6-2.

Miles and Campbell may not be able to play this weekend, and it is not yet certain who will fill their shoes. The Nevada backfield, though, will probably consist of fleet-footed Bob Herron and Gary Sullivan. Both were instrumental in helping the Pack defeat conference member, Chico State, 27-6, in both squad's league opened. Jack Renwick will be at quarterback for the Wolves and Gordy Lemich at the fullback slot.

In the game with Chico State's Wildcats coach Trachok said he and the coaching staff were pleased with the Pack as a whole. He called it one of the team's best efforts. Nevada gained 290 yards net to Chico's 184.

Wolf Pack Distance Men Travel To Sacramento; Fresh From Chico Win

University of Nevada cross-country men go to their second distance meet of the short season when they travel to Sacramento for the Sacramento State Invitational cross-country meet Saturday. The Pack is scheduled to run at 3:15 p.m. in the multi-college class A event.

Coach Bill Joyner of the Wolves said he feels the squad is developing and he considers them as a potential threat to opponents within and outside the Far Western Conference. Joyner said that the Sacramento Invitational does not affect the final results of the FWC this season, but that it is a good chance for coaches and runners to see what other competitors are boasting this year.

The Pack distance men topped Chico State runners last weekend, 18-37, in both squad's league opener. The duo meet was held at Mackay stadium with Nevada placing four men in the first four positions.

Ronald Lee, a freshman from Fallon, took first place out-distancing veteran runner Doug Ketron by one second, in leading the Pack cross-country team to their first season win. Lee turned the three-mile run in 14 minutes, 53 seconds while Ketron followed him across the tape at 14:54.

Placing third out of the four Nevada pacers was John Barney at 15:23 and fourth was Truce Truman at 15:46. Next to finish for Nevada was Leland Sheppard in eighth position at 16:04, Mike Andrews eleventh at 17:01 and Al Mayer twelfth at 17:09.

Coach Joyner said he expected the team to develop better this week prior to their trip to Sacramento. The coach said he would probably take eight men on the jaunt. They are Ketron, Lee, Sheppard, Barney, Truman, Mayer, Andrews and a freshman, Frank Egenhoff.

Other schools Joyner felt would probably be represented are Sacramento State, Chico State, San Francisco and the University of California at Berkeley.

'Ghostly' Experience Subject of Prof's Probe

By BILL SCHILLING

Furniture overturning, people mysteriously thrown from their beds and loud noises on the roof seem to indicate that ghosts really do exist. At least this is how the people of Millville, Iowa, felt when an elderly couple was overcome with fear and forced to move from their house. It was at this time that University of Nevada professor Arthur Hastings was asked to investigate a "haunted" house by the Parapsychology Laboratory of Duke University.

Professor Hastings, a member of the speech and drama department here, conducted the following exciting study while he was working towards his master's degree at Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois.

When asked to describe the place he stated, "Driving into the narrow valley, even the least imaginative person could not fail to notice the setting—a perfect spot for a fog-bound English mystery film or an Alfred Hitchcock television thriller." The people living in the home were Mr. and Mrs. Meyer, a very old couple, and a sixteen-year-old grandson.

Meyer had broken his hip and was forced to stay in bed, which is why the younger Meyer was living there. Professor Hastings started his investigation by trying to find out exactly what so-called supernatural events had occurred.

The most frightening discoveries were things such as a glass of water flying across the room and hitting Mrs. Meyer in the head, then dropping to the floor. Also the refrigerator had tipped over, and somehow an egg managed to send itself across the room and smash against the wall.

"The most fantastic thing I discovered, said Hastings," happened one night when a group of men decided to spend the night in order to witness any other happenings. A 265-pound man named Livingston was thrown from his bed while sleeping." After getting an accurate description of all the events it was realized that they all took place in the dark and while the grandson was present or had just left the room.

