The Minority Report

By Mike Sloan

It has long been my notion that the University of Nevada, and for that matter, all universities, exist primarily for the benefit of students and not for professors, administrators or staff members.

Most students spend four years at a university, and during those years the dorms and houses become their homes, the dining commons becomes their kitchen and the campus becomes their neighborhood.

Matters such as campus parking, and compulsory ROTC and P.E. affect them directly. Yet they have little to say about any of these things, or for that matter, about the operation of the university in general.

The Board of Regents and the University administrators make these decisions for the students. I realize that being a member of the Board of Regents is no easy job, members serve without pay and must travel hundreds of miles to meetings each month.

But the fact remains that the members of the Board are elected public servants who have openly sought the responsibilities of running this University. It would seem to me that the most effective way to make policy concerning the operation of any university would be for the Regents to consult with those who are most affected by their decisions. In other words, the Regents should be acquainted with the ideas, and for that matter, complaints of the students.

To my mind, it would not seem unreasonable to ask the Regents to make themselves available for an hour or two each semester to meet with members of the student body.

Such a meeting could be quite informal, and very possibly the student would have no burning issues to present. But both Regents and students would go away from such a meeting with a better understanding of each other and this could not help but improve the University.

New Nursing Director Named

The new director of the Associate of Arts Degree in Nursing, to be offered on the Las Vegas campus in September of 1965, is Mrs. Regina S. Jacobson, an assistant professor at Nevada Southern.

Mrs. Jacobson received all her training in New York at Bellvue Hospital School of Nursing.

HEH, PROF, it isn't easy to put out a paper without any pictures.

Civil Rights Lecture Set

Jim Corson speaks on "last summer in Mississippi" 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, November 18, at the Jot Travis Student Union, the Card Lounge.

Mr. Corson, Methodist Camps Minister at Stanford University, spent six weeks last summer in Ruleville, Mississippi engaged in the Mississippi Summer Project. The Project included Freedom Schools for the education of Negro high school students, voter registration, and attempts at communication with the white community.

Jim Corson was engaged particularly in this last effort and in counseling other volunteers. His lecture is sponsored by the Friends of the Student Non-violence Co-ordinating Committee of the Campus Christian Association.

Senate To Meet Tomorrow in TUB

The University of Nevada Senate will meet Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in the TUB Lounge. The main order of business will be the election of a new senator at large to replace the junior men's senator at large, Doug Neddenriep, who recently resigned his position. The senate is also expecting reports from the Steering Committee on the new constitution and by laws, and the possibility of fixed salaries for senators at large. There may also be a report from the Library Committee.

'Fringe' Success; Board Changes Mark Week

The second annual Travis Weekend ended last Saturday with an open house for interested parties in the Jot Travis Student Union following the game.

On Thursday night, the reverberate wail of the guitar string could be heard as folk singers performed for about 200 spectators in the dining commons. The affair was part of the tribute to Ezra (Jot) Travis, the union benefactor, and was hosted with hot cider and coffee.

On Friday night the Travis Union presented "Beyond The Fringe." The satirical play dealt with English and American politics, and religion.

The Travis Weekend was headed by Sig Rogich, new lectures chairman, who replaces Steve Gomes. The move was part of a change to add help to the publicity committee now headed by Tony Oxborrow. With the addition of Gomes the two will split the committee, one taking public relations while the other handles publicity.

Rogich, a junior, and member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, is also managing editor of the Sagebrush.

The shake-up on the Board came shortly after the resignation of Board President Cooper, who quit school unexpectedly. Cooper was replaced by Vice-President Karen Gibbs.

Miss Gibbs will serve the remainder of Cooper's term which expires in February. Keith Stevens will serve as the Board's vice-president and financial director.

Socialist Leader To Speak Thursday

Norman Thomas, six times a past socialist candidate for President, will present a lecture entitled "Are there Answers?" Thursday November 19 at 8 p.m. in the Travis Lounge.

Thomas, long an expounder of Socialist concepts, has seen the government adopt many of the Socialist programs that he fought for in his bids for the presidency.

In his recent book, "Socialism Re-examined," Thomas says that, "Democracy and Socialism, both, are ancient concepts. But as effective ideologies profoundly influencing human thought and practice, they are products of the Western World as it developed between the middle of the 18th century and the first World War."

