Collapse Threatens Student News Service

DORMITORY CONSTRUCTION SLOWED

WORK ON JUNIPER HALL, new women's dormitory, neared completion last month, but won't be ready for Nevada coeds at the start of the second semester as originally planned. "Informational" pickets resulted in a stoppage of flooring installations last week. Floors will be installed after the remainder of the work is complete.—Artemisia photo.

Labor Dispute Slows Construction

A Reno labor dispute between Painters Local 567 and Tom Joyce Floor, Inc., has shoved the proposed opening of Juniper hall, new women's dormitory, past Jan. 31 the first day of the spring semester.

"Informational pickets," which appeared at the hall construction site last Wednesday, resulted in suspension of floor installation by non-striking Joyce workers.

The Painters Local is representing striking Joyce workers in an attempt to get a new contract. Its pickets returned to their lines last week after a ruling by district Judge Clel Georgetta approved their actions as long as they remain "informational."

Juniper Picketed

Joyce had accused the union of trying to force it into a contract through the picketing. Pickets were thrown up at the hall site, and at another Reno housing development employing non-striking Joyce workers.

Faced with a threatened work stoppage, the state planning board decided to halt work on the floors, and let the general contractor finish his work. Construction work and floor installation had been going on simultaneously.

The remaining construction should take about a month, said Jim Rogers, University engineer, Sunday.

When the work is finished, Joyce will be allowed to complete installation of the bynal asbestos flooring in the dormitory, Rogers said.

But if the flooring firm is still involved in the dispute, the general contractor will complete the floors.

In either event, the work will push the completion date past Jan. 31.

Move Delayed

Scheduled to move to Juniper hall are coeds from White Pine

Candidate Chosen By GDI Women

Diane Priess, freshman from Reno, will represent the off-campus independent women in the 1963 race for Winter Carnival Sno Princess. Miss Priess was selected at a sparsely-attended meeting of off-campus women Friday in the education auditorium.

The off-campus movement received some impetus with the appointment of a guidance committee by Aileen Miller, off-campus AWS representative. Named to the group were Dorothy Gallagher, Susan Owens, Susan Moss, and Diane Priess.

Jay Zunini was elected secretary of the proposed organization.

Miss Miller expressed dissatisfaction with the limited turnout for the candidate selection. Ten women attended.

hall, originally built as a mens' dormitory but used by women since its opening in 1960.

When the women finally move to Juniper, men now living in Lincoln and Artemisia halls will take up residence in the plush "suites" of White Pine hall.

Rogers said the planning board had considered having Joyce install flooring at night, but decided against it.

Gene Crumley, business agent for the Painters union, told the Sagebrush Sunday that pickets will remain on Tom Joyce projects until the company signs a satisfactory contract.

Earlier, he had indicated that the picketing might spread to include other Reno flooring contractors.

Expansion Plans Waiting on Freeway

Rumors that the University is planning expansion moves eastward to the University farm on Valley Road are false, James D. Rogers, University engineer, said last month.

Rogers said any plans for the area must wait until the state highway dept. determines the location of the proposed freeway—now slated for a Seventh street route.

The highway route will presumably cover part of the farm, but how much is still unknown, said Rogers.

Editor to Resign; Recommends End To ASUN Project

John Bromley, head of the ASUN news service during the past semester, announced Sunday that he will resign his post at the next meeting of the publications board.

Bromley, a junior journalism major who assumed the position at the beginning of the fall semester, blamed an extreme lack of cooperation and facilities for his resignation.

It will be presented at a publications board meeting in February.

He said he would recommend the discontinuance of the news service, and on-again, off-again ASUN project that was last re-established in December, 1961. Ron Lansford, now graduated, was the first news service editor.

As news service chief, Bromley sent news releases concerning Nevada students to the hometown newspapers of the students, relieving the swamped University news service of a load it could not handle properly.

Bromley Not Paid

Bromley said he had been doing the news service work during the semester with virtually no help or facilities at his disposal. He has a secretary, who receives $1.25-an-hour, but he is unpaid for his efforts.

He also has no vote on the publications board, although he is a board member.

He said that his work represents duplication, and that lack of cooperation from University news sources.