"So we started to investigate the grandson more closely." Hastings went on to say that they had found that the boy was one who liked to be free to do as he pleased. He had quit high school for this reason. But he was forced to stay at the house because of his grandfather's broken hip. Also it was pointed out that school was almost out and the boy's friends would soon be around, but he would not be able to be with them unless he could get his grandparent to move from the house. It was at this time that Hastings began to solve the mystery.

"With the lights out," Hastings stated, "it was a simple task for the boy to throw the egg against the wall. And it was equally simple to throw the glass at his grandmother."

He went on to say that the man falling out of bed was explained when it was found that he had had quite a bit to drink, and that he had a really bad dream. As Hastings put it, "In this example, the only spirits that were involved were inside Mr. Livingston."

BUSINESS NEWS

There is a corporation on the ledgers of the State of Nevada listed as the Vagabond Touring Association. Evidence of this may be seen on the roof of their principal holding—the "coach." This unique corporation hasn't received Wall street recognition, as yet, but they make frequent appearances at the Wall dorf (little type) and occasionally take part in campus and civic functions.

They are the publishers of the scarce and unbelievable laff-riot, "The Prod," of which there have been five climaxes. Upon news of the tragic Hammarskjold disaster they founded the F.T.B.B.A.I.T.C. and most heartily receive all donations in its behalf. What is it? The Fund to Build Better Airports in the Congo.

AWDS AND ENZ

From Bill Rose, "The University of Nevada is the only campus with an open air cesspool in the middle of it!"

Try this one you predestiny disbelievers: about twenty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Stoever bequeather unto Theo the middle initials "R. F."

D.Shea, J. Madsen, M. Mercer, and L. Smith have discovered a new mode of travel, "Twenty Paces" . . . How? . . . Get some wine and start pacing and every twenty . . . you guessed it. You may not get where you're going but the traveling gets better and better.

NOTICE TO ALL STUDENTS

Nobody minds a man having a morning eye opener and it's OK to have a bracer around ten a.m. and a couple of drinks before lunch. And a few beers on a hot afternoon keep a man healthy or at least happy. And, of course, everyone drinks at the cocktail hour. And a man can't be criticized for having wine with his dinner, a liqueur afterward and a highball or two during the evening—but this damn business of sip, sip, SIP all day long has got to stop!—Jackie Gleason.

Men's PE Society To Meet In Reno

The Western College Men's Physical Education society will hold its fourth convention in Reno on Oct. 20 and 21. This society was born only four years ago with the cooperation of colleges of the western states.

The purpose of the organization is to discuss the problems about physical education which confront the colleges and universities of the following 13 states: Colorado, Nevada, California, Oregon, New Mexico, Utah, Washington, Wyoming, Arizona, Alaska, Hawaii, Idaho, and Montana.

Each of these states will send from one to ten delegates. Dr. George Broten, chairman of the University of Nevada physical education department, said that he expects at least 175 representatives. Dr. Broten and Professor R. I. Laughter will be the representatives from Nevada.

Key speaker at this convention will be Dr. R. E. Lieuallen, dean of the College of Education at Oregon College in Monmouth, Oregon. Other guest speakers will be N. P. Neilson from the University of Utah, and Ben Miller from UCLA.

Mrs. Maida Pringle Reelected To Third Term On Nursing Committee

Mrs. Maida Pringle, assistant administrator of Washoe Medical Center, was re-elected to a third term as chairman of the Citizen's Advisory Committee for the University of Nevada's Orvis School of Nursing.

The committee, organized four years ago, is composed of prominent members of the medical field and meets periodically to review what contributions can be made to the school's growth and effectiveness. It serves as an advisory group to University President Charles J. Armstrong and the board of regents.

During the meeting, Dr. Kenneth Young, executive vice president and acting head of the Orvis School of Nursing, said selection of a new dean for the school has been narrowed down to about six top-flight applicants chosen from a field of between 20 and 30 nursing school administrators. He asked that members of the advisory committee review the applications and make their recommendations to President Armstrong. Final selection will be made by the board of regents.

Cost of publication by the state printers will be about $11,000. Money to pay for the book has come from the Fleischmann Foundation, upon request by the State Fish and Game commission.
