The Minority Report By Mike Sloan

Before turning to the subject of the day, I would like to sincerely apologize to the men of Lincoln Hall for any material published in the Sagebrush that indicated any malicious or detrimental attack on them or their hall, and I publicly pledge to make every effort to factuate and fairly report any news concerning them or their hall.

While making corrections, etc., I would like to make clear that Dr. John Morrison, advisor to the Publications Board, does not have a vote on the Board, as reported in the Sagebrush. He merely serves in an advisory capacity.

Friday the 13th is a day that I have come to fear, and most students would do well to stay in bed all day. The strange and un-natural things that happen every Friday the 13th, are unbelievable.

I caution you all, and I say special prayers for my fellow members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon who, ignoring all advise from their beloved editor, are participating in the annual SAE Indian Dance. Indian dances are at best, dangerous, on but this day, they are fool-hardy.

In case I don't see you again, which is very possible, goodbye Lyle, Sig, Rat and the rest of you.

Eight University of Nevada coed candidates, each representing a sorority or independent living group, are vying for the title of queen of the "Colossal" Military Ball. This year marks the 36th year the Ball has been presented on the campus.

The all-school dance is scheduled to be held Saturday, Nov. 21 at the Elks Club, from 9 p.m., to 1 a.m. One of the girls will be crowned "Military Queen" during intermission ceremonies by Charles J. Armstrong, president of the University. In addition to her crown, the queen will receive the traditional saber, a dozen long-stemmed roses, and the honorary rank of cadet colonel.

For the first time this year, the queen will receive her own trophy. are: Marsha Marvel, Sue Sonderegger, Sophie Sheppard, Carolyn Reese, Jane McCarthy, Susan Clark, Vicki Jeanne Geertsema, and Donna Weaver.

MARSHA MARVEL represents Delta Delta Delta in the race for queen title. Born in Battle Mountain, Nevada, the 18-year-old sophomore is majoring in music. Her interests and hobbies include dancing and modeling. She is 5' 4" with brown hair and brown eyes. Her ambition is teaching.

SUE SONDEREGGER was born in Ely, Nevada, and raised in Reno. The 19-year-old sophomore represents Kappa Alpha Theta. She is 5' 2", blond hair and hazel eyes. Her interests and hobbies are snow and water skiing. Sue hopes to be an elementary school teacher because of her love of children.

SOPHIE SHEPPARD is an off-campus independent. The 18-year-old beauty was born in Oklahoma and has lived in Norway and France. A French major, Sophie has brown hair and blue eyes. Her interests and hobbies include skiing, jeep and Honda riding, reading and sewing. Sophie says her ambition is "to achieve as much as I can."

CAROLYN REESE is also a French major. She is 21 years old and represents Manzanita Hall. Born in Hollywood, Calif., Carolyn enjoys skiing and reading. She has brown hair and hazel eyes. Carolyn's ambition is to teach school in California.

JANE McCARTHY represents

Pi Beta Phi. Jane was born and raised in Reno. She is 19 years old, 5' 2" with brown hair and blue eyes. Her various interests and hobbies include bowling, golf, reading and sewing. Jane's major is English and psychology.

Travis Events This Weekend

Events are in full swing today as the campus pays its annual tribute to Ezra (Jot) Travis, benefactor of the Jot Travis Student Union. Celebrations for Travis Weekend were opened last night with an all school hootenanny held in the dining commons with various singing groups participating.

Tonight "Beyond the Fringe", the satirical comedy hit, will be presented in the University gym by the Student Union Board beginning at 8 p.m.

Tomorrow, before and after the football game in which Nevada meets San Francisco State, open house will be held in the Student Union building. Free refreshments will be served and members of the hospitality committee will conduct tours through the building. The open house is for all faculty and students as well as the public.

The Student Union Building was constructed in 1958 at a total cost of $362,000, half of which was provided by the Travis estate. A new wing, adding an-

Praise For Us?

Dear Editor:

John Miller's article on skateboarding in the November 6 issue was very entertaining and well written. Let's have more like it.