"Most of my work is duplicated by the heads of committees," said Bromley, pointing out that "during the Homecoming celebration, I was not informed as to the identity of the queen until she was actually crowned. As a result . . . I

Highwaymen Take Winter Carnival Show Spotlight

The popular folk singing quintet, "The Highwaymen," will be the top attraction on the entertainment bill for the 1963 Winter Carnival. The group will appear in a concert type two-hour show scheduled for Friday, Feb. 8, ushering in four days of events on the Carnival agenda. They will be brought to the campus by the student union.

Skyrocketing to fame by way of a Civil War Negro spiritual called "Michael," the Highwaymen began as a college group at Connecticut Wesleyan University. "Michael," a hit tune one year ago, sold more than one million copies and put the Highwaymen in the limelight.

All five were college honor students. They began performing while in college.

Singing in English, Spanish, Hebrew, and French the Highwaymen offer diverse American and foreign folk songs. All five play the guitar, and beyond that diversify into a variety of instruments including the five-string banjo, recorder, autoharp, maracas, a ten-string South American charango made from an armadillo shell, and a Nigerian talking drum.

At Connecticut Wesleyan, all five were campus leaders. Bob Burnett was Wesleyan's pole-vault champion (his record 12 ft. 8 1/2 in.), vice-president of the student body, and an outstanding scholar. Steve Trott was president of his local fraternity, EQV. He shoots golf in the low 70's and is fluent in Spanish and French. A Mexican garbageman taught him to play the guitar.

Chan Daniels was president of Wesleyans International Relations club and has lived in Argentina most of his life.

Stephen Butts is the son of the director of International Studies at Columbia University's Teachers College. He was chief engineer of the campus radio station and announcer at home football games.

David Fisher is the group's musical arranger and the only one seriously interested in music. He hopes to take a Ph.D in music.

Korean Dancers Perform Saturday

A group of Korean dancers, "The Korean Dance Review," will perform on campus Saturday evening during the second half of a two-part tour of the local area.

The group will appear in the Fine Arts theater at 8 p.m. Admission will cost the general public $1.50, and students one dollar.

Tickets will be available from members of Sagers in the student union on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The dance group is touring the United States to raise money for the education of Korean students. It will present classical Korean dances, play exotic regional instruments, and feature colorful costumes.

A special feature will be a nine-drum solo and dance by one of Korea's "foremost dancers."

Improve It or Forget It

The ASUN news service, a student body-supported organization with an unpredictable life span, is in danger of collapse. And if it goes, it won't be the first time.

John Bromley, editor of the news service, announced Sunday that he will resign his post as soon as possible. Not only that, but he will recommend to publications board that the ASUN scrap the entire project, and he has some good reasons behind his suggestion.

The news service, although important and potentially valuable, is unattractive in its present state. Although it is capable of generating a great deal of interest in the University throughout the state, its appeal is too limited for effective operation.

Bromley runs the news service from a tiny office with not even a telephone; no salary, and no vote on publications board. Clearly, the service reflects the second-class status the ASUN intended it have when it re-established it in December, 1961. And as long as the news service is regarded as second-class, it will continue to turn out a second-class product.

There is little reason why a news service editor should exert himself under the conditions; in fact, it is a marvel that the ASUN has been able to get anyone to take the job-period.

Unless the ASUN is willing to back the service to the point of making it effective, it might as well follow Bromley's suggestion and junk the whole thing. Right now, it's more of a white elephant than an asset.

For Science Foundation Fellowships

Two engineering professors have been named Fellows of the National Science Foundation.

Keith A. Yarbrough, asst. prof. of civil engineering and James J. Carlson, asst. prof. of mechanical engineering received fellowships for a full year of study aimed at the improvement of science teaching in American colleges and universities.

Yarbrough and Carlson are among 400 professors named for the award to improve work in engineering, science, and mathematics.

Yarbrough will study at Northwestern University's Technical Institute in the civil engineering dept. concentrating on fluid mechanics. He has been at the University for four years. He was graduated from the University of Illinois and has a BA and MA in sanitary engineering.

Carlson will take his fellowship to Stanford University for study leading to a doctorate in the field of gas dynamics and fluid mechanics. He has taught here four years. He was graduated from Nevada in 1955 and received his MS from the University of California at Berkeley.