Thomas, 79, lives in a hotel room with a kitchenette near his office, and visits a daughter's family on Long Island as often as possible.

Although slowed down a bit by arthritis and other infirmities of age, Thomas writes two columns a week for the Denver Colorado Post, and lectures frequently throughout the country.

He is the author of 19 books including, "War, No Profit, No Glory, No Need," "Prerequisites for Peace," "The Conscientious Objector in America," and "Human Exploitation."

He has also found time to work as chairman of the Post War World Council and of the Labor Research Institute. In addition, he is a member of many more committees, among them the League for Industrial Democracy, the Workers Defense League, the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, and the Inter-American Association for Democracy and Freedom.

Since World War II, Mr. Thomas has campaigned for world disarmament, with international control and inspection. He applies to criticism of the Soviet Union the same standards of value that he applies to his own country.

Admission to the lecture is free to University students, faculty, staff, and Season Ticket holders. For all others there is a $1 admission charge.

- Bulletin - No Pictures

This issue of the Sagebrush contains no pictures because Professor Edward W. Yates of the Art Department would not allow the photographers of the Sagebrush to use the dark room in the Fine Arts Building.

Professor Yates must feel that the dark room is his private domain.

The Sagebrush will make every effort to present pictorial coverage of campus news in Friday's paper in spite of the good professor's attitude.

ROTC Students To Select Queen

Eight University of Nevada co-ed candidates, each representing a sorority or independent living group, are vying for the title of queen of the "Colossal" Military Ball. This year marks the 36th year the Ball has been presented on the campus.

The all-school dance is scheduled to be held Saturday, Nov. 21 at the Elks Club, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. One of the girls will be crowned "Military Queen" during intermission ceremonies by Charles J. Armstrong, president of the University. In addition to her crown, the queen will receive the traditional saber, a dozen long-stemmed roses, and the honorary rank of cadet colonel. For the first time this year, the queen will receive her own trophy. Candidates are Marsha Marvel, Sue Sonderegger, Sophie Sheppard, Carolyn Reese, Jane McCarthy, Susan Clark, Vicki Jeanne Geertsema, and Donna Weaver.

Peter, Paul and Mary To Return Here

The Student Union has announced that Peter, Paul and Mary have been signed for the spring semester of 1965. The popular folk-singing trio appeared at the University of Nevada last year, playing before a capacity crowd, to highlight the 1964 Homecoming activities.

Bud Olson, special events chairman, reports that members of the Student Union Board of Directors, expect a full house for the coming event. He did not state the exact date the trio would appear on campus.

Since their professional debut, Peter, Paul and Mary have broken almost all boxoffice and recording records. They have surpassed any folk singing group, including the Kingston Trio, Limelighters, etc.

REQUIEM FOR MACKAY STADIUM

It was more than a football game "up on the hill" Saturday afternoon. It was the end of Mackay Stadium as the University of Nevada's athletic center. Next year's athletic events will be staged in a new stadium on the benchland north of old Mackay Field, where facilities will be ample for a modern university with a large registration.

But for more than half a century, the present field was the scene of football triumphs and defeats, of track meets, of military drills, and the setting for many community events. That it should now be more desirable as the site for another university class building will bring regrets to many alumni and to townspeople as well who realize that the school must grow, but still are disheartened at the passing of a landmark.

The land bought for the University of Nevada in the 1880's included a little hollow far removed from the first class buildings, planted to alfalfa, and called Evans Field. The level ground made a natural playing field, and the sloping banks around the hollow gave good vantage points for spectators. When Clarence H. Mackay visited the University of Nevada in 1908, he was impressed by the natural advantages of the site, and he arranged for the leveling of the field and planting it to grass for a football field, the building of bleachers with a protecting colonnade, and the erection of the training quarters on the opposite side of the field. On Oct. 23, 1909, he returned to Nevada to dedicate the field, and it had an auspicious beginning, for the Nevada football team won the first game played on the new turf.

Mackay Field, it was called and was so known for many years until "stadium" was substituted for "field," presumably to give it a higher status symbol. But as Mackay Field it will be remembered by those alumni who are frosty around the eaves.

No doubt the new stadium to be available next year will have better accommodations for both athletes and spectators, and should be an impressive addition to the campus, but it won't be the same for loyal Nevada rooters who have attended the home games at Mackay Field for years uncounted. But then, the university isn't the same either, or the spectators the same as the were in the years back.