We thought you would like to hear something nice about the Sagebrush for a change.

Homecoming Thanks

Dear Editor:

As chairman of the 1964 Homecoming Committee, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people who made this year's Homecoming successful. In particular, I would like to thank the members of my committee who worked so diligently in overcoming numerous obstacles and making this year's festivities possible. I would also like to thank the members of Sagens, Spurs, Blue Key, Sagers, and Circle K service organizations for their kind assistance and cooperation. Last, but not least, I would like to thank the students and alumni who supported this year's Homecoming activities.

Very truly yours,
 Ted Zaehringer

SWCC Talk

Editor, The Sagebrush:

James Corson, of Palo Alto, Calif., will speak on the topic "Mississippi Summer Project 1964 — Agitation or Justice?" in the Card Lounge of the Student Union Wednesday evening, Nov. 18, at 7:30. Corson, Campus Methodist Minister at Stanford University, was a volunteer in the Civil Rights project sponsored by the Council of Federated Organizations. He will report on the project and interpret its significance.

The talk, which is being sponsored by the Friends of SNCC of the Campus Christian Association, is open to all interested persons.

If you happen to see someone crashing down the TUB stairs, clutching his throat and gasping, or floating face down in the fish pond in front of the Library, or just dying in agony in the middle of the quad, it's probably me; because, by Gar, I'm gonna quit smoking! (kaahfaahaahch!)

Remember Bruce Pozzi's editorial that pleaded for a place to study? Well the Library staff corrected him on a one hour error and then just let the whole thing go by. Why shouldn't we have a place, a quiet place where we can go to study twenty-four hours a day? A facility such as this would be used by many of us. Obviously it would be impossible to leave the Library open around the clock. But we certainly could afford to heat one good sized room for this purpose. After all, we can afford the Forum and the Brushfire; why not a place to study?

Speaking of heat, who in the world controls the thermostat in the Humanities Building? Tuesday it was colder inside than outside. I noticed that in room 102 there are directions for first aid should frost bite occur. See for yourself . . .

Rumor has it that there is a germ of dissension in the Music Department! (Of all places.) Ol' Doc Macey is makin' everybody furious. (Just a rumor now gang; if you can't trust tall, gaunt piano players, who can you trust?)

Went and saw the man who thought he was Jesus Christ last week, Mr. Goetting. About sixty showed up to see him. In attendance were three sweatshirt clad girls, lavender, pink and Manzanita Green. One duck-tailed youth was there. He kept poking a girl behind him; and oh how she would laugh and poke back at him daintily amid choking giggles. (Hee hee hee) One serious grown woman appeared with a copy of the Bible. Inside it was a dollar bill used as a bookmark. (Yeah there were all sorts of wild people there. Of course there were us sophisticates also.)

Mr. Goetting sincerely believed that he was Christ. Once he commented that he intends to speak out on the issues, and not beat around the bush like Goldwater did. Someone asked him to change a glass of water into wine, but he refused. (He beat around the bush.)

Doesn't anybody around here want to win five skins? Just write an essay cutting or praisiing frats and sororities. Bring 'em down to the Sagebrush dungeon below the Journalism building. I'll pick the two winners, one for, one against, and provide five bucks apiece plus the space of this column to print 'em in, anonymously if you prefer. C'mon let's have a little action.

Not many people like to read this column; if you all send me a dollar, I will quit writing it forever.

No One Asked Me, But . . .

By Sig Rogich

Alas, the good weather is finally here, and we can look forward to many fun-filled afternoons of frolic in the snow and rain. But then this is Nevada, the place they call "God's Country."

Surely Nevadans can be proud of their state, for the fine exhibition in the recent Senatorial race. The only state in the Union to receive more publicity may have been Alaska when the recent earthquake occurred. And ours is a similar situation. It seems that as the counting came to a climax, the junior Senator from the state of Nevada was behind by 150 votes. So, the Democrats insured themselves with a bonus 300 votes. And when Mrs. Helen Scott Reed was questioned as to what precincts they came from, she replied, "I really don't know" What do you mean Mrs. Reed? "Well, that's politics."