Yearbook Picture Deadline Tomorrow

Picture deadlines were announced this week for eight campus living groups by JoAnn Nelson, editor of the Artemisia.

Members of Gamma Phi Beta, Delta Delta Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Sigma Phi Epsilon must return their proofs to Gene Christiansen's studios by Wednesday, Jan. 9.

The deadline for all other groups is Feb. 14, said Miss Nelson.

Named Consultant

Dr. Truman Cheney, assoc. prof. of education, has been named regional vocational consultant by the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals of the Social Security Administration, it was announced last week.

Editor's Feelings Exposed to All

Editor, the Sagebrush:

Mr. Buchanan, you are to be highly praised for your editorial of January 4, 1963, in which you offered the first spark of true controversy this campus has seen in the Sagebrush all semester. It is good to see you finally take a stand for the Realist Alliance and thereby prove my point that the editorial policy of the Sagebrush is highly influenced by the thinking of the Realist Alliance. I am also extremely pleased to note your attack on myself and on one of the organizations of which I am a member. I say this because I feel that at last your true feelings are being asserted, this is good. I think that the editor of a newspaper must have the opportunity to express his own ideas whether they be the correct ones or the wrong ones.

Another point which I believe you have honored yourself, is your attack on me for using such words as Komsonol, fellow travelers, puppets, and N.K.V.D. tactics in my description of the obvious linkage between those tactics resorted to by the John Birch Society, and those used by the International Communist Conspiracy. I should have never used such words as they have obviously struck a responsive cord in your own personal mode of thinking.

I was sincerely pleased to read your words on how much of an education our little leaflet was to you. I am surprised to find that you did not know that several of you friendly neighborhood physicians in the Reno-Sparks area are members of the John Birch Society.

Finally, Mr. Buchanan, it pleases me that your true feelings concerning the International Students on this campus have at last been brought out into the open for all the students of the university to see. Mr. Prakash R. Pandey is at the present time the publicity director of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations at the University of Nevada. You have attacked his integrity and an apology is certainly in order. Mr. Pandey has done a commendable job in handling the publicity of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations so far this year. Whether Miss Watkins has done as well for the Realist Alliance is simply a matter of conjecture.

Signed,

CARL DALE DONATHAN
President
Collegiate Council for the United Nations

Leaflet Apology Motive Sincere

Editor, The Sagebrush:

On December 14, 1962, Mr. Dale Donathan and I directed a letter to the editor expressing our apologies for "poor taste and unwise judgment in the distribution of a leaflet in violation of the policy of the Board of Regents."

In Friday's Sagebrush there appeared a letter that was critical of this retraction and questioned our motives.

It read in part: "Their forthcoming apologies and retractions are not the result of any sincere repentance, but instead the result of a contraindiction from the University Administration."

It is my sincere interest which prompts me to question the motives of the person who made such ridiculous insinuations. Does this person place himself on a plane of higher judgment? Does he feel that he has some God-given right to say whether or not Mr. Donathan or myself were justly repentant? If so, when was the deification? When was the crown of thorns placed on his brow? Or did he win his robe in a crap game too?

In the second instance he makes the statement that we were forced to make apology for our actions by the administration of the university. This is completely false. We were at no time told that we had to make any statement of apology whatsoever. We were not forced into making our statement as the author of Friday's letter said. We made our apology in good faith and expected that it would be accepted in the same way. Since it has not, and we have been accused of lack of faith, I ask: "QUO VADIS"

Pandey Deplores Reference to CCUN

Editor, the Sagebrush:

It surprises me that an organization such as the CCUN could be attacked by the editor of this newspaper as a result of the actions of one of its members. I have learned that Mr. Donathan is not only the president of the CCUN but also a member and officer in many other University organizations. Why were not those organizations attacked for their connection with Mr. Donathan? Is the editor of the Sagebrush trying to discredit the CCUN? At no time, or in any place does any reference to the CCUN appear in the leaflet published by the Student Movement for Real Issues. I feel that the editor has done a great injustice to the foreign students and to the CCUN of the University of Nevada. I am very surprised at the attack upon myself as publicity chairman of the CCUN and as a foreign student.