It Sure Is Cold Out!

HOO-BOY was it ever frigid at the game over the weekend. Although a bigger turnout should have been expected for the last football game to be played in historic Mackay Stadium, it was just as well it was small.

FOR THE cheering and the spirit was the best its' been at any game during the year. Only one cheerleader turned out, John Mc-Sweeney, and he did the best job that's been done all year. Of course some of the spirits consumed in the stands mighta had some-thin' to do with the general spirit expressed in the spirited occasion . . .

IT SURE is quiet down here in the Sagebrush hole now that the Lincoln Hall controversy has quieted down. We're just quietly sitting down here biding our time till we can stir a few more things up.

Ever Eat in a German Concentration Camp?

RUMOR has it that the University Dining Commons has tried to pass off some tongue as beef to unsuspecting dorm residents. With nothing but complaints about the horrendous stuff, the D.C. shrewdly mixed their surplus of the grub into some sort of goulash. Boy, are they smart . . .

I think the Dining Commons must buy all of their food by the boxcar . . .

You shoulda seen some crazy nut on the Golden Gators team out in that ice and slush punting in his bare feet. T'was a good thing for him the Gators didn't have to punt too many times. . .

PARDON MY FOOT:

As I was strolling casually out of the men's rest room at Shakey's last week, two former lady friends of mine lurched, grabbed and yanked me, protesting mildly into the women's room. Acting as casual as possible under the circumstances after realizing there was already a woman in there, I nearly tore the door off its hinges trying to emit myself from the immediate premises. Only as I snatched open the door I found myself face to face with another young lady on the way in. All she uttered was an "ohmigod" as I crashed on by . . .

A lotta students missed out on a good thing by not going to see "Beyond the Fringe." It was extremely funny.

Now that the earliest winter in years has firmly let us know of its presence, I suppose the usual "status casts" will be showing up. Don't get me wrong — I love skiing. Why if it wasn't for skiing there wouldn't be any stretch pants around, or bar skiing either . . .

SO NEVADA students beware! For when you least expect, he comes out to punish you for your wrong doings. Don't park that car on campus if you haven't a sticker. Let the sick person die. Don't say, "damn" when at the football games. And above all, don't be insubordinate. For we are caterers. Or at least the campus law enforcers would like to believe so.

College Student Becoming 'Forgotten Man'

By Collegiate Press Service (CPS) — The president of the 1,300 school American Council on Education has warned that today's college student is in danger of becoming "the forgotten man" of higher education as the nation's colleges and universities transform themselves into the "knowledge industry."

Speaking at the 178th Founders Day Ceremony at Franklin and Marshall College, Logan Wilson said that amid the demands made upon colleges by communities, industries, and government agencies, "there is a recurrent need to recall that colleges were created primarily for students."

The "seller's market" in higher education which has young people clamoring for admission to college, he said, makes it all too easy for teachers and administrators to avoid confronting issues involving students.

In line to take the places of the dropouts, there is a danger of our becoming indifferent, if not "Beacuse others are standing callous, to the sources of discontent and the causes of failure," Wilson added.

He said that rate of expansion of college enrollment may leave the student with less personal contact with the faculty and college staff members. Citing the "faceless anonymity" that programmed instruction, IBM cards and identification numbers represent, he said that "the depersonalization of the student, if allowed to go unchecked or unchallenged, represents a grave threat to the very purposes of higher education."

Among issues deserving attention, Wilson said, are the intellectual climate of the campus, including the student body's view of extra-curricular life and the faculty's attitude toward teaching, the personal conduct and behavior of students, and the high rate of college "drop-outs."

He called for a re-examination of the extra-curricular life of our colleges, adding, "It may well be that certain of the adolescent preoccupations of nineteenth-century college life are no longer fitting."

"With the rising expectations and standards, I hope, the increasing level of student maturity, we can afford to drop the enervating and time-consuming activities that (on some campuses) preoccupy the energies of students and obstruct realization of the real goals of education," he said.

Wilson also decried "the low value attributed by faculty and administration to the effective and committed teaching of students" with the resulting inference by the student body "that such activity is not considered terribly important."

To questions of student honesty, integrity, and morality, "colleges and universities cannot be indifferent," he said. However, he pointed out that the institutions sometimes caught themselves between parents who "do not support the restrictions which colleges have traditionally placed on students" and other parents who "expect colleges to police their sons and daughters in ways which they themselves did not, or could not."