I still laugh when I think of Mr. Godfrey Cambridge. "I made a lot of Civil War pictures. I was the cat in tatters who came running down the road yelling "Massa Jeff, I's so glad you's home from de war." Those who did not see the production missed a fine performance by an outstanding comedian.

I'll tell you what this town needs. A basement club. It doesn't have to be fancy, just sort of chiseled out. All it has to have is some steps that lead downstairs. And when you get there, a small sign on the door that says "Use other door."

The bar should be off to the right. And that's where you can find anybody. Either there or in the back room. And not just one backroom, but a catacomb of back rooms. They should all be like carved out of brick with ashcans sitting around. Entertainment would always be there. And the place should be dark and hot and crowded and great. We'd all go there And we'd all drink until we got sick or until the place closed.

The bar should be the social center for the hip crowd. Not the ones who wear those thin grey suits that look like they've been made by a shoemaker for an elf. Or those who have the cowlick falling onto their forehead just so, with those skinny ties.

If you dig it fine, if you don't well, that's too bad. I happen to dig the idea. Every night would be a blast. Some would wear carnations, and more people would be high than I care to mention. It would be a full house. We could sing and shout and play and stomp and wail and yelp and bark and throw things.

When we left we could leave our carnations on the floor. Yea, this is the kind of place Reno needs.

Nevada Debaters Have Busy Schedule

University of Nevada debate teams had a busy day last Saturday and will have as full a schedule again this weekend. Last weekend Nevada was represented in two tournaments, the Columbia Valley Tournament in Pullman, Washington, and the St. Mary's College Tournament in Moraga, California.

Nevada sent its more experienced debators to the tournament in Pullman, which was hosted by Washington State University. Professor Kenneth L. Mosier, head of the debate department, accompanied the team and was pleased with the results. Though the team did not win, it did beat schools with strong debate squads, such as the University of Oregon and the University of Montana.

In the senior division of debate Max Steinheimer and Charles Murphy combined to take fifth place in team debate by winning four of their six debates. Nevada was also represented in debate by Frank Bass and Jim Emerson.

In the individual division of extemporaneous speaking, Steinheimer took a third place trophy.

Eighteen schools from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Nevada were represented in the Pullman tournament.

In the St. Mary's tournament Nevada also did well. A senior debate team of William Cornwall and Bill Isaef received a certificate of outstanding achievement by finishing second to a team from the University of Pacific. Also in the senior debate division was the team of Barbara Hines and Ken Muller. In the junior division the team of Bob Ericksen and Jim Crane showed well in winning three of their five debates. Other junior division debators were Rick Mattson and Jinks Dabney. Nevada was also represented by a four man debate squad of Larry Rowe, John Duty, Joe Beloso and John Boswell.

Doctor Robert S. Griffen and Larry Hines accompanied the team to the Moraga tournament which was organized as a practice tournament to give participants experience for the more important later tournaments. Other schools represented at the tournament were Stanford University, the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Pacific, the University of Utah and many other smaller colleges.

This weekend the University of Nevada will be represented again at two tournaments. Six teams will be sent to a tournament at Sacramento State College, and two teams will compete in a tournament at the University of Oregon.

Civil War Centennial Exhibit Set

A vivid presentation of the momentous events in American history from 1861 to 1865 will unfold for students of the University of Nevada at Jot Travis Student Union, when the U.S. Army's CIVIL WAR CENTENNIAL exhibit arrives on November 17, for a four-day showing. The exhibit may also be seen at the Colossal Military Ball being held at the Elks Club on the evening of November 21. The exhibit is open to the public without charge.

Electronic devices, push-button controls and the effective use of sound and light enable the viewer to quickly grasp the entire scope of the Civil War. And to understand its military significance as a milestone in the long history of Army progress.

One of the most popular features of the exhibit is an electronically animated three-dimensional view of some of the war's major events. Cavalry charges, frontal assaults and the plain hard fighting that characterized the war come to life in a special film presentation.