Donathan's Leaflet Not a CCUN Project

Editor, the Sagebrush:

I am writing in reference to an editorial which appeared in today's (Jan. 4, 1963) paper concerning Dale Donathan and the recent incident in which he was involved. I have nothing to say to the attack on Mr. Donathan and his actions, but am surprised and shocked by the author's connection between the CCUN, and the leaflet which he distributed on campus. Mr. Donathan acted on his own accord, without the knowledge of CCUN, its officers and members.

The CCUN is a recognized and respected organization on this campus, and I personally resent the inference that the CCUN, or the United Nations for that matter, had any part in this incident, or the opinions expressed in Mr. Donathan's leaflet. To discredit CCUN is to discredit the foreign students of this campus, as well as some very fine American students.

RENATE GRATT, treasurer
Collegiate Council for the United Nations of the University of Nevada.

P. S. By the way, our publicity chairman is a very capable and intelligent foreign student. The reason you have not had any "attacks" from our side is that we are an international organization—we are not involved and hope not to become involved with home politics.

Professor Outlines Political Spectrum

Editor, the Sagebrush:

There has been much discussion on this campus about the political spectrum represented by the AS UN series of speakers. I wish to suggest a tentative glossary of political terms for use in classification and clarification in these discussions:

Moderate Right, a view aiming at less interference of the Federal government in the business economy, public welfare, etc.

Extreme Right, a view aiming at elimination of most of our social legislation, government controls of the economic system, etc. This view is frequently accompanied by nostalgia for 1912, and the conviction that all who differ belong to, or are under the influence of, the extreme left.

Moderate Left, a view calling for more government-operated social services and the nationalization of certain major industries.

Extreme Left, a view calling for some sort of complete socialism or communism. This view is frequently accompanied by dreams of utopia, especially as pictured by Soviet theorists. It is also often accompanied by the view that those who differ are profit-making snobs or worse.

Center, the collection of views calling for a balance between free enterprise and government control, advocating the latter only insofar as it appears needed to keep the former operating in the public interest. This view is usually accompanied by a strong suspicion of one-sided views and of fanaticism, and by insistence on freedom of expression for all views, even the extreme and foolish.

Two other sets of categories should be mentioned, which can be applied to each of the above. Pacifists believe that the economic and political aims they favor should be sought by purely non-military means, either because these are believed to be the only truly effective and non-defeating means, or because they are considered the only ethical ones. Militarists believe that one should use force to defend the status quo, or to establish a desired new system by revolution. The moderates who favor some use of force but no all-out military efforts are, of course, in the middle.

Another set of categories deals with methods of presentation. One can present one's views honestly, fairly, and accurately, with respect for opposite views and those who hold them, or one can use any or all of the elements of deceit, distortion of facts, name-calling, refusal to give any credit to opposition, and even forceful repression of other views.

I leave it to those who heard the Buckley-Hall debate to apply these terms to it. My only question is, will we really get this year an adequate presentation of the range of views represented by the various categories above?

Evening Sign-Up Dates Announced

The registration date for statewide services' Reno campus evening sign-ups has been announced.

Hours for the first week of enrollment, Jan. 28 through Feb. 1, will be 8 a.m. - 8:30 p.m. The evening time period will be reduced during the second week, Feb. 4 through Feb. 8; the times for these days will be 8 a.m. - 6 p.m.

A special Saturday session will be offered Feb. 2 from 8:30 a.m. - 12 noon.

Registration-by-mail is encouraged by statewide services to avoid the lines involved in pre-registration. All enrollments by mail should be addressed to the Office of Statewide Services, University of Nevada.

Class fees, which must be paid in full at registration, will be $15-per-credit-hour for undergraduate students, $16-per-credit-hour for graduate students, and $9-per-credit-hour for auditors.

Home Ec Students To Teaching Posts

Three Nevada home economics majors will student-teach in Nevada towns next semester.

Jacqueline Burr has been assigned to Carson City high school; Joyce Burr will teach in Lovelock, and Joann Pritchard will be in Yerington. The student-teaching period is part of the regular curriculum of a home economics major.

During the eight-week session the women will live with cooperating families in the towns assigned them. For the remainder of the semester the student teachers will live in the home economic building on campus, practicing the skills they have learned—cooking, sewing, keeping house—during the past three years of study.

Semester Break

Semester break will follow seven days of final exams.

The break officially begins Monday, January 21 after the last scheduled final.