"It is no wonder," he added, "that the present tension exists between students and institutions regarding rules, discipline, morals, rights, freedoms, and responsibilities."

"I believe that every college or university has a responsibility for what happens to a student outside the classroom, and this is especially true for the residential college. That obligation cannot be side-stepped, no matter how much we may wish to avoid it. Qualities of character, conscience, and citizenship are part of the educational development of our students. All of us, faculty as well as students, make a tragic mistake if we proclaim that this is not the proper business of the college."

Wilson said the continuing rate of student attrition in higher education, which finds only four out of every ten entering freshmen graduating from college four years later, presents a picture of "waste, inefficiency and probably considerable personal unhappiness."

Some of these students, he conceded, are outright academic failures, but others find "that they do not fit a preconceived mold or are repelled by the pressures and irrelevancies put upon them." He said that in the collegiate "race for 'excellence,' too many students who would have been successes a decade ago are found in the tally of casualties."

The American Council on Education which Dr. Wilson heads, is the principal coordinating agency for education in the United States. More than 1,300 colleges, universities, and education organizations are members of the Council.

Thanksgiving Is Still Young

Thanksgiving, a University recess, will fall this year on the 26th.

The fourth Thursday in November has traditionally been the day upon which Thanksgiving fell, but it has been a national holiday for less than 24 years.

In December, 1941, then President Franklin D. Roosevelt and a joint session of congress set the fourth Thursday in November as a national holiday.

Thanksgiving had been proclaimed by other presidents. The dates varied, but all generally fell in November. The first President to set an official Thanksgiving date was Abraham Lincoln. In 1863 President Lincoln set the last Thursday in November for this occasion.

The usual festive atmosphere of the day is the continuance of the celebration traditionally attributed to the Pilgrims of the Plymouth colony. The first such special day was believed to have been observed in 1621.

The Pilgrims gave thanks for happy events, good harvests and peace with the Indians.

Turkeys were native to New England and were an important part of the feast. One of the chief reasons for having turkey every year was because they were so plentiful and not too difficult to come by with the weapons of that era.

Thanksgiving also included the pagan and Christian feasts of harvest.

Although Thanksgiving, by that name, is celebrated only in this country and a handful of others, almost every country in the world celebrates something of this sort each fall.

Campus Faces Winter

John Sala, superintendent of buildings and grounds, reports his department is in the process of winterizing the campus and getting it ready for the on coming cold and wet weather.

All the outside hydrants and faucets must be winterized and the sprinkling and irrigation systems drained and made ready for the winter season. This winterizing of watering systems include large systems in Mackay stadium and Clark field.

The removal of leaves, always a problem at this time of year, is soon to be eased.

The leaves, which can be measured only by the truck load, are now laboriously removed by hand - raking. About this said Sala, "It is hard to say how many tons of leaves are removed annually. The weight is greatly increased by moisture, but it is a large amount.

"The department now has a mechanical leaf-raker," he said.

"We are waiting for a few more parts and then this will be put into action on the quad and on other large grassy places. It is actually a leaf-brush and will be run by a power-take-off from a small tractor."

New Flag

A special presentation of a Washoe County Centennial flag was made to the University by the Washoe County Board of Commissioners at the meeting of the board held November 5. The flag is designed to commemorate Nevada's centennial year and will also be presented to high schools in the Reno-Sparks area.

The presentation was accepted by Keith Lee, ASUN president. The flag will be displayed in the Student Union lounge along with the American flag and the Nevada state flag.

Circle K

The campus Circle K Service Club will hold its charter dinner this Thursday night in the Dining Commons at 6:30 p.m.

The group will accept its international charter from the governor of Region Five of Circle K International, who will also speak.

Ex-Nevada Governor Russell, Dean Hathorn, Dean Basta, Bob Kersey, and Bill Adams will attend, and 30 members from the Reno and Sparks Kiwanis Clubs are expected. Kiwanis Club sponsors Circle K groups around the nation.

Officers of the Circle K Club will be installed, and the club will receive its gavel, gong, banner, and lectern. Members of the organization will receive their club pins.

Bach Singers

The University of Nevada Bach Aria Group is presenting an evening of Bach's chamber music Wednesday, November 18, at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theater.