Many military innovations introduced during the Civil War had a great influence on the Army of today. Among these were the introduction of the big-guns — forerunners of today's modern Army artillery—and the first large-scale application of mechanical techniques to battlefield conditions.

The exhibit was produced by the U.S. Army's Office, Chief of Information, and has been awarded the National Civil War Centennial Commission's Silver Medallion for excellence.

Accompanying the exhibit is a team of Army exhibit specialists who will explain the military aspects of the Civil War.

2 Administrators Leave For Tour

Two staff members of the university will be touring northern Nevada high schools, November 16-20, demonstrating various benefits and aspects of the University of Nevada.

William E. Rasmussen, director of financial aids and graduate placement, and Mr. Jeryl D. Jessop, senior clerk of the registrar's office, will meet with principals, councilors and interested students to discuss university housing, finances, admission, curriculum and to present an overall introduction to the university.

High schools to be visited during the five day trip include those in Fernley, Battle Mountain, Carlin, Elko, Owyhee, Wells, Eureka and Austin.

Mr. Rasmussen and Mr. Jessop will also address a meeting of the Winnemucca Parents and Teachers Association.

University Of Art Penetrates International Barriers At UNESCO Exhibit

With the belief that the university of art penetrates international barriers, the School Art League of Philadelphia cooperating with the New York Office of UNESCO presented UNESCO's programs to their students. These students are specially recommended to the School Art League for their interest and ability in art and attend ten art centers throughout Philadelphia on Saturday mornings from nine to twelve, October to May.

The 52 works, selected from 500 entries, represent the young artists' response to the work and ideals of UNESCO. The exhibition, sponsored jointly by the School Art League and the Commercial Museum of Philadelphia, will be on view at Jot Travis Union University of Nevada from 14 Nov. to 6 Dec. It will be circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

Appearances differ, people do not is a UNESCO credo. Helping people throughout the world is its goal. Its programs are directed toward each age group with the hope of understanding and promoting every interest and need. Exposed to these values, the students were inspired to paint subjects such as the ravages of war, progress through science, the language barrier, atoms for peace, and independence, besides showing interest in the facial types and habits of children of many races thronging the U.N. building from which two gigantic hands emerge in a helping gesture. A seventeen year old boy presents a melange of real and fantastic symbols of peace. "The Gathering", painted by an eighteen year old boy shows people from many countries surging across a barren landscape towards a symbol of the United Nations.

One of the younger classes, in a group project, made a mural describing innumerable children's games. Another class project produced an interesting abstract pattern made up of a medley of scientific apparatus. These and many more bear witness that the students have grasped the vision of the role of UNESCO within the U.N. and portrayed it imaginatively on their canvases and in their sculptures.

Leon J. Obermayer, President of the Board of Public Education in Philadelphia, has written of the exhibition: "The work displayed, whether in paint, stone, crayon or clay attests to the will and the ability to create, to do constructive work in which all may share . . . On the walls . . . are the evidence of present understanding and future concern for all the peoples of all lands through the language that is art.

The students range from grade 5 to grade 12 and then ten to eighteen years of age. The media used in the flat work are oil paint, watercolor, tempera paint, showcard colors, crayon, collage, linoleum blockprint and mixed media. Materials used in the sculpture, photographs of which only are on view, are wood, clay, plaster, stone, sculp metal and papier mache.

THE CIVIL WAR EXHIBIT will go on display in the Student Union Building Nov. 17. See story on page 3.

Square Dance

If you like to dance, the Folk and Square Dance Club is planning some lively entertainment next Thursday in the recreation room of White Pine Hall.

The dancing will start at 7:30 and end at 9 and "should be a lot of fun" said Miss Ione Mowrer, sponsor for the club.

A dance demonstration will be given by an advanced dancing class of P.E.M.S. and will range from tarantellas to the la Cucaracha. Refreshments will be served, and the dance is open to everyone at no charge.

Economics Speech

Miss Beth Petersan, a nationally known speaker and the home economist for the Du Pont Company spoke on new fabrics and finishes last Monday and Tuesday at the Sarah Hamilton Fleischmann School of Home Economics and at the Sparks Nugget.