Students may leave school as soon as they have taken their last final, but all students must be back on January 28 to pick up registration materials. Registration is Wednesday January 30 in the new gym.

Campus Sky Divers Active Group; Two Nevadans Make First Jumps

Two University Sky Divers took their first jumps last month. The divers were Abdul Futaih and Richard Kennedy.

The two novices were accompanied by the other club members, who also jumped once. They were: John Barney, Terry Ward, Fred Litzinger, and Bob Barrail.

Pete Chapman, instructor and jumpmaster, made four jumps.

The jumpmaster is required to go up with every load of jumpers in case of trouble. Chapman has over 100 jumps to his credit, although he has been jumping for only six months.

The novice divers made 10-second delayed free-falls. "A 10-second delay is equal to the strain of an eight-hour work day," said diver John Barney.

Chapman made 30-second delays on his jumps.

The divers aimed toward a large target on the landing area, with Bob Barrail coming closest Sunday.

"When a diver hits the ground he is falling 51 feet per second," said Barney, pointing out that the diver must roll into his fall to prevent injuries. "Landing is just like jumping off a two-story building, so you have to be careful," he said.

Each diver carries a reserve chute in case the regular parachute fails or becomes entangled, but no University divers have had to use reserve chutes to date.

The divers usually jump at Carson Airport but used Susanville airport Sunday.

The divers will be jumping at the Carson airport after the holidays.

Newspaper Says Campus Restlessness Causing New Leaves of Absence

If the pressures of college life leave you bewildered and depressed, you are not alone.

The New York Times reported recently that a general restlessness among the college students of today is undeniable. This uneasiness, said the Times, has driven students to transfer from one college to another, or to leave college entirely in the hopes of gaining maturity elsewhere.

As college admission standards became more highly competitive, continued the Times, many students felt they could make the best of their college years if they first sought greater maturity.

Other able students, finding themselves plagued by self doubts, wished to prove their usefulness outside the college community. Many students could not settle down, and left college until they could.

This, according to the Times, has led to a trend in which students who are not ready to accept the challenges of higher education accept instead a new phenomenon, "the leave of absence".

Although the Times admits the trend varies from campus to campus, it is unmistakable. The number of students who leave school for reason other than academic, financial or health inadequacies, has increased greatly.

Compared to academic failures, the temporary leaves of able students seem to be beneficial, for the Times pointed out that, statistically, the students who leave college tend to do better when they return.

Profs Publish Lecture Series

Four University of Nevada history and political science professors have published a series of lectures on "Issues in American Foreign Policy."

The lecture series, presented in the spring of 1962 by the department of history and political science in cooperation with statewide services, has been published by the University Press.

The pamphlet contains studies presented by Dr. Harry M. Chase, Dr. Harold Kirkpatrick, Dr. James S. Roberts and Dr. James L. Tigner.

PETE CHAPMAN, instructor and jumpmaster of the newly-formed campus Skydivers, is pictured in free fall after completing a baton pass. With a 10-second delay described as "equal to the strain of an eight-hour work day," Chapman fell for 30-seconds before pulling his ripcord.

Swartz, Delaplane, Hayakawa Head TUB Spring Lectures

Five guest speakers and several entertainers have been signed for campus appearances during the spring semester by the student union lectures committee, it was announced last week.

Heading the list of entertainers are the Highwaymen, a singing group scheduled to entertain at the Feb. 8 "Sno-Show," an annual Winter Carnival feature.

Dr. Fred Schwartz, anti-communist lecturer and author of the book "You Can Trust the Communists," heads a list of speakers during the spring semester. Schwartz, originally from Australia, has lectured across the United States at his anti-communist "schools," during recent years.

Schwartz will speak on "The Communist Program for the Conquest of the United States."

Other speakers scheduled to follow Schwartz include columnist Stan Delaplane of the San Francisco Chronicle, who will speak on "Journalism as a Profession," Melvin Bell, San Francisco attorney; Prof. S. I. Hayakawa, semanticist; and Willy Ley, science fiction writer.

New French Course Offered in Spring

A non-credit course in spoken French will be offered by the University of Nevada's evening division during the spring semester.

Taught by Dr. Charles Wells, asst. prof. of foreign languages, the course is designed for travel, businessmen, students, and persons interested in speaking the language.