Vocalists are Rita Bowen, mezzo soprano; Francis Baker, soprano; Dr. Macy, tenor; and Jerald Reynolds, baritone. Dr. Chaloff is pianist. Instrumentalists are Orville Fleming, violin and flute; John Lenz, cello; and William Clark, string bass. The group has given two concerts since its formation last summer.

Plans call for further appearances in California and other parts of Nevada, all by requests of interested groups.

Student Union

The Student Union Board of Directors voted unanimously in favor of Miss Karen Gibbs as new Union Board President to replace Dave Cooper.

At the Thursday night meeting, it was also decided that Keith Stephens should replace Miss Gibbs as vice-president and financial director.

Dave Cooper, past President of the Student Union, dropped school and resigned his position unexpectedly, and Miss Gibbs filled his position for the three days preceding her support by acclamation.

She will hold her position until elections in February, at which time she may run again if desired.

Planned Romance

(CPS) — Well, it looks like they're computerizing you-know-what.

A caravan of blushing Boston University maidens, numbered one to 121, took an adventurous journey last week into the very heart of New Hampshire's Indian country, each wondering what lay in store.

At their destination in Hanover was a group of Dartmouth students, likewise numbered from one to 121, anxiously paving the ground and scanning

Route 10 for sighs of the B.U. bevy. These titillated males had each been paired with one of the female travelers through the use of a specially programmed electronic brain.

The cybernetically inclined matchmakers behind this numerical rendezvous were a Dartmouth dorm social chairman in need of a gimmick and a contact at Boston University's Towers Dorm for women, Bonnie Bloom.

Having heard of a similar social experiment at Iowa State, the enterprising lad prepared a questionnaire which asked for physical statistics, major interests, favorite conversational topics and academic grades. The information was fed to a computer which "mated" the pairs it found potentially the most compatible.

According to Miss Bloom, the arrangement proved "very successful." The couples attended the Dartmouth-Brown game, a rock and roll dance, had dinner, and then went to private parties.

It gets very cold and lonely in Hanover.

AWS Dress Code

"The way our girls dress is fine," says Jean Pagni, AWS President on the subject of the AWS dress code.

"We don't want to seem petty and seem to insinuate that we are inferring our coeds are guilty of bad taste in their choice of clothes for certain occasions."

"AWS initially had no defined dress code. It was a generally understood thing.

"A few years ago we printed a few rules of dress in our AWS Handbook. Last spring the Student Union Food and Dress Committee set up its code for dress in the dining commons. We incorporated this into our rules and the result is our present dress code.

"Recently it has come to our attention that a few individuals have been wearing, which in itself is a minor thing. Our only worry is that the situation might get out of hand in the future.

"AWS plans to take no action whatsoever in clearing up the situation. We simply passed the information on to the living groups and asked them to make sure everyone was aware of the proper dress in the dining commons.

I'm sure it was a matter of some girls being in a hurry to eat or just getting back from studying and not having time to change clothes. I'm confident that as soon as these individuals know what the proper dress is they will comply."

Spur Convention

Spurs from five western universities met at the University of Nevada for the first time for the Annual Regional Spur Convention last weekend.

Delegates from Brigham Young University, Utah State University, University of Utah, Idaho State University, and the University of Nevada Spur chapter gathered at Nevada for three days of discussions, tours, speakers, and pleasure.

The national women's honorary organization's convention was headed by co-chairmen Karen Anderson and Elfrena Sewell and Nevada Spur President Julie Lewis.

The delegates, who stayed in the recreation rooms of Manzanita and Juniper Halls, ended their convention with a dinner at Trader Dick's restaurant.

Military Ball

Some of the one-hundred fifty gifts and prizes to be awarded at the 36th annual Military Ball are now on display in the activities showcase in the Student Union Building.

Some of the prizes shown include a transistor radio, a woman's mohair sweater, a necklace of cultured pearls, and an electric coffee pot.

The Military Ball will be held on November 21 at the Elks club from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Tickets are $3 per couple.

First University Play Presented

The University of Nevada speech and drama department will present its first play of the year, "The Lady's Not For Burning," for four showings starting December 9th. The play will be given in the theater of the Fine Arts building at 8 p.m. each night from the 9th through the 12th. Robert E. Ericson is in charge of producing the play.