Miss Peterson was asked to speak in Reno by the school of home economics, but she was also sponsored by the Sierra Pacific Power Company, and the Washoe County Extension Service. She is the editor of "Chemistry and the Home."

Miss Peterson explained that today's woman must have clothes that are beautiful, useful, and easy to care for. She described how textiles are designed and engineered for particular uses, such as accepting or rejecting dyes, resisting straining, and stretching with comfort. The new textiles antron, nylon, dacron, spandex, and arvil were examined.

Deutsch Club

The German Club is presenting a photographic exhibit of West Berlin in the Jot Travis Student Union. The exhibit opened yesterday and will end Nov. 30.

The photographs of West Berlin show changes and everyday life in the city during the last four years.

The film, "President Kennedy in Germany," will also be shown by the German Club on Monday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. in the Student Union Lounge.

Admission to the film is 50 cents. Proceeds will go into the University John F. Kennedy Memorial Book Fund.

Davis Trip

The University of Nevada SAE's went to Davis, California last weekend for the Cal-Davis, U of N football game. They were hosted by the Davis SAE's and stayed the night at their house.

Approximately 65 members traveled to Davis in two buses, one paid for by the house and one by the alumni.

The purpose of the trip was to improve relations between chapters, better unify the Nevada chapter, and, of course, cheer for the team.

Indian Dance

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity will hold its annual Indian dance tonight at the Verdi Odd Fellows Hall. Those participating will be dressed in Indian attire and the hall will be decorated Indian style with everything from teepees to fire water. This dance is one of SAE's biggest events of the year.

Ski Club

Ski Club will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Card Lounge of the Student Union. It will be the first meeting of the year and its purpose is to organize and plan its activities for the coming season, according to Bob Murphy, this year's president. Membership cards will be on sale next week in the student union.

The $1.00 fee for the card entitles each member to a discount tow rate at the surrounding ski facilities throughout the year.

The highlight of this year's Ski Club program will be a two day trip over semester break to the Mammoth Mountain Ski Resort near Bishop, California. Transportation to and from Mammoth Mountain will be furnished by chartered buses.

All those interested in joining Ski Club are asked to either attend Tuesday night's meeting or contact Bob Murphy at the ATO Fraternity.

Coed Contest

IFC received a clarified procedure to follow in picking the University of Nevada's best dressed coed as a result of last week's meeting of the AWS.

From now on each women's group will submit the name of one candidate to IFC for consideration as opposed to the previous IFC policy of picking the candidates and voting on them itself.

The winner's name will then be submitted to Glamour Magazine as a contestant in its annual National Best Dressed Coed Contest.

Nevada's current best dressed coed is Judy Schmidt. Judy is a member of Delta Delta Delta Sorority. She is also a member of Cap and Scroll, senior women's honorary, and is president of Sagens.

Dr. Tripple

Dr. Patricia A. Tripple, Professor of Home Economics, has been selected as the conference leader for the Phoenix Home Economics Teachers in Service Education Day to be held in Phoenix, Arizona on Monday.

Dr. Tripple stated that the purpose of the conference is to demonstrate how concepts developed on the national level in Home Economics can be applied in the class room. The discussion will cover the areas of management, family economics, housing, clothing and textiles, and human development in family food and nutrition. Forty-nine junior and senior high school teachers will attend.

On Monday evening Dr. Tripple will speak to the faculty and graduates at Arizona State University. Her talk will center on how the Home Economics profession is making a vital contribution to individuals and families on the world today.

Dr. Tripple will leave Sunday and return the following Wednesday.

SNEA Tea

A tea in the Jot Travis Student Union lounge was sponsored Monday by the Student National Education Association.

The annual event was attended by association members as well as college and public school faculty and administration. Student teachers of the College of Education were invited.

Juniper Hall

There is a new look at Juniper Hall. Those glaring fluorescent lights have been replaced with a much softer glow from six new lamps. The lamps were provided by the Juniper Hall Furnishing Budget. They were originally planned with the present decor but were not received until a week ago.