The elements of pronunciation, and basic control of the language will be emphasized, with no previous knowledge of French required.

Release Date Set For Evening Catalogue

The Evening Division catalog for the spring semester has been released for distribution.

Deadline for applying for admission to evening classes is Jan. 25, but students may register by mail or by coming to the Evening division building on Feb. 1, 2, and 4.

Opera Auditions Scheduled This Month

Students with operatic ambitions may participate in auditions for the Metropolitan Opera Council. The auditions will be held on campus Jan. 18.

In past years, the auditions have given young singers a chance to be heard by people who could advise them professionally, said Dr. William Macy, chairman of the music dept.

Numerous cash prizes and scholarships are available to audition winners.

Students may obtain application blanks from the music dept.

Pack Nips Alameda 57-56; Falls To Frisco 81-53

Heward's Rebounds, Dipper's 62 Points Highlight Road Trip

By DOUG BRUCKNER
Sagebrush Sports Editor

A win and a loss against the Far Western Conference's top two basketball teams opened Nevada's league campaign on an optimistic note over the weekend.

The narrow 57-56 Friday night victory over Alameda State was a surprise to the Nevadans, used to hometown officiating on their league opponents' courts. This road jinx within the conference prompted Coach Jack Spencer to predict before the trip that the FWC champ this year will probably lose three games, and quite possibly drop four.

San Francisco State's 81 - 53 romp was probably more due to the Gator's accurate shooting and the Wolf Pack's careless play than to the unfriendly Frisco floor. The Staters, sparked by the sensational shooting of Brad Duggan (who totaled 39 points in two weekend games) and Mike Carson, have emerged as the league's championship choice.

Nevada center Bill Robinson had his greatest two game series in a Nevada uniform, hitting a lifetime high of 36 against Alameda, and adding 26 markers against the Gators to end his torrid two nights with 62 points.

Unfortunately the series seemed to bear out a situation hinted at by the holiday road trip. Nevada is a one man offensive team. In the Alameda contest, Harlan Heward and Bob Shebler were the second place Wolf Pack scorers. Their respective totals were seven.

Heward backed up the "Dipper" Saturday night with only nine markers.

The Wolf Pack played a come-from-behind role in the Alameda game. The Pioneers held the lead continuously from seven minutes before halftime, when they led 22-15, until the intermission when the Pioneers prevailed 28-26.

The second half was a different story.

The Silver and Blue jumped off to an early lead, widened it, and lost it momentarily. But after Robinson had hit one of his fall-away jump shots, and the Pack led 46-45 they were never again behind.

Joe deArrieta was the Nevada defensive stand out, and Harlan Heward grabbed 13 rebounds to become the top Pack rebounder.

Early backboard domination was the only thing that kept Nevada in contention in the San Francisco State contest. As it was, the Wolf Pack could only stay with the Gators for the first ten minutes of the first half. From then on the 44 per cent shooting of the Bay City squad annihilated the locals.

Madrigal Singers Featured On TV

The Madrigal Singers, a special group of 12 singers, were seen on television during the Christmas holidays.

The singers made several short video-tapes for spot use December 14, for KCRL T. V. Channel 4.

Members of the Madrigal group are Barbara McLaurry, Eloise Ecker, Wendy Rentz, Sheridan Cathles, Karen Sproch, Georgia Tesky, Larry Smith, George Lundgren, Richard Pollman, Fred Biggs, Charles Herger, and Edward Houghton. The singers are under the direction of Dr. W. Keith Macy, chairman of the music department.

This special group, featured a month ago at the annual Madrigal Dinner in the dining commons, also sang at a community dinner in Yerington.

Tau Pledges Ask Basketball Challenges

Kirk Kinne, president of the Alpha Tau Omega pledge class, has challenged all other pledge classes or combinations of pledge classes to a basketball game.

Kinne said, "They can name their own time and we'll give them a good fight."

7 Teams Enter Winter Carnival

Seven schools have accepted invitations to compete in this year's Winter Carnival, scheduled for Feb. 8-10.

The schools are Arizona State University, San Jose State college, Chico State college, Oregon State, Sierra College of Auburn, University of California at Berkeley, and the University of Washington.