"The Lady's Not For Burning" is a poetic comedy by Christopher Fry. It is one of the most widely discussed and produced plays of the modern theater. It first found success in England and then became a success in New York. Arthur Fry has written such other well known plays as "Venus Observed," "A Phoenix Too Frequent" and "Ring Round the Moon."

It is the story of a discharged soldier, Thomas Mendip, who is tired of this world and in a hurry to get out of it. Upon arriving in a small town he announces to the mayor that he has committed a murder and should be hanged. To his surprise the mayor and officials refuse to believe his story, and to his dismay he finds it very hard to get out of life.

Shortly a young girl, Jennet Jourdemanye, is brought before the mayor for practicing witchcraft. Jennet strangely has no wish to die. Thomas tries to show the officials how absurd it would be to hang an innocent girl, who doesn't want to die, and at the same time not hang a man who confesses to a crime of murder. The two fall in love, but the question remains. Will their love flourish here, there, or where?

Nevada Women Win One, Lose Two In Field Hockey

The University of Nevada's Field Hockey team was successful in one of its three games at a recent sports day held at Chico State College.

In the last of three games played, the team defeated its rival Chico State College by a score of one to nothing. The point for Nevada was scored by Carla Rost.

The women lost the first two games to San Francisco State College and Sacramento State College.

The outcome of the exhibition game between the Northern California Women's Field Hockey team and the American Hockey Touring team proved the touring team the winner. The touring team will be going to New Zealand for matches in the near future.

Pansy's Here Prep For Year

Each year at this time, when the leaves begin to color and fall, the university gardeners can be seen spading and preparing the flower beds about the campus for the annual return of the pansy.

The flower beds in front of Morrill Hall and around the flagpole and near the Home Economics building are denuded of the summertime petunias and the soil enriched and spaded. The pansies have been at rest in the university greenhouses.

Henry Tietje, university gardener, although not a fan of pansies, thinks there are few other flowers that would fare as well during this season and at this altitude.

The planting of the pansies, an annual occasion, signifies the entry of the University of Nevada into the feverish push toward the Christmas recess.

Pack Drops Final Home Game

The University of Nevada finished its home schedule of football games, playing the last game in Mackay Stadium Saturday afternoon in a cold and brutal struggle with the Golden Gators from San Francisco State. The Gators led the game in all statistics and in the scoring, beating the Wolf Pack 21-6. The field was covered with snow and the air was freezing, making it hard for the players to hold on to the ball. The condition also kept away most of the spectators as only a handful of brave souls watched the game.

The footing was poor but it did not stop the Gator runners from picking the holes that their line had made for them. The powerful Gators controlled the ball most of the first quarter. The Gator backs were seldom stopped for a gain of less than five yards.

The Gators moved the ball down deep into Wolf Pack territory in the first quarter and then pushed the ball across for the first score of the game. The conversion was good and San Francisco took an early lead of 7-0. After a Wolf Pack punt the Gators were off and rolling again and after a pass were once again in scoring position. Two plays later the Gators plowed the snow and the Pack defenders aside and found pay dirt (or ice) for the second time in the first quarter. The P.A.T. was once again good and the Gators ran their lead to 14-0 over the frozen Pack.

The Gators were forced to punt in the beginning of the second quarter and then quarterback Jack Dyer got his pack moving. Bobby Heron took the ball around right end for a twenty yard gain and then after two more gains the pack was stalled and had to give up possession of the ball. The Gators went right to work after they got the ball and in two plays had found the end zone again. The San Francisco Quarterback went back to pass and found a back waiting all alone for his pass and he waltzed home free bringing the score to 20-0. San Francisco had an excellent place kicker and he once again added the extra point. Nevada now trailed the Gators 21-0.

After getting the ball back the Pack started off good again. Dyer threw a 16 yard pass to end Jack Schwella who made a fine catch. Then Dyer hit ends Fitzpatrick and Larry Felicina to place the ball deep into the Gators territory. A fumble on the next play stopped the Wolf Packs scoring threat.

The rest of the first half was a calamity of ball handling mistakes on both sides. The San Francisco quarterback let his touchdown pass go to his head and quickly threw two interceptions. The Wolf Pack had a hard time keeping track of the ball and fumbled many times before the gun sounded. The teams left the soggy field for the half time break with the score 21-0 in favor of the Gators.