Mrs. Spencer, the head resident, feels that the lamps provide "a more homey atmosphere" for the modern lobby of the dorm.

It is planned to continue to add to the appearance of the hall lobby with flowers and pictures for the walls.

J-Prof Makes Good

Theodore E. Conover, assistant professor of journalism, returned Wednesday from Montreal, Canada, where he participated in a joint meeting of the Public Relations Society of America and the Public Relations Society of Canada.

The Monday afternoon session of the meeting was conducted by Professor Conover, at which time he presented a paper on "Can Public Relations Efforts Be Measured?"

Swim Meet

A swimming meet at Sacramento State College is on the agenda for the University of Nevada's women's swimming team this Saturday.

Judy Black, Robbie Byrd, Patsy Murray and Kathy Leonard will be competing for Nevada against Sacramento State College and other northern California colleges.

The team is coached by Mrs. McGuirk and Donna Saden.

Grad Conference

William E. Rasmussen, director of financial aids and graduate placement, has been attending the 31st annual Association for School and University Staffing convention. The convention was held at the University of Minnesota, in Minneapolis, November 9-11.

The purpose of the meeting was to familiarize educational placement officers with the inter-relationships of staffing and placement on the national level.

As the exponent in (name of town) of the natural shoulder fashion classic, we take special pride in its wide acceptance.

Years ago we were among the first to recognize the leadership of College Hall in developing a style idiom that captured a faithful following among traditional men. Joining our experience with College Hall, we have worked together through the years to create soft shoulder innovations in design ideas, tailoring and fabric "finds" that have contributed significantly to the development of this fashion as a tradition.

That is why the natural man looks to College Hall and to us for the finest in soft shoulder expressions.

VOLLEYBALL is the major sport in this month's competition. Above, SAE plays Independents.

Final Standing For Intramurals

Sigma Nu gained the most points in intramural baseball competition. Intramural points determine the overall intramural champion in the annual competition for the coveted Kinnear trophy.

The All University Champions ended up with a 5-1 record. White Pine Hall, which was the third place title holder, finished with 119 points. Alpha Tau Omega received 91 points, although they won second place. Fourth place Lambda Chi brought home 70 points. The two National League teams, Sigma Nu and White Pine, received extra points because they played one more game.

The overall point standings are as follows:

American League
Teams	w l pnts wp tol
Lambda Chi Alpha	2 2 28 42 70
Lincoln Hall	1 2 21 21 42
ATO	3 1 28 63 91

Sorority's Ninetieth Birthday

Gamma Phi Beta sorority celebrated its 90th birthday Sunday at the Holiday hotel.

The alumni and actives of Gamma Phi Beta sorority had a birthday brunch in the Tahoe-Sierra Room at the Holiday hotel from 10:30 to noon Sunday to celebrate 43 years of activity on the University of Nevada campus as well as 90 years of national existence.

Awards were given to the outstanding pledge and outstanding active of last year, and a special plaque was given to the active with the highest grade point average. Judy Daniel received a $50 award for being the outstanding pledge, Prella Eda received a $25 award for being the outstanding active, and Lynn Roberts received a plaque for having the highest grade point average.

The guest speaker at the brunch was Mrs. Evelyn Doherty, a charter member of the Nevada chapter of Gamma Phi Beta, who gave a talk on Gamma Phi Beta's history on the Nevada campus.

Being the second oldest sorority on campus, Gamma Phi Beta was initiated by her sister chapter from the University of California at Berkeley on May 4, 1921. The 24 girls who were initiated that day were members of "IOAO", a club on campus whose motto was "Independent Of All Others." These 24 women, some of whom still live in Reno, are the charter members of the Nevada chapter of Gamma Phi Beta.

other 20,000 square feet to the building, was opened last year. Again the Travis estate assumed half the expense.

The Union is supervised by a Student Board of Directors. This board also arranges for lectures, movies, and special event programs for the University campus. Peter-Paul-and-Mary, Nelson Rockefeller, and Drew Pearson are typical of the personalities who have visited the campus through the efforts of the Student Union Board.