Denver University, University of Colorado, and the Air Force Academy are tentatively scheduled to participate.

The three day Winter Carnival will be held at Slide Mountain and Sky Tavern. The schedule of events is: Feb. 8—cross country. Feb. 10—downhill and slalom. And Feb. 10—jumping and the Coed Powder Puff Derby.

Eighteen students make up the 1963 Nevada ski squad that has been conditioning since early November under coach Shelton Leonard's direction.

Since there has not been enough snow to ski however, he is undecided as to his top competitors this season.

One Nevada skier is a two year letterman. He is senior Dave Small from Reno and competes in downhill, cross-country and jumping. Other varsity lettermen returning are senior Bob Kean of Sparks and Jim Barry, a senior from Auburn, California.

Barry and Kean both compete in downhill, slalom, cross-country and jumping. The fourth Nevada letterman is Mike Brunetto, a junior from Los Angeles, California, who is a contestant in the downhill, cross-country, and slalom events.

A top newcomer to the squad is freshman Lane Monroe. Monroe has been skiing for seven years in competition and was the recipient of the Dick Taylor Memorial Trophy in 1960.

Michigan College Supports Orphans

Students of the University of Nevada are being urged by Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant, Michigan, to "adopt" an orphanage.

Central Michigan "adopted" the Moon San Orphanage, near Seoul, Korea, over two years ago. They have collected $3800 for "their" 66 orphans during that time.

The University works through the American-Korean Foundation in New York and Seoul, and through the U. S. Military in Korea. Correspondence is handled by the foundation and by staff members of CARE who visit the orphanage and check its progress.

Money is collected by personal contributions, dances, and contests sponsored by the University. The 6,000 students try to pledge fifty cents a semester for the support of the orphanage.

Four Teams Still in Cage Race

By MIKE LANE

Sagebrush Sports Staff

Four intramural basketball teams still remain in the race for the double-elimination tournament championship and the 100 Kinear trophy points which go to the winner.

Alpha Tau Omega, the only undefeated team, is followed by the Independents, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Phi Sigma Kappa. All three have one loss each.

In the latest action, the Phi Sigs pulled a surprising 26-25 upset over Sigma Nu. This loss eliminated Sigma Nu from the tournament.

The Phi Sigs, led by Ron Beau-bien and Mark Borero, will meet Lambda Chi Alpha Wednesday night. The winner will advance into the semi-finals against the Independents.

The championship game will be played Feb. 22.

Last Day to Sign For Mammoth Trip

Today is the deadline to sign up for the Ski Club's annual trip to Mammoth mountain this year. A limited number of students can make the trip, but priority will go to Ski Club members, said Lou Jurs, president.

Students can sign up with Jodie Muller at Pi Beta Phi; John Davies at Sigma Nu, or Lou Jurs and FA 2-0531.

A meeting of those students going on the Mammoth trip will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 p. m. in room 215, Mackay Science, said Jurs.

Heward Honored

Harlan Heward, University of Nevada junior, has received honorable mention on the All-American football squad announced by the Williamson Rating System of Houston, Tex., last month. Heward, who also plays forward on the Wolf Pack basketball team, was an end. He is from Winne-mucca.

FROM KOREA

Sei In Chang, doctorate candidate in the Mackay School of Mines, is the third foreign student featured in the Sagebrush. A Korean citizen, Sei holds a master's degree from Seoul National University and is working for a Ph.D in mining engineering.

Sei, 29, is attending Nevada on a Dept. of State scholarship. He reads and writes three languages—Korean, Japanese and English. The University of Nevada became his United States school through a decision of the Agency for International Development.

Union Undergoes Sizable Alteration

The student union underwent a sizeable alteration during the Christmas holidays, leaving empty offices, stray equipment, and furniture scattered around the building temporarily.

The offices of student services and the student union board have been moved to the south end of the union's main floor, in the location of the former lounge area.

The student union snack bar has shifted operations to the dining commons, with regular snack bar hours (7 a. m. - 5 p. m.) in effect during construction.

The main lounge section upstairs, and the snack bar extension downstairs, remain intact for student use. New snack bar facilities should be open for business about April 1, said Bill Adams, asst. director of student services.

Class Schedules Available Now

Class schedules for the 1963 spring semester are available to Nevada students in the office of the registrar.