Some of the blue faced fans left at the half but a few of the spectators stuck it out until the end. San Francisco's uniforms, which were white when they came out on the field, had turned to brown by the end of the half.

The third quarter was slow with neither team doing much except slipping and sliding.

The Pack hit the score board late in the fourth quarter when Dyer moved the Pack 97 yards. Capitalizing on a Gator fumble on the Wolf Pack three Dyer completed five passes to put the Pack on the San Francisco seven yard line. A penalty dampened the Packs hopes and moved the ball to the Gator 22. On the next play Dyer threw a pass to Danny Acuna for the Packs only score.

San Francisco's punter added a little humor to the game for he only wore one shoe.

At times the Pack looked good and moved the ball well, but at other times acted like they had never played before. Ends Jack Schwella, Larry Felicina, and Dennis Fitzpatrick all looked good. Dave Dyer threw the ball well.

Saturday's loss brought the Pack's record for the year to no wins and nine losses. The Pack takes on the Chico State Wildcats who are also having a winless season. The game will be played in Chico and will be the final game of the year for both teams.

University Wrestlers Ready For Full Season of Competition

Wrestling at the University of Nevada is about to begin on a regular schedule. This sport is growing throughout the nation and, under the coaching of Lee Newell, Nevada is about to enter the mat world.

Last year the University had a two man squad go to the Far West Conference meet, where they won 10 points. This was a strong performance as last year the wrestling program never got off the ground at Nevada.

There are six members on the team now and several more should report at the end of the football season. The team is composed of Jim Valin, 123 lbs.; Bill Ellis, 130 lbs.; Richard Haines, 137 lbs.; John Rogers, 157 lbs.; Earl Wilkens, 167 lbs.; and Dave Haines, 192 lbs.

Rogers is the only man who has experience. He finished fourth last year in the conference meet.

Coach Newell explained that this year's team might be thin because of the lack of wrestlers and the lack of experience. He said one of the major reasons the team is so small is that not a single Nevada high school has a wrestling program.

The first meet will be a dual meet against Sonoma State, December 11. Nevada has to forfeit 15 points because there will not be wrestlers in the 147, 177, or heavyweight divisions.

Newell pointed out that this year's squad will be aiming for the conference meet in February. The inexperience of the team should be reduced in importance by then, and Newell says the Wolf Pack could have a good chance of winning the conference clash.

Looking tough so far have been Rogers, Bill Ellis, and Richard and Dave Haines.

Newell has had previous experience coaching wrestling. He coached four successful years at Washington State.

College wrestling is growing in all parts of the country. Newell attributes this to the fact that any man, no matter how big or small he is, can do well in the sport.

Cross Country Team Wins

Cold air, frozen ground, and snow could not stop the University of Nevada's cross country team from beating Sonoma State and San Francisco in a three way meet held on the Washoe County Golf Course Saturday afternoon. Nevada scored 25 points in beating the other teams. San Francisco was second with 39 points and Sonoma finished last with 63 points.

Skip Houk slushed home first for the Pack in 18:33 for the more than three and a quarter mile course.

Nevada's Steve Regas followed Houk home for second place in a time of 19:04. Sonoma's Tim Kelly was third and San Francisco's Paul Winston was fourth. Mike Sorenson of Nevada was fifth and Keith Stapleton of S.F. was sixth.

Other Nevada runners were Frank Lemus seventh and Tom Beardsley tenth.

Next week the Pack harriers travel to San Francisco for the Far Western Conference finals. Nevada has a good chance to take home top honors since they have only been beaten once this year. Nevada's only loss was at the hands of the Hornets from Sacramento State.

Classical Film To Be Presented

The speech and drama department of the University of Nevada will present a classic film, "The Swindle," at 8 and 9 p.m. on Nov. 24th at the theater in the Fine Arts building. The picture stars Broderick Crawford, Richard Basehart and Giulietta Masina.

Many of its scenes were later expanded into major sequences in "La Dolce Vita."

"The Swindle" is the 9th in the series of 14 films presented this semester by the speech and drama department.

These classical films are presented almost every Tuesday night and are free to university students. The money needed to bring the films to the university is taken from the Student Union fee every student pays each semester.

Remaining films after "The Swindle" are "Pather Panchali", "Caesar and Cleopatra", "Hymn of the Nations" and "The White Reindeer", "A Summer to Remember", and "The Seventh Seal."
